NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Democrats Pick Davis and Bryan—LaFollette Runs as Independent.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

The Democratic national convention Wednesday afternoon nominated for President John W. Davis of West Virginia and New York city. At 2:30 Thursday morning it nominated for vice president Gov. Charles W. Bryan of Nebraska, brother of William Jennings Bryan.

The one hundredth ballot at four o'clock Wednesday morning, following the withdrawal of McAdoo and Smith, saw the beginning of the end of the deadlock. The next ballot, first of Wednesday's day session, scattered the opposing forces. On the one hundred and second the Davis-LaFollette wagon got started and on the one hundred and third it was a landslide to climb aboard. During the stand-still Taggart of Indiana moves the nomination of Davis by acclamation. The convention answered with a roar of approval. Chairman Walsh pronounced the nomination unanimously chosen.

The convention thereupon tried then and there to nominate Walsh for vice president. But he would not have it so and gavelled through an adjournment to 8:30 p. m. During the recess he sent in a letter heading off the threatened nomination. E. T. Meredith of Iowa, former secretary of agriculture, also asked to be eliminated from consideration.

Twelve candidates for vice president were named at the night session including Mrs. Leroy Springs, national committeewoman from South Carolina; Governor Bryan, Alvin Owsley of Texas, former national commander of the American Legion; Gen. John C. Greenway of Arizona, distinguished soldier and mining engineer; Maj. George L. Berry of Tennessee, president of the International Pressmen and Assistants' Union of North America; and Bennett Clark of Missouri, one of Champ Clark. But Nominee Davis, who had immediately taken charge of affairs, picked Bryan as a strategic move to bring his brother into camp. The first ballot was marked by almost innumerable changes of vote and by withdrawals, but its result gave Bryan the nomination by this vote: Bryan, 729; Berry, 200; Mrs. Springs, 18; Clark, 51; the rest scattering.

During Wednesday's night session Nominee Davis appeared on the platform and won the crowd with his distinguished personality and his eloquent call to battle. Gov. Al Smith also appeared, said he was grateful, not disappointed, told how he would work for the ticket and received a tremendous tribute from the adoring assemblage.

Thus ended the record-breaking Democratic national convention of 1924 on the fourteenth working day.

MONDAY morning's first ballot, the 77th, gave McAdoo 511, Smith 348 and J. W. Davis 73 as compared with his high-water of 130 on the 23rd ballot, July 1. During Monday the anti-McAdoo forces whittled down his vote until on the 86th Smith passed him, the vote standing, McAdoo, 353; Smith, 360. The six ballots of Tuesday's day session brought McAdoo down to 314 and Smith down to 355 and jumped Ralston up to 196 from 98. Adjournment was then taken after the 133rd ballot.

Smith sought out McAdoo at 4 p. m. After a 40-minute talk Smith asked McAdoo, "Will you get out if I do?" McAdoo answered "No."

Tuesday's night session opened with announcement by Taggart of Ralston's unqualified withdrawal. Next, Franklin Roosevelt informed the convention that he had been authorized by Smith to withdraw his name if McAdoo would do the same, otherwise the Smith forces would stick. The immediate result was shown by the 94th ballot which jumped McAdoo's vote 81 points to a total of 365, Smith holding his own at 364, and Davis advancing 9 points to 82. On the 95th ballot Davis jumped to 130 and on the 96th to 210. Then, at 2 a. m. Wednesday, Mc-

Adoo's letter of withdrawal was read. The century ballot, the last of the session, gave McAdoo 190, Smith 351 and Davis 208, with Meredith jumping from 37 to 75.

JOHN WILLIAM DAVIS of West Virginia since 1921 has been a New York lawyer whose practice is largely among corporations and banks, because of which William Jennings Bryan persistently opposed him as a "representative of Wall street." He is fifty-one years of age and was born in Clarkburg, W. Va., the son of John J. and Anna (Kennedy) Davis. He took from Washington and Lee university his A. B. in 1892 and his LL. B. in 1895. He has been awarded the degree of LL. D. by half a dozen universities at home and abroad. He also enjoys the honor, rare among American lawyers, of being a member of Middle Temple, London. He practiced law in Clarkburg from 1897 to 1913, took a hand in state and national politics and was elected to congress in 1911. President Wilson made him solicitor general in 1913 and in 1918 appointed him ambassador to Great Britain. He was president of the American Bar association two years ago. He is a Phi Beta Kappa and a Phi Kappa Psi, a Mason and a Presbyterian. His first wife died in 1900. He married January 2, 1912, Ellen G. Bassel. He has one daughter.

CHARLES W. BRYAN was born in Salem, Ill., February 10, 1867. He was educated at the old Chicago university and as a young man went to Lincoln, Neb., where William Jennings Bryan had preceded him. He became identified with his brother in politics in 1896. He was associate editor of Bryan's publication, The Commonwealth. He was elected in 1915 as mayor by the city commissioners of Lincoln. He established a municipal coal yard from which he retailed all over the state. He was elected governor after twice had been declared between the Nebraska Democratic factions headed by his brother and by former Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock. He claims to have effected a savings of $1,000,000 in operating expenses of the state government. He married in 1892 Miss Elizabeth Brokaw of Salem. There are two grown-up children. Governor Bryan is not a member of any church; his wife and children are Baptists.

ROBERT MARION LAFOLLETTE, since 1905 United States Republican senator from Wisconsin, invites the dissatisfied voters of the country to register their disapproval of existing conditions by voting for him as an independent candidate for the Presidency. He has been endorsed by the Progressive national conference and by the Socialist national convention. He and a committee will select a running mate. A convention is to be held in January of 1925 to organize a permanent and independent new party. The Socialist national convention condemned the Ku Klux Klan by name and elected Eugene V. Debs national chairman.

Duncan McDonald and William Boyce, named for President and vice president by the new national Farmer-Labor party at its St. Paul convention, have been asked to resign in favor of LaFollette and his unknown running mate. The Workers' party, of which William Z. Foster is the head, announces that it will fight LaFollette. The National Independent party refused to accept LaFollette and Wednesday nominated a President and vice president.

Representative John M. Nelson of Wisconsin, "Republican," insurgent leader in the house and LaFollette's campaign manager, says that if they cannot win a majority of the electoral college they stand a good chance of throwing the election of the next President into the house and that they will take an active part in the congressional elections of next fall with the purpose of maintaining their balance of power in both houses.

CALVIN COOLIDGE, JR., aged sixteen, younger son of President Coolidge, died Monday night in Walter Reed hospital, Washington, from blood poisoning resulting from blistering his foot while playing tennis with his brother, John, on the White House grounds. The boy made a heroic fight for life and medical science did its best for him.

President Coolidge forbade all official pomp and ceremony. Wednesday afternoon there was a simple service in the White House. Thursday morning there was a formal church service in Northampton, Mass., the boy's birthplace. Thursday afternoon he was laid to rest in the family burial lot at Plymouth, Vt., the home of his ancestors.

Official messages of condolence came from all the world. The vast assemblage in Madison Square garden heard the news with a groan and the convention adjourned. Washington city kept silence for five minutes during the White House service. The heart of the nation went out—not to the "President and First Lady of the Land," but to his father and mother. For to the American people the Coolidges are "folks." And young Cal was a real American boy.

ARKANSAS, in which 19 per cent of the total child population is employed contrary to the standards set by the federal government, is first of the states to ratify the constitutional amendment submitted to congress. The vote was close, 45 to 40 in the house and 15 to 13 in the senate. The amendment reads:

"Section 1. The congress shall have power to limit, regulate and prohibit the labor of persons under eighteen years of age.

"Section 2. The power of the several states is unimpaired by this article, except that the operation of state laws shall be suspended to the extent necessary to give effect to legislation enacted by the congress."

Two acts passed by congress with the purpose of prohibiting child labor have been declared unconstitutional by the United States Supreme court. The act of 1916 prohibited transportation in interstate commerce of goods made in factories using child labor. The act of 1919 imposed a tax of 10 per cent of the net profits of the year upon an employer using child labor. Should the amendment be ratified by three-fourths of the states, congress will then enact enforcing legislation.

OUR Latin-America neighbors are displaying their usual pique. Haiti is trying to get the League of Nations to oust our marines from the republic. There is some sort of "revolution" on in Brazil, which is apparently of enough importance to keep the censor busy and to make President Bernardes declare a state of siege, etc.

Mexico is trying to count the returns of the Presidential election of last Sunday. The rival candidates, Gen. Plutarco Elias Calles, radical, and Gen. Angel Flores, less radical, are meanwhile accusing each other of election irregularities of all sorts. And of course both leaders claim complete and overwhelming victory.

Mexico is preparing to make claims for big damages for the Vera Cruz occupation and the Pershing expedition before the general claims commission which is soon to try to adjudicate claims between the two countries. We clamed up Vera Cruz in a vain effort to make the Mexicans salute the flag. We got muddled up when we tried to get Villa for raiding the border town of Columbus. And now the piper wants his pay.

ALIENISTS and psychiatrists to the number of twelve from various parts of the country have conducted on behalf of the defense exhaustive mental and physical tests of Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, confessed slayers of Bobby Frank. Four have examined the two boys for the state. It is stated that the defense will ask an insanity hearing in advance of the trial. The state holds the two to be legally insane, and that a plea of insanity can be used only as part of the defense.

SEVERAL scientists agree that the three "white Indian" children brought to New York from Panama are not "white" and not albinos, but are simply Indians affected by pathological conditions.

Awards to the number of 489, aggregating more than $14,500,000, have been made in favor of Americans against Germany for World war losses by the German-American mixed claims commission. Claims to the number of 12,416, aggregating $500,000,000, are still pending.

Avoid Injury in Harvesting Seed

Most Potato Growers Do Not Appreciate Importance of Proper Handling.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The average seed-potato grower does not fully appreciate the importance of using every means to prevent injury to the tubers from rough handling during the process of harvesting and storing, says the United States Department of Agriculture. Mechanical injuries to a tuber are sources for the entrance of infection which rapidly spreads to other tubers which come in contact with the injured one. If the crop is grown on land which contains many small stones the tubers are almost certain to be more severely injured than when grown in a sandy loam soil. Hand digging is not always feasible, but it is believed that where small stones abound in the soil it will be desirable to harvest the home seed plot by hand. Much injury will be avoided if the seed stock designed for planting the field plot for the ensuing year is picked directly into crates in which it is allowed to remain throughout the storage period.

Proper Storage. Storage conditions necessary to insure good seed at planting time are more easily provided in the North than in the South. In the former region a well-constructed cellar, pit, or cave serves reasonably well. The main thing is to keep the room temperature sufficiently low to retard germination. The ideal seed tuber is one which has not wasted any of its stored-up energy by excessive loss through sprouting. It should be firm with the first sprouts just showing. Such tubers can be depended upon, if suitable conditions prevail, to start quickly when planted and to make a vigorous growth.

The general practice among Southern growers of securing seed from the North involves, in the absence of suitable storage conditions, one of two things: Either getting the seed potatoes late in the fall and holding them over in dugouts, pits, or cellars, with consequent sprouting before planting, or the risk of having the seed chilled, frozen, or overheated while in transit in midwinter. In the opinion of department authorities, the greatest need of the large Southern truck grower at present is that of suitable storage facilities for handling fall shipments of seed potatoes. This would do away with the risks of midwinter shipment and enable them to buy seed in the fall when the price is usually much below that of later shipments.

Value of Manure Spreader

It takes as long to load a manure spreader as it does a wagon box, but the spreader will unload and spread the manure in a third of the time. Hauling manure in a wagon box and spreading it on the field with a hand fork is hard work. It can be done much easier with a spreader and the material is more evenly distributed. The spreader is a useful implement to have at any time when manure is to be spread, but particularly so when labor is scarce.

Cows on Sweet Clover

Until cows become used to sweet clover pasture, you should not turn them onto the clover while the dew is on the clover. Cows should be well fed before they are turned into the sweet clover. At first let them in the clover for only a short time and each day you can let them in longer until they become used to it. In a week or ten days there is not much danger of bloat unless the cows are hungry when turned on the clover.

Loss by Lightning

This is a good time to give attention to the protection of the farm buildings against loss by lightning. Rods properly installed afford a high degree of protection. Rods already installed should be carefully inspected to see that all connections and joints are in good condition, and particularly that the ground connections are good. Loss of stock in pastures may be reduced by grounding the wire fences at corners and every 20 rods between.

Loss in Feed Shortage

There is perhaps a greater loss in dairying through a shortage of feed, especially pasture, in summer than almost any other cause. Cows do not produce half of the milk they are capable of producing unless they get sufficient feed. Where the pasture is apt to be short, there are two crops we like to grow as a substitute for the pasture. Oats can be cut early and fed green in the barn, cutting it each day as it is needed.

Red Cedar Trees Harmful

Keep your eye on the red cedar trees for indications of cedar apple, a yellow or orange mass of stuff. Many apple orchards have been permanently injured by this. Cut this off the tree, or, if necessary, take the whole tree.

Preventive Measures

Preventive measures are preferable to remedies for damaged trees, but prevention is not always possible. When mouse damage occurs in orchards, great losses may often be averted by the prompt treatment of the injured trees.

Swine Tuberculosis Blamed on Poultry

Disposal of Old Fowls Will Eliminate Danger.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In some localities poultry is largely responsible for tuberculosis infection among swine, according to the findings of the United States Department of Agriculture. Although scientific and laboratory studies of the different types of tuberculosis have thus far not yielded definite information as to the degree in which the various types of tubercle bacilli affect animals of different species, field reports show clearly that swine are susceptible to infection from both poultry and bovine sources. The infection in a given locality may be from either one or the other source, or from both.

Tuberculosis in fowls occurs chiefly among the older birds, especially those more than two years old. The most conspicuous symptom is "going light," meaning as the name indicates, a rapid loss of weight, especially the atrophy of the breast muscles. Other symptoms are lameness and ruffled plumage. On post-mortem examination tuberculous fowls usually show whitish, grayish, or yellowish spots on internal organs, notably the liver. The prompt disposal of old fowls will eliminate most of the tuberculous infection, but when serious on the farm it is advisable to dispose of the entire flock, to disinfect the poultry houses and premises thoroughly, and then to introduce new stock known to be healthy. Dead fowls should be burned or buried—never fed to hogs.

Only High-Quality Eggs Will Bring Top Prices

If eggs are dirty don't wash them, because washed eggs deteriorate more rapidly than unwashed, and detection of a few washed eggs may cause buyers to penalize the entire lot.

Usually large quantities of washed eggs are reported this spring, according to the Department of Agriculture. Although dirty eggs are discounted in price, washing eggs will generally cause producers a greater loss.

Only clean, unwashed, high-quality eggs bring top prices. Production of clean eggs is accomplished by keeping hen house floors and nests clean, gathering the eggs daily and keeping the laying hens during muddy weather in dry quarters until after noon when most of the eggs will have been laid. Producers will find it more profitable to use the soiled eggs on the farm, and to market only the best quality product, the department says.

Qualities Required by Standard Bronze Turkey

A standard bronze turkey should be in color a rich, lustrous hue, which glistens in the sunlight like burnished gold. On the back each feather has a narrow black band, which extends across the end. The primary or flight feathers are black or dark brown, penciled with white or gray, the colors changing to a bronzy brown. The wing-bows are black, with a brilliant bronze or greenish luster, wing centers bronze, the feathers terminating with a wide, black band. The tail is black and each feather is penciled with narrow bands of light brown, ending in a broad, black band, with a white edge of dull white or gray. The legs in the young are usually dark or black, changing with age to a dusky or pinkish purple.

Feed Value of Skimmilk

One hundred pounds of skim milk from a feeding value standpoint only are equal to about 10½ pounds of corn and 7¼ pounds of tankage. However, skim milk when fed to young animals, such as pigs, in addition to the feed value, has other properties. In the first place, skim milk is a product manufactured by nature and is entirely digestible and contains vitamins that are necessary for the growth and health of animals.

FARM NOTES

Flowers help make a house a home.

Be sure that growing poultry is not crowded.

The home owner takes a strong interest in his community.

Gather eggs twice daily. Take them to market at least two times a week.

Good seed is as necessary for good yield and good quality of potatoes as in any other crop.

No other crop will yield so much with so little effort in 25 years as will a crop of timber on "useless" land.

Over-pasturing has done incalculable damage to our pastures. Let's stop doing it. Why not let at least a portion of your native grass pasture rest this year?

Preventive Measures

The Colorado potato beetle is controlled by spraying with two pounds of powdered arsenate of lead to 50 gallons of water. This spray should be put on when the insects first appear. The various worms that feed on the leaves of cabbage can also be controlled by this spray.

WRIGEYS

Power Plant on Wheels
Every one thinks he knows all about the steam locomotive because it has been with us so long, but today we have a new locomotive, a power plant on wheels which has achieved an output in some cases of 135 pounds of steam an indicated horse-power hour, a record which puts the steam locomotive in the class of efficient noncondensing power plants. Locomotives are in service with power and flexibility enough to enable them to haul 10,000 tons at 18 miles an hour on level track, or to pull 4,500 tons on a ten-minute clearance ahead of a limited express, scheduled at 45 miles an hour for 90 miles without a stop.

White Cedar in Japan

Japanese white cedar of the highest grade is considered sacred. All of the wood 18 inches and up in diameter is reserved for the building of temples, and the cheaper grades are disposed of like other woods. Especially fine pieces are reserved for the temples of the emperors. Only white cedar grown in Japan is used for building temples. Most of the white cedar shipped to Japan is used for exposed beams on the inside of dwelling houses, where the wood is prized for its appearance and durability. One instance is known in which a Japanese paid $1,100 gold in this country for a choice beam 18 inches square and 20 feet long, with perfect diagonal grain.

State Superintendent of Education
John W. Abernethy has announced the establishment by the state board of education for the fiscal year, beginning July 1, of departments of vocational agriculture in the following schools, for whites: Tanner-Williams, Mobile county; Flat Rock, Jackson county; Cedar Bluff, Cherokee county;
Arley, Winston county; Elmore county; State Secondary Agricultural School at Cuba, Sumter county; and has approved the organization of a department at Falkville in Morgan county, effective January 1, 1925.
Departments have been recognized for negroes in the county training schools at Coosa and Dallas counties.

With the word "God" on his lips but refusing to the last to join a church, Gordon Fincher went praying to his death at Talladega for the killing of Maybelle McCullough, a 16-year-old friend, on February 23, 1923.
A crowd of 2,000 people surrounded the Talladega county jail for two blocks and heard Fincher in a final speech declare his innocence and then turn again into the jail and mount unaided to the death cell where only a few saw the execution. Fincher was the first white man ever to be hanged in Talladega county.

The population of Alabama was increased in April by 4,599 births, the birth rate per 1,000 of population being 22.9. During the same month
2,326 deaths occurred, the rate per 1,000 of population being 11.6. Births in May totaled 4,634, or 23.3 per 1, 000 of population. Deaths in the same month aggregated 2,346, or a rate per 1,000 of population of 11.3. These figures compare with 4,620 births in May, 1923, and 2,210 deaths have been compiled by Dr. W. T. Fales, director of the state bureau of vital statistics of the Alabama health department.

Forces of Sheriff Paul Cazallas have seized 90 cases of fine liquor in the hold of the American steamer Saccarappa, in drydock at Mobile for repairs. Robert B. Batts, deck officer, and John C. Thompson, seaman, were placed under arrest in connection with the case. The liquor comprised whisky, champagne, sherry and other fine wines. They were brought to the county jail by Deputies Rudoff, Ernest and Rasher, who made the arrest, and stored there. The steamer came here from Antwerp.

Ball has been allowed to Robert M.
Chambliss, young man charged with the killing of Alonzo H. Graves.
Chambliss was denied bond at the time of the preliminary but in a habeas corpus hearing before the circuit court evidence was brought out to show that Chambliss stabbed Graves in self defense and the court decided that the youth was entitled to freedom under bond. Chambliss had no difficulty in making the $7,500 bond.

The semi-annual report of Walter
K. McAdory, chief of the state law enforcement department, which has been submitted to the governor, showed a total of 1,677 arrests during the first six months of 1924, with destruction of nearly a thousand stills. Cash fines assessed from cases made by the state officer exceeded expenses of the department over $41,000.

Suit for $100,000 each has been filed by Melvin Hollis against Deputy United States Marshals J. W. Adkins and W. W. Hudson, in the circuit court at Pell City. According to the allegations of the complaint, the plaintiff claims that he was severely assaulted and beaten, and was made sick and sore, and his automobile searched without process of law.

Grapes used to trim his mother's

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Haynes, owners of a cafe at Talladega, owe their lives to the plaintive meows of two pet kittens. It was the crying of the pets that awakened the couple early in the morning when their cafe was destroyed by fire. They escaped through a window, but the kittens were burned to death.

The funeral services of "Aunt Polly" Douthard were held by the Methodist minister at the county almshouse at Jacksonville recently. Aunt Polly was a colored woman, 107 years old. She remembered as far back as 1818 and talked quite frequently of the Indian tribes in Talladega, where she was born.

A New Way to Make Old Familiar Dishes

IS IT any wonder that so many women are enthusiastic about self-rising flour? Healthful, dependable, economical—you'll find it a handy flour which through tests have shown can be used for every purpose where flour is needed.

Mrs. N., of Tennessee, writes: "I have used self-rising flour for many years and find it a perfect success. My biscuits and hot bread are lovely. . . . I get fine results with it for cakes.
. . . It is a great satisfaction to know that your biscuits will always rise properly."

Foods made from self-rising flour are always the most wholesome and most economical you can serve your family. They are easily prepared.
The pure phosphate baking powder has been added so that you can't make a mistake in mixing.

Look for the Blue Shield. You'll find it on every bag of guaranteed self-rising flour. Accept no substitutes.

FOLLOW THESE FIVE RULES For Making Perfect Biscuits with Self-Rising Flour. (1) See that your oven is hot. (2) Always use sweet milk or cold water. (3) Never add baking powder, soda or salt. (4) Use good shortening—lard, vegetable fat or butter. (5) Make soft dough—bake quickly. SOFT WHEAT MILLERS' ASSN., Inc.

CHILTON COUNTY NEWS

VOLUME 3

CLANTON, ALABAMA, JULY 24, 1924.

NUMBER 46

NOTICE BAPTIST CHURCHES UNITY CHILTON ASSOCIATION

For one week following the fourth Sunday in July, the State Board of Missions is giving the services of two young missionary preachers to the churches of our Associations. These two young preachers are from our Seminary in Louisville, Ky., and are giving their services to the Baptists of Alabama without cost to the Board because of their love for the Kingdom. Their services are of an inspirational and educational nature. It is earnestly desired that the churches have as large representations as possible at some of the places they speak through out the week. They will speak at the following places:

Clanton—Both services Sunday, July 27th.
Coopers—Monday night at 8 o'clock.
Mt. Creek—Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock.
Verbera—Tuesday night at eight o'clock.
Thorsby—Wednesday night at eight o'clock.
Jemison—Thursday night at eight o'clock.
Mulberry—Friday morning at ten o'clock.
Maplesville—Friday night at eight o'clock.

S. J. EZELL.

The above program is the itinerary of Revs. Proctor and Bobo, two young men who are donating their services this summer to the work of the Master. They will be here next Sunday at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. The balance of the week will be devoted to a campaign over the County.

We hope that a good attendance will greet them at both services and also at every appointment in the county. They are not putting up any kind of "drive" for money and no collections will be taken up.

REACHING AT THE PRES- BYTERIAN CHURCH

Last Sunday at 11 o'clock and Sunday night at 8 Reverend Windham filled the pulpit at the Presbyterian services which are held at the Masonic Hall.

We learn that from now on the Presbyterians have engaged the services of this able minister and his regular appointments will be every third Sunday in each month both morning and evening services will be held.

BURIED AT SAMARIA

FARMERS WATCH YOUR STEP

The government cotton report for July 1st has put out an estimate of 12,448,786 bales for this crop.

Now we all doubt that they have even accumulated any data that would justify such figures as these, but even if they have, it is the height of folly for anyone to undertake to estimate as uncertain a proposition as the yield of a cotton crop at this season of the year.

That is a palpable start in creating a sentiment and an excuse for running the price of cotton down in anticipation of the gathering season, when the cotton farmer will put his crop on the market.

Owing to the fact that such vast amounts of fertilizers are sold in the spring on time, with papers falling due about October the first, the cotton gamblers know exactly when to run the price down to catch the cotton as it comes from the producer to liquidate these fertilizer notes and they manage every year to have the co-operation of this government department in putting over the price manipulation just to meet the demands of their gambling arrangements.

It will require almost miraculous production of the cotton planted this year, to make anything like such a yield as this estimate puts out. It is scarcely a possibility, but even if it proves correct, that is no reason for 15 or 20 cent cotton. There is hardly any surplus cotton in the world now. The gamblers will put out in the report about September 15 that there is at least 10,000,000 bales of surplus cotton on hand when this crop comes on the market, they always do, but this is an absolute falsehood. There will not be 3,000,000 bales in the world by that time. In fact, for the last few years, production has fallen off each year until a surplus that used to really exist has been consumed, and the mills and markets will be practically bare when the crop gets ready for the market this year. According to the facts given out by the National Department of Agriculture last February, there was only 6,000,000 bales of cotton in sight then. How much of that do you presume still remains after all of the great mills of the world have been operating right on ever since? That story of a surplus, when they put it out, will be just as false and misleading as this July estimate, and even more so, for there will practically be no surplus.

There is, no reason for even a 12,000,000 bale crop not to bring a fair price this year if the honest operation of the natural law of supply and demand was permitted to function. That amount of cotton is needed to supply the consumption for another year, but the sharks and the gamblers in futures, by the aid of miscellaneous government information will contrive to drive the October market down to the lowest possible figure, while the farmer is selling, but like last year, when he has practically unloaded, the government will put out another greatly reduced estimate and cotton will soar to higher levels.

They worked that game to perfection last year and fleeced the cotton farmer out of untold millions of dollars. They will do the same thing

THE POLITICAL OUTLOOK

Most of the leading newspaper correspondents, such as Sullivan, Lawrence, Rogers and others who keep in touch with all of the current political developments, and make their fat salaries by writing them up for the news syndicates that cover the whole country, and have to be absolutely non-partisan in what they say, seem to feel like the Democratic ticket has a good chance of being the winner next fall. They discount all of the splits at the convention and figure up by states, giving the republicans all of the down east states, and still find where Davis and Bryan appear to have a good chance of winning.

As has been brewing for years the South and West have been forced to get together this time. We have longed many times to see just exactly that political alignment, and whether we win or lose this time, the day has done passed when democracy should ever listen to the siren song of New York, or even invite them to travel with us.

Principles have never meant anything to Tammany and its cohorts and if democracy wishes to live and flourish it will have to depend on the middle class Americans for its support and they are found in the South and West.

FIRST VACATION IN 6 YEARS

For the first time in 6 long years of a daily grind of business, Mr. Oscar W. Jones, has decided to take two weeks of rest and recuperation.

In company with his wife and little kids he has gone on an auto trip to Kosciuska, Miss., to visit Mr. J. C. Gowan, who is his wife's father.

Dr. A. M. Gowan, of Brewton, also came up and accompanied them. Their many friends here wish for them a most happy and satisfactory outing and a safe return.

ONLY A DOG

Last Saturday afternoon a speeding auto ran over a little black dog on second avenue and, after about thirty minutes of awful agony, the humble and faithful little fellow died.

It shocked us to hear a number of people laugh at the dying agonies of that poor little canine.

He was, no doubt, from the country and had got lost off from his friends, but we bet at his home he was the loved pet of some boy or girl and a true and faithful friend to them even unto death.

The car that killed him made no effort to miss him and the driver only laughed when he crushed out the life of this little dog wail.

PAY YOUR SUBSCRIPTION

this year.

We hope that the Chilton County farmers will watch the game closely this fall, and arrange to hold their cotton while the rush to market is taking place and the price beat down for the purpose of allowing the gamblers and speculators to mop up, and then sell when the gamblers force the price up again to pocket their millions.

Their is not going to be any surplus and cotton is going to bring a good price before the spinner gets it.

ROBBING A TRAIN

Some time last Friday night a box car of a freight train was broken into and robbed of a lot of shoes.

Three cases and a large sack full of shoes were found to be missing early Saturday morning by the track walker, just beyond the fourth avenue bridge.

The Sheriff was promptly notified and a diligent investigation made, but no new shoes were found and no trace of the person who did the work and no sign to indicate that any other shoes had been recovered from the car.

Upon the arrival of the train at Montgomery the robbery was discovered and, upon checking up, they found that thirty cases of shoes had been taken from the car somewhere during the trip.

The entire case is shrouded in mystery so far as we have learned to date, and if any clues are held by the officers we do not know it.

If the robbers had a confederate here he must have taken "cold feet" and been afraid to move the plunder after it was thrown off for here.

MR. TOM PARRISH STRICKEN

The many friends of Mr. Tom Parrish, who resides out near Samaria Church, will be indeed sorry to learn that he was visited with a second stroke of paralysis last Saturday.

The latest reports are to the effect that he has rallied some and hopes are entertained that he will be able to get out again shortly.

QUITE A CRASH

About nine o'clock Sunday night a car containing one young man and two young ladies, in turning from Second Avenue into Eighth Street, got away from the driver and crashed into the side of the Reynolds brick building on the corner, after crossing the gutter and sidewalk.

Fortunately none of the occupants were hurt, though badly frightened, but the front of the car was considerably torn up.

A special Providence seems to pre-empt over that corner or accidents would happen there every day.

THE PLEASANT GROVE

SINGING SCHOOL

Will open at Pleasant Grove Methodist Church next Monday morning July 28th, a singing school.

All who are interested in good singing are cordially invited to be on hand and enroll.

A. D. HUETT, Leader.

NOTICE

The Commissioners' Court will continue the Road Meeting Saturday the 26th until two p. m. in order to give all mail carriers a chance to be present and report the condition of their routes.

Remember we will have the Road Meeting at ten o'clock for all other parties.

Respectfully,

J. H. REYNOLDS
Judge of Probate.

NO WONDER.

In operating on a victim of an automobile in Paris the other day, who had got a busted skull in his wreck, the surgeons found one entire lobe of the brain missing, though the patient was living right on.

The surgeons were at a loss to understand how he could live under such circumstances as that, but he did live and get well.

That is not at all strange to us. We have no idea he ever had that missing lobe. We see plenty of auto drivers almost every day that we feel sure are minus more than one lobe. We doubt if they have any brains at all.

DROWNED

News has reached us that one Mr. Hilleray Bolton was drowned Sunday last out near the place of Mr. Rollifree Bates, near Lock 12.

It seems that the unfortunate man, in company with some other companions, were in bathing, and by some means, he got over his depth and was drowned before help could reach him.

We heard no further particulars. It is said that the deceased was rather an old man.

NOTICE

The Extension Committee of the Chilton County Baptist Association is called to meet at Clanton Tuesday August 5th at 3 o'clock p. m. All pastors and workers who are interested in our association are requested to meet the committee. Some very important business is to be planned upon.

W. J. Billingsley, T. J. Deason, B. Lawrence, B. F. Dykes, Committee.

MISS ROBERTA CURRY ABROAD

From the Asheville, N. C. Citizen, we note that our sweet singer, Miss Roberta Curry, is a popular favorite in high class musical circles out there.

At a very select musical entertainment, by famous artists in that line, held at the noted Langren Hotel recently, Miss Roberta was selected as special soloist for the occasion and, as might be expected, she scored a wonderful success.

Her many friends here always rejoice to hear of her popularity and follow her, at all times, with their best wishes.

FARMERS UNION ORGANIZED

At Shoults School House on July 17th, a County organization of the Farmers Co-Operative Union was established.

A very fair attendance was out and the spirit of co-operation was evident on every side.

Rev. Littlejohn called the meeting to order. J. A. Holdbrook was elected President, Rev. W. S. Cox Secretary and W. M. Oden, Chaplain.

We wish to extend our thanks for the kind treatment and good feeling given us.

W. S. COX, Sec.

SOONER OR LATER THEY FALL

Saturday night the Sheriff's force made a very important arrest when they caught a negro known as T. S. Peavy, who has quite an ugly and unsavory reputation among prohibition officers.

The impression with them is that Peavy was the head of an organization that both made and sold the forbidden elixir, and heretofore, he has always contrived to get by.

He and others of his party, have been in the toils before, in fact, his wife and another or so of his workers are now under bond awaiting trial for transporting and selling the succulent beverage.

Quite recently he and his wife ran their car into the car of a Mr. Smitherman, who had stopped by the roadside to allow the wild and unlighted Peavy vehicle to pass. When the crash came he and his wife both piled out of the wreck with their guns and pistols in hand ready to shoot it out with the occupants of the other car whom they had taken to be the Sheriff and his deputies.

In this particular case Peavy was caught in the down town district with a gallon of booze that he proceeded to dash on the ground and break as soon as he discovered that the officers had his number.

In the cases that are pending against these negroes, the prosecutor should apply himself to the limit and see to it that this turbulent and notorious gang of whiskey outlaws get all that is coming to them. Plenty of "character" evidence exists to send them up for a season and the cases should all be pushed to the limit.

This gang has become a glaring menace to the peace and safety of that community they infest and they need to be made to realize that law and order must be upheld and that law enforcement is not a farce.

NOTICE

Dr. N. S. Johnson wishes to announce to his friends and patrons that he will be out of his office during the month of August, taking a special course at the Childrens Memorial Hospital at Chicago, Illinois.

BASEBALL SCHEDULE OF CLANTON

On local diamond for this week and next:

Thursday, July 24—Gant's Quarry, of Sylacauga. Record this year Clanton one—Sylacauga one. Bingham will probably pitch for Clanton.

Saturday, July 26—Spigner will play us here. This team has lost only about two games this season.

Tuesday, July 29—Columbiana. Columbiana is our old rival, they could not get together their best team for Friday July 25th, so game was postponed for them until Tuesday July 29. Thursday—Blounts. This team beat us 6 to 4 Monday July 21st and Clanton will put forth every effort to even the count.

Saturday, Aug. 2nd—Situra—a tuff team for Clanton to beat. They are heavy hitters and they promised to bring the best team in their section of the State.

Our Employees Are Bonded

Every Bank expends considerable effort to secure none but honest and efficient officials and employees.

The directors of the First National Bank Bank feel that they have been especially fortunate in securing the services of persons of unusual integrity and ability for every position of trust in this Bank.

The Directors, however, feel that for the absolute protection of its depositors they should not depend on honesty alone for this protection, but should place all possible safeguards around those whom it employs.

A heavy bond has, therefore, been placed on every employee of this institution, which insures more completely than would otherwise be possible, full protection for the Bank and individual depositor alike.

1—Owen D. Young, selected to act as "agent general" in putting into effect the Dawes commission plan for the rehabilitation of Germany. 2—The famous coffee port of Santos, Brazil, which may be captured by the Sao Paulo insurgents. 3—Frank L. Polk, who will be the "chief adviser" of Democratic Nominee Davis.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Allied Conference Begins in Optimistic Amity—Fighting in Brazil.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

THE conference of ten nations at London on the Dawes plan for the rehabilitation of Germany and all of Europe began Wednesday with an atmosphere of amity and optimism. Owen D. Young, the New York lawyer who was a member of the Dawes commission, has accepted for a period of three months—a suggestion that he become "agent general for the reparations payments," which is a sort of fiscal agent for the execution of the Dawes plan. He is also willing to act as arbiter for the reparations commission on questions concerning Germany's default.

This latter position was created on July 8 in the note of Prime Minister MacDonald and Premier Herriot to the powers after conversation between London, Washington and Paris. Mr. Young, when acting as arbiter of reparations questions, would eliminate the French majority on the reparations commission.

Before this can be officially announced, however, two steps are necessary: Adoption by the London conference of the MacDonald-Herriot protocol creating the arbiter of the reparations commission, and some step by President Coolidge approving Mr. Young's appointment.

Mr. Young's acceptance of the position is definite, however, and the American State department has approved it in order to facilitate Mr. MacDonald's job in getting the allied conference to put the Dawes plan into effect. The action became necessary because of the demand of J. P. Morgan & Co. for such representation in the reparations commission in exchange for floating a loan of approximately $200,000,000, chiefly in America.

REAL fighting marks the "revolution" staged by the Paulistas of Sao Paulo against the federal government of the United States of Brazil. Strict censorship of news suppresses details, but enough transpires to indicate that the insurrection may be important. The rebels demand the resignation both of state President Carlos da Campos of Sao Paulo and of President Artur Bernardes of Brazil, together with guarantees at the forthcoming state and federal elections for the pardon of the rebels in the 1922 outbreak.

Federal official bulletins picture a handful of rebels in possession of Sao Paulo city, soon to be captured. Reports from various sources are to the effect that the losses on both sides already total 3,000; that the rebels, led by Gen. Isidoro Dias Lopes, are 20,000 strong and can take Santos at any time; that President Da Campos is a fugitive in Rio de Janeiro, and that the federal government fears to risk a decisive battle, having no faith in the loyalty of its soldiers. Anyway, the Italian consul at Santos has asked for two warships and the American consul at Santos, H. W. Goforth—a suggestive name—has also requested naval vessels.

Sao Paulo, the state, is where we Americans get our coffee—about 6, 215,000 bags of 132 pounds each a year. It is the richest of the 20 states of the Brazilian republic; is a lot bigger than all New England; has a population of 4,500,000. Sao Paulo, its capital city, is 200 miles south of Rio de Janeiro; is Brazil's second city, with a population of 530,000; is ultra-modern.

Santos, Sao Paulo's port—and the most famous coffee port of the world, is 35 miles distant. It has one of the finest harbors in South America; is thoroughly modern and has a population of about 90,000.

AMERICA for the eighth successive time wins the Olympic track and field sports, scoring 255 points to 106 for Finland; 85% for Great Britain; 81% for Sweden; 28% for France and so on. Of the 45 nations entered only 19 broke into the scoring column. Twenty-seven events were held, with the two leaders monopolizing first places as follows: United States, 12; Finland, 10; Great Britain, 3, and Australia and Italy 1 each. Eight new world's records and 13 new Olympic records were made.

The American victories were scored in the following events: 400-meter hurdles, high jump, broad jump, shot put, 110-meter hurdles, 200-meter dash, hammer throw, pole vault, decathlon, 400-meter relay, 1,600-meter relay, and the discus. The Finns took first in the 10,000-meter run, the javelin, pentathlon, 3,000-meter steeplechase, 1,500-meter run, 5,000-meter run, 10,000-meter cross-country team and individual 3,000-meter team race and the marathon. England won the 100-meter dash, the 800-meter run and 400-meter run. Italy took the 10,000-meter walk, and Australia the hop, step and jump.

An analysis of the point scores shows the evenness of the American team strength, our athletes tallying in 24 of 27 finals, missing only in the walk, the 10,000-meter flat and hop, step and jump. The Finns scored in 17 events and Great Britain in 16. Analysis of the American points shows that Western athletes gained 163 as against 60 for the East, the remaining 29 being won in relay races or team events where East and West worked together.

THE largest co-operative project ever attempted is under way. Charter papers for the Grain Marketing company were granted at Springfield, Ill. Tuesday. The company is capitalized at $25,000,000 and will be entirely owned and controlled by farmers. It will take over the gores of elevators, private wharves, offices and other assets of the Armour Grain company, the Rosenbaum Grain corporation, the Rosenberg Brothers, the J. C. Shaffer Grain company, all of Chicago, and the Davis, Noland, Merrill Grain company of Kansas City.

Members of the temporary board of directors include: O. E. Bradford, Ohio, president American Farm Bureau federation; W. J. Brown, Minnesota, president American Wheat Growers, Inc.; Harry L. Keefe, Nebraska, president United States Grain Growers, Inc.; Fred A. Mudge, Penn. Ill., president Illinois Farmers' Elevator association; J. M. Dyer, Spencer, Iowa, president Iowa Farmers' Elevator association; Millard Myers, Illinois, Farmers' elevator; Oscar Ashworth, Mattoon, Ill.; Gray Silver, West Virginia; J. W. Coverdale, Iowa.

The purpose of the new company is to secure for the farmers complete control of the marketing and handling of their produce, which is a complete change from the procedure heretofore. It will also serve as "big brother" of all co-operative elevators, of which there are more than 5,000 throughout the country. Its service will extend to any other farm organization, pool or individual farmer.

IT MAY be the "ad men." Instead of the pacifists, preachers, women or Rotarians, who bring back peace to a distracted and war-worn world. The International Advertising convention met in London last week, with delegates from all over the world, including 2,000 from the United States. Lord Burnham, in his address of welcome, said that advertising was "the fine art of trade and the humane literature of business." Referring to the international character of the convention, he said:

"Internationalism is a word which has been coined by ignoble use, but it is to internationalism that is founded on justice and patriotism that we have to look for progress and the prosperity of mankind."

Lou Holland, president of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, said in his reply that he hoped from the conference would come a "Big Brother" movement that would lead the nations into paths of peace and prosperity.

MANAGEMENT of the Democratic campaign will presumably be notably diplomatic, inasmuch as Mr. Davis was ambassador to the Court of St. James and Frank L. Polk, his right-hand man, was acting secretary of state for six months, 1918-19. It should not lack militancy, either, since Mr. Polk is a grandson of the Confederacy's famous "Fighting Bishop," Leonidas Polk, Episcopal bishop of Louisiana and lieutenant general, who was killed in 1864 by a cannon ball at Pine Mountain, Ga. It is usually stated that Mr. Polk will be a sort of general manager, with the title of chief adviser. Mr. Davis has withdrawn from all his business connections in order to give all his time to the campaign.

William Randolph Hearst, who flew the coop the moment the Democrats nominated "the Morgan attorney," and Mayor Hylan of New York city, are taking a vacation on the publisher's California ranch. Mr. Hearst says: "Mr. Coolidge and Mr. Davis are a little too conservative for us and Mr. LaFollette is a little too radical. We probably will print the news as it happens, and our own policies, and let it go at that."

Former Candidate McAdoo has gone to Europe, but gave out a statement before sailing in which he expressed his confidence that Nonline Davis would, as President, "faithfully execute the party's progressive mandate," and promised to take part in the campaign upon his return in September.

DISASTROUS forest fires were burning all last week in all the Pacific coast states from Southern California up into Canada. Thursday the menace was lessened in places by rains and light winds. Probably 30,000 men, many of them drafted from touring automobiles, hotels and camps, have been fighting the flames. Thursday night San Francisco used the radio to warn campers that seven fires to get out at once. The loss of life has been small, though hundreds have had narrow escapes. The property loss has been large. Forests, mining camps and lumber camps have suffered to the extent of millions.

NOMINEE LAFOLLETTE will not endorse Nominee Bryan as a Democratic-LaFollette vice presidential candidate, but will fight him because he is "tainted with his party's ills." He will even carry the fight into Nebraska. LaFollette is planning a "rich man's campaign out of the poor man's pocket." Plans call for a campaign fund—minimum, $3,000,000; maximum, $5,000,000—each worker to contribute one day's pay, with smaller contributions thankfully received. Alexander Kahn, owner of the Jewish newspaper Forward (Chicago), is to be the collection agent.

UNCLE SAM is getting out of Santo Domingo. Gen. Horatio Vasquez has been inaugurated President of the Dominican republic. The American flag has been lowered and the Dominican emblem flies in its stead. The United States marines are being put on transports. It has taken Uncle Sam eight years to straighten things out so that the Dominicans are in shape to try to go it alone again. Are they grateful? Well, hardly. Never for one moment during the eight years did they cease from protest.

OUR American world flyers landed in Paris Tuesday and in London Wednesday. Thursday they landed in Brough, where they will take a week in preparing for their flight across the Atlantic. They are tentatively scheduled to arrive in Boston August 21 by way of the Orkney Islands, Iceland, Greenland, Labrador and Nova Scotia.

IN THE indictments growing out of the oil leases Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, pleaded not guilty at El Paso and furnished $5,000 bail. Harry F. Sinclair in Washington made arrangements to carry to the higher court his contention that a senate committee cannot compel a citizen to answer questions.

The Free State government has released Eamon de Valera, imprisoned since last August.

Charles B. Warren, American ambassador to Mexico, says he will return July 22 to resign, his work there being done.

Ambassador Massanoo Hanahara has sailed for Japan, expressing the hope that Japanese-American relations will remain friendly and that he will return to Washington.

Julius J. Jusserand, since 1903 ambassador from France to the United States and dean of the diplomatic corps at Washington, has gone home for a vacation. It is rumored that he may not return.

ALABAMA NEWS HAPPENINGS

A Resume of the More Important Events of Interest Condensed To An Epitomized Form.

Gov. W. W. Brandon has received a miniature donkey, about two feet high, made entirely of crepe paper, with a card which stated that the token was sent to the Alabama delegation to the democratic convention, which won the pliments of some million radio fans. The donkey will be placed in the department of archives and history. Governor Brandon stated. The gift resulted from the resounding manner in which Governor Brandon cast Alabama's 24 votes for Underwood at the democratic convention, which won the admiration of radio fans over the country.

A survey of Alabama's three higher institutions of learning to ascertain their needs, and adequate appropriations to meet these needs, were advocated by Judge W. H. Samford of the court of appeals, president of the Auburn Alumni association, in an address at a recent alumni meeting. He recommended the appointment of a commission by the boards of trustees of Auburn, Alabama college and the University of Alabama, at the call of the governor to make the survey.

The social service workers of Jasper have united in an effort to take care of the needy in that town. At a meeting in the Methodist church building the community chest-organization was perfected and working committees were appointed to carry on the work. The county commissioners are discussing the advisability of appointing a county probation officer and the community chest has appointed a committee to confer with the commission in reference to the matter.

Contracts have been awarded to the Crow Construction company by Charles W. Negley for the reconstruction of the Jefferson hotel in Florence, which was destroyed by fire sometime ago. The new building will contain about 40 rooms and will be equipped with every modern convenience. It is announced the work will be started on the building at once and it is expected that it will be finished in about four months.

Considerable development of iron ore properties along the Tennessee, Alabama and Georgia railroad is being planned. The mines at Estelle have already resumed operations and are now shipping five cars daily to the Holt furnace. The Bronco mines will soon be producing 50 cars a week, the output to go to furnaces in Tennessee. It is said mines at Clipco and other places along the line are to resume when the iron market improves.

Asserting that the undertaker who buried her husband put his body in a coffin too small for it and nailed the deceased feet to the bottom, thereby disfiguring his body and transforming it into a gruesome sight, Leona Lawrence filed suit in the Jefferson County circuit court recently against the E. A. Bradford Undertaking Company for $20,000 damages.

Claiming to have been tortured for 23 years with the memory of a slaying Oliver Cameron, now 51 years of age, former resident of Jefferson County, tried to drown himself in the Williamette River, near Portland, Ore., recently, and was rescued by police to whom he told a tale of killing, during a quarrel, one U. J. Gay, near Birmingham, in 1902, according to a dispatch.

Gov. W. W. Brandon has issued a proclamation designating August 17 as the date upon which the new Alabama code is to become effective. Ten thousand sets of the code, each containing four volumes, have been printed, more than three carloads of paper having been used for the printing of the 40,000 volumes.

At a meeting of the Sheffield Rotary club a resolution was adopted petitioning the state highway commission to build two lines of highways and a bridge over Bear creek to connect the highway running west from Tusculum with the highway at the Mississippi state line.

The Etowah county farm bureau will hold its annual picnic at Naccolulu Falls Friday, August 8. It is announced that every farmer in the county is invited to attend.

Mayor R. A. Burns announced that Alabama City is to add two junior high school years to its public school system next fall and that within a short time the full four-year high school would be adopted.

The Etowah county Confederate Veterans' association will hold its annual reunion Thursday, August 14.

Another application of the one mill school tax on all property in Madison county for the purpose of adding to the school funds was recommended at a meeting of trustees and county board of education in the Kiwanis club. Superintendent Butler showed that the funds for schools available now are not quite sufficient and that the reapportionment of the one mill tax would furnish enough money to add an additional month to the school term.

Investigations have been made by the state mining inspectors into the death of Robert Stewart, pumper employed by the Republic Iron & Steel company, who met death by a gas explosion in the Palos mines. Stewart went into the mines at 8 o'clock of the morning of the fatal day, it was learned and evidently his open lamp came in contact with a little pocket of gas and he was killed in the explosion. His body was taken out during the afternoon. He leaves a family.

Announcement has been made by Capt. W. A. Jeffery, commander of the Andalusia units of the Alabama National Guard, that the War department has authorized the formation of a medical detachment of the Fifty-Fifth Machine Gun Detachment. In this connection it was officially announced that Dr. L. B. Underwood will be in command of this new unit with the rank of captain.

Miss Virginia B. Handley, director of the state child welfare department, has written employers of child labor over the state, calling attention to amendments to the child labor law, enacted in 1923. The amendments include the raising of the educational requirements necessary for an employment certificate to the fifth grade, effective September 1, 1924.

A bond issue totaling $485,000 will be voted on by the electors of the city of Mobile September 8 under terms of an ordinance prepared by the city attorney, Frank Yerger, and presented to the commission. The bonds will go for improvements of the city hospital, city docks, fire alarm and police alarm systems and a centralized fire department.

Erskine Ramsay, Birmingham capitalist, industrial leader and philanthropist, whose gift of $100,000 to the Auburn drive two years ago made possible the erection of the Erskine Ramsay Engineering Hall at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, has subscribed $100,000 to the million-dollar fund now being raised for Alabama College at Montevallo.

Arthur Tubbs, a Walker county truck grower, has just finished selling 6,000 cabbage heads, which were grown out of a half acre plot of land near the Frisco depot. Mr. Tubbs says he sold his cabbage crop at an average of seven and one-half cents a head. At that price he realized $450 on the half acre of land, or $900 per acre.

Smith Batchelor, convicted in Montgomery county, Nov. 27, 1922, of grand larceny and sentenced to a year and a month in prison, was granted a parole by Governor Brandon. Clemency in the case was recommended by the state board of pardons, 10 members of the jury, the solicitor, the trial judge and many others.

Two hundred members of the Girls and Women's clubs of Lee county were entertained by the chamber of commerce in the Kiwanis club and other residents of Opelika and Lake Caudy. The communities represented were Beauregard, Farmville, Gold Hill, Smith Station, Marshall Lee, Bee Hive, Beulah, Pine Grove and Salem.

Harold Blake, 22, of Cincinnati, Ohio, and J. A. Wolford, 25, of Cumberland, walked up to police headquarters in Mobile and surrendered, announcing that they had deserted from Fort Sam Houston, Texas. The men said they had been absent for more than a month.

Reduced freight rates on fertilizer, prescribed in the order of the Alabama Public Service Commission, issued May 28, will become effective on all Alabama railroads, July 25. Copies of tariffs embodying the new rates have been filed with the commission by the Alabama carriers.

Snuff boxes, as far as one locality in Walker county is concerned, have come back into vogue. A rattlesnake, one of the largest ever found in this county, struck at J. D. Riddleberger, a prominent farmer living near Sipsey river. It hit a snuff box in the farmer's hip pocket.

City manager government for Birmingham is proposed by William M. Lindsay, a well-known figure in city and county politics, as a substitute for the modified mayor-aldermanic type advocated by the forces led by Hunter Armstrong and Judge Horace Wilkinson.

The contract has been let for the construction of the John H. Bankhead High school at Cordova. The building is to be of brick and hollow tile, modern in every respect. It will cost $40,000.

The Public Service commission will hear a petition of the Alabama Power company at Decatur August 12th relative to the discontinuance of the Albany-Decatur railway system.

The Public Service commission will hear a petition of the Alabama Power company in Montgomery August 5th, in regard to the extension of a transmission line to Georgiana via Chapman.

It is reported that cotton is being damaged in some parts of the state by too much rain.

Lesson for July 27

THE TEMPTATION OF JESUS

LESSON TEXT—Matt. 4:1-11.
GOLDEN TEXT—"For in that He Himself hath suffered being tempted, He is able to succor them that are tempted."—Heb. 2:18.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Refused to Be Wrong.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Conquers the Tempter.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Jesus Shows Us How to Overcome Temptation.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Victory Over the Tempter.

I. Its Purpose (v. 1).

The Holy Spirit led Him into the wilderness with the specific purpose that He there meet and overcome the one whose works He came to destroy (Heb. 2:14). His temptation was not a preparation for His work, as usually thought, but rather the opening of the dreadful conflict between Christ and Satan, which was to issue in Satan's defeat. He went into the wilderness to find out to see whether He would stand fast—to see whether He would sin. The eternal purpose of God as to redemption absolutely could not fail. It was rather to exhibit Him as an object upon which faith might rest, to show that a union between God and man had been effected which would insure man's reconciliation.

II. The Conflict (vv. 2-11).

1. The Combatants (v. 1).
(1) Jesus Christ. Jesus Christ, the Divine Man, is now entering upon His mediatorial work. He went immediately from the place of anointing and heavenly recognition as the Son of God to meet the arch-enemy of the race.

(2) The Devil. He was a real person and, while always filled with cunning and malice, in this case the initiative was taken by the Lord. He was dragged into the presence of Jesus Christ and forced into the struggle.

2. The Battle Ground (v. 1). It was in the wilderness of Judea. The first man was tempted in a garden with the most pleasant surroundings and failed. The second man was tempted in a barren wilderness, surrounded by wild beasts, and gloriously triumphed.

3. The Method of Attack (vv. 2-10). Since as our Redeemer Christ sustained a threefold relationship, the Son of Man, Son of God and as Messiah, each one was made a ground of attack.
(1) As Son of Man (vv. 2, 8). This was a test of the reality of His humanity. To demonstrate whether the humanity which He obtained through the virgin birth was real, the appeal was made to the instinct of hunger. Hunger is not the result of sin. While the appetite is not sinful, to have satisfied it in a wrong way would have been sin.

(2) Son of God (vv. 5, 6). This was a test as to whether the personality which had come from heaven and taken upon itself humanity was divine. The Devil quoted from a Messianic psalm to get Him to presume upon God's care. God does care for His own, but to neglect common precaution—to do the uncalled for thing—just to put God's promise to a test is sin and death. Satan tempts men to-day to do the spectacular things in order to get publicity, to gain the ears of the people.

(3) As Messiah (vv. 8, 9). Christ's mission as the Messiah was to recover this world from the Devil. The Devil offered to surrender to Him on the simple condition that He would adopt his method, thus obviating the necessity of the cross. The kingdoms were really Christ's and He knew that they would ultimately become His. The inducement was to get immediate possession without the sufferings of the cross.

4. The Defense (vv. 4, 7, 10). Christ met the enemy each time and repulsed his attack with the Word of God. Each time He said, "It is written" and quoted from Deuteronomy, the book which the highest of the angels received. Christ had enough confidence in it to use it in this, the most crucial, hour of the world's history.

5. The Issue (v. 11).
(1) Satan vanquished. The enemy was completely routed. The strong man was so bound that the spilling of his house was possible.

(2) Angels came and ministered unto Him. This event was so notable that these glorious beings were sent from heaven to give it recognition and to minister unto the triumphant King.

Man's Sorrows

Man's sorrows are a mystery, but that sinners should not have sorrows were a sadder mystery still. And God pleads with us all not to lose the good of our experience of the bitterness of sin by our levity or our blindness to its meanings.—Alexander MacLaren.

A Prayer

We pray Thee, O God, that Thou wilt help us to be faithful, earnest and true in all of our work, whatever it may be.

Clear Conscience

Lots of people regard a clear conscience as more of a luxury than a necessity.

Considering Others

It is always easier to discuss the duties of others, than to do our own.

"I thought I loved him. If I had, or if I had told him that I did, I'd never let this interfere. You know that, dear. If I'd promised, it wouldn't be the same. But now—oh, Uncle Sandy, you know the trouble I've had. How lonely I've been, dear, until you took me. I . . . I want some one to look after me, always, for years and years and years. Forever. And"—the words tumbled forth now—"I've known Ray for so long—and he's so good, and so steady"—emphasized—"and . . . if only I had a mother to talk to! He's asked me to marry him . . . and . . . I do love him, Uncle Sandy, but I'm afraid . . ."

His first thought was how far this would be from his innocently made plans.

"If you love him, why . . . I'd let you say, Alberta. There's sorrow enough in this house!"

"But he has so far to go . . . before . . . you always said that people should marry young . . . and if Bob comes back it would be easier for him if I were married . . ."

Sanderson nodded. It would, it would indeed.

And so he was carried on: yes, since it would permit Alberta to plan ahead, he would make Ray his assistant, and keep him in the city after he returned. Yes, he would see that Williams was made familiar with all of the details of the executive branch. Yes, Alberta might have the wedding from the house.

Sanderson was so acquiescent now that Alberta felt she might go further. She had wished to do this before, but feared. It must be done, sooner or later, and she was no hand to delay.

"Do you know what Ray says, Uncle Sandy?"

"About . . . Bob?"

"Yes . . . that he was lazy. Terribly lazy. That material was stolen right under Bob's nose. I know that 'Mr. Gordon' said that a tremendous amount of stuff, whatever it was, was always being wired for. Ray said that Bob may have sold it, to pay his gambling debts."

Sanderson did not answer.

"And that letter. When I remember that I have left Bob kiss me"—she broke off, fearful. The last words were unintended, the natural sequence, but they might prove damning.

"It's strange that they can't find him," Sanderson muttered. He had not heard the last speech, at all. "What with the advertisements in Jap and American printed in every newspaper, and the signs we ordered placed and the reward offered, 'tis strange that we never heard a word."

"Bob was always inconsiderate," she answered. "He's just horrid to us," she added with incipient anger.

Sanderson seemed so dejected, so forlorn that she forgot her very discontent in his resumed attitude and she came to his chair. She had much to be grateful for. He had promised all that she asked, without question. She had not dreamed it would be so easy. To express her thankfulness she fell into a way which came naturally, as Wells might testify: little touchings of the arm, little urgings of the cheek.

Sanderson was glad that the girl leaned her warmth against him. He would not have her see the moisture in his eyes.

Both started at a discreet knock, but the girl did not draw away. It would do no harm for the servants to see her place. The butler entered and placed a heap of mail, with a brownish-pink stamped envelope upon the table. Sanderson saw the familiar sun-emblem of Japan, the unfamiliar stilted handwriting, and must wait a breath-taking moment before opening it.

Alberta pressed her hand against her cheek, a hand tense of finger.

Sanderson's own fingers trembled as he picked up the envelope and, clumsily in his new haste, tore the thin rice-paper apart.

CHAPTER X

It was plain, even to the illiterate rice-coolie who found him, that the man in selvo-jin clothing had not died happily. There was a great gasp under his left arm. The coolie was a man of simple wit. The instant thought came to him that where there was a dead white man there were questions, and where questions were asked by the police there must be an answer; what more simple, then, but that the police would say that the coolie had murdered the man, and so make an end to the thing.

He left the body beside the river where it had lodged and scuttled home to his wife. "I found a dead man by the river," he said. "A white man. He wore the strange clothing."

"Where is he?" the woman whispered shrilly, excitedly. "Did you bring him home? Is he outside?"

"No! I am no such fool," the coolie answered. "I left him where he was."

"Fool! Did you read the paper which was posted on the wall by the temple? That a reward was offered for this man? Many yen! Hurry, fool—get your white man. Take him to the lord's home. Take him secretly, so none know of it and claim part of the money. Stand and look at me, gazing! Hurry!"

"The Lord Kayama will assuredly beat me, and take the money as well. Ho! I know that lord. Money is to him as the iris of his eye."

"Fool again! Have you not heard it said that since the honorable Aochi-San is dead that his son has become kind and gentle? I have heard that not a single servant in the house has been beaten . . . besides, he is but himself about beating you. He will know the reward and pay you at least some of the money. There, get along. My fingers are already burning with the feel of the gold."

"I . . . fear. There might be a beating with bamboo!"

"There will be none. Have I married a rat with the courage of a tortoise? Must you always hide in your shell when there is opportunity?"

She did not offer to go with him. It was, as he said, of a certainty that there would be a beating. But, given one, it was equally certain that he would return to her, fearing a second.

"What are you waiting for?"

"If . . . I . . . do not glare at me! I'll go . . . running . . ."

"Again you have no sense. Do not run. Questions would be asked you, and many might follow. Follow the river bed, making positive that none comes after."

The coolie sought the river bed, as directed, and, stopping every dozen yards as if looking intently for some last object, to divert suspicion, as he boasted afterward, reached the body of the man in foreign clothing.

So the remains of the Lord of the Thunder Gate, the true Kayama, were dragged through the dust of alleys to his home. The coolie hid Kayama behind a clump of willows and slipped around to the servants' portion of the house and asked timidly, with many self-obliterating bows, for the lord.

The old manservant to whom he spoke was caustic.

"What have you to say to the lord?" she asked.

"I have—something for him," stammered the villager.

"A present for his marriage? Give it to me. The house cannot be polluted by one so low as you."

"No. Not a present. I have a—dead white man for the lord," he muttered. The servant glared at him. "Kayama-San has taken a wife," she said, grimly. "He cannot be annoyed with such matters as an accused white man. Stuff him underground, and let him decently return to his ancestors, if he has any. If questions are asked, you can dig him up later."

"There is," the coolie felt that explanation must be made, "there is much money to be paid to him who found the man," he said eagerly. "I will give you a portion—"

"Yoh, little man! Kayama-San will see you. Remember, in a low voice, 'half of the money is mine.'"

She nodded off and into the house, to return shortly after.

"Who knows of the finding of the fellow? Your wife? Tell her to keep her tongue against her mouth, and to speak of it to no one. The lord himself will pay the amount of the reward. Where is the dead man? At the gate? Wait. I will inform Kayama-San," and she hurried back into the house.

Wells received her news calmly. He thought for a moment quickly, then announced that he would view the body.

"You are indeed one of no intelligence," he snorted to the frightened coolie. "This is no white man. He is a Japanese. You have been drinking. Your head is addled. It would be distasteful for me to investigate a murder during my marriage week. Yoh! Here is a half-roll of gold. Be silent, and see that your wife is silent. Also, if it comes to me that you visit a drinking shop," Wells was thinking of the inn, "more punishment will visit you than you can dream of."

When the coolie stumbled off, counting the gold (undivided), Wells turned to the servant.

"You see that this man is a Japanese? Good. Look closely. He resembles my nearest family. It must be that he is distantly, at least, related. The Book of Virtue says that one blossom is like to others, and all are the same in the end. I will bury this man, whom we will call my cousin. In a far corner of our portion of the cemetery."

The old servant, whose eyes were falling, glanced at the body without interest.

"I have never heard of any other members of this family," she said, doubtfully.

Wells forced a smile, looking from the body upon the ground to the old servant. Was the crash coming? He braced himself to meet it. Would she . . . would she see? He spoke very slowly, drawing the words out, the better to control his agitation: "There are many matters of which you have not heard."

"If you say that it is possible, it must be," she answered. "It is of no importance. I but spoke hastily, Kayama-San. My eyes—they are not good—and this here has an evil face. Not handsome like our family . . . there, it must be so, since you say it . . ."

The thread had not snapped. Wells smiled with relief.

When she had returned to the house Wells ran his fingers through Kayama's pockets, through the pockets of the suit which he had worn—and wondered how Kayama would have treated him had he continued to wear the suit and Kayama were standing before him—

—found, in a watch pocket, a crumpled envelope, with the name and address of Robert Wells written upon it. Here would be proof. He folded it carefully, and tucked it into the sleeve of his kimono.

The path which leads to the Shinto cemetery is dignified with the name of the Road of the Aged Men. It is so narrow that one can, by extending his arm, reach from house to house. Pine torches are fixed firmly in the ground before each home, to guide the ghosts of the departed past the hovels, so they do no damage to the occupants.

Wells and two servants carried Kayama-San slowly up the path, the servants chanting the first song for the dead.

So Kayama-San, Lord of the Thunder Gate, found his proper and consecrated ground, above which religiously prepared and blessed food awaited him, for the Hungry Hours.

Wells returned, after warning the servants to say nothing, by way of the temple. He read the placard—those sand yeh—dead or alive—five feet, ten inches—inform Mrs. Sanderson—read it through to the end, and returned to his home very much absorbed.

Here was the way. A heaven-sent opportunity. He would return as Kayama, as he had always planned, but instead of forcing himself into acquaintance with Sanderson, he could come as a guest—he saw it all clearly.

Kayama was dead. He might leave Ellen here, safely. What could happen? Nothing. She would be safe. The servants would heed her every wish. She could not, conceivably, run away; departing, she would be returned. He smiled at his own thoughts, knowing that he wanted her near him, with him, and would want her so always.

But should he take her with him? Suppose that Williams met his statement and what little proof he had with manufactured contra-proof? Suppose that his Uncle Jim wouldn't believe him. Wouldn't the presence of the girl almost a verification of the fact that Bob Wells had been caressing in Japan? It would make matters more difficult, perhaps. It shouldn't, though. Any one could see the sort of girl Ellen was.

Should he tell Ellen? What, then, if he were unable to convince the home people of the crime to which he had been subjected? Could he convince her? He wouldn't want her to know. Why . . . why not leave her here. He might send for her later. Or get her himself. Or, if the matter ended as it shouldn't—he could return to her . . . she was his wife!

He refused to permit himself to think of that. He must prepare the home-coming first. There was no time to waste—he wanted it over. He needed a certain number of days, to prepare to leave, to arrange the affairs of the house so that if he did not return—if Kayama did not return—all would be well nevertheless. . . . Ellen . . . Ellen . . . he threw the thought of her from him.

The house was very still as he began his task. Wisely, he determined to write in Japanese, knowing that interpretation would be a simple affair.

"Written by Kayama, Lord of the village of Mitagiri and of the house of the Thunder Gate, in the season of last frost with the assistance of the Twelve Divinities of Ink."

The recompense of immortality has descended upon the man whom you are seeking. As lord of the village, I have since granted him all of the Forty-seven honors. There then appeared upon the wall of the temple of Mitagiri your desire to be possessed of this man's body. I knew it was the man by reason of his name upon the placard, which a priest translated for me, and identified. Therefore I have brought the man above ground again, and surrounded him with many now-ers, the ghosts of which will keep away evil spirits. I send this paper to you.

A Sure Sign

An old dorky who made his living, as he said, "by takin' in white-washin', floor cleanin' and pettin' up jobs," met one of his white customers shortly after the first of the year.

"How are you this morning, Uncle Dave?" asked the white man.

"Well, sah, I'm des dat good dat I'm gvin' to live for nander year," was the reply.

"How can you be certain of that?" "It's dis 'er way, I alurs notices dat when I lives two New Year's I alurs lives nander year," was the triumphant response.—Judge.

But She Saved Israel Meyers From Big Loss

By WALTER J. DELANEY

(© 1934, Western Newspaper Union.)

"ISRAEL MEYERS, Drosses," was the sign over the doorway of the bank-like building I entered.

Twenty years ago Israel Meyers had graduated from a one-horse junk business to the dignity of a scrap yard. Twelve years later he had gone into "drosses."

Never a burglar brought his booty to Israel Meyers to be melted up past identification. Israel was honest. That was why he was rated "C," which means "$125,000," and "1 1/2," which means "the highest grade of credit."

Of all this I, Roy Burley, was thinking. I came on duty bent, but with a pleased, expectant sense as well. Israel lived with his family at the rear of the counting room and its great safe-filled vault, and a part of the household was Miss Lola Purcell. She was not a relative of the drosses man, but for three years had been his stenographer, bookkeeper and private secretary. As a commercial reporter for an agency that was the credit censor of the world, I had to visit the place on my round of duties several times during the year. Just now I had come on a special mission. It appeared that Meyers had paid down $10,000 on the purchase of a large cube. It was a rare bargain, but the seller wanted to be sure the balance would come along in stipulated installments. Our rating guaranteed it, but I wanted a new financial statement to be sure we were right.

I entered her counting room, to find it unattended, sat down beside a desk and waited.

Upon the desk lay an open letter, apparently just received. At a glance I saw that it was addressed to Miss Purcell and from Meyer. It told her that the manager of their great branch house in another city had disappeared with almost its entire cash capital, which meant "failure and ruin unless—"

A step behind me prevented my reading further. It was Miss Purcell, but I had already gained a great tip. The house of Israel Meyer was insolvent and that item of news belonged to my agency.

As I spoke such words as "casual call," "new statement" and the like, she smiled graciously and took from the desk a signed audited statement showing the business in the most solvent condition in the world.

"As of the twenty-fifth," she reminded. "By the way, as you are here have you ever looked over our stock? Not?" She led the way to the open vault doorway guarded only by the heavily barred inner door. She bowed me ahead of her—click!

The door had crashed to upon me, shutting me into the vault a helpless prisoner. I watched my captor run to the front door and close and lock it to prevent any intrusion.

"Do you understand?" she asked, with a doubtful smile playing about her lips.

"I think so," I rejoined, with a shrug of my shoulders. "It is clever. You know that I comprehend the house is on the rocks. How long can you keep it quiet?"

"Twenty-four hours," she answered with confidence, "and by that time we will have tired over the stress. You are the only one who has received a hint of the truth."

"Duty is duty, and with freedom I should certainly have sent my unfortunate news broadcast. I was cleverly trapped," I admitted.

"Listen," spoke my fair gaoler; "you will be glad of my action later on. I will pass through the bars whatever you care for, after cigars. I will wait with you, read to you. There is a piano in the nearest living room. I will, if you choose, play and sing for you."

"Charming!" I laughed. "Truly so. But what of the penalty to me of remaining absent from my work?"

"You shall not suffer for it," said Miss Purcell, quietly and reassuringly. Then she left me to sleep on some blankets she had passed through the bars of the door.

About the middle of the night I awoke. I heard a strange howling sound. I lay still and watched. They bored a hole through the floor and a human hand probed about to locate the trap lock. I seized it and shouted out.

In a few minutes Miss Purcell appeared. I explained the situation.

"Burglars," she said. "Let go of the hand. With you here, I do not care to court an explanation with the police."

It was daylight when she went to the street door to receive an early telegram. She read it, smiled, and passed it to me.

"Have raised the hundred thousand from my brother," it ran. "Crisis past. Home tomorrow—Israel Meyer."

"You can go now. Thank you for your company," she said naively.

"I would like to call again," I remarked.

"Do so. Mr. Meyer will feel he owes you something for saving his treasures from the burglars."

"And you?" I inquired pointedly.

"I would like an opportunity to show you that I can be a pleasant hostess as well as a cruel gaoler."

I am a frequent visitor at the Meyer house now and Lola seems always glad to welcome me. Israel Meyer has offered me a good position, and—Lola and I are to be married.

THE OLD FAIRBANKS HOUSE

There is hardly a section that does not have its "old house." Most of them, however, take their hats off to the old Fairbanks (formerly Payer-banks) house, which stands in a cluster of stately trees in the little city of Dedham, Mass. With the exception of certain adobe, stone or shell houses in California and Florida, this probably is the oldest house still standing in the United States.

This relic of days gone by was built in 1638. It is perhaps the best example of Old English frame cottage construction to be found in America.

It was lived in up to work, twenty years ago by eight generations of the Fairbanks family, retains its primitive simplicity, quaintness and picturesque and is now filled with heirlooms of the Fairbanks family.

Like many old-time structures, the main portion is flanked on two sides by wings and the pitch roof of the middle section extends very near to the ground in the rear. The front side contains eight windows and no two of them are alike. If to have an individuality all its own, a time-honored practice was departed from in that neither the front door nor the chimney are in the exact center of the house. Curiously, also, the doorways are exceptionally low—persons of ordinary height having to bend slightly on entering.

Some of the rooms never have been plastered and the beams and rafters show overhead. Over the fireplace in the quaint little parlor swings a wooden crane from which kettles were suspended over the fire for cooking purposes. In the days before kerosene, grease lamps hung in this crane furnished such light as was available when there was no fire in the fireplace.

Other relics of bygone days include: Molds for making candles, spinning wheel, foot warmers, Dutch ovens, an ox saddle, small diamond-shaped window glass, made to be set between lead strips, putty being unknown.

All in all, this old place portrays in vivid fashion the home life of the early New Englanders. It has attracted visitors from practically every state and more than twenty foreign countries.

The descendants of the family have banded themselves into an organization to the end that this historic spot may be preserved.

CHICAGO'S NEW UNION STATION

When the old Union Depot in Chicago was opened in the '80's a wise man regarded it as a "white elephant" and criticized the railroads for building it so big. If those sages could return and view the new one, to be opened soon, expressing utility and service in the highest terms, they would be struck dumb with amazement. This project covers 35 1/3 acres and the ground is valued at $1,000,000 per acre.

To make room for it, scores of buildings had to be wrecked; 14 viaducts, having a total length of more than two miles, were rebuilt; one street was elevated several feet and widened 20 feet for about one mile, and a tremendous amount of excavating was necessary—approximately 100,000,000 pounds of steel alone being used in this work.

The depot proper will be 320 by 370 feet and extends 20 stories above ground—the upper portion to be used as a giant office building. The waiting room will be 100 feet wide, 270 feet long, and 114 feet high—with facilities for the use of travelers arranged easy of access. The portion containing the waiting, dining, ticketing, checking, and other public conveniences, and the train shed, outwardly appear to be separate buildings, but will be connected underground by the largest concourse in this country—all located on the level of the platforms which will serve the passenger tracks, or 16 feet below the surrounding streets.

Trains will be dispatched from both ends of the train shed. Five roads—the Burlington route, Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne & Chicago, Pittsburgh, Chicago, Cincinnati & St. Louis (the two latter combined forming the Pennsylvania system), Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, and the Chicago & Alton—will use this station.

The longest platform will be 1,500 feet; the longest track will accommodate 16 cars and locomotive. The train shed will have a capacity of 256 passenger cars and 20 locomotives.

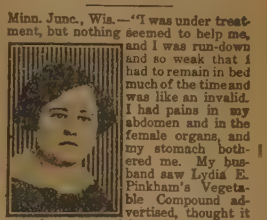

About 280 trains—an average of one every 5 1/2 minutes, day and night, will enter or leave it, and a maximum of 200,000 passengers can be accommodated daily, in this—one of the greatest depots in all the world.

Wanted Quiet

Lester was taken by his mother to an all-day meeting of the ladies' aid. He got through the morning hours fairly well, but along at 3 in the afternoon the buzz of 50 voices had racked his nerves, for he said: "Mother, let's go where women ain't."

REMARKABLE RECOVERY OF MRS. SPINK

Gives Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Full Credit

Minn. June, Wis.—"I was under treatment, but nothing seemed to help me, and so weak that I had to remain in bed much of the time and was like an invalid. I had pains in my abdomen and in the female organs, and my stomach bothered me. My husband saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised, thought it must be good, and brought it home to me and advised me to try it. After taking one bottle I was able to eat, and after six bottles I was doing my own work, which I hadn't been able to do for years. I have a new baby who is doing nicely, and I am still taking the Vegetable Compound and feeling better than I have for four years. The medicine is surely wonderful and good thing to have in the house."—Mrs. GEORGE SPRINK, Minnesota Junction, Wisconsin.

A country-wide canvass of purchasers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound reports 98 per cent benefited. For sale by druggists everywhere.

Entered in the Post Office at Clanton, Alabama, as Second Class Mail Matter Under Act of Congress.

If a person always adhered strictly to the truth we doubt if he would have a single earthly friend.

Whenever they fool France into taking her soldiers out of Germany she will have collected the last dollar of indemnity.

Selfishness is the only sentiment that seems to mean anything these days. "Where do I get mine" is the invariable idea.

The mind of a woman, the verdict of a petit jury and the time when fish will bite are three things that nothing short of Infinite wisdom can forecast.

Some fine melons are on the market now and the price is getting in the reach of the middle class. By next week the poor folks can buy one now and then.

The pink boll worm and the festive weevil must be lined with asbestos if they are able to stand the dynamic force Old Sol has been putting out for the last few days.

Almost every farmer you see now has a happy smile on his face. As we write this the crop prospect is flattering but it may all be off by the time you get the paper.

Davis and Bryan are going to carry a Solid South and West this time. That coalition has come to stay and it is the only hope that labor and the farmers have.

We promised last winter not to complain about the heat, but, say, the weather we have been having was almost hot enough to melt lead for breaking an ordinary promise.

It is hard to decide who is the champion prevaricator. The fellow who comes in with a big fish story and no fish, or the politician who tries to make you believe the weather is not hot.

The Government cotton reports are already preparing for the speculators. A twelve and one-half million bale crop is their starter. Can't we get a Congress with brains and guts enough to abolish that gambling department?

McAdoo has announced his intention of aiding in putting over the democratic ticket this time. If he will put his heart in to the work the West and Northwest will be almost sure to line up with a solid South for Davis and Bryan.

A direct ballot is the only salvation for the real people of this country. The politicians have fixed it so that the ballot box means very little. They let us vote to keep us efficient, but when it comes to doing things the politicians fix it.

We interviewed half of the farmers we interviewed tell us the weevil is on hand but doing little damage, while the other half tell us the weevils are taking everything in sight. All that we know is that the weevil is on the job.

Senator Wheeler, the intense proctor of Daugherty in the Tea Pot Dome oil scandal, has quit the Democratic party to run for Vice President on the La Follette ticket. In other words, a great and valuable man in public life has voluntarily retired to private life.

Loeb and Leopold, the young millionaire fiends who murdered the Franks boy "just to see him die" are now represented as being of a dual construction—one mind operating for the two boys and expect to be declared insane on this ground. This is the latest and most absurd plea heard of.

The organized Catholic vote failed to capture the Democratic convention, so now they are going to do their utmost to defeat the party. We had much rather go down into defeat without them than to go to victory with them. This domination of American politics has passed. In future, they will be a woful liability to any party that undertakes to carry them.

THEN AND NOW

The "then" dates back to seventy years ago. The "Now" is the year 1924. To those of us who have observed conditions in the past and who have lived to see the present day, there is such a change as to cause one to ask, "What has the future in store for us?" It is not true, as some assert, that the folks of our generation do not differ from those who preceded them, that folks are just alike." Let's see about it. Then there obtained such a civilization as the world had never witnessed before, and such as will, I fear, never be seen again. Under its influence the young men were developed into the highest type of manhood, while the young women grew into a womanhood that was lovely and of good report. The very best argument in favor of this statement is found in the fact that when the war between the states began, an army made up of the young men of the South was rushed to the front ready for the fray, and for four years fighting for the preservation of principles and for God-given rights. While the struggle lasted, the mothers and the daughters were at home doing all in their power to give aid and comfort. It was said of old Sparta "that the stand of her troops made possible a Thermopylae because her sons were brave and her daughters virtuous. This, with equal force, applies to the sons and daughters of the ante-bellum Southland. Then men, exalted and honored womanhood and it was so rarely the case that scandals were whispered about in any community that they who dared to offend against decency and moral right living were ostracized and cast out from society. What about the "Now?" This is the same Southland wherein the people seventy years ago lived and developed an unheard of civilization, and made glorious an era which will live in the minds and hearts of those who love and admire true character. Sam Jones, the great evangelist, was holding a meeting and in one of the services, the choir was singing "The Sweet Bye and Bye." Springing to his feet he said "Stop and sing something about the nasty now and now." And so, if I should incorporate in this article something of the "nasty now and now," blame must rest upon those who are responsible for conditions as they are today, and not upon the writer. Seventy years ago such a thing as a swimming pool wherein men and women disported themselves half clad and with a freedom from all the niceties of good society would have met with such condemnation as to bring the blush of shame to the most case-hardened. It is bad enough in the swimming pools, but a recent happening and a complaint made on account of it is enough to cause us to ask, what will be next? Out at Yellow Leaf Creek some white men and women in a perfectly nude state went in swimming together. Had it been in darkest Africa no one would have been surprised, but it was in a Christian land and not in the Congo region. It was bad, very bad, but it was worse when a negro who farms near the wash-hole was forced to apply for protection to his land-lord, saying "I am trying to raise my family right, and if my boys see such things it may lead them into lawlessness and then the white folks will either burn them or hang them." Shame on us that such a rebuke must come from a descendant of the African race. Years and years ago, it was fashionable for men to wear knee pants and there was nothing suggestive in their garb. Now the women wear abbreviated britches and call them knickerbockers. As a good woman said, they are very un-nice.

The name "Joy-rider" is an incident of the automobile. Under the old regime the young men visited the ladies in their homes. Now when the horn blows, the lady who is waiting at a convenient spot climbs in and away they go "lickety split" to the sequestered spot where Joy is unconfined till the wee small hours. Hurrah for the "Then." Save us from the nasty "Now."

And yet, it is a blessed thing that in all communities you will come in touch with some young men who are meeting all the requirements of a noble manhood, and will find young women who are sweet and lovely and of good report. These are they who inspire hope for the future of our civilization and our Christian living.

G. A. HORNADY.

PROSPECTS ARE GOOD

It is almost the unanimous report from all of the farmers now that the prospect for good crops this year are first class.

Early corn was damaged by the drought that was pretty general over this section for four or five weeks. Some farmers tell us their oldest corn was actually ruined and was too far advanced to recover when the rains came.

Fortunately there was quite a large per cent of the corn crop this year that was not planted until after the cotton. This seems to have been a very lucky arrangement this time, for the younger planting stood the dry weather fairly well and is now looking first class with a good prospect of meeting the seasons in such a manner as to make a first class yield.

The general report on cotton is very flattering. It is not only looking extremely well and growing off rapidly, but it is fruiting wonderfully. Some farmers tell us they have never seen such a promising prospect for a good turn out of cotton.

Of course, we have to discount the future in judging the cotton crop. All of us have seen a cotton crop go utterly to the dogs in ten or fifteen days and right at this particular stage of the crop is where the crucial test comes in. By August 15th the tale will be told. We will either have made a good crop or we will have lost.

The dry hot weather has evidently been decidedly against the propagation of the boll weevil. They have been in evidence in some localities from almost the time the cotton seed were planted. But they have not spread in any very disastrous manner so far.

There is also a small pink worm that is doing considerable damage in some places. It goes inside of the young form, and eats out all of its vitals. In some localities we hear of quite a number of these pests. In other places they do not seem to have made their appearance.

At present the prospect is flattering and we hope that it will continue that way, for fertilizer and automobile notes are going to carry large sums of cash away and we want to see enough made to leave a little at home.

STATE BUREAU OF MARKETS CHIEF TO VISIT CLANTON

The Farmers, Co-operative Association has arranged to have Mr. N. H. Brown, Chief of the Bureau of Markets, attend a meeting to be held in the Court House in Clanton Saturday July 26th at 1:30 p. m.

Mr. Brown in his address at this meeting will discuss the marketing problems of the farmers of the County and State and give us the benefit of his study and experience in marketing work. As chief of the bureau of markets he is acquainted with all phases of this marketing situation and his suggestions will be well worth the attention of every farmer in the county.

Strawberry production and marketing will also be discussed at this meeting by Mr. J. M. Smith, of Thorsby and Mr. W. T. Bean, of Clanton. Also some time will be devoted to outlining the purposes, form of organization and plans of operation of the Farmers' Co-operative Association.

Everyone is urged to be on hand at the opening hour and get the full benefit of this meeting. We are especially fortunate in being able to have Mr. Brown visit us and should make the most of the opportunity given us by his presence.

Remember the date, Saturday, July 26th. Everyone is invited and will be welcome.

Local meetings for the purpose of explaining the plans, purposes and methods of the Farmers' Co-operative Association will be held at the following places on the date stated:

Cross Roads, (two miles south of Thorsby) Friday night, July 18.

Collins Chapel, Monday night, July 21st.

All members in these communities as well as other farmers who are interested in co-operative buying and selling should attend these meetings. It is planned to start these meetings early so it will not be necessary to stay late, therefore everyone is urged to come early.

FARMERS CO-OPERATIVE ASSN

Mr. G. O. McKee and family came up the first part of the week and Mr. McKee returned Monday afternoon to Montgomery to be at his place of business Tuesday morning.

IMPROVEMENT ORDINANCE
NO. 4

An ordinance to provide for certain improvements on Sixth Street from the North property line of Second Avenue South, to the South property line of Fifth Avenue North.

Be it ordained by the Town Council of the Town of Clanton as follows:

Section 1. That the sidewalks on each side of Sixth Street from the North property line of Second Avenue South, to the South property line of Fifth Avenue North, shall be paved with Portland Cement concrete sidewalk paving for a width of five feet and the depth of four inches. That alley crossings shall be paved with Portland cement concrete paving eight inches thick.

Section 2. That said improvements shall be made in accordance with the established grades on file in the office of the Town Clerk for said portions of said Street, and according to full details, drawings, plans specifications and surveys of said work and estimates of said work, which shall be prepared by the City Engineer as early as practical, and placed by him on file in the office of the Town Clerk of Clanton, at least two weeks prior to the date hereinafter fixed for hearing objections, remonstrances, or protests before the Town Council where property owners who may be affected by said improvements, may see and examine the same.

Section 3. That the cost of constructing said improvements shall be assessed against the property abutting on the portions of the highway so improved.

(a) The cost of improvements at or upon Streets or Avenues, intersections shall be assessed against the lots or parcels of land abutting on said highway so intersecting for one half block in each direction.

(b) That the cost of laying alley paving shall be assessed against all lots or parcels of land abutting on the portion of the highway so improved.

(c) That no assessment shall exceed the cost of said improvement or the increased value of said property by reason of the special benefits derived from such improvement.

Section 4. That the construction of said improvements shall be done by the Town of Clanton, at a cost, not to exceed seventy five cents per linear foot of walk way.

The total estimated cost is $2500.00, and that the Council of the Town of Clanton, will meet on the 30th day of July 1924, at 10 o'clock A. M. in the Council Chamber of the Town of Clanton, to hear any objections or remonstrances, or protests that may be made against said improvements the manner of making the same or the character of the material to be used.

Vacation Month
This is the Road to Vacation Land!

A SUCCESSFUL vacation is not simply a week or two's rest. A change of scene, of climate and environment, a getting far away from the things that you're used to—a dip in the ocean—a camp in the deep woods—a wonderful period of fishing in Northern lakes or some secluded little inland stream—horse back riding over the mountains—something different from the things you do during the other fifty weeks of the year. That's the real vacation.

Passenger Agent help you with information as to accommodations, costs, etc. Mountains, lakes, sea shores, inland watering places—are all reached by the superior train service of "The Old Reliable"—and remember that one of the many points of the superiority of this great railroad system is its excellent dining-car service.

PROFESSIONAL NURSE SAYS TANLAC HAS NO EQUAL

By reason of the fact that she speaks from her long experience as a professional nurse, the statement of Mrs. J. Clark of 415 Walsworth avenue, Oakland, Calif., will be of interest to all who are in need of an upbuilding tonic.

"In all my fifteen years' experience as a trained nurse," says Mrs. Clark's statement, "I never found the equal of Tanlac as a stomach medicine and tonic. Two years ago an attack of influenza left me without appetite and my stomach in such a bad fix that the little I did eat seemed to do me harm instead of good.

"Stomach pains would make me so weak I would feel right faint. The least exertion would completely exhaust me and six months before taking Tanlac I was so weak I had to hire my housework done. I was in bed most of the time for two months and was getting desperate.

"Tanlac was more than a match for my troubles and eight bottles left me feeling fine. I eat and sleep like a child and have energy and strength that makes life a pleasure. Tanlac is simply grand."

"Leaves Three, Let It Be!"

There's No Sure Cure for Poison Ivy

By JOHN DICKINSON SHERMAN

HERBERT A. HANSEN writes interestingly in Nature Magazine about poison ivy. And he says, among other things, that washing the poison off is the only way to get rid of it after it has got on the skin. Though ivy poisoning is the commonest kind of plant poisoning, he says, there is a sad lack of reliable information and an overabundance of misinformation on this subject.

The poison is due to a powerful non-volatile oil that is most apt to enter through the open skin pores when the victim is perspiring. Many are almost immune when the skin is dry. Complete immunity is rare, though many persons believe that they are immune, and there is a great variation in the degree of susceptibility. And then Mr. Hansen writes:

Do not take any stock in so-called remedies for ivy poisoning, since the sad truth is that no remedy exists for this disease. There are more supposed remedies and cures for ivy poisoning than for almost any other ailment, due to the fact that the poison will naturally run its course and disappear. The particular "remedy" in use at the time it disappears is naturally thought to be a genuine cure, but the chances are that it will not work the second time, because of a variation in condition.

So? Well, it all depends. Anyway, Mr. Hansen is writing on a subject that interests many thousands from spring until fall and is especially timely just about now when most of us are about to go vacationing. August and September are the months when most of the campers start out and many are the ones in whom poison ivy—and poison sumac, which is even worse.

I don't mean by "campers" the motor-gypsies who pile into a livver and go chug-chugging across country. Of course, if they camp by the roadside, they run the risk of infection. But I'm thinking of the real campers who go off into the wild places and pitch a camp by lake or stream. If they are in a poison ivy country they are in real danger. And in camp, far from a doctor, it will not do to sit down, fold the hands and say that there is no cure for poison ivy. But let's see what else Mr. Hansen has to say before checking up on him. He goes on:

What, then, is the best treatment? At the outset, it should be understood that ivy poisoning is frequently a serious matter that should not be trifled with. Cases of death from this cause are on record. If the poisoning is severe, a physician should be consulted without delay. The first thing to be done in case one is aware of having been in contact with poison ivy is to attempt to wash off the dangerous oil before it has an opportunity to penetrate under the surface of the skin. This can be done by repeated washings with cheap laundry soap. Expensive toilet soaps are not suitable for this purpose. Exercise care not to drive the poison inward with a brush or by hard rubbing. If the washing has been thorough the chances are that poisoning will not set in. Even after the small skin pustules begin to appear, a great deal of the poisonous oil can still be washed off by careful and painstaking work.

After the skin eruptions are well developed, the main effort should be directed, Mr. Hansen tells us, toward preventing the spread of the poison by means of the fingernails and in other ways, which may occur while the patient is asleep. Many secure almost immediate relief by the simple method of bathing the poisoned area in plenty of hot water. He continues:

Allow me to issue a note of warning against making use of sugar-of-lead upon the open poison ivy wounds, since there is always danger of lead poisoning setting in, and lead poisoning is even more dangerous than ivy poisoning. Even zinc oxide, another favorite "remedy," should not be used until the spread of the disease has been checked and the open sores have commenced to heal.

Sumac poisoning is caused by a close relative of poison ivy and is similar in nature, but more virulent. The treatment is the same as for ivy poisoning. Poison sumac grows in wet places only, although sometimes found along roadsides and in other places that are wet only during the spring months. Incidentally, the young spring growth of both poison ivy and poison sumac is more dangerous than the older parts of the plants.

In conclusion, it should be emphasized that ivy poisoning is a dangerous, painful affliction, and needs exposure to the danger is foolhardy in the extreme, even by persons who believe themselves to be so constituted that they are immune.

Writing about poison ivy more generally, he says that the common impression that the wind may carry the poison is probably erroneous. There is little doubt that contact with the leaves or stems of the poison ivy plant is necessary before inflammation develops, although contact with clothes or other objects that have touched the poison ivy is frequently sufficient to cause trouble. Furthermore, the smoke from burning poison ivy will carry the poison and may cause severe inflammation of eyes, nose, mouth and throat.

There is a common impression that desensitization to ivy poisoning can be secured by chewing a poison ivy leaf in the spring, he says. As a matter of fact, there is no reliable means of securing desensitization, and attempts in this direction may end disastrously, in his opinion. As to the best means of getting rid of the poison ivy pest in any given locality, he says:

The best way to solve the poison-ivy problem is to destroy the plants growing along fence rows and in other waste places. This can be done by cutting the plants close to the ground and saturating the roots with waste motor oil or with heavy brine made from agricultural salt. Table salt is not effective for this purpose. Another simple method is to employ a person, not readily susceptible, to pull out the creeping roots following rain, when the ground is soft; but heavy gauntleted gloves and an old suit of overalls should be worn while the work is being done. It would be well to remember that the poison ivy will cling to the clothes for an indefinite period. Furthermore, the dead, dried ivy plants are also dangerous to themselves.

Now, let's talk about poison ivy from the viewpoint of the woodsman—the veteran camper of experience who has "met up" with the pest. When a fellow is camping and gets poisoned with ivy he can't just sit down and wait for the poison to run its course—that the sun's heat and our weather. So with the windmill they put the weather to work to help in the discovery of the secrets of the weather, remarks Science Service.

Stage Star Returns

A middle-aged Englishman returning to Paris these days after an absence might well rub his eyes and wonder if he had not shared the fate of Rip Van Winkle. Along the boulevards just now are exhibited big posters of the latest Paris music hall—the would spoil his camping. So he's got to get busy.

Most veterans will tell you that poison ivy is largely a gamble. Some people appear to be absolutely immune. Some are not easily poisoned. Some seem to need only to be in the vicinity of a plant to become infected. And they will add that no two cases of poisoning seem to be exactly alike. And they are sure that certain remedies will cure certain cases.

Doubtless you have heard of Horace Kephart, an A-1 woodsman and the author of one of the very best wilderness manuals ever put into print. Well, he says in "The Book of Camping and Woodcraft":

A specific for poison ivy or poison sumac is tincture of grindella. I have cured cases two or three days old, where both eyes were swollen shut and other parts correspondingly affected.

So it is evident that tincture of grindella will cure some cases, and bad cases at that. I have never used it and have never seen it used.

What Mr. Hansen says about the seriousness of ivy poisoning is gospel truth. A bad case is not only the cause of discomfort, but is dangerous to life. The old-timers knew that as well as anyone and cast about in all directions for remedies. Alder bark, chewed up, was one of the old remedies. A strong lye made from wood ashes was another. Salt and water was still another. Old-timers often made a concoction of the green bark of witchhazel and applied it as hot as it could be borne. Others made a decoction of sassafras root.

It was not long ago that the lead remedy was pretty generally used. The camper who wished to be armed against poison ivy usually took with him some powdered sugar of lead (lead acetate) and some weak alcohol (50 to 75 per cent). Then, if someone became affected, the process was this: Add the powdered lead to the alcohol until no more will dissolve. Strain the solution. Wash the infected parts several times a day with it.

Nowadays, however, soda is the main reliance of the camper. This soda must be cooking soda (bicarbonate) and not washing soda (carbonate). When a case of ivy poisoning turns up, the main thing is to get at it quickly. A thorough washing of the infected parts is the first stage of the treatment. Kitchen soap is better than toilet soap for this purpose, as Mr. Hansen says. One woodsman will apply the soda dry. Another will mix the soda with water. A third will dissolve a lot of the soda in hot water and let it cool. Cooling precipitates the excess soda and the liquor is a saturated solution. It is probably true that prompt application of soda will check most cases at the start. The treatment of poison sumac cases is the same.

An experienced woodsman will see that the victim does not spread the infection by scratching, even if he has to tie the sufferer's arms at night.

The best rule of all as to poison ivy is this: "Leaves three, let it be!"

Divided Honors

Two members of the graduating class of the Fairfield (Pa.) high school captured all the honors distributed at the commencement exercises. Mary McClear delivered the valedictory and presented the class history. John Kittinger was the salutatorian and declaimed on "The Flag of the Free." These two pupils are the only members of the class.

More than twenty-five years ago the same name headed the bills of the Paris Cafe concert. Paulus, Anna Held and a dozen others shared the bills with her.

Most of them, alas! have gone, but Yvette Guilbert—who got married and went to America, where she remained many years—has returned to the scene of her triumphs of a quarter of a century ago.

THE GOVERNOR'S APPOINTEE

Ten years ago, when woman suffrage was a long way off in Eastern states, women holding governor's appointments were uncommon. The title of official court reporter of the Eighth judicial district, with a circuit consisting of seven counties, meant victory for the holder.

Wasn't the political training of the second United States congressman gained in the same field of court reporting? Anyway, Harriet Roebuck of Gainesville, Fla., not only received the appointment ten years ago, but has successfully held down the job ever since. She has had time to make friends with her fellow business women as well, for she is vice president of the Florida Federation of Business and Professional Women, which carries with it representation of her state in the national federation.

She has no hesitation about how's and why's. "Love of a hard and difficult task," is her uncompromising prescription.

Harriet Roebuck's first job was as a stenographer to a lawyer, paying $25 per month. It gave her a chance to learn the ins and outs of legal work. She learned. The court reporter appointment followed without intermediate positions, as she must have learned thoroughly.

But courts don't sit continuously. And stenographic work—especially in a university town such as Gainesville—is always in demand. Miss Roebuck has built up a letter shop doing public stenography and multiphotography. In this shop she keeps an assistant busy, and now has also a deputy to assist in the court reporting.

Although she recalls her own past hard work, she still recommends to "Miss Average Girl" a business career in such a town as Gainesville rather than a city.

"There's better opportunity for expression of personality in such a small town," she believes. "There's more consideration shown. One has opportunity for coming in closer contact with people. This enables her to serve better. The girl is likely to find just self a machine in a big city, though for the exceptional young woman I believe a city might offer greater opportunities in a financial way. For myself, the pleasure of knowing the people whom I serve in these various counties and of being able to call many of them friend is after all the most interesting phase of my work. I do not think that would happen in a great city."

THE ONLY GENUINE CATTLE QUEEN

There's only one cattle sales manager in the world who wears petticoats, and carries on her business outside the pages of fiction. She's "not more than five feet tall, with delicate features, flaxen blonde curls, dimples in both cheeks, and a charming habit of shuffling all her r's when she talks," according to an acquaintance.

Mrs. J. Riley Green of Wolfe City, Tex., likes to buy her clothes on Fifth avenue—when she has time. That is to say, if a cattle dealer's convention takes her to New York on business. "I haven't even time for parties often," she declares, "though I do keep up my church connections and keep in touch with my friends."

She has a regular office fitted up in the ranch house. Here she traces pedigree, plans sales and works up the advertising for auctions. She lives a regular cowgirl's blue book, with tea and coffee to the fore.

Her job is a real job. Seven years ago, Mrs. Green turned her general interests in Jersey cattle into an offer to do her husband's bookkeeping. "The she listened to conversations with customers."

One day she volunteered an argument that made the sale. Next came a course in scientific salesmanship. The Texas Jersey Cattle club offered her the post of secretary. No woman had ever tackled such a job. But she was probably the club was in debt and she was probably the club was in debt and she was probably the club was in debt.

Thereupon she won an honor the she appreciates at its full worth. Her husband offered her the job of sales manager for his herd at the salary it would pay a man. "It's great sport," is her conclusion, "though it means plenty of hard work. As for it, we've been married 25 years and we've never been more congenial than now. Old strangers take us for mere acquaintances because we so enjoy talking each other."

Making a Feast

It is not the quantity of meat, but the cheerfulness of the guests that makes the feast.—Clarendon.

GOOD ROADS

MOTOR USERS MUST PAY FOR HIGHWAYS

By ROY D. CHAPIN
Chairman, Highway Committee, National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

Working steadily ahead on a program which, because of its immensity, moved but few results at the outset, the highway engineers of the United States have finally carried their task to a point at which the public can obtain a visual demonstration of the results in every state.

At the end of 1918 there were 12.5 miles of completed federal aid projects in the country. Since then projects amounting to 29,772 miles have been completed, 15,318 miles are under construction and 6,000 miles more have been approved for construction.

Virtually all of this work has been done on those main highways which constitute the selected federal-aid system of 7 per cent of the highways of the country, and yet the funds so extended from both federal and state sources are less than one-half of annual expenditures made for rural highways purposes. The other funds have been expended, first, under state jurisdiction on the secondary roads, and, second, under county and local supervision on the county and purely local roads.

The net result is that as we swing to 1924 there are approximately 430,000 miles of highways in the United States on which there has been some degree of improvement, from those of old clay up to the heaviest and most modern roads known to modern engineering. The total mileage of all of the roads in the country is 2,941,000 miles.

This achievement, which gives us a large of improved roads almost four times as great as all of the roads in the United Kingdom, has been attained just in time to take care of the rising army of motorcar drivers, and will only be a continuation of the present program for the next ten years that we can finally arrive at a state system somewhat nearly approximating the needs of highway traffic.

A principal problem which at once is evident to the student of highway transport is that of how an adequate financing of this size is to be obtained, requiring as it does and will for the next annual appropriation at least $1,000,000,000 from national and local sources.

The answer has been obtained, in at least, through conferences which have been held among officials of the American Association of State Highway Officials, the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, the Interstate Bankers of America and the state of public roads.

Repeated conferences based upon actual investigations have finally resulted in an agreement upon 15 points, which, it is believed by all that were present to them, will give the nation a platform for highway finance.

The chief points so disclosed were that that benefit from highway construction should join in paying for it, that maintenance of the interstate and state systems is justifiably a public responsibility against the motor user, that expenditures should be based on budgets, and should not be out of other public needs, and, finally, depending upon the comparative stage of the highway program, term bond issues should be voted wide for immediate construction.

The principal systems which must be built cost the public less to build than to maintain than to go without.

Interesting Records

The Pennsylvania department of highways has unearthed a traffic record by one of the old toll-gate boys on the Lincoln highway between Fort Loudon and McConnellsburg in 1830 and 1834.

The record is extremely interesting and indicates that more vehicles now travel the Lincoln highway in one year than in the entire year 1830.

Good Road Notes

Good roads are the farmers' best friend.

The Indiana highway commission ordered "stop" signs erected at all places where crossroads intersect the main highway between Valparaiso and the Illinois state line.

Good roads take the farmer to the city and bring the city dweller out into the country. From this contact comes acquaintance and a clearer understanding of the problems and needs of the farmer.

A highway be used enough now, and automatically it becomes a good road.

The British Isles thorough-automobile over their full length highways would take 1,773 days' driving at 100 miles a day.

The Automobile club of Arizona thus signed more than 1,800 miles of roads within the state. This sum will be signed the new road from Flagstaff and then the road to Springerville.

Much Milk Lost During Summer

Best Plan Is to Reduce Bacterial Count by Carefully Cleaning Cow's Body.

The quantity of milk spoiled through souring during the summer can be reduced by the simple precaution of having the cows cleaned at milking time, advises F. C. Button, professor of dairy industry, New Jersey state college of agriculture.

The mud, manure, scurf and loose hairs that accumulate on the cow's body all carry a considerable number of bacteria. A single gram (about 1-25 ounce) of fresh cow manure has been found to contain 49,000,000 bacteria. Since this material often constitutes a large proportion of the filth on a cow's body the importance of cleaning the animal can readily be seen.

Experiments with dirty cows have shown that washing the teats and udders will reduce the bacterial count from 23,000 to about 7,000 per cubic centimeter. When cows are cleaned in addition to having their teats and udders washed, the bacterial count may be reduced to 2,000. This assumes that the utensils in both cases are clean and sterile.

Boards of health are becoming stricter in their requirements of what constitutes clean milk. For the protection of the public they demand that bacterial counts be kept within reasonable limits. This, besides the fact that clean milk does not sour as quickly as bacteria-laden milk, makes it a point of good business for the dairyman to thoroughly groom his cows.

Clipping long hairs from the belly, under and flanks facilitates proper cleaning. Grooming is best done an hour or so before milking, as this will leave time for the dust to settle.

The best results can be secured only when udders and teats are washed or wiped with a clean, damp cloth, just previous to milking. When udders and teats are soiled with manure or mud, washing with clean water is necessary. Water should be changed frequently, so that a clean supply is always in use. After washing, surplus moisture should be removed by wiping with a dry or slightly damp cloth. Then there will be no surplus water to drip into the milk pail, or to wet the milk's hands. When milking starts, the udders, teats and flanks should be clean and slightly damp.

Poison Gophers to Save Various Big Money Crops

Any time is gopher killing time, according to A. E. Oman, rodent control specialist of the Kansas Agricultural College. Encouraging reports are coming in from communities that have used poisoned oats. Many farmers report 100 per cent eradication from one treatment. Mr. Oman urges diligent use of the poison method to save potato crops. A few quarts of poisoned oats or of treated carrots will protect a large field. Gophers working in alfalfa fields can be effectively poisoned after the first hay crop is removed.

The zoology department of the college filled orders for 280 quarts of poisoned oats, five ounces of strychnine and 100 pounds of cyanide flakes during the week of May 19 to 24.

The five ounces of strychnine would treat two bushels of oats, enough to kill 2,000 gophers. The 100 ounces of cyanide flakes would treat 1,600 prairie dog holes.

For Success With Bees Furnish Plenty of Room

In order to be successful with bees, swarms must be kept down, and powerful, vigorous colonies built up. One of the secrets of swarm control is to give the big colonies an additional hive so there will be plenty of room, and the queen can keep on laying eggs and not have to loaf until some of the eggs hatch to make room for more.

Bees are industrious. As long as they have work to do and things to work with they are satisfied, but just as soon as the hive is full and they are forced to loaf they become restless and are no longer contented and trouble starts.

Profitable Pig Gains

Pigs full fed on pasture will make more profitable gains when fed tankage in addition to the grain ration. The older the pig the less tankage it needs per 100 pounds of live weight. One-fourth of a pound of tankage per head per day will do the job for hogs of different ages. Skim milk, buttermilk, linseed-oil meal or soy-bean meal could be substituted for tankage, but it should be remembered that one pound of tankage is equal to two pounds of linseed-oil meal or soy-bean meal and to two gallons of skim milk or buttermilk.

Care for Work Horses

A few simple precautions will increase tremendously the efficiency of the farm horse during the heavy working season. One of the most important is to take a barrel of water to the field and give the team a drink of water every time you take one. Let them rest and cool off a bit at noon and at night before feeding. Feed one-fourth the day's hay allowance in the morning, one-fourth at noon and one-half at night. Wash the necks each day with cold water to which a small amount of vinegar has been added.

Build Home-Grown Ration for Swine

Corn, Barley, Oats and Potatoes Are Valuable.

Satisfactory rations for the brood sow can be built up mainly from feeds grown on the home farm, say the workers in swine at the New York state college of agriculture.

They list corn, barley, oats, boiled potatoes, and the like as among the substances that may readily be made the basis of the energy and heat forming portions of the feeds.

The growth-promoting portions of the ration as well as the mineral requirements may be met through meat meal, tankage, fish meal, oil meal, skim milk, alfalfa hay and good kitchen waste.

If minerals are known to be deficient in the feed, the following mixture kept where all the breeding and growing stock can get it is desirable: One part of ground limestone, one part of salt, one part of ground bone or bone-meal, and two parts of charcoal.

Good rations for brood sows worked out at the college are as follows: One hundred pounds of hominy or corn meal or ground barley; 100 pounds of ground oats; 100 pounds of wheat bran; 30 pounds of oil meal or fish meal or tankage, and 15 pounds of chopped alfalfa hay.

This is fed at the rate of one to three pounds a day, depending on the condition of the sow. If poor silage, house waste, or sweepings from the dairy cow mangers can be had, they may be spread on the ground where the sow can get them. Skim milk may take the place of the protein part of the above ration.

Fight Against Bindweed Won by Kansas Farmer

Despite the fact that land infested with bindweed is often abandoned because the owner believes it impossible to exterminate, William Dietz, Sumner county (Kan.) farmer, has entirely rid his farm of this weed. Mr. Dietz used three methods of extermination. On the smaller patches he applied salt at the rate of about one pound to the square foot. Mr. Dietz does not recommend such a method, however. Although he applied the salt ten years ago, he has not yet produced a crop on the land so treated. Two or three-acre patches of bindweed he successfully exterminated in about three years by placing hogs on the patch.

A 20-acre field was rid of the pest by the intensive cultivation method. He plowed the patches early in the spring and then went over them from three to four times a month throughout the remainder of the summer, using a knife weeder, which cut the plants about four inches below the surface. Following this practice for three to four years, Mr. Dietz declared, will entirely kill them.

Age of Fowl Determined by Many Characteristics

The age of a fowl can generally be told by the size of the spurs, but this rule does not always hold good. To some extent the texture of the leg is a guide to age, and so are the delicacy and freshness of the skin of the face and comb. The skin of the body is a better test, as it becomes coarser and dry-looking with age. Formerly the wing-feathers were considered an absolute test between a pullet and a hen, even after the long practice of early breeding had made the molting of early pullets quite common. An Australian authority says that a pullet will show rose-colored veins on the surface of the skin, under the wings. There will also be long, silky hairs growing there. After a year old these hairs and the veins disappear, and the skin grows white and veinless. It is more difficult to judge the age of water fowls than of other poultry.

Milk Feeding Chickens

Most milk feeding of roasting chickens by the producer is done in the fall, when the weather is cool and the birds can better stand confinement. The time just preceding Thanksgiving and Christmas is most desirable. Young birds weighing from 3 1/2 to 4 1/2 pounds are about the right weight for fall feeding.

Farm Hints

The most productive lands soon become barren under wasteful hands.

Old crankcase oil poured on swampy pools will help keep down the mosquito pest.

Co-operative marketing won't produce bigger yields, but it will yield bigger profits.

A family tree to be proud of is that laden with fine fruit in a well-cared-for home orchard.

Sweet clover should not be pastured so late that it does not have time for the second crop to ripen seed.

Cutting clover hay with a binder saves time and the bundled clover is handled more conveniently. In our experience.

Alfalfa, as also clover and most other legumes, cannot be allowed to stand in the field until it goes to seed or reaches the best stage of maturity for silage.

A FEELING OF SECURITY WHEN YOU USE SWAMP-ROOT

You naturally feel secure when you know that the medicine you are about to take is absolutely pure and contains no harmful or habit-producing drugs.

To Sufferers from PAIN, COLDS, HEADACHES

Here are four reasons why BRO-ASPRIN is being used more and more by people who formerly used plain aspirin, as well as by those who were unable to take aspirin of any kind.

1. BRO-ASPRIN helps remove the cause of colds, fever, headaches and la grippe, at the same time giving immediate relief.
2. BRO-ASPRIN hasn't the unpleasant after effects of plain aspirin. The mild vegetable laxative eliminates the aspirin after relief has been given.
3. BRO-ASPRIN keeps the pores of the skin closed. Many remedies open them, increasing the likelihood of the patient developing a severe cold or pneumonia.
4. BRO-ASPRIN is free from all habit-forming or dangerous drugs.

On Monday morning July 7th, Mr. Harris was seated out in a large hall to greet his many friends as they entered his home to celebrate his 92nd birthday. He wore a smile of happiness all day which proved to all present that he was happy because so many came to spend the day with him.

Mr. Harris has only three children two daughters and one son. His eldest daughter Matilda and family live in Birmingham, Mary and family live in Pell City, His son Armster lives at home with him. He has ten grandchildren, five granddaughters and five grandsons. In his immediate family there is not a single broken link. A record which is wonderful for a man of his age. His children, son-in-laws, daughter-in-law and all grandchildren were present on his birthday.

Mr. Harris had the pleasure of having two soldier friends with him for the day. Messrs J. O. Wright, J. J. Letcher, A. J. Weir. These were with Mr. Harris in Co A. 20th Alabama Infantry made up of Dallas and Perry County, Mr. R. Q. Pryor, and old soldier of Company C. Alabama old 4th Alabama Infantry. Numerous other intimate friends of Mr. Harris were also present.

Mr. Harris received presents, the most beautiful was a cake—the largest and most beautiful many of us had ever seen. The donor was none other than Mr. L. B. Gay, of Selma, the cake was not measured nor weighed, but I am sure it was near five feet in circumstances. Was iced in white trimmed in pink with this on it: 1832, 1924—92 years. All present were served to this cake and more than half of it left.

Mr. Gay has known Mr. Harris from his childhood, and as he could not be present remembered him with the cake. This young man is ever thoughtful of the aged and sick. Mr. J. E. Terry of Plantersville sent material to make punch which was served with the cake, and dinner.

Two tables were placed out in the hall with beautiful linen embroidered doilies and vases of flowers upon them. They served in real country style table after table until all were served. Pigeon baskets were brought and every good eatable you could think of was to be had for the asking. Mr. Harris' son had barbecued for the dinner. They served tea punch and cream with the dinner.

The music in the afternoon was grand. Mr. Harris' grand-daughter, Miss Sarah Claud Chapman, played the violin, his youngest daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Tell, played the saxophones. Mrs. T. M. Martin accompanied on the piano while Master Jack Mason Teel sang. Mrs. Armster Harris played the guitar and French harp together. Afterwards she began playing the accordion and while she played one man and one lady stepped out in the floor to show a young couple how to step to music. This brought applause and much laughter.

Kodak pictures were taken by Mr. Matilda Chapman, and Mrs. Minnie Gay of Mr. and Mrs. Harris and his soldier friends and the old men.

When time came to bid Mr. Harris adieu his countenance showed that his birthday had been a day of pleasure.

Mr. and Mrs. Armster Harris deserve commendable praise for the preparations made for this occasion.

Mrs. C. C. Gay.

CLANTON, ALABAMA, JULY 31, 1924.

BAPTIST CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY

This is to say that in accord with Bro. Ezelle I am to preach at the Baptist Church next Sunday, and I will appreciate an announcement of this fact in your valuable paper, as no doubt many of my friends will be pleased to know it, and possibly attend. I expect to arrive about Friday night. Am pleased to say Mrs. Carter and myself are both well.

Hoping to have the pleasure of seeing you soon I remain Yours very truly.

P. G. CARTER.

COLLINS CHAPEL PICNIC

There will be a W. O. W. picnic at Collins Chapel Thursday, July 31st.

This will be a basket picnic for the general public and everybody are invited to come out and have a good time with us that day.

Speaker L. D. Holloway, of Montgomery, who is State Manager of the organization, will be present and deliver one of his characteristically interesting talks. If you do not hear him you will miss a treat.

LAST THURSDAY'S BALL GAME

Just think how the mighty have fallen. Last Thursday that lusty team of baseball athletes from Gant's Quarry came over to demonstrate to us all what real base ball playing looked like.

About 5 o'clock that afternoon they took back track home, but their gibes and laughter had departed and they were a sad and far away look just like they had lost something.

The trouble with them was that they went up against the Clanton ball team that afternoon and were actually dazed when they realized what sure enough playing was like.

Our team let them down tolerable light as they only stacked up a score of 14 to 3 against them.

Clanton has the pennant team of Central Alabama, bar none, and this town and vicinity appreciate them and has stayed by this season.

Some of our boys are being sought now for league service next summer.

CEMETERY CLEAN UP

The town authorities, assisted by the Civic Club, are giving the cemetery a general clean-up this week. They wish to urge owners of lots to co-operate with them by cleaning up individual lots. If this is done the city will take care of the removal of all rubbish.

MULBERRY W. M. U.

The ladies of the W. M. U. will give Saturday night, Aug. 2nd, an ice cream and chicken supper at the home of Mr. D. O. Manning, near Isabella School. The proceeds will go to the Mulberry Baptist Church. Everybody is invited to come.

THE W. M. U. LADIES.

FINE AND DANDY!

Last Friday, Rev. W. S. Cox, who is known and recognized by everybody in this section as registering at least 150 per cent when it comes to being a real, red-blooded American Christian gentleman, brought us a melon that resembled him in quality, for it was all to the good and no mistake. He told us not to say anything about it, so if you read this, don't let him know we told it. The fact was, the melon was so good we just had to say something.

THE FINEST YET!

Mr. Tom Pyron, whom you all know as a champion gardener, brought a tomato into our office Saturday that takes the cake. It was absolutely perfect in formation, without spot or blemish, was lusciously ripe and beautiful, and weighed 17 ounces. On the table it more than demonstrated the promise of its appearance, for it was delicious beyond compare.

A direct ballot is the only salvation for the real people of this country. The politicians have fixed it so that the ballot box means very little. They let us vote to keep us efficient, but when it comes to doing things the politicians fix it.

THE PRESIDENTIAL RACE

Davis, Coolidge and LaFollette, together with their more intimate friends and political advisors, are very busy now in making up their plans of campaign and attending to the many preliminary features that will be expected to aid them in the great fight ahead.

All of them will establish a central campaign headquarters at Washington where the main fireworks will be manufactured for the army in the field.

Then it is highly probable that each candidate will maintain sub headquarters in New York, Chicago, Denver and San Francisco.

It is announced now that each one of them intends to have conducted an intense whirlwind campaign in every State in the union. They are not going to concede a thing to each other without a fight.

These preliminary arrangements, if carried out in earnest, are going to get out the largest vote ever polled in the United States, and also going to dash to fragments many of the old time line-ups and render results that will surprise us all.

The people at large are dissatisfied, many of them have lost faith in both the old parties and are willing to try almost anything once for a change, so anything like a definite estimate of the future political status is utterly out of the question.

Our opinion now is that LaFollette is going to cut more of a figure in the election results than several people think. The labor vote and much of the North West farming vote is going to cause his tally sheet to grow while we feel sure that he will draw heavier from the Republican than from the Democratic ranks, it is very evident to us that both of the old parties are going to feel his strength.

To sum up the whole situation at present and make an impartial guess as to the final result, it looks like Davis and Bryan have a decided edge on the victory. They are both clean men and have no dirty party scandal to carry. This should give them the advantage.

FARMERS CO-OPERATIVE ASS'N MOVES TO NEW OFFICE

The office of the Farmers Co-operative Ass'n was moved this week from the second floor of the New Hayes Building to the room until recently occupied by Dr. Hayes, on the ground floor of the Exchange Hotel, Building next to Mr. Hugh Jones' store.

This office will be open for business every day from now on and every farmer is invited to come around and get acquainted with us if he is not already acquainted. We will be glad to tell you just how we can help you.

We aim to make this office the business center for the farmers of this county and in the course of time hope to do practically all of our buying and selling through this office at a very small expense.

Look for our letters in future issues of this paper telling the principals and plans of this, our own organization. Then join with your neighbors in the handling of our own business by and for ourselves.

Yours for more profitable farming, FARMERS CO-OPERATIVE ASS'N.

Senator Wheeler, the intense proponent of Daugherty in the Tea Pot Dome oil scandal, has quit the Democratic party to run for Vice President on the La Follette ticket. In other words, a great and valuable man public life has voluntarily retired to private life.

WORK ON THE HIGHWAY

Last week one day we had the opportunity of going directly over a large part of the B. and M. Highway construction work that is going on in the Northern half of that important thoroughfare.

It was gratifying to us and also surprising, to find this grading so far advanced. The contractors are making wonderful progress and are putting up a road that when finally completed, will be a lasting joy to all auto tourist especially, and a great convenience to the public in general.

If that section had only been extended to Clanton how much better it would have been, not only for us but for the public as well.

So far as the South end of this road across our county is concerned, it is hardly probable that anything definite will be done before another year. Been too much monkey business carried on about an alleged detour through Prattville. They claim they cannot determine where the road will leave our county at until they know for sure whether they are to go through Prattville, or two miles to the left of there, from here. The sounds awful fishy to us as a citizen, but one reason will do as well as another when you can't help yourself.

COL. GRADY REYNOLDS ASSUMES NEW JOB

Some days ago it became known that Col. Grady Reynolds, of the Clanton, had been appointed to the office of United States District Attorney for the middle district of Alabama, with headquarters at Montgomery.

The incumbent, Judge Samford, of Opelika, who had resigned twice before, sent in his positive resignation and requested that Mr. Reynolds be installed at once, pending the affirmation of the Senate in December.

His request was acceded to and Mr. Reynolds left Tuesday for Montgomery to be in readiness to take over the job yesterday. Judge Samford will remain with him until he has time to get a grip on the situation.

Grady is well known in this town and country, and has many friends and admires here. He is also recognized as a successful barrister and has done a great deal of legal business in Chilton County.

Under the circumstances the appointment of Grady to this Federal job was the most logical thing that Mr. Coolidge could have done.

Judge L. H. Reynolds has done more for the Republican Party in Alabama than any other one man, excepting no one, and he certainly deserves recognition by that party. He polled about 78,000 Republican votes in Alabama when he ran for the Senate against Underwood, and led his own ticket by several thousand votes.

This being true, we Democrats have no room to kick and so far as we are concerned, we congratulate Grady on his appointment and wish him well.

NOTICE

Dr. N. S. Johnson wishes to announce to his friends and patrons that he will be out of his office during the month of August, taking a special course at the Childrens Memorial Hospital at Chicago, Illinois.

A TRIP TO THE FLORIDA COAST

On Wednesday July 16th, 7 A. M. Mr. Ed. Giles Elmer Powell, Rudo oh and headed South for Camp Waldon, Fla. We made the trip thro Wetumpka, Montgomery, Laverne, Ory, Florala and Crestview, staying overnight in Florida, arrived at Camp Waldon Thursday, July 17th, 11 A. M.

The roughest road we traveled was in Chilton and Autauga Counties. We traveled a new road between Ory and Florala, but the Builders' good judgement and kept this in fine condition for traveling under construction. Between view and Camp Waldon is a sandy soil and the sand is usually scraped towards the outside instead of the inside of the road. After arriving at Camp Waldon, we pitched camp on the beach of the Santa Rosa Sound and immediately started out to go around the fence of our pasture. We got in a motor boat with several bathers and crossed over the Santa Rosa Sound. This body of water where we crossed is about one quarter of a mile wide and only 15 to 20 ft. deep in channel. We landed on Santa Rosa Island. This island is several miles in length and only one fourth to one and one half miles wide, composed mostly of sand white as snow. It is only one fourth mile walk across this island opposite Camp Waldon to the Gulf of Mexico where bathing in salt water is most tempting. In the afternoon two of the best red people enjoy Gulf Bathing. Camp Waldon is noted for its good hotels; almost which you will find at Gulfview, Indianola Inn, Pastime and Harbison. The Harbison Hotel has 70 rooms, Sulphur water from Artesian wells 723 feet deep, 21 lbs. pressure with this hotel there is a large dance pavilion on water front. Dancing every night from 8:30 until 12 o'clock P. M., five pieces of music. The Pastime Hotel has a large indoor dining room, excellent food, and the guests can enjoy the sea breezes. We learned that the view serves good meals, and we know of serving 1200 guests. The Indianola Inn also has the best Hotels with a swimming pool. Bathing, dancing, fishing parties are usually carried out in a motor boat to the gulf, where the water is 100 to 125 feet deep, to catch red snapper. Crabs can be gigged or caught with dip nets abundantly.

Not so very long ago a flying machine was maneuvering over the gulf waters near Camp Waldon and spied a very large fish and the pilot immediately summoned several boats to capture the monster. The fish was out on the gulf they finally managed to bring him to shore. The fish is similar to the devil fish or octopus, weighing 3,300 pounds. This is the largest catch made in the Gulf. It would be a big one if it were a shark.

One of our best views was made on Sunday morning, 10 miles North to the home of Mr. McKee, ranger, of the Florida National Forest. Among the 18 national forests embracing nearly 157,000,000 acres and extending into 26 States, the Florida is the only one within which is conducted the business of producing naval stores from the pine, yielding a by-product of greater value than the timber itself. The area was set aside from public domain as a national forest by proclamation of President Roosevelt in 1908. 3,000 acres are in the reserve. There are large herds of fat cattle, also swine in the forest. All the hogs we saw could drink butter milk out of a jug, and where they could not break a root with their nose, they could saw it with their back. They are butchered and put on the market as soon as they get fat enough to fry in their own grease.

NOTICE TO ALL FARMERS

The meeting that had been announced for Saturday afternoon has been postponed to Saturday of next week, August 9 at 1:30 p. m. The meeting will be held in the court house at Clanton.

Cotton crops are very good in South Alabama. Some fields having one-half bale to the acre already made. Corn is also fine, although a very small number of acres has been planted.

All auto fans may be interested to know that the trip was made without any punctures or trouble whatever with the Buick car.

Our Employees Are Bonded

Every Bank expends considerable effort to secure none but honest and efficient officials and employees.

The directors of the First National Bank Bank feel that they have been especially fortunate in securing the services of persons of unusual integrity and ability for every position of trust in this Bank.

The Directors, however, feel that for the absolute protection of its depositors they should not depend on honesty alone for this protection, but should place all possible safeguards around those whom it employs.

A heavy bond has, therefore, been placed on every employee of this institution, which insures more completely than would otherwise be possible, full protection for the Bank and individual depositor alike.

RECOMMENDED BY HER DOCTOR

Found Strength by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Kankakee, Illinois.—"My mother-in-law always took your medicine for weakness, and then in the change of life it did her so much good that she induced me to take it for a weakness I had for a year and a half. It has strengthened me and now I have a nice baby boy. I do all my own housework, and I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound whenever I have the opportunity. I am taking it again for weakness, as my family doctor has recommended it for this purpose."—Mrs. HARRY COULON, 884 N. Harrison Ave., Kankakee, Illinois.

Real Evidence of Merit
For the relief of female weakness, pains and backache, nervousness and irritabilities, with other troubles common to women, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a dependable medicine.
Its worth is thoroughly established by such letters as the above. There are women everywhere, who, having received benefit, gladly tell other women about it. For sale by druggists everywhere.

One Thing They Did
"Ain't got no Shakespearean actors now like what we had in the old days," declared Hank Hayford, a prominent member of the grocery league.
"This is the repressed school," retorted a city fellow who happened to be present. "You're thinking about the old-style robust school. All those fellows could do was to rant around and hellow."

ALABAMA NEWS HAPPENINGS

A Resume of the More Important Events of Interest Condensed To An Epitomized Form.

There will be no more night sessions in the circuit courts of Alabama in trial of jury cases, except by agreement of counsel. The new Alabama Code of 1923, makes this provision in section 6672. In the former code it was provided that the courts of the several judicial circuits of the state should not be opened before 11 a. m. of the first Monday set for the trial of jury cases, but there was no provision as to what hour the court should adjourn. The section of the new code, already referred to, retains the provision as to the hour of opening court, but specifies in addition that in any event the court shall not adjourn in the trial of cases later than 7 p. m. each day except by agreement of counsel. This addition was made by the commission, in revision of the code.

Charging that he lost his job with the Louisville & Nashville Railroad company as the result of a garnishment run on his wages by the defendants, B. F. Roberts filed suit in the Jefferson circuit court to recover $25,000 as damages from W. C. McCarty and R. E. McCarty, trading under the name of McCarty Brokerage company. Roberts set out in his petition that he borrowed $25 from the defendants; that he paid back $60, and that they claimed he still owed $25, for which the garnishment was secured. He asks for judgment for an additional sum of $75 with interest for money he alleges defendants received from him in 1923 and 1924.

In a liquor raid made in the vicinity of Bull's Gap, near Talladega Deputy Berry Campbell and Enforcement Officer John H. Draper and H. G. Garrett discovered a double distilling outfit, the only one of its kind ever seized at Talladega county. It was in operation when the officers captured it. The Wilt Harding and Lee Bryant were placed under arrest and four gallons of liquor seized. Mr. Campbell, who has been connected with the Talladega sheriff's office for five years, said that this outfit was the first one making pure double distilled corn liquor he has ever seen raided. Harding and Bryant were released under a $500 bond.

Through the efforts of the Alabama Public Service commission a modification of the decision of the interstate commerce commission in the famous Meridian case affecting rates on cotton, clay, concrete and shale products and gravel, has been recommended in the report of the examiner of the interstate commerce commission who heard the evidence on the request for modification of the original order.

A number of prominent citizens of Columbia, Tenn., visited Decatur to inspect the streets that were put down a dozen or more years ago and which were successfully resurfaced two years ago as well as the construction of the new streets now under way. Members of the party included Mayor Fred Latta, Alderman H. A. Porter and F. M. Chaffin of Columbia.

An educational program for care of children is being carried out in the rural communities by the Jefferson county health department that is proving of great value to the mothers of the various sections. The nurses provided under the Shepherd-Towner bill appropriation makes the educational program possible, and instructive talks are given once every month in each of the populous sections in the county.

After a recent survey the J. B. McCarty Co. has submitted to the town council estimates and plans for a system of water works for Columbiana. One estimate, which includes well, steel tank and pipe lines, places the cost at $29,902.75, while the other, with the well more centrally located, would cost $22,483.19.

The Alabama Public Service commission granted the petition of the Demopolis Telephone company for permission to discontinue its Linden-Old Spring Hill line.

After serving several years as county solicitor of Cleburne county, Joe C. Nichols has resigned that post, his resignation having been forwarded to Solicitor James H. Sanford at Talladega.

Grady Reynolds of Clanton, Ala., was appointed by President Coolidge as United States attorney for the middle district of Alabama.

Etowah county has begun the erection of a large concrete reinforced bridge over Cove creek on the Hokes bluff pike.

Protest has been filed with the Alabama Public Service commission in Montgomery by the Anniston Traffic association against the publication of increased rates on vegetables shipped from Mobile to that city. It is alleged that the advances are unreasonable, that the proper parity is not being maintained between this point and other consuming centers and that the proposed rates will impose a serious handicap upon the produce dealers of Anniston.

A great family reunion was held last week at Union Chapel, six miles east of Jasper, when the Black family held their annual reunion. This reunion was well attended by hundreds of visitors from every section of the county and some visitors from other counties were present. A feature of the reunion was the picnic lunch served. Several prominent speakers made short addresses.

The Walker County Creamery, one of Walker county's most thriving enterprises, began making creamery butter last week. This new butter making plant is one of the best equipped in North Alabama. The creamery started with making 75 pounds a day and the business is growing rapidly. According to the officials it will be only a short time before they will be making 250 or 300 pounds daily.

Recent seizure by Sheriff Cazalas of Mobile and his deputies of the liquor amounting to 100 cases aboard the United States Shipping Board boat "Saccaratti" has raised an interesting legal problem. Solicitor Bart Chamberlain announced that he is investigating the matter with a view to finding out whether the state can issue condemnation proceedings against the vessel.

Travel over the Roy bridge on the Birmingham-Montgomery highway can be resumed in about two weeks, according to announcement of Thomas S. Edwards, county engineer. The bridge has been closed to traffic since repairs were started more than two months ago. The bridge will be a free one in the future, it having been taken over by the state and Montgomery county.

The Staples & Cunningham lime works at Linrick have begun operations. The raw material is there in abundance, and this new industry for Jackson county promises to be prosperous and successful. A number of years ago lime was manufactured at that place by F. O. Hurt and this lime was greatly in demand all over the country.

Dr. G. B. Stewart, who owns an apple orchard on Manchester Star Route, near Clar Creek Falls, in Walker county, stated that the outlook for a bumper apple crop this year was bright. Dr. Stewart expects to harvest not less than 4,000 bushels of apples this season, on which he expects to realize upwards of $2 a bushel on an average.

S. V. Bacon and Miss Lillian Held of New York have leased Rabe's lake near Attalla and will convert it into one of the largest pleasure resorts in the state. It is announced. The lake will be enlarged to cover 10 acres and improvements calling for expenditures of $15,000 will be made.

A petition was docketed with the Public Service commission by the Silver Hill garage, C. N. Anderson, proprietor, seeking permission to establish an electric generating and distribution system in the town of Silver Hill. The petition was set for hearing at Montgomery August 5.

The board of trustees of the Alabama school of trades left Gadsden without having selected a site but will hold another meeting within 10 days to finish the work. It is understood the trustees eliminated all the sites offered except two and one of these will be purchased shortly.

The Chopin club of Mobile, has been busy during the Summer months organizing a symphony orchestra. This orchestra consists of about 30 of Mobile's best musicians. Rehearsals are being held regularly and quite an attractive program will be given the early part of September.

A flag raising ceremony at which Congressman Lamar Jeffers will be the chief speaker, will feature the opening of the annual encampment of the boys and girls 4-H clubs of Cleburne county, which will be held on the Tallapoosa river on August 7, 8 and 9.

THE FACTORY AND THE FAMILY

When Mrs. Ehmman was widowed, there was obviously nothing to do except to have her son leave home for some job that would keep himself and the family going. San Francisco was the nearest city to the half-deserted mining town of Oroville where the Ehmman lived. So to San Francisco the boy went. A wholesale hardware store put him on as a traveling salesman, and the family was—though not by too wide a margin—saved from penury.

On a trip home the boy gazed up at the neglected olive trees on the hillside. "Had some queer ripe olives to eat the other day," he remarked casually. "Tasted good, too. But they're imported all the way from Spain, so they cost too much for me to bring you some. You might try pickling these."

From his remark grew a trip across the bay to the university next time he was in the city. There, apparently the only place in California, was died away a recipe for pickling ripe olives. Mrs. Ehmman found an empty keg or two, which for lack of room indoors, she had to prop up under the house porch on the sloping mountainside. When her son came home, she opened a jar of ripe olives. "Um-m," he said judiciously, "good, but not quite as good as those imported fellows."

"Try these," said his mother, holding out another open jar. "I thought I'd experiment a bit with that recipe."

"Why, mother, I could sell those as a sideline to the hardware job," said the boy. "Can you do it again?"

"Oh, yes," said the woman who loved her kitchen. "I've kept a copy of just what I did. But you'll like this third batch still better." And he did. So did the "trade," when he began to peddle Ehmman's olives on his route. So, gradually, did the rest of the United States, as the keg under the porch grew into a factory that put money into the pockets of Oroville "fats."

For the Ehmman has never become too self-important for the little mountainside town. The business started of necessity as a family industry. A family industry so far as possible it has remained. The tiny house with the porch hung over the mountainside has become a house that is plenty big enough for comfort, even when the grandchildren are at home, but that lacks all the ostentation of the typical "new-rich folks' mansion. And the devotion of these same grandchildren, together with the occasional presidency of the Oroville W. C. T. U., have proved quite enough honor to satisfy the founder of the first ripe olive business in America.

BOOK AGENTS AND VISIONS

We sat in a little restaurant out in Mankato, Minn., and talked of many things. Two things I chiefly remember. One was the enthusiasm and determination that Josephine Sizer was putting into her new job of being president of the Minnesota W. C. T. U.

The other was the story of how she got her training in leading folks. That she does lead them is evidenced by the fact that some 20,000 people annually go to hear her lecture, especially at churches, camp meetings and Bible institutes.

Once upon a time, so the story ran, Mrs. Sizer was far from well. The doctor prescribed an absolute change of scene, new people, new interests. Now Josephine Sizer was the shy, devoted wife of a Methodist minister. She shrank not only from strangers, but from anything that would make her prominent even among her husband's congregation. And the family purse was the proverbially lean article possessed by a country minister.

As she did her housework, dreams of far people and places born of the doctor's prescription slipped into her mind. And along came a stranger who made those vague dreams real. Under his arm was a volume of a famous series of lectures. Warned by his listener's attention, he grew eloquent. Finally, "Why, those books are as good as a trip!" exclaimed the woman.

An odd question from the man, and her story was out. Her enthusiasm for the travel lectures persisted. The stranger saw its value to his company. He persuaded her, the shy little woman, to share her vision with other housebound women. She learned to talk, to sell ideas as well as books. She regained her health. She made money.

Then—"Why, if I have this gift," she said to herself, "I ought to put it to still better service." So she has done so.

No Star-Gazer Could Outwit Mister Stork

By H. M. EGBERT

© 1924, Western Newspaper Union

WHEN Letty married George she was not under any illusions. She knew that he was a dreamer and that he thought more of star-gazing than of his position as a clerk in the insurance company. But Uncle Tom was a well-to-do merchant, and he took George into his office at a substantial advance on the $15 a week which the young fellow had been receiving.

But two months of trial convinced the merchant that he had got hold of a "lemon."

"Of course, Letty," he said, "I am perfectly ready to keep him on for your sake."

"Oh, uncle," answered Letty, "I don't know that I ought to tell you, but I will. This is George's great secret. Do you know there is another planet beyond Neptune?"

"What's that?" shouted Uncle Tom. "George is working on another planet—?" began Letty.

"Well, I guess he is," exclaimed her uncle. "He certainly don't do any work on this."

"Now listen, uncle," said Letty coaxingly. "George has been at work for years trying to discover a new planet, which he has reason to believe exists, and he says the discovery will bring him fame and fortune. That is what those figures are for. He has been calculating for years—"

"But has he got to calculate in my office?" cried her uncle in exasperation. Either he stops finding planets, or he goes out of my office."

And with this ultimatum he turned away. As a matter of fact, Uncle Tom was not a hard man, but he had been deeply disappointed in the choice of his favorite niece.

Letty went home in tears. "Oh, George," she said that night, "I do wish you could put those thoughts of the new planet out of your mind and settle down to work. You know Uncle Tom wants to help us, and there won't be any future for you or me unless you give up your astronomy."

"See here, Letty," he said, "it can't be done. It is all my life to me and it is not possible for me to give it up. If I hadn't spent three years on this, perhaps I might. But now things have gone too far. In two years more I shall be famous. Letty! Would you be willing to make a great sacrifice for me?"

"Of course, dear," she answered. "It will be a tremendous one," he continued. "But other men's wives have made just as great sacrifices for them. And it will only be for two years."

"What is the sacrifice, George?" she asked.

"That we part for two years, Letty. You must support yourself by teaching, as you did before, and I will get some simple hack astronomical writing to do which will bring in five or six dollars a week and enable me to give all my time—"

He ended suddenly, for Letty was crying.

"Letty! I am a brute," he said. "I didn't mean that, dear. No, it was as much with the thought of your future as of my own. I love you, Letty. Stay with me and try to bear with me and I will do the work in my spare time—"

About a month after this occurrence her uncle spoke to her again.

She watched him that night, filling sheet after sheet of paper with his intricate calculations. How she hated those figures! She often wondered whether they meant anything to George, or whether this was not some mania, born of a diseased mind.

He threw away dozens of sheets daily, and he had at least four thousand stacked up in his desk and tied together with string.

When at last he had gone to bed she crept to his desk and took them apart and looked at them. There they were, just sheets of common writing paper, with those dreadful figures on them.

She carried the bundle over to the grate. She hesitated for one moment; the next she had thrust it deep down beneath the coals. The fire licked it up greedily.

She did not sleep that night. The next day was Sunday.

She watched him narrowly. He seemed so happy and contented that morning. And when the meal was done he took her in his arms and kissed her.

"Letty," he said, "I have a great secret for you. Listen, dear! I can finish those calculations in three months. Letty! why do you look at me so strangely?"

"I threw your papers into the grate last night," she answered stonily.

He stared at her speechlessly. "Letty!" he cried. "You are joking!"

Then he read the look on her face and sank back in his chair like a man stunned.

"Letty, you have ruined our lives," he muttered. Letty hung herself down at his feet.

"George! Listen! I have something to tell you," she said. And she told him.

A new species of fish that is brilliantly illuminated and that makes a loud shouting noise when chasing smaller fishes has been discovered in the waters of Monterey bay, Cal., according to Dr. C. W. Greene of the University of Missouri. Its ability to shout, says Popular Mechanics Magazine, is due to the peculiar construction of its swim bladder, he says. The noise is produced by gaseous contents of the bladder.

The fish is said to carry 350 phosphorescent lights.

Harder to Read Character

Those who undertake to read the character of persons with whom they come in contact can no longer rely on what the eyebrow says to them. The plucking of eyebrows has become so general that they cannot be made to tell anything of the makeup of their owners. Character readers must fall back on the contour of the nose, curves of the mouth and the "crow's feet" around the eyes to form their conclusions and must remove the eyebrows entirely from their observations.

WOMEN NEED SWAMP-ROOT

Thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it. Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease. If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

Pain in the back, headache, loss of ambition, nervousness are oftentimes symptoms of kidney trouble. Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, may be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Get a medium or large size bottle immediately from any drug store.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation, send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

The DAIRY

SMALL-TOP PAIL IS BEST FOR DAIRYING

That the small-top milk pail is a distinct aid in producing clean milk is proved by the large amount of dirt and dirt that collects on the cover of such a pail during milking, points out F. C. Button, professor of dairy industry at the college of agriculture at New Brunswick, N. J.

This accumulation will take place on the hood of the pail even when the cow's body, udder and teats are comparatively clean. Without the protection of the hood, this material would fall directly into the milk.

The influence of the small-top pail on the number of bacteria that fall into milk at milking time has been shown by experiment to be as follows: When the cows were dirty and only sterilized utensils used, an open pail gave milk containing 86,000 bacteria in every 25 drops of milk, while a covered pail under the same conditions gave milk containing only 24,000 bacteria in that quantity of milk. It has been said that the hooded pail can generally be expected to keep out at least 90 per cent of the dirt and bacteria that would otherwise fall into the milk.

The more dirt there is on a cow the more important it is to use a small-top pail. In selecting such a pail one should consider the ease of cleaning, the ease of use and the smallness of the opening. All seams in the pail should be soldered flush to make cleaning easy. The interior should be free from angles and inaccessible crevices which harbor bacteria and render cleaning difficult. Some dairymen object to milking into a small-top pail, claiming it is too difficult. With a little practice, however, one can readily become accustomed to its use. The benefit to be derived from this modern pail is well worth the effort.

Keep Milk Pails Clean by Using False Bottom

After trying in vain to keep the bottom of the milkpail free from the mire of the barnyard, a false bottom was devised as shown in the drawing. A round piece, 1/4-inch larger in diameter than the bottom of the pail, was cut from an apple-box side (any similar lumber would do, of course). To this were nailed three lath cleats, across the grain. The middle cleat was allowed to extend 1 1/4 inches beyond either edge of the board, and to these extensions were nailed two 1 1/4-inch blocks cut from one-inch lumber. To one of these blocks was fastened a spring trouser-guard such as is used in riding a bicycle. The spring was held solidly in place with a lath wedge. Two small lath uprights nailed to the sides completed the job. The spring holds the false bottom firmly in place.—Popular Science Monthly.

Skim Milk Fed Calf Must Have Supply of Water

Calves need water even though they are being raised on skim milk. Because milk is largely made up of water is no reason for not giving a calf an opportunity to drink.

It is not a good practice to water a calf immediately after it has had its feed of skim milk and is pretty well filled up. The middle of the day is a better time.

After a calf two weeks old, it should get a little water each day. On very hot summer days large amounts of water in the middle of the day may be followed by bad results. On these days it is better to water them during the forenoon and afternoon when they are out in the hot sun during the day. Then it is not advisable to let them overdrink. A small amount, a half bucketful or so at a time, and often, is far better than giving all at one time.

If the calves have access to fresh water at all times, time and work is saved. However, it is a poor policy to let the calves drink from a stagnant pool. This water supply has caused intestinal trouble and frequently poisoning.

Feed for Young Calf

Milk should be fed until the calf is six months old. By this time, it should be eating all the feed it will clean up nicely. It is important that the feeding be continued while the milk is being gradually tapered off, and when the calf is weaned, it should never be allowed to stop growing. Care in tapering off the milk and a little more feed will do the trick. If it is summer, the calf should run out in a good pasture where fresh water and salt are accessible at all times.

THE FIRST DISCIPLES OF JESUS

LESSON TEXT—John 1:35-51.

GOLDEN TEXT—"Jesus saith unto him, Follow me:—John 1:43.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Calls Four

HELPER.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus' First Followers.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What It Means to Follow Jesus.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Winning Others to Christ.

Through the testimony of John the Baptist, his disciples were pointed to Jesus. This same testimony he gave the previous day, but he was not ashamed to repeat his sermon. His theme was the Lamb of God, the sin-bearer of the world.

1. Two of John's Disciples Follow Jesus (vv. 35-37).

As a result of the Baptist's testimony two of his disciples left him and followed Jesus. One of these disciples was Andrew (v. 40), and presumably the other was John. When the Baptist pointed out Jesus as the Lamb of God, the long-expected Messiah, these disciples sought further acquaintance with Jesus. In view of John's request, they looked on the Lord. This look was sufficient to induce them to follow Jesus. They believed.

2. The Two Disciples Abiding With Jesus (vv. 38, 39).

1. Jesus' Question (v. 38). When Jesus saw the disciples following He most kindly inquired as to their object.

2. The Disciples' Reply (v. 39). They answered his question by inquiring as to His dwelling place. Their reply showed their desire to go apart privately where they could disclose their hearts to Him. Knowing their hearts, He invited them to His place of abode.

3. The Disciples Bringing Others to Jesus (vv. 40).

The very genius of Christianity is self-propagation. The usual method is to begin with those nearest us—home folks and relatives—and pass out to ever-widening circles. The disciples who were with Jesus in blessed fellowship go at once to tell others of the priceless treasure they have found.

1. Andrew Brings Peter (vv. 40-42). This is a beautiful sight of brotherly affection, expressing itself in bringing another to Christ. The best place to begin our testimony for Christ is among our kinsfolk (Luke 8:39). This was a great piece of work for Andrew, for Peter became one of the pillars of the church of God.

2. Philip Brings Nathaniel (vv. 43-46). Christ found Philip the following day as he would go forth into Galilee. Philip followed Him in response to a personal invitation. As soon as Christ found Philip, Philip found Nathaniel and witnessed to him concerning the messiahship of Jesus. He said unto him, "We have found Him, of whom Moses in the law, and the prophets did write, Jesus of Nazareth" (v. 45). Nathaniel was somewhat skeptical, but he was honest. Philip had the wisdom not to argue with him, but brought him to Jesus. The one who is honest when brought into the presence of Jesus will soon have all doubts removed (John 7:17).

3. Nathaniel, Seeing and Hearing Jesus, Testifies to His Divinity (vv. 47-51).

As soon as Nathaniel saw and heard Jesus all his doubts rolled away. He who acts upon the light given shall see greater things (vv. 50, 51). Angels ascending and descending upon the Son of Man with the open heavens, shows that Jesus Christ is the means of communication between earth and heaven (Heb. 10:19, 20; Eph. 2:12; Gen. 28:12).

This narrative concerning the experiences of the first disciples exhibits the following stages of Christian experience:

1. Hearing About Jesus (v. 36). How important it is that the minister and teacher have a proper conception of Jesus as the sacrificial Lamb, the sin-bearer of the world.

2. Looking Upon Jesus (v. 38). It is necessary that the sinner definitely fix his attention upon Jesus.

3. Following Jesus (v. 37). It is not enough to merely look upon Him. There must be definite efforts to follow after, to inquire of Him.

4. Abiding With Jesus (v. 39). Those who earnestly look upon Jesus and inquire after Him He welcomes into blessed fellowship.

5. Witnessing for Jesus (vv. 41, 45). The first thing the one does who has come to Jesus is to begin to witness for Him.

6. Bringing Others to Jesus. The chief delight of the one who has come to know Jesus by a personal experience is to bring others to Him.

How To Save Time In The Kitchen

THERE'S no reason why you should spend needless time and energy in the kitchen fretting with the cooking when you can prepare so easily the many delicious dishes with self-rising flour. It affords a new way to make tasteful and appetizing the old familiar foods every one loves so well. Biscuits, hot muffins, cakes and dainty pastries, all rise better and have a more tempting flavor when made with self-rising flour.

"I consider self-rising flour one of my oldest friends," writes a noted Southern cook. "I would not be without it. . . . When I'm in hurry I know that with a hot oven and plenty of self-rising flour everything will be all right."

As in plain flour, self-rising comes in a number of different grades. Your grocer will sell you exactly the same grade of self-rising that you have been using in plain flour. See that the Blue Shield of the Soft Wheat Millers' Association is on every bag you buy. It means that you are getting guaranteed flour. Accept no other.

FOLLOW THESE FIVE RULES For Making Perfect Biscuits with Self-Rising Flour. (1) See that your oven is hot! (2) Always use sweet milk or cold water! (3) Never add baking powder, soda or salt! (4) Use good shortening—lard, vegetable fat or butter! (5) Make soft dough—bake quickly. SOFT WHEAT MILLERS' ASS'N, Inc.

Gas

Forty years ago, kerosene was the main by-product of crude oil. Around refineries, men drew off a barrel of gasoline to wash a pair of overalls, and dumped it out. Then came the auto.

This year, refiners say, 9,177,000,000 gallons of gasoline will be produced in the United States. This will be a fifth more than in 1927.

How long, at this rate of increase, until the underground oil reserves will be exhausted?

ASTHMA AND HAY FEVER A GUARANTEED RELIEF

"I have arranged with all druggists here, as well as in all other towns of the U. He says: "Buy a package of my Asthmador, or cigarettes, try it, and if it does not afford you immediate relief, or if you do not find it the best remedy you have ever used, take it back to your druggist and he will return your money cheerfully, and without any question whatever. After seeing the grateful relief it has afforded in hundreds of cases, which had been considered incurable, and which had been given up in despair, I know what it will do. I am so sure that it will do the same with others that I am not afraid to guarantee it will relieve instantaneously. Certainly more positive proof can thus be demonstrated than a 'free sample' could possibly prove. Also sent on same guarantee, per parcel post, C. O. D., or on receipt of price, 65c, if not kept by your druggist, by addressing R. Schiffmann Co., 1734 N. Main, Los Angeles, Calif."—Adv.

To Sufferers from PAIN, COLDS, HEADACHES

Here are four reasons why BRO-ASPRIN is being used more and more by people who formerly used plain aspirin, as well as by those who were unable to take aspirin of any kind.

1. BRO-ASPRIN helps remove the cause of colds, fever, headaches and la grippe, at the same time giving immediate relief.
2. BRO-ASPRIN hasn't the unpleasant after effects of plain aspirin. The mild vegetable laxative eliminates the aspirin after relief has been given.
3. BRO-ASPRIN keeps the pores of the skin closed. Many remedies open them, increasing the likelihood of the patient developing a severe cold or pneumonia.
4. BRO-ASPRIN is free from all habit-forming or dangerous drugs.

We have known of two men in our life who descended so low in crime that no law was ever passed to reach their case. Do you know any of that kind?

Every time you cut a left-hand corner down in town you stand a chance of visiting the Mayor. You may escape the vigilance of the officers quite often, but, sooner or later, you will cut a corner once too often.

One thing we are sure of. There will never be devised, even by the devil himself, as monumental and disgraceful a nuisance and instrument of torture as the racing motor of a Ford car with the cut-out open.

LaFollette wants a $5,000,000 campaign fund. Davis wants $5,000,000 and Coolidge wants all he can get. It took $12,000,000 to put Harding over. It will require twice that amount to land Coolidge. Wall Street has to pay a good price for presidents these days.

LaFollette and Wheeler are going to push their campaign into every State. They are also going to poll a pretty big vote. But the ticket that carries the State gets the electoral vote. In this way, a large poll at the ballot box does not always get a candidate anywhere.

A Persian mob murdered one of our consuls over there recently, while the police looked on. The other day they insulted the widow of the murdered man on the streets. Snatched off her mourning veil and spit in her face. It is time to send a warship over and call their hand by kicking them all out.

AN AUTOMOBILE VICTIM

Already our prediction of last week has come true, for it becomes our painful duty this week to tell the pitiful story of a young and happy mother who was snatched from her loved ones and hurled into eternity, the victim of an automobile accident.

Mrs. Sy Watley, aged only 20 years, the wife of Mr. Sy Watley of near Jamison and the mother of an infant babe, was dashed to her death on the road leading from Jamison to Montevallo last Sunday a.m., about 2 o'clock. Her babe was also cruelly wounded but so far as we have learned, is still alive.

So many rumors of just how this sad death came about have been circulated that we can give no definite account. One fact is prominent, however, in all of these rumors—the sole cause of this untimely death was the careless or reckless driving upon the part of one or both of the drivers of the cars, the one that she was in and another one that is said to have collided with it.

The remains of this young wife and mother were laid to rest Monday at Pates Chapel. Another gruesome monument to heedless autoing.

MRS. LITTLEJOHN DIES

Mrs. Nancy E. Littlejohn, wife of Mr. W. A. Littlejohn, age 48 years, died at her home in Clanton Wednesday, July 23, and was buried the following day at Liberty Cemetery, Rev. J. D. Hughes conducting the services. Mrs. Littlejohn was a most devoted Christian woman and by her lovely disposition had made many devoted friends who are deeply saddened by her death. The News extends its sympathy to the bereaved. Funeral director, J. Mel Martin was in charge of interment.

CARD OF THANKS

The relatives of Mr. Ruben Price wish to extend their most sincere thanks to the many friends and neighbors who so splendidly came to their assistance in the sad hour of the death of this loved one.

I wish to express for myself and this family our warmest feelings of gratitude to Mr. J. Mel Martin for his splendid assistance he rendered us and for his most excellent services as an undertaker.

We are also grateful to the Masonic fraternity for turning out in such large numbers to do honor to this departed brother.

It was also deeply satisfying to the family and friends to be able to hear Bro. S. M. Adams, a long-time friend of the deceased, read the last scripture and say the last farewell over our loved one.

We are deeply grateful to one and all and may God bless you. I. N. HICKS, Deatsville, Ala.

MR. JOE PRICE DIES

Tuesday night last, at 8:30, Mr. Reuben (Joe) Price, who resided near Lomax, passed from time into eternity. He was 77 years of age and was well known and loved by a large circle of friends who mourn and miss him. The remains were buried at Mt. Carmel Cemetery Friday of last week. Undertaker Martin was in charge.

IMPROVEMENT ORDINANCE NO. 5.

An ordinance to provide for certain improvements on Second Avenue N., from the west property line of Eighth Street, to the intersection the North boundary line, Section two, Township twenty-one, Range 14, E.

Be it ordained by the Town Council of the Town of Clanton, Alabama, as follows:

Section 1. That the sidewalks on each side of Second Ave., N., from the W. property line of Eighth Street, to the intersection of the N. boundary line of Sec. two, T. twenty-one, R. fourteen E., shall be paved with Portland cement concrete sidewalk paving for a width of five feet, and a depth of four inches. That alley crossings shall be paved with portland cement concrete paving for eight inches thick.

Section 2. That said improvements shall be made in accordance with the established grades on file in the office of the Town Clerk, for said portions of said Avenue, and according to full details, drawings, plans, specifications and surveys of said work and estimates of said work which shall be prepared by the City Engineer as early as practical, and placed by him on file in the office of the Town Clerk at Clanton, at least two weeks prior to the date hereinafter fixed for hearing objections, remonstrances, or protests before the Town Council, where property owners who may be affected by said improvements may see and examine the same.

Section 3. That the cost of constructing said improvements shall be assessed against the property abutting on the portion of the highway so improved.

(a) That the cost of improvements at or upon the Avenue intersections shall be assessed against the lot or parcels of land abutting on said highway so intersecting for one-half block in each direction.

(b) That the cost of laying alley paving shall be assessed against all lots or parcels of land abutting on the portion of the highway so improved.

(c) That no assessment shall exceed the cost of such improvement or the increased value of such property by reason of the special benefits derived from such improvements.

Section 4. That the construction of said improvements shall be done by the Town of Clanton at a cost not to exceed 75 cents per linear foot of walkway, that the estimated cost is $1,500.00, and that the Council of the Town of Clanton will meet on the 18th day of August, 1924, at 10 o'clock, a.m., in the Council Chamber of the Town office, at Clanton, to hear any objections, remonstrances, or protests that may be made against said improvements, the manner of making the same, or the character of the material to be used.

THE SOCIALIST VOTE

The average citizen has little conception of the voting power of the Socialists in the United States.

In 1912 the party cast 897,011 votes for E. V. Debs for President; in 1916 the party cast 585,113 votes for Benson for President; in 1920 the vote of Debs was 919,799. So the vote recently pledged to La Follette will be at least 1,000,000 in 1924 if the party stands a unit.

Just what is meant by the surrender of the Socialists to the La Follette movement does not appear on the surface.

Such surrender is entirely a new departure, for the Socialists by a steadfastness to that one purpose has cemented a membership into a constantly working body, gradually increasing numerically in earnestness. American Socialists do not go as far as the European Socialists who largely adhere to the tenets of Marx and Bebel.

The Farmer-Labor vote is also pledged to La Follette. Then, too, several other important schisms are pledged to him. Just how far that vote will cement, it is impossible to predict with any accuracy.

In the final analysis it may ultimately mean the practical disintegration of several political schisms, as has been done before many times, or it may mean the creation of a nucleus around which to form a formidable political party that will stay in the game.—Alabama Traveler.

Senator S. M. Adams, of Thorsby, was in town several hours last Saturday. The Senator has practically recovered his health and has not lost any of his energy or determination to stand for what is right.

Davis and Bryan are going to carry a Solid South and West this time. That coalition has come to stay and it is the only hope that labor and the farmers have.

The pink boll worm and the festive weevil must be lined with asbestos if they are able to stand the dynamic force Old Sol has been putting out for the last few days.

Whenever they fool France into taking her soldiers out of Germany she will have collected the last dollar of indemnity.

CAN'T WE GET IT?

There is not a city in the State that needs a spacious auditorium as badly as Clanton does. This is pre-eminently a town that is willing and anxious to be amused.

Even all the nondescript "tent shows" that prey on the public stop over here and play to big crowds every night for a week.

The picture show has the street parked full of cars every performance. Our hall team has played to immense crowds every time they pulled off a game on the home diamond.

The people work hard but they want their recreation and are willing to pay for it.

With a large and comfortable auditorium properly constructed, traveling theatrical troupes would stop often for a night or so and they would play to good business.

Then we would need a place where the town or community can assemble for business or pleasure.

An auditorium would be a paying investment, as well as a great advertising medium for the town and country.

The local lodges would not fail to take advantage of it for their place of meeting, for no hall in town is neither large enough nor well enough ventilated to properly care for these growing orders.

Some of you wide awake, progressive men who do real things around here, take this matter under consideration, and figure us out a spacious auditorium this fall.

190 Paid Out
by the Railroads every time the Clock Ticks.

Just a few years ago, the expression, "A billion dollar Congress", startled the people of this Nation. It seemed beyond the bounds of reason that this staggering sum of money would be required to run our Government.

Compare this figure with the fact that in 1923 the railroads of America distributed six billion dollars—a sum nearly twice as great as the entire expenditures of the National Government during that year.

Of this sum more than one billion dollars, representing new capital, practically all of which was borrowed, was invested in new equipment, new tracks, and added facilities. Out of the earnings of the railroads, approximately two billion dollars were expended for fuel, steel, lumber and other supplies. More than three billion dollars went for wages, and approximately $336,000,000 was paid in taxes. Brought down to the smallest fraction of time, this staggering sum of six billion dollars represents an expenditure on the part of the railroads in your prosperity, and in the general prosperity of the Nation, of approximately $190 every time the clock ticks.

Reduced to the same unit of time, the Louisville & Nashville Railroad, in 1923, spent in the operation of its properties $3.67 per second, or a total of $317,000 per day—which figure includes labor, taxes, fuel and supplies, but does not include the $31,600,000 invested last year in new equipment and improvements to L. & N. property.

Remember that the railroads put more money into circulation than any American institution; and that in one family out of every fifteen the bread-winner is a railroad employee.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Hughes Gives Europe Plain Words—Wheeler to Run With LaFollette

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

CHARLES EVANS HUGHES, a notable American, made a notable address Monday night in London under notable circumstances. In London the premiers were in conference and all the world was watching them as they fought, bled and almost died over the much-vexed issue of putting interest the Dawes commission plan for the payment of German reparations. The United States government was not represented officially in the conference, but it is from the American bankers that the $200,000,000 loan to finance the plan must come.

In London was also Charles E. Hughes, secretary of state of the United States of America, visiting England "incognito" as Mr. Charles E. Hughes, president of the American Bar association, which is being entertained by British lawyers. Finally, President Hughes was the guest of honor at the Pilgrims' society dinner—the last word in distinguished international social gatherings. And Guest-of-Honor Hughes told this gathering—one of the most distinguished of recent years—in polite and friendly yet perfectly plain English words what America and Americans would do and would not do.

For the economic rehabilitation of Europe dependence could be put on American assistance. "And," added the guest of honor, "it does not matter that this aid is not given by the government." The American press, he said, expressed American sentiment from all points of view; American finance spoke for American investors, who did not "look to the government for either advice or security," and American philanthropy needed "no government spur."

"These are the potent voices of America which do not wait for political action," Mr. Hughes said. "These are the outstretched arms of helpfulness which do not depend upon the muscular reactions of government. Dominant sentiment, I am quite sure, is absolutely opposed to commitments which would promise the action of congress in unknown contingencies. Our people insist upon their liberty to form their decisions as contingencies arise."

"You have the Dawes plan and you have had the participation of American experts with the liberty of constructive effort which was essential because it was undertaken in the only way in which success was possible. When you deal with economic rehabilitation you doubtless have in mind such contribution as America may be able to give in disinterested advice, and after in participation in the absolutely essential loan."

"The important, indeed the indispensable, thing is that methods should be contrived and that your disposition should be such that assistance of that sort can be rendered."

"All discussions will be futile unless the arrangements ultimately made satisfy the investing public. My confidence that a way will be found to surmount all the existing difficulties lies in the fact that failure would incite chaos."

At this writing the conference is still deadlocked, with no immediate promise of agreement. But at least Europe knows what America will do and will not do.

SENATOR BURTON K. WHEELER of Montana, Democrat, has been selected by LaFollette as his running mate on the Independent ticket. In his letter of acceptance Wheeler says, "I am a Democrat, but not a Wall Street Democrat" and "I shall do my best to help make this, my country, safe for Democracy." And he says in part:

"The progressive, forward-looking people of the nation irrespective of party affiliation, who honestly believe in clean government, in the enforcement of the law against the privileged class as well as against the common offender; those who believe in the prosecution of corruption in high places; those who still hold to the political principles and personal ethics of Jefferson and Lincoln, must needs find a political abiding place outside of the two old parties as they are constituted and managed today."

Wheeler is said to be the only Westerner in the senate with a Yankee twang. He was born in Massachusetts in 1882, worked his way through the University of Michigan law school and landed at Butte. He's been in many a tough and complicated political fight, sometimes loser and sometimes winner. His war on Attorney General Daugherty fixed national attention on him. In the midst of it he was indicted in Montana in connection with oil permits. He says it is a "frame-up." The senate exonerated him.

WHO is America's favorite child right this minute? Why, nobody else but Helen Willis, our eighteen-year-old woman tennis champion of the world. Oh, yes; we all know that Helen won the Olympic title at Paris without meeting Suzanne Lenglen, the temperamental French tennis genius. But who did she dodge? Not our "Little Poker Face." Some day Helen and Suzanne will meet—and we know what will happen to Suzanne.

"Little Poker Face" is a whole lot more than a champion tennis player. She's also what we Americans call "a nice girl," when we mean all-around approval. Moreover she's easy to look at. And she binds her father and mother and studies hard at her books.

Last—and not least—Helen is a "good sport"—which is short for a good sportswoman, the Lady of Outdoors. She has worked her winning way up from the bottom, taking the game as it came, with no grouches, no alibis and no "spells" in a Lenglen. They beat her at Wimbledon. But she came back at Paris.

OUR American world flyers are now headed towards home, with the sixth and last stage of their flight before them. They will make a long circuit to the north from England, through Arctic regions that have never seen an airplane. At Kibikwall in the Orkneys they say good-by to John Bull.

With one stop at the Faroes they land in Reykjavik, South Iceland. The sea flight to Greenland is 500 miles. Along the coast of Greenland to Angmagssalik is another 500 miles. Then comes a 572-mile sea flight to Indian Harbor, Labrador. Thereafter will come successive hops to Newfoundland, Nova Scotia, Boston, New York and Washington. The last stage will be the transcontinental trip to Los Angeles, whence they started March 17.

The United States navy has its patrol work well under way. A dozen or so cruisers and destroyers will watch things on both sides of the Atlantic. The flyers are equipped with radio to keep in touch with the warships. About 7,000 miles of their 25,000-mile flight lie before the flyers.

PITTSBURGH plus was abolished Tuesday by the federal trade commission. What is Pittsburgh plus? The United States Steel corporation controls 50 per cent of our rolled steel supply. It has many mills in various places. The price for the steel is the price at Pittsburgh plus the freight from Pittsburgh minus the freight from the mill where the steel actually is produced.

The Pittsburgh plus system of determining steel prices is held by the federal trade commission to not only be an unfair method of competition, but violation of the Clayton act, in that it is a means of price discrimination. Operation of the system, the commission adds, tends to retard the steel business in all centers except Pittsburgh, to lessen and eliminate competition and to increase costs to consumers to an amount that reaches $30,000,000 a year in the case of farmers in eleven Western states alone. The case was one of the most vigorously contested in the history of the commission, attorneys for thirty-two Middle Western states and western steel consumers joining in the fight for abolition of the system.

Results of the abolishment of the system—if the United States Steel corporation doesn't incessantly appeal to the courts—will doubtless be far-reaching. Estimates are made that more than $250,000,000 will now be expended on new iron and steel plants in the Chicago district.

NOMINEE DAVIS, having picked out Glen L. Shaver of West Virginia as the chairman of the Democratic national committee and at him on the job. It out for a rock-bound Isle off the coast of Maine where nobody could get at him, to stay for ten days or so. He will be officially notified August 11 at Clarksville, and will then fire his first broadside of the campaign.

Shaver, like Davis, is a "native son" of West Virginia. He is fifty-seven. He was admitted to the bar and practiced, but transferred his attention to farming, stock raising, dealing in oil and timber lands—and politics. He is a fox hunter, duck hunter, fisherman and naturalist. He is so far from being talkative that in his home even they call him "The Sphinx." He must be even less talkative than Pat Harrison's "Silent Sphinx." Candidate Davis says, "Glen gives up a word just about as readily as the average American citizen parts with a dollar bill."

HALF past one Tuesday morning at Mackinac Island! A white squall, lashing the straits. Lightning flashes and thunder crashes. Swooping in through the dark over the finish line at Round Island light came the tallende of the fleet of 22 yachts that left Chicago Saturday afternoon—all with double reefs that are not scudding in derder bare poles. The yawl Vanadis, at the sloop Seabloom, are driven ashore by the steamer Manitou. The schooner National has sought shelter in the Beavers. At Chicago boats these. Vandyske's big sloop Dorella and Commodore Brown's big schooner Ranger, both flying the flag of the Milwaukee Yacht club, have finished one-two Monday afternoon.

Last of all to finish is Ben Carpenter's Chicago midget R class sloop Sari, with its crew of four—so small she barely gets in the 5-ton limit, and the smallest craft ever entered in the 19 years of the race, so small, in fact, that when her clearest time of 55:33.30 is corrected to 44:05.30 by her time allowance Sari leads all of the fleet, beating Dorella by less than 40 minutes.

This Chicago-Mackinac annual yacht race over 331 miles of "The Stormy Water" is second to none, fresh water or salt.

CLARENCE DARROW sprang a tremendous surprise in the Leopold Loeb murder case Monday at Chicago by withdrawing the plea of not guilty and causing the defendants to plead guilty both to the charge of murder and of kidnapping for ransom. "We want to state frankly," said Darrow, "that no one in this case believes that these defendants should be released or are competent to be. We believe they should be permanently isolated from society, and if we, as lawyers, thought differently their families would not permit us to do otherwise."

The case will therefore be heard by Chief Justice John R. Caverly without a jury. There are four punishments the court can put upon the defendants: Death, life term in penitentiary, a term of 14 years or a term of any number of years between.

Notwithstanding the plea of guilty throws the defendants on the mercy of the court. State's Attorney Crowe went on with the trial, stating that the boys were sane and guilty and that the state would send them to the galows. The case is far from being as simple as it looks. Darrow, victorious leader of many a forlorn hope, is in it to save the boys from the rope. The insanity plea will doubtless appear at the strategic moment.

MAJ. ROBERT EMBRIE, United States vice consul, was beaten to death in Teheran, Persia, by a mob of anti-foreign fanatics. The city and suburbs were put under martial law.

Washington is to have a minister representing the Irish Free State. In matters falling within his sphere the minister will not be subject to the British ambassador and the ambassador will not be responsible for the minister's actions.

California Plan of Cooperation

Government Bulletin Shows How Exchanges Became Federated.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Widespread interest in the "California plan" of co-operative marketing makes especially timely Department Bulletin 1237, Organization and Development of a Co-operative Citrus-Fruit Marketing Agency, just issued by the United States Department of Agriculture. In 1891, when shipments were a little more than 4,000 cars, there was an apparent overproduction of California citrus fruit. Thirty years later a crop totaling more than 50,000 cars was marketed successfully. Bulletin 1237 describes the growth of the system of co-operative marketing that since 1893 has taken a leading part in the development of the California citrus industry. It outlines, also, the steps by which local associations and district exchanges became federated in the California Fruit Growers' exchange.

A brief historical account is presented of the California citrus industry since the introduction of orange trees by the Franciscan monks in 1769. The conditions causing the practical bankruptcy of the industry in the early nineties, and the unfortunate alliance of the exchange with commercial shippers in 1903-04 are other topics discussed in the historical section of the bulletin.

Considerable space is given to a discussion of the organization and operation of the local units that make up the exchange.

"Local co-operative associations are the foundation of the exchange system," it is stated. "The earliest organizations of this kind preceded the incorporation of the exchange by almost three years. They were created by the members of a community who considered their marketing problems as being, first of all, local in character."

The organization and functions of the district exchanges and the various departments of the California Fruit Growers' exchange are discussed in detail.

Other Organizations.

An organization for the purchase of supplies and two by-products companies have been established by the federated associations. These organizations are not subsidiary to the California Fruit Growers' exchange, but are units of the exchange system. The problems leading up to the organization of these companies, and the services they perform for the members of the exchange, make up one section of the bulletin.

Several pages are devoted to a discussion of the economic services of the exchange, and the fundamental principles upon which the organization is based. The appendix contains the original organization and marketing plan adopted in 1893, the by-laws of the exchange and contracts in force between the growers and their associations, the associations and the district exchanges and the district exchanges and the exchange.

Copies of Bulletin 1237 may be had free upon request to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, as long as the supply lasts.

Students Witness Mock Trial of a Scrub Bull

An audience of about 250 persons recently witnessed the mock trial of a scrub bull at the East Tennessee farmers' convention at Knoxville. In a description of the trial received by the United States Department of Agriculture from Dr. C. A. Hutton, dairy specialist of Tennessee, he says it resulted in much interest in improved live stock. It was held under the auspices of the agricultural club, and law students of the state university acted as attorneys in the case.

This method of showing the undesirability of inferior breeding stock is proving very popular. The Department of Agriculture has had a large demand for their "Outline of a Scrub Live Trial," which was prepared for the purpose of aiding persons interested in the work of bettering the nation's live stock. Copies of this publication may be had free on request to the bureau of animal industry at Washington.

Killing Out Bluegrass

Cultivating alfalfa after the second crop is taken off in order to kill bluegrass will be found the most satisfactory practice. At this time the soil is apt to be dry and it is easier to kill the bluegrass. Cultivation comes at a time when it will be a big help in conserving soil moisture. Some farmers cultivate their alfalfa fields early in the spring, using a disk or a harrow, and follow each cutting by a cultivation. Often this is necessary if the bluegrass is not killed out by the spring cultivation.

Grow Quality Vegetables

Growing vegetables and growing quality vegetables are two different things. There are some things that make for quality but add little to the cost or the labor. Very rich soil that is sandy and mellow to start with is important, but if the soil is not so good, feeding can remedy that somewhat. Cultivation after every rain to keep the soil moisture from escaping is another point. Rich soil and good culture will give quality.

Preventing Stinking Smut of Wheat Crop

Series of Experiments Carried on in Northwest.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Bunt, or stinking smut of wheat, can be entirely prevented by sowing treated seed before the smut spores, and can be largely controlled by delaying the sowing somewhat, according to the results of experimental studies made by the United States Department of Agriculture. Infection from smut spores present in the soil may be partially prevented by treating the seed with copper sulphate or with commercial lime-sulphate applied full strength and allowed to dry. This protection is not afforded by formaldehyde. Much of the seed wheat sown in the semi-arid regions of the United States is killed by seed treatment, however, because of the threshing injury to the seed coat.

A series of experiments in the prevention and control of bunt was carried on in the Pacific Northwest and the results of these form the basis for a new bulletin just issued as Department Bulletin 1239, by the United States Department of Agriculture. According to the findings in these studies wind dissemination is the most important factor in the continued occurrence and spread of bunt in that region, where the biennial crop system is practiced.

In moist soil, bunt spores were found to lose their viability in 30 to 60 days, but in the dry air of the laboratory they retain their germinating power for 12 years or longer. Bunt spores in unbroken smut balls retain their viability throughout the winter months, and are capable of producing infection even after being subjected to alternate thawing and freezing. Spores have germinated and produced infection after lying one and one-half years in the soil.

A copy of this bulletin may be secured, as long as the supply lasts, from the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington.

Sweet Clover Superior as Soil Improving Crop

Sweet clover actually makes three kinds of grow where one grew before, according to farmers with this land who have tried this legume for soil improvement.

One of the many examples of the value of sweet clover for this purpose on record at the Kansas State Agricultural college is that of John Fry of Independence.

A number of years ago he realized that he couldn't produce wheat profitably in Montgomery county with a yield of eight bushels to the acre.

He heard of sweet clover and began to grow it for soil improvement purposes, where formerly he had been harvesting eight bushels of wheat to the acre. In 1921 he produced 22 bushels to the acre, in 1922, 22½ bushels, and in 1923 he produced 19 bushels to the acre. Mr. Fry has grown sweet clover since 1912. He says it is the greatest pasture crop for horses and will carry three to four head of cattle per acre. He believes from the standpoint of soil fertility sweet clover is the best crop that can be raised in that section.

Township Adopts Novel Plan to Improve Stock

A novel method of improving the live stock of Mount Hope township in the state of Washington is being introduced by the newly organized better stock association. The plan of the organization as reported to the United States Department of Agriculture by E. D. Metcalf is to limit the farm animals in the township to one breed for each class of live stock.

Belgian horses, Guernsey cows and Duroc-Jersey swine are the breeds that have been selected. It is further planned that only pure bred sires be used in the community, and that before the end of a year each member of the association will have at least one registered animal of one of the breeds chosen by the organization.

Farm Hint

Mow the pastures to kill weeds.

Now is the time not to forget last year's mistakes.

A weed pulled in time may save nine times else.

Plant a rust-resistant variety of beans for fall crop.

Not more products at any cost but better products at less cost.

Make sure you have forage enough planted to supply hay for next year.

If your labor cost is too high, use "iron men"—arm machines—to work for you.

Some farmers work on well-planned estimates and others on careless guesstimates.

Unless pastures are improved and made to return larger volumes of feed they will slowly give way to crops.

Keep the barns clean and free from manure to keep the house fly under control and to get the best returns from the manure on the soil.

ROAD BUILDING

HIGHWAY BUILDERS OF ANCIENT TIMES

Improving the highways is a new idea. Highway engineering, as we know it, is a product of the last few years when it first became necessary to insure the transportation of supplies to the front.

Julius Caesar was among the most highway builders. Many of the noted Romans interested themselves in this work. The Appian Way, a long, straight boulevard leading to the city of Rome, is among the examples of early highway construction. So far as this road laid a thousand years ago that it is still one of Italy's highways.

A late example of fine road building is the Boulevard des Anglais, which skirts the Mediterranean at Nice, France. It is said to have been constructed by British soldiers, prisoners under Napoleon Bonaparte. A wide, smooth avenue which is underlain by a deep stone foundation, it is apparently unaffected by time or weather conditions, has endured for a hundred years and bids fair to last many years more.

A considerable impetus was given to good-road building by John L. M. Adam of Scotland. He utilized crushed stone to dressing on a "convex road." It is named macadam, for his inventor, but with a slight difference in the spelling of the name.

Macadam road surface was quickly adopted in America, and proved an improvement over dirt roads. It did not easily acquire ruts, and was particularly unaffected by rain. On the east coast, where clam shells were plentiful, they were used by many municipalities for macadamization. The shells when finely ground under the weight of traffic, proved efficient as a dressing, though hard on rubber tires while wearing in.

Then came the automobile, requiring, for utmost comfort, smooth road surface than had previously been necessary. Bumps that a slow-moving vehicle negotiated with comfort, were disturbing to occupants of motorcars traveling at speeds of from 20 to 30 miles per hour.

Highway engineers turned to tar, surface, asphalt and concrete for a solution of the problem, and found. The materials which made such satisfactory sidewalks were as useful for road paving. Cobblestones are disappearing, replaced by smooth movement, asphalt, tar or concrete. The nation's intercity highways are paved.

County roads, not heavily traveled, are supported by a minimum of taxpayers. They are still a problem, in one that is eased by better maintenance than formerly. Nearly all farmers own cars. Hence they are willing to spend their time and money for road improvement. This is in the form of road dragging each spring and oil spreading, which makes the dirt impervious to rain.

The automobile has rapidly advanced highway improvement in the United States and Canada, where, due to the great distances to be traversed, road betterments had been slow coming. Large sums obtained from the license fees paid by motorists are now annually devoted to road construction and maintenance.

Improved Highways Save Expense of Automobiles

Good roads are said to have been the biggest single factor in the 1923 reduction of automobile expenses of Minnesota county agents. Reports from the county agents show a decrease in the average mile cost to less than 57 per cent, of the 1920 cost. George A. Pond, cost accountant, made a statement to that effect in his comment on the division bulletin of the subject. Other things which helped to bring down the auto cost, he said, were the long, dry season making for greater mileage, the lower prices of gasoline and tires, and smaller fixed costs, all held interesting to car owners, present and prospective.

Concrete Curing Means Highways at Less Cost

To save labor and speed up the work, a method of concrete curing has been invented. The chemical preparation used is a light dust substance which is applied by sifting from a hopper on the rear of a truck or by a spray of the material is carried. It absorbs moisture from the air and prevents drying out of the cement. One man can treat a long stretch of road in one day. One or two treatments with the material each season are said to be effective in laying the dust binding together the particles that may have accumulated on gravel or unadorned roads.

Roads Help in Getting Farm Produce to Market

The successful marketing of farm produce is greatly affected by road conditions. It frequently happens that the peak market prices come at a time when the unimproved roads are practically impassable due to weather conditions. The farmers along such roads are forced to stand by helplessly and watch the price levels drop for their produce, being forced to sell on a low market at some future time when it is possible to get a load into town.

CHAPTER X—Continued.

What is your desire regarding this? Until your honorable word is given, we will keep this Robert grinning as he painted the pictures, in that condition which found him." He closed the letter.

Should you express the wish that he be returned to you, I will pray that the spirit of the Wind follow after him, quickening his flight."

Sanderson listened to the interpreter's literal translation. It was not so far from him as Wells had imagined, that does it actually mean?" he asked abruptly.

"What is your name, woman?" Wells said abruptly in English.

"My name is of no importance. Our mission is well known in Japan."

Many ears were listening. Here was the Lord of the Thunder Gate, arose with his sword in his hands.

Wells thought with a chuckle. "Your name," thundered Wells, "by the face of Jizo!"

"Mabel Carey," she was surprised into saying.

"What do you want?"

"My heart tells me that you are committing a sin in retaining this poor white girl."

"Yoi!" said Wells, and puckered up his face. "How do you know?"

"I can feel it, deep down in my heart."

"It is insufficient proof," Wells said. "Now for the fat one. What do you want, little man?"

The man had come under protest. He was—he proclaimed to Miss Carey—no orator. He disliked his task. It was not his duty.

With a touch of latent affection, he looked through knowledge that the of the body would be distressed. They all, Alberta wished that he had remained in Japan. Bob had wanted that, she thought.

Of them found the answer from the

Having other business in America, bringing body and information my-the cable read.

Wells was actually ready to depart. The household had been working felishly for the voyage. He purpose-omitted the name of the steamer, sending to wire after he sailed. Thus

Williams was not informed by Alberta, he would have been, that what related of Robert Wells was returning the same steamer as he himself.

CHAPTER XI

Wells watched the kimonoed figure of Ellen in the pooled garden. He was unable to avoid comparison with Alberta. She had been handsome, Alberta. He had thought her melting love; she had been cowering a deed, hiding herself spiderwise in a plain mesh. She had been as sponderous as a cat. Had she been as placid as Alberta? A friend? Wells' eyes had a critical blink.

The forenoon with Furukawa the maker had droned on without interruption. The figures were uninteresting.

"It is satisfactory," Wells said at last. "Send specie to your bank in America for me. For the care of the state, I trust you."

Furukawa contemplated the kake-mon of the Four Fishermen before leaving.

"As you command, Kayama," he said slowly. "When will you return to Japan?"

"In a day—or a week—or months, do not know," Wells replied.

Furukawa fingered the tassel which held the cord that bound the zabu-ton. "And—if an accident befall you, Kayama? We bankers must consider very cogitancy," he added apolo-

"No," Ellen said. "I belong to Kayama-San—He Bought Me."

might antagonize the Japanese. It was distinctly out of their line—a European girl, even if mission-educated. They did not even know if the girl were of the faith. Miss Carey had been adamant.

"The girl," he said.

"We will ask her to choose."

Miss Carey shook off the fingers of her companion. "You will terrify her. Influence her. I know you. I've heard of you, you scoundrel, you scapegoat you."

"Words, Scallawag. Scoundrel. Ho!

Silence, wag-tongue, goatface."

As Ellen entered, Wells' eyes became bright, his color noticeably higher. She looked at him gravely for an instant; her eyelids fluttered under the scrutiny of the three.

"Put your hand on your heart. How does it feel?"

"It jumps, Kayama-San."

"Does it tell you that you are a sin-

Ellen looked from the woman to Wells. Wells examined the matting with feigned interest. The missionary took it for indecision.

"Forget the idols, which will perish and be thrown to bats and moles," she quoted with unctious. "You belong with us. Come. Rest your weary head. You belong with us."

"No," Ellen said. "I belong to Kayama-San. He bought me." Nor could she be moved from that position.

In her room, she alternately was satisfied with and afraid of her decision. If—her cheeks were hot with the idea—

—if Kayama were only—not Kayama. He was so good. When she had entered the room of the conference, she had seen in his eyes that which caused her own to droop. No, she had imagined it.

Wells was no nearer to his decision. He smoked pipe after pipe of silky tobacco, the tap-tap-tap of the emptied bowl sounding every two or three minutes as the tiny contents were dropped into the brazier of coals. He clapped his hands.

"Bring me my wife," he said to Hitsu, the oldest maid-servant. "She shall eat with me here."

"You have forgotten?"

"I am very tired, Hitsu. My mind is occupied with grave affairs. What is it that I should remember?"

"Aid that you should forget! You saw it first with me, Kayama-San. Misako was with us. I was young then, but I dreamed of the day when you and your bride might see the blossoming of the Tree together, even as I did . . . the perfume in the air."

"She smiled, heavy with remembrance."

"I had forgotten, little mother. I am delighted that you have been my reminder. Yes, I will go, I and my bride. Yes, I will go. Assuredly I will go. I have been awaiting it anxiously. He had never heard of it before."

"Good! Excellent! I knew it! I have told those whisperers it was for this you waited."

"Waited?"

"Before . . . It is said . . . I dare not repeat idle gossip."

"You are as my mother, Hitsu. You should have no secrets from me."

"Well—do not be offended, Lord—I cannot say it."

"An unspoken thought is dangerous."

"The new wife . . . her robes and sleeping-clothes and head-rest . . . they are never in . . . your room . . . there! you know. Idle gossip. I beat the maid who spoke of it."

Wells was silent.

"I knew, however, being of mature years, that you were waiting for the festival. I knew that your honorable father did likewise. I think that it was when he bought a maid . . . I do not remember where from . . ."

She seemed so earnest in this that Wells grinned. "That is it, Hitsu," he agreed. "I was . . . waiting."

"It is said that I did not speak before," she lamented. "All of the people of the village will wonder that you did not bathe, as the lords do, at the village hot-spring—Wells shivered—but there is no longer time. I will see that O-Hana is arrayed as is fitting . . ."

Ellen was quickly prepared: a new comb or so, a white underkimono, tabi of heavy, double-woven silk instead of the usual cotton sock, an overkimono of dull color, but with countless star-studdings of bright yellow flowers.

She had no greeting for him, save the low obeisance, and did not speak until the servant had left. Then, with quick breath: "Have you . . . will you take me with you?"

"Very slowly. 'Do you wish to go?'"

"I am afraid, I fear. It is so quiet here. And I am learning Japanese so easily. . . I do not know what might happen in America—"

Nor did Wells.

Here was a double sign. She wanted to stay! Even so, he argued, even with the knowledge that he would return, Wells was not to be blamed that his first ascertainable emotion after the long indecision was one of wildest exultation at the prospect. Whiffs of doubt did float across his alluring picture, but he put them away at once. The vision of Ellen in the garden, of him touching her hair with his lips, bending over her, kissing her upturned face . . . it was too much to resist.

He never took his eyes off her. She would stay here—aged, he wondered if one might prison such a goddesser thing? Yet Chance had done so. Why not he? She would be the household goddess of the family. He closed his eyes, yet had her full in vision all the time.

"When you are in America you might be able to discover if I have any one who is related to me, and then I could go—"

Wells' eyes darkened. The wind blew differently now.

"I have not decided. I will decide—later." More quickly: "If you are ready, O-Hana, we shall leave the house. There is a great festival . . . and we are expected to go. It is displeasing to me. I do not like such frothy affairs. But it is nevertheless necessary."

"Is it displeasing because of . . . me? That you dislike my . . . being with you? Thoughtfully, 'I am much trouble to you, Kayama-San.'"

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Impossible

"So that's the baby, eh?"

"That's the baby."

"Well, I hope you will bring it up to be a conscientious, God-fearing man."

"I'm afraid that will be rather difficult."

"Ishaw! As the twig is bent the tree is inclined."

"I know, but this twig is bent on being a girl."

TAKE ICE CREAM FREEZER ON AUTO PICNIC

Ice Cream Can Be Carried on an Automobile Picnic Trip.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

There should be a deliberate effort during the summer months to seize every opportunity for providing the mother of the family with this or other means of relaxation. A whole day without cooking, dusting, sewing or any of the heavier home tasks goes a long way toward resting weary muscles. Even if a picnic meal is a good deal of bother to prepare beforehand, and sandwiches take time to make, when everyone lends a hand and the right materials are chosen for the picnic lunch, it may be both easy and hearty, and the change will do everyone a world of good.

Then have cheese, luscious whole tomatoes, fruit, simple buns of some sort, and bottled milk for the children.

Also, why not take a freezer full of ice cream along, suggests the United States Department of Agriculture? The freezer will help to keep the milk and the butter chilled, also the tomatoes and possibly other salad material, or any berries in season.

Picnic dishes, cups and tableware can hardly be dispensed with, though the mother of the family should not be permitted to wash a single utensil. Paper will do wonders at a picnic. If everybody bears in mind that outings like this constitute mother's vacation, there will be an affectionate competition as to who shall attend to the few details of preparation and clearing up connected with the trip.

AVERT UPHEAVAL IN SPRING BY SYSTEM

Discomfort to Entire Household Can Be Avoided.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Housecleaning need not be the bugbear it has long been regarded in many households, says the United States Department of Agriculture. If the work is carefully planned, if the kind of furnishings that are easy to keep clean are chosen and handled in the right way, and if provision is made for keeping all the dirt possible out of the house, there will be no need for the upheavals that result in discomfort to the entire household. Moreover, this systematic housecleaning saves labor in the end and is economical of the materials used in the furnishings and care of the house.

The more important points to keep in mind may be summarized as follows:

Keep dirt out of the house by cleaning the walks, steps, porches and sills regularly and often, by screening windows and doors near the ground and by insisting on having muddy shoes and coats cleaned or left outside.

Lessen the number of dust-collecting places, such as unnecessary cupboards, grooved and carved woodwork, floors with cracks, rough-finished walls, elaborately carved and upholstered furniture, superfluous draperies and bric-a-brac.

Remove dirt frequently and systematically. This keeps the house and furnishings in better condition and makes the need of heavy cleaning less frequent. Clean by taking the dirt away, not by scattering it to settle again elsewhere. Do heavy cleaning a little at a time to avoid the hard work and discomfort of the old-fashioned spring and fall housecleaning.

Have a supply of good cleaning tools, such as your work coats for, and keep them in good order in a convenient place. Use water and cleaning agents sparingly, because otherwise they may spoil finishes and weaken glue, paste, or cement. Be on the lookout for troublesome insects and animals and take prompt measures to get rid of them if they appear. Make all the family help by leaving things where they belong and in good condition.

RECIPE FOR CHEESE AND MACARONI LOAF

Combination Is Appetizing and Quite Popular.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The combination of cheese or cheese sauce with macaroni, spaghetti or noodles is always popular. As a variation of this way of serving cheese, the United States Department of Agriculture gives the following recipe for a Cheese and Macaroni Loaf.

1/2 cupful of macaroni broken into small pieces

1 cupful of milk

1 cupful of soft bread crumbs

1 tablespoonful of chopped salt green pepper

1 tablespoonful of butter

1 teaspoonful each of chopped onion and parsley

2 eggs

1 teaspoonful of salt

1/2 cupful of grated cheese

Cook the macaroni in boiling water until tender and rinse in cold water. Cook the parsley, onion and pepper in a little water with the butter. Pour off the water or allow it to boil away. Beat the egg white and yolk separately. Mix all the ingredients, cutting and folding in the stiffly beaten whites at the last. Line a quart baking dish with buttered paper; turn the mixture into it; set the baking dish in a pan of hot water and bake in a moderate oven from one-half to three-fourths of an hour. Serve with tomato sauce.

Prunes With Nut Meats

For an emergency dessert, pit and wash cooked prunes, and add to them a few chopped nut meats—half a cupful to a pint of prune pulp. Stir in a tablespoonful of lemon juice and sprinkle 2 tablespoonfuls of sugar over the dish and serve with cream. This dessert may be put into individual pastry shells and decorated with whipped cream or a meringue of egg white and sugar, browned delicately. Children like this prune and nut mixture for a sandwich filling in their school lunches occasionally. Served on plain crackers, or between two crackers, it is appetizing with a cup of tea, suggests the United States Department of Agriculture.

Glaze for Pies

When making a number of pies it is worth while to glaze them by brushing the upper crust with a mixture of 3 tablespoonfuls of milk to one well-beaten egg, says the United States Department of Agriculture. For a single pie it would hardly pay to use the egg unless what remained of the mixture could be utilized for pudding, French toast, or some other cooking. Brush the glaze on with a fork wrapped in a bit of clean muslin.

Quick Potato Soup

A good soup that can be quickly made and served hot at school for lunch is recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture and made as follows:

1 quart milk

1 cupful grated potato

1/2 teaspoonful salt

2 tablespoonfuls butter or other fat

A few drops of onion juice

Add the potatoes to the milk. Bring to the boiling point, then add the fat, salt, and onion juice. Serve with or without straining. This serves about six children with medium-sized portions, about a cupful each. Allow 1 1/2 cupfuls for large portions.

BACK ACHY?

Lame and achy in the morning? Tortured with backache all day long? No wonder you feel worn out and discouraged! But have you given any thought to your kidneys? Weak kidneys cause just such troubles; and you are likely to have headaches, too, with dizziness, stabbing pains and other kidney irregularities. Don't risk neglect! Use Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys. Doan's have helped thousands. They should help you. Ask your neighbor!

An Alabama Case

Mrs. Mary Buchanan, West End, Scottsboro, Ala., says: "My back was weak and I couldn't stoop on account of knife-like pains. When I sat down and then tried to get up the pains came more severe. My kidneys acted irregularly, sometimes too freely, and again they were sluggish. I purchased Doan's Pills after taking them I was relieved of the trouble."

New Use of Concrete

as Building Material

Raised biscuits of concrete, as light as those "biscuits used to make" and much more durable, are now a possibility. They will float, but are not intended to be eaten. They are used as building material, their porous structure making them light and easy to handle, and also resistant to the transmission of heat. They are the invention of Axel Eriksson, a Swedish architect, as reported in a recent issue of the Engineering News-Record. These concrete blocks are "raised" through the addition to the mixture, while still wet, of a quantity of finely powdered zinc or aluminum. This reacts with the free lime of the cement, liberating hydrogen gas, which fills the liquid mixture with bubbles of the gas that are imprisoned there when the concrete sets. The process is analogous to that of the leavening of dough, which is accomplished by the setting free of carbon dioxide from a mixture of bicarbonate of soda and cream of tartar, alum, or some other chemical. The building authorities of Stockholm have approved the use of these blocks in two-story buildings.

MR. McADOO'S DEFEAT

William Gibbs McAdoo was defeated for the Democratic nomination for president at the New York Convention after the most grueling political fight ever waged in a National Convention.

The defeat of Mr. McAdoo was clearly one of organized political leaders, brought about by the instrumentality of an unfair public press and by the generous expenditure of money by organizations that are opposed to prohibition. Governor Al Smith, represented and backed by the wet element of the large eastern states is responsible for the defeat of Mr. McAdoo. But Mr. McAdoo wins after all, for out of the chaos and the scramble for leadership in the Democratic party by the wet element, John W. Davis of West Virginia won the nomination. Mr. Davis is neither a progressive dry nor a radical wet. He is considered by many as a dry conservative. Undoubtedly, the selection of Mr. Davis is a triumph over the forces that would have placed Governor Smith in nomination. Undoubtedly also is the fact that he is an intellectual giant, a clean, courageous gentleman who will bring to the nation one of the best presidents we have ever had. His nomination would have been impossible but for the support of the dry forces behind Mr. McAdoo, who after fighting a desperate fight for two weeks were finally able to throw their support to Mr. Davis.

Mr. Davis comes before the electorate with a splendid record of attainment. He has a clean, fair reputation as a friend to organized labor. He is one of the great corporation lawyers of the United States and represents the banking firm of J. P. Morgan. He is thus allied with labor and capital with a record that is universally conceded to be just to both. Without doubt he is the strongest man the Democrats could have placed in the field since the nomination of Mr. McAdoo was found to have been impossible.

THEY GOT THEIRS

The great Tallassee base ball conquerors came over last Thursday prepared to bury our boys for good and all.

They brought so many mound artists along that they really resembled some army of athletes.

But alas and alack! They shifted twirlers time after time, but their beautiful nest of goose eggs continued to grow to the end and they had a basket plump full when they went home. It was rather naughty for our boys to treat them that way but "pride always goeth before a fall" and Tallassee got theirs.

NEGRO MIGRATION TO NORTH DETRIMENTAL TO ALL LABOR

East St. Louis City Council Passes
Resolution Touching on Exodus of Negroes From South to North.

The matter of the negroes leaving the South and going north hunting high wages and better employment is becoming detrimental not only to the laborer of the South but is stagnating employment in the North as well. The northern cities are becoming aware of the conditions brought about by this exodus and are using their influence to diminish it. Following is a resolution recently passed and adopted by the City Council of East St. Louis, Ill., touching on negro migration:

Resolution
Whereas, It is reported that in the Southern States, especially in the large negro settlements, that statements have been made and circulated to the effect that there is a demand for labor in the North, at high wages, and in some cases inducements of different kinds have been presented to the negro population, which has caused a large immigration of negroes from the South to the North;

and,
Whereas, The City of East St. Louis has and is receiving many of these negroes, and a large number of laborers are now out of employment and appealing for work, with no demand for labor of any kind in this vicinity; and,
Whereas, If the exodus of the negro population of the South continues it will cause great suffering and want during the remainder of this year, especially during the winter months;

therefore,
Be it Resolved by the Council of the City of East St. Louis:

That efforts be made to advise the people of the South the true conditions as exist in reference to labor demands, and use consistent efforts to offset and prevent any further misrepresentations that induce the negroes to seek the North for employment.

Be it Further Resolved, That copies of this resolution be printed and distributed through the Southern States to advise and offset the former misrepresentations that have been made to its people that have caused the large exodus of negroes.
Signed: July 14th, 1924.

M. M. STEPHENS, Mayor.
Passed and recorded July 14, 1924.
Attest: John J. Hallihan, City Clerk.

STILL BUILDING

Mr. W. C. Roper is just completing a nice bungalow out on West Second Avenue which is a decided improvement.

Out in the same vicinity on the Wade property recently purchased, Mr. W. A. Reynolds is having constructed another nice little bungalow. That part of Clanton is always on the improve. The residence just completed out there by Mr. Jas. Scroggins is indeed a beauty with its dress of snow white.

Out on East Second, Mr. Tom Rockett is building him a bungalow home that will be a beauty. Let the good work go on.

Campaigning by radio is going to be tried out this fall by the big guns. The screeching of the static will not add very much to their hectic oratory but if they make a blunder it will be easy to deny it afterwards and say the radio lied.

DON'T EVER KNOCK

Let us tell you what we know experimentally to be a fact. There are some of the best people who live in Clanton, Alabama that live in the world. We know, we have good reason for knowing—reasons that will go with us to our grave and beyond.

Like all towns, cities or communities there is an element not so good but when it comes right down, to the real things that count in life, we are satisfied that the hearts of the large majority here are in the right place. Large and disinterested deeds of kindness are done here almost weekly, but no trumpets are blown nor drums beaten about it. In fact, it is an accident if you ever hear of it. Truly they "let not their left hand know what their right hand doeth."

With all of this wonderful sentiment of goodness and kindness existing, there is still lacking that spirit of fraternal trust and co-operation that means so much in the material progress and uplift of any community. Apparently we lack that confidence in each other that is so essential in building up and rendering prosperous the existence and success of a town.

Again, do not ever knock your town, for you not only may injure your own business, but likewise drag down your friend and neighbor, whom you know to be a moving spirit in many meritorious deeds that have fallen directly under your own eyes.

When you feel sore and out of heart, before you vent your spleen against your own home town, stop and make a mental inventory of the many times you have known your town to quietly extend the charitable hand of love to those in sorrow and distress, and you will certainly pause and feel like that Clanton has too many good points in her favor to merit your censure.

This has been a dull summer for business everywhere, but Clanton has pulled through without any disastrous failures and has steadily grown in population and in new wealth.

Out in the cotton fields the plants are loaded down with fruit, and the prospect is bright for a thrifty season just ahead.

Let us all brace up and see the "silver lining." Greet each other in friendly salutation, always remembering that no place on earth can have any better people in it than some of those who live in your own home town.

A BIG DEAL

Mr. W. A. Reynolds, of our town, and the Shaw Brothers, of Jemison, have concluded a deal with Mr. R. Q. Wade, the ice man, which covers the noted gin property out towards West End on Second Avenue.

These new proprietors are having the entire ginning and warehouse plant thoroughly renovated and are going to be in shape to give the very best of service when the cotton season opens.

Mr. Shaw is an experienced gin man and knows what it takes to gin and pack your cotton to the best advantage.

THAT AUDITORIUM

Just think how nice it would be if we had a nice and commodious auditorium down in town.

This fall the woods will be full of noted political speakers who have national reputations. If we had a conveniently located auditorium to accommodate them, we could secure a place on their program and fill Clanton full of people every time one of them was billed to speak, thus helping business and reputation of our town, and also affording an opportunity for the people of our section to listen to every angle of the political situation and make up their minds intelligently as to what they desired.

Besides, the fall and winter tours of the traveling troupes of various kinds will soon be on and if we could furnish a suitable place for them to exhibit, they would gladly put us on their itinerary. Clanton is preeminently a show town and the people are always ready to patronize any show worth while and they are entitled to the best.

Then it is often the case when it is desired to assemble the citizenry at home in a mass meeting to discuss and plan ways and means to meet any exigency that may arise. Here is another place where a centrally located auditorium is almost a necessity.

Besides, these and many other needs an ample auditorium is greatly needed by the rapidly growing Lodges and Orders that have a home here. This patronage alone would almost make an auditorium a paying proposition.

A city as large as Clanton without any suitable place of assembly is most seriously handicapped.

LOOKS NATURAL

Editor Mac Wyatt, formerly and for many years associated with our neighbor, the Union-Banner, but now editing and publishing the Republican at Fort Payne, has been spending a week or so among his relatives and many friends here.

Mac has a camp house out on the river and has spent a good deal of his time out there catching trout.

It looks natural to see Mac on our streets and reminds one of the days gone by. He and his wife will leave by auto for their home in Fort Payne today.

GONE TO MIAMI

Mr. McDavid, who has made the Ford car famous here, together with his wife left by auto Tuesday afternoon for Tallahassee, Fla., where Mr. McDavid will go by rail to Miami on business.

He is always such a busy man that he says he can not spare the time for a pleasure trip, but if the languorous and seductive charm of that climate don't cause him to change his mind it will be a wonder.

We have a weevil, or a bug, or spider or a fly or something to prey on every crop we try to grow, but so far we have heard of no pest that preys on the weeds or grass. Even Nature seems to have a grudge at the farmers.

MR. ELMORE LEAVES FOR MARKET

Mr. V. J. Elmore, who is connected with the Chicago Sales Company, and also with the popular department store known as "Elmore's," has gone east to lay in a full supply of fall and winter fashionable merchandise for both places.

He has been making this trip regularly for the past ten years and has become an expert buyer and very familiar with all of the eastern and northern markets which makes of him a very competent and close buyer and gives him the advantage of his long years of experience in knowing where to go and from whom to buy.

Both of his home houses believe in buying for cash and selling for cash with one price to everybody, and the adherence to this system makes of him a close buyer and enables the stores to be close sellers. You can always find a little shade on the price and the very highest quality of goods at both of these popular places.

MARRIAGE OF AGED COUPLE

Friends in the County will likely be interested in the marriage of Mr. Elijah Wyatt and Mrs. Callie Robinson-Smith which occurred on last Sunday morning, after an acquaintanceship of sixteen hours.

"Aunt Callie," during her widowhood, served as a member of Mr. Joe Giles' household.

The bride is 62 years of age, and the groom is probably older.

A GREAT BALL GAME

Clanton this year put out and maintained, throughout the season, a baseball team that is easily the pennant winner over all of Central Alabama. They have played and defeated the very best teams that could be mustered up in Birmingham, Montgomery and Mobile, to say nothing of the number of teams attended to from various smaller towns.

This reputation has grown to such an extent that several of our players have been drafted to other places at good salaries and all of them have made good.

Roonoke got the best amateur first baseman and short-stop from our home team that plays ball in the State. Tallassee got from us a center fielder that has no superior in amateur ball.

Broadus Connatser on first base, Jack Hayes at short-stop, and Buck Roberts in center field are advertising Clanton every day while playing with teams from home.

While the loss of these three star players was a sad blow to our home team, the management had under studies for each of them on hand and ready for any emergency. Our team went right on winning and is still prepared and willing to meet all comers.

Victory still perches on our banners and the crowds who throng the park for every game come away happier and happier as game after game is added to our score.

One thing has been clearly demonstrated. If you will give the local fans a winning team they are loyal in their support and will stand by the boys to the last pea in the dish.

Our ball team has been a wonderful advertisement for our town this year and deserves our appreciation.

THE WAY IT LOOKS

One thing about which no intelligent person would dispute, we suppose, is that social conditions and moral standards are not today what they were 28 years ago. The only question of difference of opinion might arise around whether the world has moved forward or backward as time has passed away.

In the days gone by society, or public sentiment, maintained certain rules and regulations that one must conform to if he expected to be recognized, or even admitted, into the ranks of respectability and allow to take part in and enjoy the social privileges of good society.

It looks like today that all of these regulations and refinements have been abrogated and that no standards of moral or social decency are required to give one full and free admission, and even prestige, in the ranks of what used to be considered refinement and decent society.

The fact is, that those who go the furthest in flagrant disregard and transgression of what was formerly considered decency and good breeding, seem to be the favorites and the leaders of the social life of today.

The young man and the young woman who succeeds the best in shattering all of the rules of common decency that used to prevail, and goes the farthest in disregarding the laws of God and the dictates of public decency, appear to be the favorites in the mad social life that is being lived these days.

It is our opinion that the parents of this country have worshipped at the feet of mammon, and the shrine of social preferment, to such an extent that a great majority of them have bartered their conscience and their innate decency for the price of a place in the doubtful limelight of present-day social prominence and popularity, and, in consequence, they have ceased to observe, warn, correct and control the daily goings and comings of the younger set, until now they have utterly lost their grip on the situation and the young folks set their own pace and work out their own destinies along the primrose path, and you know where that leads.

Not only have social conditions surrendered to the giddy whirl and allowed these vulgar and sinister modes of fast living to predominate over daily lives, but even the churches seem to have lost touch with the days when a distinct line of demarcation distinguished them from the everyday sinful world.

All of the churches we know anything about used to have rules and regulations governing the behavior and daily life of their membership. Many of the more cardinal sins were condemned and their membership warned not to indulge. If these "Disciplines" or "Decorum" were persistently violated by a member, he was called to account, and if he did not mend his ways he was excommunicated. Thus it was that church members were somewhat different from the worldly class and a distinct line marked the church from the world and it really meant something for a person to belong to a church. This custom has become almost obsolete now and that line has faded into such indistinctness that you can hardly discern it. Discipline is difficult to enforce anywhere when the violators of the law have the majority.

We have belonged to several fraternal orders where the oath of admission was all that could be desired; orders that stood especially for law and order and for the faithful brotherhood of man. All of their teachings and precepts were highly commendable and aimed primarily at the uplift and betterment of the member-

THORSBY BAPTIST REVIVAL

Beginning Sunday August 10th, there will be a revival meeting at the Baptist Church in Thorsby.

The well known and popular evangelist, Rev. John L. Whorton, will do the preaching, and when that is said, every one will know, that as far as real gospel preaching is concerned, that part of the meeting will be a success.

Every evening the wonderful boy soloist, Jimmy Gorman, will render some of his marvelous musical selections. He sings as though he is inspired.

The music will be in charge of a special musical director and arranged for the occasion.

This meeting is going to be conducted for the good of the entire community, and everybody is urged to come out and do their part.

Come out and listen to this great preacher and enjoy the music of this boy wonder as well as the regular program for each service.

BRING HIM HOME TODAY

We learn that Mr. Bay Fiquett, who had a stroke of paralysis over at Cherokee Bluff some weeks ago, is so far recovered now that he will be brought in home today.

He has had quite a serious time and we hope that he will now speedily recover and be able to be out hustling around again.

The congregation was called to order by Chairman E. Thompson. Prayer by C. W. Steele. Welcome address by Judge W. L. Pratt.

A very large visiting delegation were present and Clanton County was represented by a good crowd and excellent singers. They were very welcome guests and we cordially invite them all to come again.

Thanks are extended to the good people of Centreville for their splendid entertainment.

GONE TO CHICAGO

Last Saturday afternoon Dr. N. S. Johnson left for about a 30-day trip to Chicago, where he goes to take a post-graduate course in the study and treatment of babies.

He expects to post himself up on all of the latest discoveries along that line, and when he returns he will open a special clinic for the benefit of these little fellows.

ship first, and the improvement of conditions generally.

Some of these orders passed away, while many others are living on today, travelling the road of least resistance, and shutting their eyes to the glaring, shortcomings of what had promised so much.

In studying the reasons for these palpable delinquencies, in society, in the churches and in these well meaning fraternal orders, the same effects, resulting from the same causes stand out prominently. The lust after popularity, the race after a large membership and the greed for making money regardless of everything else, loom up as the specters that have come in to rule.

Our Employees Are Bonded

Every Bank expends considerable effort to secure none but honest and efficient officials and employees.

The directors of the First National Bank Bank feel that they have been especially fortunate in securing the services of persons of unusual integrity and ability for every position of trust in this Bank.

The Directors, however, feel that for the absolute protection of its depositors they should not depend on honesty alone for this protection, but should place all possible safeguards around those whom it employs.

A heavy bond has, therefore, been placed on every employee of this institution, which insures more completely than would otherwise be possible, full protection for the Bank and individual depositor alike.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Pacifists and Gov. Bryan Attack Defense Day Plan—Coolidge Upholds It

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

CONFIRMED pacifists and certain political opponents of the Republican administration, including Governor Bryan of Nebraska, Democratic vice presidential nominee, and the LaFollette group, are making a political issue of the national "defense day," September 12, planned by the War department. They insist that it is to be a "mobilization day," because some of the department statements inadvertently called it so, and they describe it as a "militaristic gesture."

President Coolidge did what he could to dispel this idea by sending a long letter to Secretary Libby of the National Council for the Prevention of War, in the course of which he said: "What is proposed for September 12 is merely a compliance with the purposes of the national defense law of 1920. It is not a mobilization, and the people who first attached to it the term 'mobilization day' and then proceeded to condemn it have been utterly unfair. Most of them, I am sure, have been innocent of intent to be unfair, but they have been misled."

"Profoundly hoping that the outlawing of war from this world may be accomplished, I am yet unable to detect any inconsistency in giving my approval to the program of defense day. I wish crime might be abolished, but I would not therefore abolish courts and police protection. I wish war might be made impossible, but I would not leave my country unprotected meanwhile."

"The defense test seems to me a means to assure the fullest efficiency to the extremely modest defense force our country maintains."

Governor Bryan disagreed with the President's statements and announced that he did not favor any plan "contemplating mobilization of the civil or industrial resources of the country or anything else that savors of a national holiday devoted to preparation for wars." He said, however, that he would issue general orders to assemble the National Guard troops of Nebraska "for inspection and practice in military activities."

John W. Davis, Democratic nominee for the Presidency, announced that he agreed with the views expressed by the governor of Nebraska. He added: "It is one thing to keep the military organization of the country in adequate practice; it is quite another to encourage demonstrations that can be nothing else at a time when every energy should be bent in getting the world back to peace and to work, calming the prejudices and passions growing out of the World War and encouraging useful trade and commerce. In all these America should take the lead."

Nearly all the state governors dissented from Bryan's views and the plans of the War department are going ahead with apparently the general approval of the people of the country.

Senator LaFollette's campaign speakers, it is said, are preparing to raise the cry of a choice between "militaristic Coolidge" and "peaceful LaFollette" in sections where they think it will make a lot of votes for the independent candidate.

INTEREST in the LaFollette candidacy does not die down, because there is always the chance that it may throw the election of a President into congress. His followers are still hoping for the support of the great bulk of the union labor vote, and at the close of the week the executive council of the American Federation of Labor met to decide whether or not he should receive the endorsement of the federation. The decision is not known at this writing, but President Samuel Gompers issued a statement in advance reiterating his opposition to partisan action by the federation. He praised LaFollette for not falling into the "snare" set by the communists of the Farmer-Labor convention, but added: "I say with complete assurance that at the present moment our minds are open and our conclusions will be arrived at during our sessions as the result of our consideration of those facts. There is but one thing that can be said definitely at this time. It is that the American Federation of Labor will, in this campaign, abide by its time tried policy of nonpartisan action. We shall consider men and platforms upon the basis of their service, past and promised to the wage earners and the great masses of the people of our country. We shall commit ourselves to no political party as partisans to a party."

Leading members of the Woman's party, replying to a call by LaFollette managers asking the support of "progressive women's organizations in every state," call attention to the fact that the LaFollette convention did not endorse the party's program for full equal rights for women, its record in this respect pleasing them no better than those of the Republicans and the Democrats, who took no action on the measure.

REPUBLICAN NATIONAL CHAIRMAN BUTLER has gone to Washington to help prepare for the ceremony of formally notifying Mr. Coolidge of his nomination. This event will be staged on August 14 in Continental Memorial hall and the national committee says it will be the biggest Republican rally of the campaign. The hall will seat only 1,700, but many thousands gathered outside will hear the proceedings through loud speakers. The notable guests will be numerous. Little else elaborate will be the notification of Charles G. Dawes at his home in Evanston, Ill., on August 19.

John W. Davis will be informed of his nomination by the Democrats at his Clarksburg residence on August 11, and it is certain that the Democrats, being ahead of their opponents in date, will not be behind them in making the event notable for enthusiasm and oratory. Mr. Davis' speech of acceptance is completed and has been tried out in private.

ACTIVITIES of the new grain marketing merger which has taken over the assets of five big elevator systems of the Middle West for the benefit of the farmer began last week. The new venture, however, has been refused the endorsement of the National Farmers Grain Dealers' association in which 5,000 grain elevators in the Middle West hold memberships. The association, in session last week in Des Moines, Iowa, adopted this resolution: "We do not favor any terminal marketing proposition of any sort unless all stock in it is held and owned by farmers' elevator companies and not by individuals; nor do we favor the entering of any farmers' co-operative elevator company into any terminal marketing venture until a sufficient number of other such companies have agreed to affiliate with the venture to insure control by the co-operative elevator companies; or until sufficient capital has been subscribed by such companies to properly finance the venture."

Reports of damage to the Canadian wheat crop, which resulted in a big jump in prices, have been denied, confirmed and denied again, and good rains of last week up there curbed the enthusiasm of the bulls considerably.

NO DEFINITE progress has yet been made in the allied conference in London, but on Thursday one of its committees began consideration of a new plan submitted by Premier Herriot for providing security for the proposed loan to Germany. It represents considerable concessions by France but certain features of it were not pleasing to the English. Briefly, Herriot proposes that a German default shall not be declared by the reparations commission unless a committee of five experts and representative bondholders, one of whom shall be an American, shall have given its opinion. Then the commission vote must be unanimous, otherwise the questions are to be submitted to an arbitral board of three with an American as president and one representative each of the majority and minority opinions. In both cases of delegation of the commission's power an American would have the deciding vote. What the British do not like are provisions for the guarantee to France of the delivery by Germany of definite quantities of reparations in kind.

Though the matter of the military evacuation of the Ruhr is not within the scope of the present conference, it has been discussed there, and so M. Herriot has proposed that as soon as Germany accepts the experts' plan and fulfills the conditions, France will get out of the Hagen district, and that the other occupied districts shall be evacuated according to the speed with which Germany fulfills her obligations. If the other allies agree to this plan, the process of evacuation would be complete in about two years.

THE allied military control commission under General Walsch, who succeeded General Nollet, last week broke off all relations with the German war department. It was asserted that General Von Seeckt, head of the German army, had demanded that the commission give forty-eight hours' notice before inspecting any German military organization or plant, and that the commission also post a notice at every place inspected that this was the last inspection of the German military forces that would be undertaken by the entente. General Walsch was ordered by the French government to refuse absolutely all such demands and to report in Paris. According to the commission, the German war department has, by underhand methods, been able to train officers and men enough for an army vastly larger than that allowed by the Versailles treaty.

SECRETARY OF STATE HUGHES, in Europe as president of the American Bar association, has been scoring great successes in London, Paris, Berlin and other cities. Unofficially he undoubtedly is doing a lot toward bringing about agreement among the quarreling nations. The Germans look on his visit as a diplomatic step to make the London conference successful.

AFTER many days of severe fighting, the Brazilian government forces drove the rebels out of Sao Paulo and occupied that important city, the center of the revolt. It was announced that the rebellion was thus practically suppressed. Immediately steps were taken for the restoration of normal conditions in Sao Paulo. The civil authorities were reinstated, communication with Santos was restored and the banks and large industrial concerns were aided in formulating a general plan of reconstruction. Managers of American enterprises there have returned to put their properties in shape again. Many warehouses and factories were destroyed by shell fire or burned.

OUR intrepid trio of army flyers is on the way across the Atlantic ocean, headed for home. Wednesday the aviators flew from Brough, England, to Kirkwall in the Orkney Islands, off the north coast of Scotland and immediately prepared their plans for the jump from there to Hornsford, Iceland, a distance of 500 miles. They intended to take the air again Thursday, but the start was delayed when adverse weather reports were received. From Danish sources there were reports of very bad ice floes and huge icebergs and tremendous ice barriers along the Greenland coast, which it was feared would make difficult and dangerous the landing of the aviators there.

SOVIET Russia has almost given up the hope of reaching an agreement with Great Britain, but is still trying, having now sent Joffe, its treaty expert, and Kameneff, one of the Russian big four, to London. If they fail the Russian government, it is said, will issue an ultimatum to the British which is likely to result in war. Russia has accumulated immense stores of arms and ammunition, obtained from Germany and England, and may first make an attack on Persia in order to involve Great Britain. According to their secret treaty with Germany they can claim aid from Berlin any time up to the middle of August.

THERE is a threatening war cloud over the Balkans. Bulgarian irregulars have been invading Serbia and Greece and the Greek army is in readiness to cross the Bulgarian border. Communists financed by Moscow are doing their best to aggravate the situation.

OUR NATIONAL CRIME

THE most common mistake of Americans is overeating.

With all our grumbling and complaining there is probably no country in the world, today, where the majority of the people get as much to eat as in this country.

The three kinds of food in which we are particularly prone to overindulge are sugar and starches, which are very much the same, and fats.

The consumption of candy, ice creams and soft drinks, all containing large quantities of sugar, has enormously increased in this country in the last 25 years. The general use of white breads, breakfast foods and other cereals has also increased.

Our forefathers, who were raised on a diet of cornmeal, whole wheat bread made of home-ground flour, bacon, ham, fresh meats, eggs and fresh vegetables, did not have an opportunity of eating the quantities of sugar and starches that we have on every hand today.

Now, sugar and breakfast foods are good foods.

The trouble is that we have retained our forefathers' diet and have added to it the present forms of confections and cereals as substitutes for some of the older forms of diet. The result is that we are eating a double allowance and are suffering therefor.

Fat is the surplus food which the body does not use and which has to be carried around as extra weight.

During the years of growth the body needs plenty of food for proper nutrition and body building, but after growth and development are completed only enough food is required to replace the natural loss and to keep the body functioning properly.

Every extra pound is a handicap.

Stand on the corner of any crowded city street and watch the people go by. It doesn't matter whether you select Michigan avenue in Chicago, Fifth avenue in New York, Commonwealth avenue in San Francisco, or Market street in San Francisco. Neither does it matter whether you observe people in the tenement-house district or on the boulevards.

The great majority of Americans are overweight.

We are eating too much because we have it to eat and yet haven't learned yet to eat what is good for us rather than to eat all we can get.

And this in spite of the fact that the best evidence obtainable shows that the individuals who live longest and enjoy the greatest activity and the best health are the "hound dog" type—lean and lanky and wiry.

Avoid fat if you want to live a long and healthy life.

FATIGUE

WHAT is fatigue? What happens when we get tired? Everybody knows the sensation, but just how it is caused? What does it mean when we say that we are "all in," and just what has happened to us?

In the first place we have probably not had enough fresh air, or, putting it the other way around, we probably have had too much air that wasn't fresh, too much stale, vitiated air.

We have probably stayed too long in rooms that were overcrowded or overheated.

Then our eyes have probably been exposed to glare from unshaded lights that fatigue the muscles of the eye and make us feel tired.

Or perhaps we have been sitting too long on uncomfortable chairs or benches.

It doesn't matter whether we have been in an office, a factory, or a theater; sitting too long at a time on seats that are improperly adjusted to our bodies is tiring, whether we are working or playing.

Maybe our clothing is uncomfortable. In spite of the freedom of present-day dress, such as the flapper costume, for instance, many people still wear uncomfortable clothing, especially uncomfortable shoes, which restrict the muscles and cause irritation and fatigue.

Perhaps we have been sitting too long walking too long, or playing too long and have so tired out one group of muscles without resting them by using another group.

Or we may have been surrounded by persons who were irritating or annoying, or by those who have bored us, so that we have been under constant mental irritation.

Any one of these things will tire us out; a combination of two or three of them will, of course, increase the fatigue.

When one is tired, his resistance to disease is lowered, so that his susceptibility to infection is increased.

The sensible individual, when he is unusually tired, instead of going to the theater, the ballroom, or the crowded public places for recreation, will lie down in a quiet, cool, well ventilated room and rest until his mental and physical balance is restored.

He will then be not only in better condition to enjoy his recreation, but he may also guard himself against possibility of a serious illness.

KANSAS SPIRIT

In Chicago there is an informal organization known as the Midland Authors. Its members are people who write and live in the Middle West. Some are famous folk, most are not. Nearly all of them are proud of the fact that they have stuck to the country they know and love and have not let the whirlpool of publishing interests in New York suck them in.

There's one independent state where the native writers aren't content to depend on membership in an organization out of their own confines. The Kansas Authors' club has an interesting letterhead and an active organization all its own. The president lives in Manhattan, but it's Manhattan, Kan.

The vice president has created a most interesting life under conditions that some women would have fretted themselves ill over. She was a city girl with plenty of money. Just when she had finished high school and was ready to study for the stage her father lost all his money. That was in Chicago. Her secondary ambition was to write. So she wrote for the living that had to be made, but it was other folks' letters that she dictated. Gradually she climbed up the ladder until she was head of the correspondence department of a great mail order house. In order to appreciate the height of that ladder, remember that on the catalogue and letters of a mail order store depend all the business that other stores pay salesmen up to $20,000 salaries for.

Then, as Mrs. James Patrick, she happily gave up the business career to move to a little Kansas village. There was no railroad within 30 miles of the "Gables," as the Patricks named the roofless that grew to be a charming ranch house adjoining the village. Then the railroad came through—so far south that the county seat moved down to the steel rails, and the Patricks followed, to make a new home at a new town, Satanta.

Meanwhile Mae Patrick had caught the spirit of enjoying "the real things of life, friendship, love, the simple things, the brilliant minds, of which there are many in a small community, the poor and the wealthy, all the real people that one comes face to face with in the small place." She's volunteered on many civic jobs, she's served on the Republican state executive board, she's worked on the committee appointed recently by Secretary Work to investigate Indian affairs. And always, she's kept to writing for sheer love of it. Just now, she says, she's putting together a series of sketches of "the real people of the great Southwest."

HAVE YOU AN ACRE OF DIAMONDS?

There's only one section of this country—or of any other—where "Miss Millie" would be a title of love and honor and distinction. Miss Millie, Mildred Lewis Rutherford undoubtedly was when, as a little girl, she pored over lessons at a beautiful solid mahogany school desk. Miss Millie began to be an author, when the world was at its eighteen, when the world began to open before her, especially the gracious world of art and travel that the "Old South" liked to give its girls. And Miss Millie she still is, to an ever wider and more appreciative group, when, as president of the Lucy Cobb Institute of Athens, Ga., she guides other girls at the same precious old mahogany desks of her own girlhood.

It's been a life, she insists, lacking in the dramatic qualities that would make other girls want to read about her. But it is so commonplace to be able to see value in the very things that have been familiar through all the years? Not only to see that value, but to preserve it, to make it yield a living to oneself and a service to many others?

This is the essence of Miss Millie's achievement. Not long ago some of the hard-headed members of the Athens Chamber of Commerce went out to see whether there was really anything much out there at the old school. They found "big double reception parlors, furnished elegantly, but more like a comfortable home than the formal entry of an educational institution." They found the "George I. Seney collection of oils and water colors," pictures "of the old Cobb home, and of Lucy Cobb herself, rescued from the home of a family of earwhite Cobb servants," historic furniture with legends of some of the best of southern culture adding to its luster, together with "model apartments for teachers' quarters and bathrooms everywhere," that appealed to their manlike souls.

So they went back to their offices. And they picked out the member who had the gift of gab and asked him to write up what they'd seen.

He started his story with the tale of the Chautauqua lecture on "Acres of Diamonds." Remember it? The farmer who sold out and went to search for gold, while the wise man who bought the farm found a diamond mine when he scratched the worn hillside.

Many Feet of Lumber in This Forest King

The Pacific slope is noted the world over for its magnificent forests. These consist for the most part of conifers—pine, cedar, hemlock, spruce and other species—of which many attain enormous size and tower aloft for hundreds of feet.

Not long ago a giant yellow fir was found in Oregon by loggers working at Bling slough. This venerable king of the forest was felled and the butt section placed on an iron platform car. The tree was perfectly sound throughout.

The log was 28 feet long, 110 inches in diameter at the butt and 95 inches in diameter at the upper end. It weighed more than 23 tons, and contained 12,000 feet of lumber, board measure. The tree from which it was cut was 431 years old, and rose to a height of 200 feet without a limb. Seven sections of this tree which were logged yielded together 40,000 feet of lumber. The log was cut into first-class flooring and sold at a good price.

"Mizpah"

The word "mizpah" means "watch-tower." In Genesis 31:49, there is the story of Jacob and his uncle, who made a heap of stones which by Laban was called "Jegarshadutha." The story continues: "And Laban said: 'This heap is a witness between me and thee this day.' Therefore, was the name of it called Galead; and Mizpah; for he said, 'The Lord watch between me and thee when we are absent one from another.' These last 14 words are the commonly accepted interpretation of 'mizpah.'"

Sunday School Lesson

(By Rev. F. M. FITZWATER, D.D., Dean of the Evening School, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)
(© 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for August 10

FIRST MIRACLE OF JESUS

LESSON TEXT—John 2:1-11.
GOLDEN TEXT—"Whatever He saith unto you, do it."—John 2:5.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus at a Wedding.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Miracle at Cana.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How Jesus Added to the Feast.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Jesus Enriching Social Life.

I. The Marriage Feast (vv. 1, 2).
Marriage was ordained by God and the first wedding was sanctioned by His presence (Gen. 2:22-24). Indeed, He must have performed the first marriage ceremony. It is not only honorable in all (Heb. 13:4) but when based on true affection it is the highest and best of human relationships next to union with the Lord. It promotes the physical, moral and spiritual well-being of both husband and wife and makes possible an atmosphere for the nurture of children. Marriage is not only an honorable relation but a wedding is a most beautiful occasion for all normal human beings.

1. Attended by Jesus' Mother and His Disciples (vv. 1, 2). The friends at this marriage feast were related to Jesus by blood and grace. To be united to Jesus Christ by the bonds of grace does not interfere with normal human relations but sanctifies them.

2. Attended by Jesus (v. 2). God attended the first marriage on earth (Gen. 2:22) and Jesus, who was about His Father's business (Luke 2:49), set a mark of honor upon every spring of human life by gracing this marriage feast with His presence. The Redeemer of man as He entered upon His exalted career thus lifted the holy ordinance of marriage to its proper dignity and beauty. Man by polygamy, adultery, divorce and fornication has basely degraded it.

II. The Anxiety of Jesus' Mother (vv. 3-5).

1. The Wine Failed (v. 3). Although this was a trying social exigency it seems to have been quite natural. The arrival of Jesus and His disciples put a drain upon the resources of the host, for these guests were bidden after they had reached Cana.

2. Mary Presents the Need to Jesus (v. 3). The clear implication is that she requested Him to embrace this opportunity to present His Messianic claims by working a miracle to supply the lack of wine. We may learn two lessons from Mary:

(1) In our great needs, when our resources are exhausted, we like Mary should come to Jesus for help.

(2) Let us not prescribe to Jesus the manner in which His help is to be given. While it was right for Mary to come to Him in her need, it was not her province to dictate how help should be given.

3. Jesus' Assertion of Authority (v. 3). He respectfully reminded His mother that He had passed from her authority—that His Father's will was supreme.

4. Mary's Confidence (v. 5). Although with calm dignity He asserted His authority, there must have been some sign by which He gave her to understand that He would not fail her in this embarrassing emergency. She directed the servants to be ready to carry out whatever instructions He should issue.

III. The Water Made Wine, a Display of Jesus' Creative Power (vv. 6-9).
A miracle is the display of the supernatural. It is not against the laws of nature but the execution of issues beyond nature.

The Measure of This Miracle (v. 6). The six vessels had perhaps a capacity of 120 gallons. Jesus is unstinted in His gifts. Twelve baskets were left over from feeding the Five Thousand.

2. Its Freedom From Display (vv. 7, 8). The mighty works of the Lord are not for display, not for the gaze of men. While not for display, it was so real that the disciples and guests knew that it was wrought by divine power.

3. Its Design. Its primary aim was to show the divine glory. Though Jesus would not use His divine power to relieve His own hunger, He responded to the plea to supply the wants of others.

4. Its Reality (v. 9). This was not a sham, a make-believe. To prove its reality it was brought to the governor of the feast, presumably the bridegroom.

IV. The Surprised Table Master (vv. 10, 11).

The excellence of the wine was praised by the ruler of the feast. Christ gives, not only quantity, but quality.

Light and Darkness

A candle is not lighted for itself; neither is a man. The light that serves self only is no true light, its one virtue is that it will soon go out. Light unshared is darkness.—George MacDonald.

Prayer as a Weapon

Prayer is a strong wall and fortress of the church; it is a goodly Christian's weapon, which no man knows nor finds but he who has the spirit of grace and of prayer.—Martin Luther.

Her Neighbor's Advice Helped Mrs. Frick

MRS. ADA FRICK

"YOU can be just as healthy, strong and happy as I am," said one woman to her neighbor after listening to the description of her ailments,—"if you will take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. My condition was very similar to yours, I suffered from those awful bearing down pains, weakness, backache, nervousness and headaches until I could hardly drag around. Today I am strong, well and happy because I followed the advice of a friend who had been greatly benefited by this old-fashioned root and herb medicine."

Nearly fifty years ago Lydia E. Pinkham of Lynn, Mass., prepared from medicinal roots and herbs Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Its fame has spread from shore to shore. You will now find in every community or neighborhood some woman who has been restored to health by its use, or has some friend who has. Therefore ask your neighbor.

Thousands of unsolicited testimonials such as the following are on file at the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., and prove the merit of this medicine. Therefore no woman should continue to suffer from such ailments.

Mrs. Frick Tells of Her Experience

PERRYSBURG, OHIO—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because I suffered with pains in my sides all the time. I can't remember just how long I suffered but it was for some time. One day I was talking with a neighbor and I told her how I was feeling and she said she had been just like I was with pains and nervous troubles and she took the Vegetable Compound and it helped her. So then I went and got some and I certainly recommend it for it is good. Whenever I see a woman who is sick I try to get her to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Ada Frick, R. ### Elephant's Tusks

The tusks of the elephant are merely projections of the incisors of the upper jaw and are never shed, although they are sometimes broken off. In other words, the tusks are part of the elephant's teeth. However, the milk teeth, which precede the tusks, come out at an early age. The tusks of the elephant supply the ivory which is so highly esteemed the world over for ornamental purposes. Among the Indian or Asiatic elephants only the male has the tusks, but they are found on both the male and female of the African species.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It

Applicants for Insurance Should Use Swamp-Root

Judging from reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has been very successful in overcoming these conditions. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of success.

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview of the subject, made the astonishing statement that one reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation, send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing, be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

Generous, Indeed

Loungers at the club had a certain man under discussion. Some said he was generous. Some said otherwise. Finally a lawyer walked in who knew the man well. To the newcomer they appealed to say whether the individual in question was generous or not.

World's Oldest Banks

The oldest existing bank in the world is said to be the Bank of Barcelona, in Spain, which was founded in 1401. England's first bank was opened in 1603 by Francis Child, a goldsmith. A number of other goldsmiths immediately followed suit. The Mint in the Tower of London had been the depository for the cash of merchants until Charles the First seized the money as a loan. Then the traders began to deposit their cash with the goldsmiths in Lombard street.

WHAT IS GOOD GOVERNMENT?

Over a century ago some brave and sturdy men had a vision of government that appealed to their manhood and inspired them to launch out into an absolutely wild and unsettled land, there to work out, as free men, this beautiful dream of a government of, by and for the people.

In the long years that have elapsed since these heroic forefathers of ours succeeded in carving out a home in the wilderness, in which to try out this beautiful vision of freedom that had come to them, this government that they baptized with their blood and rendered sacred by their prayers, has developed into what is recognized as the richest, the greatest, the fairest and most powerful government on earth.

Its enemies and its envious neighbors across the sea, have several times undertaken to wipe it off the earth because it stood for liberty, freedom and the guarantee to man and man alike of equal rights to all and equal participation of each reputable citizen in the directing of its career.

These attempts all utterly failed to disrupt this wonderful amalgamation of a free people who had taken their destiny out of the hands of kings and assumed all of the responsibilities that must necessarily go with the handling of so great a land as this has become.

Even the greatest fratricidal war that we can read of in history failed to unmake the wonderful machinery our forefathers forged when they first unfurled Old Glory to the breeze and spoke into active being the greatest nation on earth.

It lives today because it is founded on righteousness and dedicated to the "greatest good to the greatest number." It is the sun of liberty that lights up the dark places on earth and is the Mecca to which the footsteps of thousands daily turn for relief.

The dominant idea that has always welled up in the hearts of all good citizens is to make of our government, in all of its details, the very best government possible. To serve all of its citizens, both high and low, with equal fairness, kindness and firmness. To achieve this high ideal and to cause happiness and prosperity to bloom on every hand, it is necessary that all of the good citizens participate in shaping our course. It is the duty of all good, honest, clean men and women to watch the trend of affairs carefully, study conditions and select able honest public servants to carry out their wishes and then go to the polls and elect them.

Political parties, in our form of government, are an advantage, and perhaps necessary. But no political party is as important as good government, and when a party falls into the hands of tricksters and selfish interests it no longer has any claim to the support of an honest man or woman with a drop of patriotic blood in their veins. Our country first and our party next. This is true from the smallest municipality in the land on up to the general government of our whole country.

We have never known a town or county in the United States, and we doubt if a single one exists, in which the good, clean, honest citizenship did not outnumber the lawless and nondescript class. The good people can always rule if they will. They don't always do it, but it is their own fault and discredit when they fail.

In recent years, we have unfortunately developed a breed of professional politicians, who are out for the dollars they can squeeze out of the cane. They care nothing - what ever about the kind of government we have just so they get the cash.

None of these gentry possess any real political convictions, but they tie on to any party where they think the pickings are good. They are fellows who build up hatred and prejudice in the public mind and fatten on it. They drag in anything and everything they can think of to embitter one neighbor with another. Their campaigns are always full of vituperation and filth. There is no excuse for their existence and they know it, so they muddy the waters with their bitter tales of party dissuality and such, when, in fact, no party is, or can be involved in a local issue. These characters are greatly to be deplored. They often interfere with good government, hold back a town, a county or even a state in the march of educational, industrial and Christian progress until it becomes a real back number, and is scorned by those who have kept step with the times and are marching forward to a brighter and brighter future every day.

Morally the good, moral male and female citizenry are to blame for this. They are in the majority all over our broad land and can rule and direct affairs when they finally wake up, lay aside prejudice, come together for good government and take over the work themselves as they should. Pick your public servants out yourselves. Put them to work and see that they do their duty.

Main Street not Wall Street ~ owns the Railroads

Fifty million Americans - nearly one half of our total population, and more than twice the number that have ever voted in a presidential election - are directly interested in railroad securities. Read this statement again, and consider the enormous responsibility that rests with the managements of the carriers in handling such a trust fund.

About two million citizens are owners of railroad stocks and railroad bonds; their names appearing on the record books. The remaining 48 million people are no less owners of these securities, the somewhat less directly.

Two billion dollars worth of railroad securities are owned by the forty million people who compose the life insurance companies; for 25% of the reserve of these companies has been invested in railroad stocks and bonds.

One out of every four Americans has a savings account, and more than one billion dollars of savings-bank funds are invested in railroad securities. The great fire insurance companies, with thirty million policies protecting the property in the United States, are heavy investors in railroad securities.

Remember these things when you hear the railroads attacked by poorly-posted and in some instances vicious people. The welfare of American railroads is your welfare. Help them to continue the splendid work that they are now doing, and remember also that you and your neighbors are the real owners of the railroads.

Credit for some of these figures is given to The American News, Vol. No. 2, of the Bank of Manhattan Company Library.

Twenty applicants who stood examinations before the Alabama Bar association early in July were passed. Those who passed the bar examination were: Harold Price, Tuscaloosa; George Mack Oliver, Montgomery; Joel W. Woodruff, Montgomery; Howard L. Foshee, Clanton; Victor H. Carmichael, Dora; Richard M. Smith, Jr., Birmingham; James Turner Gibson, Jr., Pinson; Coral Wood, Birmingham; Benton L. Britnell, Albany; J. A. Huey, Enterprise; Joseph B. Davis, Easley; William D. Lavender, Centerville; Thomas T. Twitty, Pelham, Ga.; J. Perry Orr, Hartselle; Lucien D. Gardner, Jr., Montgomery; P. C. Griffith, Mobile; W. Gregory Smith, Birmingham; Bolling Craig Stanley, Birmingham; J. A. Posey, Tuscaloosa, and Claude D. Pepper, Alexander City.

That Jasper is growing rapidly is proven by the 1924 school census as well as an actual census of the town taken in connection with the school census. While not official the census of the entire population of Jasper, taken by the school census enumerators on separate books, is accurate. While taking the school census Prof. Jones and his assistant have enumerated the number of people in each home listed within the city limits of Jasper, and have found that the present population of Jasper is 4,483 as compared with 3,246, as reported by the United States census of 1920, a gain of 1,237 since 1920.

The sweet potato, Baldwin county's most promising and consistent crop, is again proving a winner this year. During a season when cucumbers, Irish potatoes and other staple money producers in the county have failed to materialize owing to seasonal conditions and bad markets, the sweet potato has come through again and is proving a very profitable winner. Prices at the various loading platforms in Baldwin county have been one rise followed by another until now an average prevailing price of around $2.50 a bushel is being paid.

Many plans for the agricultural development of Talladega county are being made by the agricultural committee of the Chamber of Commerce, with P. S. Williams as chairman. In an effort to develop the poultry industry, the board of directors will be asked to send a committee to Morristown, Tenn., to investigate the large poultry markets there and the system with which they are operated. The same committee will also be asked to investigate the hog and dairy industries while on the same mission.

Gadsden has done wonders in stamping out the mosquito menace and Atlanta is making rapid strides in that direction, according to E. B. Johnson, malaria control expert of the state health department, who has just completed a thorough inspection in the two cities.

A mass meeting of nearly 300 Butler county citizens unanimously endorsed a proposition calling for an election to levy a three mill tax for general school purposes.

Richard Berry Coleman was found dead in Troy. He had reached the age of 90 years. He was a native of Georgia, but had lived in Pike county for a number of years.

At a meeting of the Tri-Cities Central Labor union at Florence, tentative plans were outlined for an all-day celebration to be staged September 1, Labor Day.

The joint ticket office maintained since the war by the several railroads entering Birmingham, has been abandoned.

Contracts have been let by the government at Wilson Dam for 129,000 feet of lumber and $6,000 worth of steel shapes for machines, shafting plates, etc. The Gulf States Steel company of Birmingham and the Youngstown Shape and Tube company of Youngstown, Ohio were awarded the steel contracts. The lumber ordered went to two Mississippi companies, located at Laurel and Hattiesburg.

The Gulf States Steel company will make extensive repairs at Virginia Mines, which will include the construction of a new top house and the making of a new opening into the mine. A number of carpenters are being sought by the company for the construction work and repairs to be made, and a large sum will be spent in improvements at the mine, it is stated.

Claiming that the purchase price of $323,000 for the real estate belonging to the Anniston City Land company, which is in the process of being sold to a new corporation formed by William A. Davis, Jr., A. Hamilton and D. W. Prust, was entirely inadequate, the minority stockholders have filed injunction proceedings against the board of directors of the land company, seeking to prevent the sale.

The high school at Haleyville, Winston county, has been raised to the status of a junior college and Dr. J. C. Hanes, a well known Methodist minister, has been elected the first president of the institution. The school already has some building and equipment, and it is understood that the citizens of Haleyville have raised $10,000 for additional buildings.

With its own paving plant, Gadsden has started to pave Sixth, Tenth and Eleventh streets, and Fourth, Fifth and Hill avenues, the paving method being used. It is said that residents on those thoroughfares petitioned that something be done to relieve the dust menace and that the officials decided that the only effective relief would be in paving.

The mangled and lifeless body of Ted Robinson, 22-year-old son of Charlie Robinson of Albertville, was found in the railroad yards near Akron, O. He is said to have gone North to look for his 13-year-old brother, George, who had not been heard from for several weeks and whose absence was worrying his mother.

The Alabama Public Service Commission has named Milton L. Cooper, of Selma, as accountant for the commission. Mr. Cooper is the first full-time accountant the commission has employed. Mayer W. Aldridge, of Montgomery, has acted as consulting accountant of the commission in the past when his services were necessary.

The Talladega courthouse annex, which was formerly the old First Methodist church, is rapidly being gotten into shape for occupancy. The board of health has started moving and its new quarters are being put into first-class shape. The board of education is also making preparations for moving into its new home.

The state auditor has certified into the state treasury the sum of $51,757.70 which was received from the federal government for federal aid on certain road projects under way in Alabama. A Limestone county project will receive $37,393.13 of the total amount turned into the Alabama treasury.

Thursday, August 5th, has been set by the Public Service Commission to hear the citation issued by the Alabama Great Southern, L. & N., Southern and N. C. & St. L. railroads to show why they should not maintain an adequate union passenger station at Atlanta.

The Planters Mercantile company of Greenville have let a contract for the erection of an additional cotton warehouse adjacent to their warehouse No. 2. This will be the third unit and will be 100 feet square. This, with the other two units will be equipped with sprinkler systems.

Two large electric fans in the Baraca rooms at the First Methodist Church, of Bessemer, proved too great a temptation to some unknown party this extremely warm weather, and they were removed from the basement of the church. It is stated by members of the class.

On August 23, the Little Texas community will observe a home coming day for the friends of the old camp ground located there. Rev. E. A. Childs, pastor of the Methodist church at Opp will deliver the sermons.

The Standard Foundry company, of Anniston, of which former Governor Thomas E. Kilby is one of the officials, has purchased the property of the Rabe Pipe and Foundry company, of Chattanooga.

Work has been resumed on Oneonta's new school building and the board hopes to keep it going until the class rooms are completed.

Mrs. Thalia F. Pratt was installed as postmistress of Carrollton August first.

Nearly two additional miles of street paving for Hartselle was provided by the city council, when ordinances were adopted on their first reading for the paving of Locust and East Clinton streets as far out as the city limits.

Lee county peaches will be preserved in paraffin and exhibited at the Southern Exposition in New York next January.

The state gasoline tax for June amounted to $141,036.82. This gives each of the 67 counties $2,123.32 to be used for road purposes.

ROAD BUILDING

ROAD CONSTRUCTION IN UNITED STATES

The chief of the United States bureau of public roads, Thomas H. MacDonald, is in constant touch with the road-building programs of the states and is ever watchful for the interests of the federal-aid appropriations before congress each year.

"The estimate of $91,000,000 to be put under contract the current fiscal year," said Chief MacDonald, "it is believed" will be reached, with the probability of an increase in 1925 to $94,000,000. This latter figure is contingent upon conditions in fields of other construction, rail transportation and labor. Public road work is retarded when there is a large construction program of a private character and accelerated when the other construction work decreases. The general tendency of the federal-aid road work at this time is upward.

"If the estimate of $94,000,000 to go under construction for 1925 is not reached, but is reduced by $5,000,000, or even $10,000,000, the balance available for new construction would not be sufficient to carry any reasonable program for 1925, and that was the reason for the liberal appropriation made by congress at this session.

"One of the fundamental principles of the federal budget plan is elimination of waste and inefficiency in the expenditure of public funds. There is probably no other field of public expenditure in which at this time greater savings are possible through efficient administration. Efficient administration and organization demand positively first, a continuing road program, and second, foreknowledge of the dimensions of the future annual program."

In discussing the road-building achievements since the passage of the federal-aid act, Chief MacDonald said: "Up to March 1 of this year the federal aid highways which have been completed since 1916 totaled 33,036 miles, and 13,800 miles were under construction and reported as 59 per cent completed. The total roads graded and under construction amounted, therefore, to 46,836 miles. Of the mileage reported as completed on February 29, 1924, 6,307 miles had been completed during the current fiscal year. All but a very small percentage of this mileage is on the federal aid highway system as now established.

"In addition to the roads of the system improved with federal aid, parts of it have been improved without federal assistance. A careful study is being made of the improvement status of the system, and an approximate estimate based upon these incomplete studies is that at the end of the year there were about 60,000 miles of surfaced roads and 8,700 miles graded, which leaves nearly 110,000 miles of the federal system yet to be surfaced. "To bring this system up to serviceable standards, therefore, within the full decade ahead, would mean a surfacing program of about 11,000 miles for each of the ten years—this in addition to the additions to the system, the separation of grade-crossings, reconstruction and much other necessary work."

That road construction is progressing throughout the country without federal aid as well as with it is demonstrated by statistics available to the bureau of roads, which show that total expenditures in 1921, a banner road year, for all rural highways and city streets for all places with a population of 2,500 and over, including all street and alley surface construction, repair, maintenance, street cleaning and street lighting, was $1,419,506,853.

Better Highways Wanted

The continued high importation of motor vehicles into the Argentine republic is causing considerable thought to be devoted to the need of good roads, the present lack of which has prevented automobile importations from reaching even higher figures. The Argentine statistical bureau reports that up to the present time 116,940 passenger cars and trucks have entered the country. Of this number, about 85,000 are in operation.

Highway Hints

The total highway mileage of the United States equals 2,940,000, of which 430,000 miles are surfaced highways.

The longest motorbus route in France is operated by the Paris-Lyon-Mediterranean railroad, and runs from Belfort to Nice through the Alpine district. With its branches it totals 376 miles in length.

The Custer Battlefield highway was traversed last year by over 30,000 automobiles.

It is estimated by experts that the extent of surfaced roads in the United States will have reached at least 450,000 miles by the end of 1924.

The state highway commission of New Jersey has announced that its road and bridge program for 1924 will involve an expenditure of $7,000,000. The year's work will include 81 miles of reinforced concrete construction.

The DAIRY

CLEAN UTENSILS ARE ESSENTIAL IN DAIRY

Every utensil which comes in contact with milk or cream must be thoroughly washed and sterilized immediately after it is used each time. The utensils which require this care are milk buckets, cream separators, cream cans, strainers, and stirring rods. The following procedure is recommended by a dairy specialist.

1. First rinse the milk off these utensils with cold or lukewarm water. If hot water is used for this purpose, it will scald the milk on the utensils in a thin film which is very hard to remove later. This thin film of milk or cream that is left is an ideal medium for bacterial growth, and will contaminate the next batch of milk or cream handled in the container.

2. Wash thoroughly each utensil in hot water containing alkali washing powder. Do this washing with a brush rather than a rag. A rag is a filthy carrier of germs and does not scour the surface of a smooth metal utensil. A brush is much easier to keep clean and will reach all corners and sections of the utensil that cannot be reached by a rag. Also soap or soap powders should never be used in washing dairy utensils. The base of all soap is a grease which forms a film on the milk vessel, which will in turn collect dust and dirt and thus form a place for bacteria to lodge and a medium for their growth. Soap also leaves an odor in the vessel which is taken up by the milk and cream.

3. After the utensils have been thoroughly washed as outlined above, they should be rinsed in clean hot water to thoroughly remove all the washing powder and wash water.

4. Scald all utensils with boiling water, or better still, sterilize them with live steam by inverting them over a steam jet or by placing them in a sterilizer in which live steam can be held under pressure.

5. Never dry the utensils with a rag. Let them dry by the heat acquired during sterilization or by hanging them in the sun under a screened sunning rack. It is better that this sunning rack and drain board be placed inside the milk room and next to double windows. This protects the vessels from flies and wind-blown dust and dirt.

The wash vat should have two compartments, one for the wash water with washing powder and the other for rinsing purposes.

Saving Can Be Made on Calf Raising Expense

Six calves have been raised successfully at University farm at St. Paul, Minn., by using skim milk powder in place of ordinary skim milk. The experiment was in charge of Dr. C. H. Eckles, chief of the division of dairy husbandry, and T. W. Gullickson, a member of his staff.

The change from the whole milk to the skim milk powder was made at the age of three weeks, they report. At the end of 90 days the skim milk powder was gradually withdrawn from the ration. From the age of 70 days the calves were fed alfalfa hay and a standard grain mixture. At six months of age they were somewhat below normal, but attained the normal condition in both weight and height by the age of eight months.

Ten pounds of powdered skim milk added to 90 pounds of water will make 100 pounds of normal skim milk. The powder can be bought for 10 cents the pound. The grain ration consisted of four parts of corn, one of bran and one of linseed. This mixture serves the purpose just as well as more expensive commercial calf meals, says Doctor Eckles.

To raise the calf with the minimum amount of milk was the motive of the experiment. "The milk of 45 out of every 100 cows kept in the United States is sold as whole milk," Doctor Eckles says. "Owners of dairies where milk is marketed in this way are confronted by a serious problem in raising the necessary number of calves to maintain their herds. If no calves are raised and the farmer must buy what he needs, there is constant danger of disease and his herd seldom improves from year to year."

Dairy Notes

Give special care to cooling the cream.

Kill pastures every two weeks to kill obnoxious weeds.

Milk cows have increased in number and value in the past 15 years, but not in proportion to the increase in the human population.

The only advantage of a scrub cow is that it doesn't take so long to milk her.

Cows ought to do very well on a liberal allowance of alfalfa hay, supplemented with ground barley and beet pulp.

Of the total number of pure bred dairy cattle of the United States, about 58 per cent are Holstein-Friesian, 25 per cent Jerseys, 9 per cent Guernseys, 3 per cent Ayrshires and 1 per cent Brown-Swiss.

Seed Germination

Tales are often told of seeds that have germinated after centuries. Most seedsmen accept such stories with reserve, the number of instances in which this has actually happened being very small. Not many seeds retain life after ten or twelve years. Onion and parsnip seed will not, as a rule, last longer than twelve months. Lettuce seed sold in the shops is always two years old; the first year's seeds being unfit for sowing.

Lasting Cookies

The first batch of cookies I ever made I mixed "by ear," writes a correspondent of the Chicago Journal. I thought the idea was to get as much flour into the dough as possible. I did. They were anemic looking and hard as marbles. A couple of months later I came across a few of them in the cookie jar. I took one of the pale, hard slabs, addressed it to a friend, put a stamp on it and mailed it. My friend's baby cut two teeth on it, broke a window pane with it and it is still a treasure of his toy box.

Iceland Retroactive

Iceland has prohibited the importation of shoes. It will return to the exclusive uses of its own hairy sea skin footwear. Nearly all dry goods are barred, meaning a return to homespun. Automobiles, motorcycles, films are not to be for the Icelanders. This movement, back to the simple life in Iceland, now has something of a counterpart in Sweden, which is proposing to resist the flood of automobiles which is engulfing other parts of the world. Not rarely an American here and there wishes he might be clear of an automobile, radio, telephone transported world as altogether too much with him. Such will be Iceland, if it stands firm, a real retreat.

Portrait of St. Paul

While digging the foundation for a taxicab garage in Rome workmen drove their picks through the roof of a subterranean edifice, the walls of which were covered with wonderful frescoes. Among them was a portrait of St. Paul.

All evidence seems to prove that this portrait was painted while St. Paul was alive. This and the other remarkable frescoes are the oldest Christian paintings known, says Prof. Ralph V. Magoffin in the Mentor.

History of Loving Cups

All racing cups are not necessarily loving cups. A loving cup is one having two or more handles, generally constructed of silver. The custom of the loving cup is traced back to the days of wassailing. It was continued after the introduction of Christianity.

The monks called the wassail bowl the "poculum caritatis," meaning "loving cup." The ceremony of drinking from one cup and passing it around was observed in the Jewish paschal supper.

Soldiers Fond of Tobacco

European soldiers always have been heavy smokers. In the last war as well as in the conflicts of olden times. Napoleon used snuff, lots of it, when on the march; the life of Frederick the Great was once saved when a bullet flattened out against a snuff box in his pocket, and Seydlitz, one of the famous cavalry generals of history, was a slave to his pipe.

Tars Superstitious

When the West Campgan ran into 19 hours of ensuing gale and fog in a region infested with icebergs, the sailors attributed their bad luck to hymn singing by two preachers who were working their way to Europe as cattle men aboard ship. The black robe of a churchman in the early Middle Ages was regarded as certain misfortune for the craft he sailed on—Chicago Post.

How Many Shares Have You?

B. C. Forbes, one of the country's great financial writers, says:

"One family in every seven holds utility holdings of an average of 10 shares. Of $17,000,000,000 invested in these utilities more than 30 per cent is in the electric light and power industry."

By SIDNEY HERSHEL SMALL
(Copyright by The Bobbs-Merrill Co.)

It is not that you are displeasing me,"—dissembling—"The place is within the pangs of her house. I only take you to the custom. Should I leave behind, people would wonder."—did not think that you feared was said," she said, looking at him. "Aren't you the nodded."

"I must touch her kimono a moment,"—do I look—is my appearance satisfactory?" "It will do," he said without apparent interest. A household had awaited the desire of their master before emerging, and Wells headed the procession toward the village proper, the servants drifted off, one by one, and Wells and Ellen were alone in the increasing pack of bodies.

The throng with them were from neighboring villages, their short blue kimonos marked with the sign of their class or, if servants, the sign of their employers; farmers, roughly worn straw hats and bags of vegetables to be sold, raw, between delicate dampen or shredded shrimp. All were noisily down the narrow road toward the outskirts of the village.

There was no moon, and the black overhead. But there plenty of light in the street, for lanterns were lit and hung out while many of the people carried as well, long dim streamers of brightened with painted flowers and wordings. Townspeople joined in the festive throng.

And women threaded the way brightly, punctuating the dark of the men with ruby-colored robes, with warm browns or purples and in by obis of ultramarine or red and gold. Some few of the class women, by order of their heads, masked themselves by tying over their cheeks the flexible of broad straw hats. The gay robes were the wings of the giant sailing over turquoise sea. All laughing, all pleasantly excited.

And Ellen had been on the side of the street before, but she was packed close to the walls of the house, and by the newly erected fence. Ellen stopped, and smiled a little cotton monkey, with blue and red body, who hugged a bannet.

That is O-Saru, the honorable Wells said laughing. "See her in a little spring. Press it your finger over the nose, not that." And he must show her, and guiding her.

The honorable ran to the top of the spring was pressed; the girl smiled at each other. "Let me try," Ellen insisted. Two were close together as she rumpled for the minute spring, and was when O-Saru climbed his again.

Is an expensive present," Wells said gaily. "It cost three sen!" "A costly wife," the girl agreed seriously. "The mission-women that in America many wives were, and spent their husbands' money on things unneeded." "Would you get you all?"

"What?" questioning, lifting eyes to his. "All of these toys you like . . . you give them to the children after tea?"—very quickly, covering the slip that he made—"there is it, the carpenter. Here," to the keeper, "give me the well-made from your honorable shop."

O-Hana, I push him. See how loves the saw from him, instead of him to him as is done in America. It did not think that she might it arrange that a casual traveler as Kayama had been would oblige as such detail, nor did she wonder.

Would like a doll, Kayama-San," eyes already selecting one from the thousands displayed. She was one to her liking: no easy task. "Is lovely . . . it will be my Ellen laughed contentedly. "I a Chinese doll with a rice-paste when I was a child, but a beggar and, so my nurse said, ate the paste. I cried for days . . . Thank this one, Kayama-San."

From the country, unaware the village's Lord Kayama was in the street, and intoxicated by excitement, and unaccustomed in their dreary unseeing of the insignia upon his robes, brushed close to Wells, and moved onward, with the major out, which spewed away dripping the yu-ya at intervals. Up the hill, and over the little camelot bridge, into a quarter so dark the trees seemed blot of light against the darker sky.

Ellen was excited. The stir, the happiness about him were warning him; all of the East-sounds and scents and languorous action.

Unaware, Ellen was pressed even closer to him. He could feel the path of her arm against him. The narrow, moved more slowly, and stopped altogether.

and the two must stand immovable. Ellen, less able to withstand the eager crowd behind, was pushed a half-pace forward, turned, and was left pressed against Wells, her face close to his. She smiled up at him, but was rewarded with nothing more than a blank look, a look utterly concealing the seething within him.

An announcer opened a great umbrella and, mounting a box covered with cloth, announced the coming of the Fruitful Year. As he spoke, the final chanted words, a gasha stepped into the open space, flung out her fan with one gracious movement.

The press of bodies became intense. Wells, eyes upon the dancing girl, heart beating painfully, head awash with the beauty of it all, passed his arm about Ellen, the better to protect her from the mass. Unconsciously, she placed her hand upon his on the far side. He felt the fingers tense and move.

The dancer veered nearer and nearer, a path cutting itself as if by magic before her. In and out the dancer, swinging, swaying, silk hissing upon silk, his painted face with twin circles of red, like lacquer, immobile, her eyes downcast, her body only showing the ecstasy which moved her.

Selected from the gasha-house as the most beautiful, lovely with the gauzy fragility of youth, the way opened for her as she advanced. It did not close behind, but remained a fanlike stretch of blackness, with the girl as the colored handle. She approached Wells, and as her hand bent in homage against the skirt of her kimono he could see that they were trembling.

"Aii! aii! aii!" chanted the chorus. She was the bud for the picking of their lord, Kayama. It was the spring-time. The buds were opening. In his lordly arrogance and mercy he might honor the village by stooping to pick the beauty of this flower which had been created for him alone. She, most beautiful, would drag the hem of her kimono for him through the streets.

Wells knew that this was allegorical; he was not intended to pluck this flower—not at this festival—it was all emblematic of the devotion due him.

"Aii! aii! aii!" chanted the chorus. She was the bud for the picking of their lord, Kayama. It was the spring-time. The buds were opening. In his lordly arrogance and mercy he might honor the village by stooping to pick the beauty of this flower which had been created for him alone. She, most beautiful, would drag the hem of her kimono for him through the streets.

"Aii! aii! aii!" Chanted the Chorus. She was the Bud for the Picking of Their Lord, Kayama.

This Ellen could not know. The words were so simple, the meaning behind them so unmistakable, that she understood. Her fingers curled about his.

As Wells dropped a coin upon the grass he saw the curve of Ellen's cheek, and marked how flushed it was. The gasha swooped upon the gold with a flurry of wide sleeves and drapery, showed her teeth in a gleaming smile. The path closed behind her as she danced away.

Ellen drew a long audible breath. "I . . . am glad that you did not—" and gulped down the unspoken remainder.

"Did not what?"

No answer—a choked unintended sob instead.

He knew. Knew it now! She didn't love him. If she hadn't, she wouldn't have cared . . .

Why not? Why not, indeed? She was his wife. He was the master. The lord. She understood that he was the absolute ruler, that his word was her command. That there remained nothing save willing obedience, even if stultified.

If she knew that he was white—she wouldn't tell her, couldn't explain now; there was no time for that. The moon was high. The perfume melted into the air. Explanations at such a time! Inside of him, somewhere, he reasoned that if, later, he returned to America with her, if all went well when he went first for the accounting, she would forgive, since he had loved her, and she him.

Why should he wait? What was it? That as each wind departed, never to return, so with each untasted moment

And—why shouldn't he live for himself? From all that had happened, he believed, so he argued, that the men who are happiest are the men who succeed. The men who trample. He had been kind and loving and grateful, what was his reward? Men do not get what they give. It was the hard, passionate man who was rewarded, not he who is tender, thoughtful, even unselfish.

"Shikata na," he muttered. It was written. Fated. Intended. The air was hot. It seemed to hold him down; he felt a part of the throng, shiver of their impulses, their desires. Spring was in the air. The crowd felt it. Wells realized it. Ellen sensed it—all ecstatic.

It was a mad appeal.

His hand closed tightly over hers. Why wait? The servants were gone. The house upon the hill deserted.

Wells bent his head so that his mouth was close to her ear as he spoke.

"Ellen . . . O-Hana . . . let us return to the house! Now! Come . . . let us return to the house!"

Ellen felt him trembling. Trembling is infectious, she began to tremble also.

"Yes, yes, we will go to the house," she agreed in a quick whisper, not knowing why she said it.

CHAPTER XII

Neither looked at the other. Instinctively Wells felt that which had whelmed him was overcoming Ellen also.

One thought alone was paramount, and without companion, in Wells' whirling brain. He was the lord, Kayama-San—or so she thought. The lord did not ask nor demand. He offers a request, and thereby confers a supreme favor upon any one fortunate enough to be so designated.

She had not argued, had not quibbled, and he saw in this acquiescence something beautifully touching. A superb plea of nature appealing passionately against man's crucifixion of purity upon the cross of sophistication . . . he did not think of it in these words . . . he did not think . . . he was far beyond thought. He heard her breath come quickly, short and painfully. That she already regretted her awayed decision he could not know. That she moved so silently because she knew nothing to plead that would have interested him. He was not with the heady wine of possession.

They repassed the high-pitched footbridge linking the miniature islands of a garden, repassed the flagged path that half-circled a lotus-covered pond. He did not look at Ellen, but saw her white reflection in the water. Instantly he took her hand, and so they walked forward, at last mounting the winding path, shrub-bordered, that leads to the house of the Thunder Gate.

Only one of the panels of the main room was open. They must pass close together through it.

The hanging lamp had gone out, and only the tiny lotus-lamp of bronze with its sputtering taper in the rape-seed oil burned unsteadily before the secondary shrine. There was no sound within, no patter of feet nor muffled laughter.

He could not see her face, could only mark its oval. Very slowly he took her hands. He who had been so full of subtle reasonings, of arguments, of decisions, who had so yearned for action resultant in the lovelessness of his companion being drawn within the circle of his arms . . . he, the man of impulse so foreign, was silent and motionless as if chained. He heard the pounding of her heart . . . and thought it was his own. A great peace brooded in the ancient house.

Wells drew her hands together and, very slowly, as if moved by some mechanism within him, placed his other hand upon her shoulder.

The moments passed. Neither spoke nor moved, except that once Ellen's head raised—perhaps an inch, no more so that each saw deep into the other's eyes. Wells' hand pressed against her shoulder.

They started . . . hearing the whistle of a blind woman in the streets; a long sweet call, plaintive; one sustained note first, then two short ones in another and lower key. To warn the pangers to take heed for her sake, since she cannot see.

Blind? Oh, more than blind! Here, said the throbbing night, here was his joy, his life and happiness. Take it, murmured the trees, for the bloom is soon gone from the fruit. Take it, ever, heretofore subdued sense told her, for the night is going . . . it is the hour of the Highest Star, the hour of love, of capture and giving . . . and the night is passing fast . . .

He had no time for argument now. He only knew that, trembling in his half-embrace, was the girl that he loved, that the night was sweet and made for rapture. His heart whispered her name again and again like a litany.

"Stinging Tree"

The "stinging tree," a luxurious shrub, is a curious plant of Queensland, Australia. It has a peculiar odor and when touched it leaves no mark, but the pain is maddening and for months afterward the affected part is tender when touched in wet weather or when it becomes wet in washing.

Ancient Chinese City

An aerial survey of the land located near the present tower of Chow, 60 miles southwest of Peking, indicates that the site at one time contained a city of considerable importance antedating written history.

PRACTICAL WAY TO USE KITCHEN CABINET

In order to have good light and a pleasant view from a window while working at her kitchen cabinet, a farm woman living in Chesterfield county, Va., had the top part removed and fastened to the wall at the right side of one of the kitchen windows. The lower half, containing the bins and drawers, was set directly in front of the window and its top surface was extended on each side with a shelf making a counter reaching two corners of the room. These extension pieces were carefully fitted into the available space and joined to the top of the cabinet. The entire counter was then covered with tholeum matching that on the floor, and varnished to resist water, heat and grease. A little shelf was put in under the counter on the left-hand side of the cabinet and a hole made in the counter just above it. When the garbage pail was set on this little shelf it was easy to dispose of vegetable parings or other food refuse without leaving the place where one was working. A high kitchen stool was provided, the wood box was fitted with cutlers, and all small utensils that would hang up were put on hooks on the left side of the window. These improvements were made in connection with a kitchen contest carried on in the county under the direction of the extension agents of the Virginia Polytechnic Institute and the United States Department of Agriculture.

ORANGE JUICE AS AN APPETIZER IS GOOD

More Than Refreshing Drink for Children.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

"All gone. More, please," is what most children say after the mid-morning lunch of orange juice plus a cracker or two. These orange juice looks, smells, and tastes good to most children, and they generally do not need to be begged to drink it. In this case in fact it disappeared before the camera man could get into action.

Orange juice is much more than just a refreshing drink for children, says the United States Department of Agriculture. It is a valuable food containing among other elements the vitamins needed to promote growth. Also when taken as part of the mid-morning lunch with a cracker or two, fresh orange juice seems to whet the appetite for the regular meals, and underweight children have thus been helped to add the pounds needed to bring them up to normal.

Pure orange juice, just as it is when squeezed from the fruit, is generally so good that it needs no other

Orange Juice is So Good That It Does Not Need Any Flavoring.

Flavoring. If desired, however, it may be diluted with water, or if it is very sour a little sugar may be added. The good effect will be spoiled if it is sweetened too much, and also children should be taught to like best the natural fruit flavor.

The white of an egg may be beaten up and mixed with a glass of orange juice for a child who finds it difficult to take eggs in other ways. This refreshing combination is so easy of assimilation that many physicians recommend it for invalids whose diets must be very carefully prepared.

To Keep Mattress in Place

Take a piece of tape several inches long, sew one end to the side of either part, work a buttonhole in the other end of tape and sew a button to the other part of mattress and button. If this is done on both sides and at one or two places underneath the mattress cannot slip apart.

MICRO-ORGANISMS ARE CAUSE OF SPOILAGE

Their Presence Often Unsuspected Until Too Late.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Bacteria, yeasts, and molds—three types of micro-organisms—are the most important and insidious of all causes of food spoilage. They are almost everywhere, yet their presence is often unsuspected until they have caused a food to change color, ferment, or decay. Micro-organisms are distributed in all sorts of ways. Some spread themselves by rapid growth; others are carried by the air, by water, by insects and animals, and on the hands and clothing of people.

In a new Farmers' Bulletin, 1874, entitled "Care of Food in the Home," the United States Department of Agriculture explains that the growth of bacteria, yeasts, and molds, like that of any other plants, is influenced by temperature, moisture, and light. One of the chief problems in the care of food is to make these conditions so unfavorable that micro-organisms can not live or at least are unable to develop, without at the same time making undesirable changes in the food itself. For example, pasteurization of milk raises the temperature for a certain time to a point that destroys undesirable bacteria, but does not give the bottled-milk flavor. Most micro-organisms are sensitive to cold also, at least to the extent that growth is more or less checked by a temperature of 40 degrees to 50 degrees F.

Drying is another way to prevent the growth of micro-organisms in foods. Dried fruits and vegetables, for instance, may keep for months in a cool, dry place, but as soon as water is added to them they will spoil as quickly as fresh kinds. Direct sunlight destroys many micro-organisms, but the dim light of the cellar is just right for some molds.

Bacteria of various sorts must be dealt with in the care of food. Lactic acid bacteria, for example, cause milk to sour but do not necessarily make it unwholesome, and are an aid in making butter and cheese. Other kinds, however, make foods putrefy and decay, and still others develop dangerous poisons. In addition, foods are sometimes contaminated in various ways with the bacteria of such diseases as typhoid fever and paratyphoid, tuberculosis, diphtheria, and dysentery. For instance, the bacteria of typhoid and paratyphoid are transmitted to food as it is handled by persons who carry these organisms in their bodies, though they are apparently healthy.

Scraping Scratches Tin

For ordinary care, tin utensils should be washed in hot, soapy water, rinsed in hot clear water, and dried thoroughly, according to the United States Department of Agriculture. A tin utensil that has food dried on it should be covered with a weak soda solution, heated for a few minutes, and then washed. Scraping scratches tin and may expose the iron or steel surface underneath, which may rust. Tin darkens with use, and this tarnish protects the tin; therefore tin utensils should not be scoured simply for the sake of making them bright.

REQUIREMENTS FOR SUCCESSFUL ORGANIZATION

All farmers realize that they need to be organized but they are not quite so certain as to just what kind of an organization they should have. In forming the Farmers Co-operative Association the needs and conditions of the farmers of this county were fully considered. This association is founded on the conviction that to fill the present need of the farmers in this county an organization is needed that embodies the features listed below.

We need an organization that:

1. Will market the products of the members and purchase the needs of its members to a better advantage than they could do individually without an organization.

2. Will benefit the members to a larger amount than it will cost them to support the organization.

3. Will be in full control of members at all times.

4. Will be in charge of honest and conscientious men in whom the members have confidence, with all officers handling money under bond.

5. Will keep members informed on all matters connected with the association.

6. Is composed of members who want an organization and will do their individual part in making it successful.

Think these things over. Our only purpose is to have a business establishment of our own for our own mutual benefit and not for the benefit of any individual. If it will help some of us, it will help you and therefore we invite you to think seriously about the six requirements as stated above. Read them several times until you thoroughly understand them. See if you do not think they are the things that are necessary for a successful organization in this county at this time. Compare these requirements to the organizations we have had in the past and you will have at least a partial answer to the question of why they did not measure up to expectations. Of course our organization, as at present arranged is not claimed to be perfect but it is under our own control and we can make any changes we find necessary at any time. This is one of its big advantages.

In future letters in this paper we will show how our organization will fulfill the requirements as above outlined.

Elsewhere in this paper you will find an announcement of a meeting to be held in the court house in Clanton Saturday afternoon at 1:30. The entrance will be free and open to all and everyone will be welcome. Come and bring your neighbors.

Yours for success,

Farmers Co-operative Association

A PROCLAMATION

BY THE GOVERNOR

Whereas, the President has approved the holding of a defense test in the continental limits of the United States on September 12, 1924, the sixth anniversary of our great victory at the battle of St. Michel, and believing that the defense of a country in time of war depends upon its volunteer or citizen soldiery who should be properly organized and equipped, and that our country should be prepared to defend itself, and believing in the plan suggested by General Pershing in time of peace to have an organization composed of the Regular Army, the National Guard and the Reserve, properly organized and equipped for defense, and believing that such organization would be less expensive to the national Government than a large standing army, and believing that the only way in which to build up this organization is to know from what source we could draw our strength, I heartily concur in the sentiments expressed by Major General David C. Shanks on this subject, and in order to bring this about have an organization for defense I concur in the plans being prepared and disseminated by the Adjutant-General's Office of Alabama. This movement is not to be of a militaristic character but is merely to represent the requirements of our National Defense policy. The defense test should inform the public of the plans and methods by which American armies will be raised in the event of a national emergency, and it is not intended to encourage war but to prevent war.

Now, Therefore, I, William W. Brandon, Governor of the State of Alabama, do call upon every young man of military age (18 to 45), every religious or patriotic organization, and all true Americans, whether male or female, to lend every effort and assistance in every way possible to make this occasion, our first National Defense Test, a marked success, and I call upon the people of this State on September 12, 1924, at such hour in the afternoon as is convenient in their respective communities where there is established a national Guard or an Organized Reserve Organization, to participate in this patriotic demonstration. The Adjutant General of Alabama will promulgate information as to the ceremonies attendant upon such occasions and I suggest, as indicated by General Shanks, as a part of the ceremonies, to include patriotic music and an invocation for the continued peace and prosperity of the Nation, and a patriotic address by a selected speaker whose theme will be along the lines of the clause of the preamble to the constitution of the United States for the common defense.

In Witness Whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and the seal of the Great State of Alabama, this 30th day of July, 1924.

WM. BRANDON, Governor.

By the Governor:

S. H. BLAN, Secretary of State.

FAIR WARNING

Parents and Guardians Especially Better Sit Up and Take Notice.

In another column this week we print a clipping that means a good deal to auto owners and children drivers.

You see the age limit at all is fifteen years. This is not intended as a joke this time, but is to be rigidly enforced.

Every sheriff and every officer in the State will positively be instructed to enforce this law to the letter. Sheriff Littlejohn says he has no objection in the matter, but will have to put the law into force promptly on and after August 17th.

These are the facts and you can learn yourself as you see fit. Our duty is done.

GAME CONSERVATION

The Conservation, Protection and Propagation of the State's wild life resources are being emphasized more today than ever before.

Th sportsman is not alone in his desire to see all forms of protected wild life conserved and increased for his pleasure and benefit.

The State of Alabama takes cognizance of the fact that the wild life resources within its borders have a tremendous economic value—not alone the game birds and animals but the insectivorous birds as well. Farmers everywhere are beginning to realize the economic value of the insectivorous birds, and they are ready to co-operate in any reasonable way to secure better protection of those kinds that are of proven economic value to agriculture.

In order, therefore, to bring about a more cordial relationship and common understanding among the people of Alabama in setting up a conservation program for the future and assistance in the determination of the policies to be pursued, I am calling a convention of the citizens of the State to meet in Montgomery at two o'clock P. M. on Wednesday September the 11th to continue in session for two days.

It is hoped every County in the State will be represented at this conference. Each organization should select delegates, and those counties in which game and fish protective associations or conservation clubs have not been organized, should organize at once, and select their delegates to the convention.

The program for the meeting will be announced later.

Very truly yours,

I. T. QUINN,

Commissioner of Game and Fisheries.

TO REBUILD

A large store building recently burned when the Chilton Hardware Company lost their immense stock of hardware by fire, is to be rebuilt in as speedily as possible.

O. W. Jones, the proprietor of the Chilton Hardware Company, hopes to get back into his same old home in 60 or 90 days. He is at the present located in the warehouse in the rear of the W. A. Kemp old store.

STILL BUILDING

Down on South Sixth Street, Mr. J. C. Jones is having erected a nice bungalow home that will help in accommodating the constantly increasing population that is drifting towards Clanton.

This will be a splendid home for some one and is close in to the business district.

There are at the present time about a dozen houses going up in various parts of the city.

Besides, there are several additions being made to the down town district and every one is occupied just as soon as it is finished.

ON THE JOB AGAIN

Dr. Ezell, pastor of the Baptist Church, has returned from his thirty day vacation. He got in last Friday afternoon in fine fettle but a little jaded from his long auto drive, having come straight through from his father's home in South Carolina.

Both services Sunday he filled his pulpit again and gave his congregation two especially fine sermons as a starter back on the job.

The present arrangements are for holding a series of gospel meetings at this Church early in October.

CAMP MEETING

The annual Camp Meeting of the Seventh Day Adventists is in session here this week and is being attended by large crowds at every session.

They have their tabernacle and little tented town established on the Guldge property on North Seventh Street, the same location they use every year.

A large attendance of visitors are present from a distance and they all seem to be most happily situated in tents.

Extra good music is one pleasing feature of the meeting.

TOO GOOD TO KEEP

Just after Dr. Ezell had entered on the good roads in Georgia on his return trip from South Carolina, his car got over the ground so easily that before he knew it he was burning the wind.

A traffic cop called him down, but as he is a pretty good talker and he had some ladies with him to back him up, he escaped further trouble than to be given an admonition that 20 miles an hour was fast enough for even a homesick preacher to travel.

STORE REMOVED

The large dry goods furnishings store of Mr. W. A. Kemp was moved this week from its old location, in the Johnson block on Second Avenue, to its new home, in one of the elegant new store buildings on Second Avenue just being completed by Mr. J. C. Jones.

Mr. Lande will move into the store vacated by Mr. Kemp as soon as a few changes and improvements can be made in the interior.

Mr. Hugh Jones will move into the other Jones building just as soon as the contractor can complete the glass front and a few other details.

CHILTON COUNTY DEMOCRATIC EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE CALLED TO MEET

The members of this Committee are called to meet in the parlors of the Wilson Hotel, on Friday August 22nd, at 2 P. M. Business of vital importance to be transacted.

WE LIVE—SOMETIMES

If there is any one thing on earth that we KNOW we enjoy, it is a dish full of fine, ripe tomatoes when we go to eat.

Well, thanks to the thoughtfulness and generosity of our especially good friend, Mr. W. A. Candler, we are living just that way now.

He brought us Tuesday a large basket full of as fine tomatoes as grow and since that time we have been in love with the whole world.

Mr. Candler is not only an up-to-date farmer, he also grows some of the finest peaches that go to the market. We are especially grateful.

MEETING IS ON AT LIBERTY

A protracted meeting is in progress this week at the Liberty Baptist Church.

The interest is said to be great and good crowds are in attendance. Rev. Nickols is aiding the pastor and doing some excellent and effective gospel preaching.

MEETING AT SAMARIA

A series of meetings are in progress at the Samaria Baptist Church this week.

Rev. S. L. Heath, of Tuscaloosa is doing most of the preaching.

The meetings are largely attended and much good is being done.

JOKE ON THE OFFICERS

While going to Birmingham Monday in his Buick Mr. C. B. Cox, the most intense prohibitionist of the State, was held up and searched by some officers he chanced to meet.

They did not know Mr. Cox, and as he was travelling on a flat tire, they decided something must be wrong, so they held him up.

The joke was on them that time for if anybody hates whiskey and bootlegging it certainly is Charlie Cox.

GETTING READY

All of the splendid ginning plants in town are putting the finishing touches on their repairs and late improvements now. They are going to be prepared to take care of all customers in first class shape this year.

Every one of these plants is in such perfect condition and are handled by such clever and popular men that it will be hard for some of the farmers to make a choice, but there is one good safe thing about it no matter which one you patronize you will get the best of service as well as honest and courteous treatment.

WE NEED IT HERE

The citizens of Mentone, Ala., that famous Lookout Mountain summer resort, are out in a plain, strong imperative demand that the visitors and all others there, who indulge in appearing on the streets, riding or walking, or in any other public place, disport themselves half clad in bathing suits, must stop it or the courts of the land will be called on to enforce public decency and to punish all indecent behavior carried on in or around their town.

They are absolutely right and it is a shame and a pity that Clanton, and all other towns and communities, do not possess the same moral courage and regard for decency that these good people do.

The statute books of Alabama carry laws on the subject of public indecency that are openly and flagrantly violated hundreds of times in the State every 24 hours and no one ever has the courage to invoke them.

Our officers follow the popular trend and do nothing so far as the code is concerned with public indecency.

These good people of Mentone have reached the limit and they intend to have more decency or find out if these laws mean anything.

At the rate the social world has traveled for the past year or so, it will not be many more years before clothes will only be worn when the rigors of winter make it necessary. Chastity or virtue will be rare in our race when the sex associate together like cattle.

WE'RE SURPRISED

Three female negroes were parading on some of the less frequented streets Saturday attired in shirts and pants, like the ones that seem to be so popular with some of the white females.

This surprised us no little, for we have noticed that the colored element has been very backward in adopting dresses too short at both ends, and several other of the ultra and extreme décolleté fashions that are so commonly in vogue among the social leaders now.

This trio of modern fashion innovators were evidently lacking in the nerve to push themselves forward among the crowds, and they really shrank, by their actions, from their shame and embarrassment almost had them ready to hide.

It is hardly probable that this "style" will become very popular with the negroes, much as they enjoy imitating their white models.

MR. JNO. R. BRUCE DEAD

Last Saturday afternoon, at 6 o'clock, Mr. Jno. R. Bruce, a former citizen of Chilton County and a brother of our Mr. S. L. Bruce, of Route 1, passed over the Great Divide and entered his eternal home.

Mr. Bruce was 60 years of age, and had been living in Birmingham for 26 years in the employ of the L. & N. Railroad Company. He has been a sufferer from that terrible malady, cancer of the stomach, since last February. Medical skill was exhausted in an effort to cure him, but such was not to be the case, so last Saturday after long months of agony, the end came.

His elder brother, Frank Bruce, lives in Gadsden. He also left a wife and five daughters. All of the daughters are living and married.

The remains were laid to rest in Elmwood Cemetery Sunday afternoon, his brethren of the Knights of Pythias were in charge of the funeral.

We extend to the bereaved ones our sympathy, and trust that the happy recollections that cluster around his memory will soothe and temper the sorrow that saddens each heart.

PARENTS, TAKE NOTICE

The new code of Alabama takes effect on the 17th day of this month. There are numbers of laws new to the Code. We mention Chapter 81 of the Criminal Code, beginning at page 60. This relates to the operation of motor vehicles. We especially call attention to 3329 and 3330 of said Code. These sections prohibit any person under the age of fifteen years from driving a motor vehicle on the public highways and makes it a misdemeanor for such person to operate or drive a motor vehicle; and the next section, 3330, makes it a misdemeanor for any person in charge of a motor vehicle to permit any child under the age of fifteen years to operate motor vehicles on the public highways.

The offense by the last statute is a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of not more than $500 and hard labor or jail sentence at the discretion of the presiding officer.—Opelika Daily News.

MEETING AT WALNUT CREEK

A protracted meeting is in progress at Walnut Creek Baptist Church this week.

Rev. T. C. Cassady, of Montgomery, is aiding the pastor in the good work and is doing some great gospel preaching out there for those good people. You are invited.

Our Employees Are Bonded

Every Bank expends considerable effort to secure none but honest and efficient officials and employees.

The directors of the First National Bank Bank feel that they have been especially fortunate in securing the services of persons of unusual integrity and ability for every position of trust in this Bank.

The Directors, however, feel that for the absolute protection of its depositors they should not depend on honesty alone for this protection, but should place all possible safeguards around those whom it employs.

A heavy bond has, therefore, been placed on every employee of this institution, which insures more completely than would otherwise be possible, full protection for the Bank and individual depositor alike.

HOW THIS WOMAN GOT STRENGTH

Put Up 300 Quarts Fruit, 500 Glasses Jelly and Took Care of Four Children

Norwalk, Iowa.—"I have been meaning for some time to write and tell you how much good your medicine has done me. When I started to take it I was almost bed fast and would have been in bed all the time if I had had any one to care for my children. There was so much swelling and pain that I could hardly take a step. I took seven bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash, and found that so healing. I am not entirely well yet for I was in bad shape when I started your medicine, but I am so much better that I am not afraid to recommend it, and I think if I keep on taking it, it will cure me. I have done my work all alone this summer, caring for four children, and I canned 300 quarts of fruit and made 500 glasses of jelly, so you see I must be better. I feel pretty good all the time and I am glad to tell others about the medicine."—Mrs. C. J. WENNER-MARK, Box 141, Norwalk, Iowa.

Summer Find You Miserable?

It's hard to do one's work when every day brings morning lameness, aching backache, and a dull, tired feeling. If you suffer thus, why not find the cause? Likely it's your kidneys. Headaches, dizziness and kidney irregularities may give further proof that your kidneys need help. Don't risk neglect! Use Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys. Thousands have been helped by Doan's. They should help you. Ask your neighbor!

An Alabama Case

Chris Jones, of North St., R. R. No. 3, Troy, Ala., says: "My back hurt and when I stooped pains darted through the small of it. Night after night I couldn't sleep on account of the steady heavy, gnawing ache in the small of my back. My kidneys acted too freely, also. One box of Doan's Pills, however, cured me."

Kilauea's Goddess of Fire Stirs Up Halemaumau in Hawaii National Park

By JOHN DICKINSON SHERMAN

PELE, the Hawaiian Goddess of Fire, who lives in Halemaumau, "The House of Everlasting Fire" in the crater of Kilauea volcano in Hawaii National Park, is cleaning house. Either that or she is venting her anger over the defiance of Kapiolani, the Christian princess.

Pele, in the main, is a good-natured goddess. Largely she confines her activities to Halemaumau. But she has a temper that might fairly be called volcanic. And occasionally she lies out to rage.

Take, for example, the time she destroyed a third of King Keoua's army. That was away back in 1790, when King Kamehameha was bringing all the Hawaiian islands under his rule. King Keoua, with a small fighting force of not more than 400 men, with their women and children, was passing by Kilauea. Pele was quietly attending to her own affairs, instead of getting excited over the small army. So the warriors shouted insults at the goddess and rolled down rocks from the cliffs, just at twilight.

Pele was naturally angry and during the night she punished some of her insolent with a shower of hot sand and small rocks.

King Keoua tried to make peace with Pele next day. He made offerings at the temple of the goddess close by. But Keoua was a cruel king and included in his peace offerings human sacrifices. This angered Pele afresh and for two days and nights she stormed. The fourth day Keoua decided to march away to safety. He formed his forces into three bands and the march began.

Then Pele took her vengeance. With total darkness she covered the land, while rain fell and thunder roared and lightning flashed. She threw up gigantic boulders a thousand feet into the air. She scattered showers of gray ashes. She blew out her hot breath in great gusts.

Her fiery breath caught the middle band of King Keoua's forces, and withered them up—warriors, women, children and live stock. They fell dead. Her gray ashes plastered them up where they fell. Another hot breath caught stragglers from the first party. They shared the same fate.

All this is sober historical truth. If you doubt it, ask Prof. T. A. Jaggar, Jr., director of the Hawaiian Volcanic Research association and probably the leading volcanist of the world. He lives on the edge of Kilauea's crater, has his observatory close by and knows Pele intimately from long acquaintance. He will tell you that the ash that is plastered about the country side is the very same ash that fell in 1790. He will show you the footprints in ashes and lava of King Keoua's stricken warriors, of the women and children and even of their pigs.

Now, about theory that Pele has just got around, rather late in the day, to showing her wrath against the Christian princess who defied her. The missionaries descended on the Hawaian islands in 1820 or thereabouts and one of their first notable converts was the Princess Kapiolani. Just 100 years ago the brave Kapiolani, with the zeal of the new convert, decided to test the power of her new god. She ventured to pass the night on the brink of Halemaumau. She ate of the "tabu" (forbidden) berries, consecrated to the goddess. She even dared to stand on the brink and shout:

"Jehovah is most powerful, Jehovah is my God. I defy thee, Pele."

Maybe Pele had gone visiting to Mauna Loa or Haleakala. Or she may have been enjoying a siesta. Anyway, Pele took no notice whatever of the performance. But the native Hawaiians, who had been watching her, were feeling peeved over Princess Kapiolani's defiance. And of course a hundred years are no more than a minute in the life of a goddess.

The modern, up-to-date volcanist, however, has ideas of his own about Pele and what she is doing right now. You see, the "explosive eruption" which Pele is now staging differs from the ordinary eruption in that the discharge of gas, smoke and rocks is not accompanied by lava. So Roy Finch, one of the volcanists at the observatory advances the theory that many tons of rock, avalanched down from the sides of the crater, have choked the hallways to Pele's living quarters in "The House of Everlasting Fire." Ordinarily Pele cleans up by washing these rocks out by an extra flow of lava. But this time Pele finds her house all cluttered up with rocks and is throwing them out, sweeping the hallways and raising an awful dust.

So Pele is just cleaning house, after all. Still, it's a mighty spectacular house-cleaning, as can be seen by the picture. Gen. John F. O'Han of New York, commander during the World war of Twenty-Seventh division, saw this particular outburst from a point close at hand. Here are some of the things he says about it:

Just before the explosion it seemed as if the pit took a deep inhalation, because the little smoke that was then leaving the mouth of the pit was sucked downward. A moment later there was a great explosion, a vast volume of smoke was shot into the air, it seemed to be composed of minute particles of volcanic ash, reddish gray in color. It was densely thick. Ultimately it ascended to the clouds far above. Mixed in with the smoke were thousands of tons of boulders of all sizes. These were propelled into the air, apparently to a very great height. In their descent they came in contact with other boulders on the upward journey. The result was thousands of detonations and small explosions as these boulders came in violent contact. They struck flashes of fire, so that they appeared like bursting shells.

Almost immediately the sky darkened and was filled with heavy rain clouds that were not in evidence before. Great peals of thunder boomed out, and long

Mathematical Egyptians

Apologies of the treasures unearthed in the recent excavations in Egypt it is timely to recall that the ancient Egyptians had several markedly distinct intellectual and mental characteristics, the first and most unusual of which seems to have been a love of mechanical accuracy that amounted to a passion. Combined with their natural mechanical aptitude, this passion resulted in some of the most highly skilled work the world has ever seen. To cite but a few examples, in the Egyptian tombs the granite work was polished by hand to such an accuracy that its average deviation from perfect smoothness has been found to be 1-7000th of an inch.

hordes of fighting snatched into the sides of the mountain. Several of these seemed to descend directly into the pit. Extraordinary as it may seem, the pit immediately answered with similar shafts of lightning. They were plainly to be seen through the heavy smoke, shooting up into the sky as if snatching back at the clouds. A second or two later rain began falling through the clouds of ash smoke that settled about in every direction. This mixture of rain and ash smoke made a fine cement-like mud.

"The Hawaiian volcanoes," writes Professor Jaggar, "are truly a national asset, wholly unique of their kind, the most famous in the world of science and the most continuously, variously, and harmlessly active volcanoes on earth. Kilauea crater has been nearly continuously active, with a lake or lakes of molten lava, for a century. Mauna Loa is the largest active volcano in the world, with eruptions about once a decade, and has poured out more lava during the last century than any other volcano on the globe. Haleakala is a mountain mass ten thousand feet high, with a tremendous crater rift in its summit eight miles in diameter and three thousand feet deep, containing many high lava cones. Haleakala is probably the largest of all known craters among volcanoes that are technically known as active. It erupted less than two hundred years ago.

DR. T. A. JAGGAR
Geologist & Professor

Kilauea has not erupted like this since 1790. People from all over the islands have crowded in to see the sight. One man was killed by a falling rock and several were knocked down. The danger zones, however, are not wide.

In the prehistoric past Kilauea blew its head off in a tremendous explosion. It is only about 4,000 feet high now. This crater is a part of Mauna Loa (Big Mountain), which towers up to 13,675 feet, is snow-capped and has its own crater, Mokuaweoweo. Halemaumau is Kilauea's lower pit in the floor of the crater. It is a mile in circumference and contains at all times a raging sea of molten lava, its white-hot waves lashing and gnawing at the imprisoning walls, and its vast fountains of incandescent rock eternally flinging their fiery spray in air, seething and roaring in awful grandeur. The molten sea rises and falls periodically, at times even overflowing the rim of the pit and spreading out over the floor of the main crater, while red-hot crags and massive islands rise from its depths to either collapse in tumultuous avalanches or subside gently beneath the surface of the lava. The pit is fascinating by daylight, but at night, when the imprisoned fires are at their grandest, the scene is entrancing. Ordinarily it may be witnessed in perfect safety.

Halemaumau is well named, being literally a place of everlasting fire. And it is always spectacular. At times of unusual activity the sea of molten lava is a great sight. In March of 1921 was such a time of unusual activity. The lava surged up to the top of the pit, swept over the rim and overflowed far out on the floor of the crater. Halemaumau was never more spectacular. The lava boiled and geysered and great waves heaved on the rocky confines. Hawaii is one of the most picturesque and fascinating places of earth. It may have been visited by white men as early as 1527, but dismately is usually credited to Capt. James Cook in 1778. He named them Sandwich Islands. The islands were then densely inhabited, with a king for every island. In 1790, Kamehameha, king of the island of Hawaii, united the peoples and established a kingdom that lasted till 1894, when Queen Liliuokalani was deposed and a republic was proclaimed. In 1898 the islands were annexed to the United States.

JESUS CLEANSSES THE TEMPLE

LESSON TEXT.—John 2:13-22.
GOLDEN TEXT.—"My house shall be called the house of prayer."—Matt. 21:13.

PRIMARY TOPIC.—Jesus Loves His Father's House.
JUNIOR TOPIC.—Jesus and the Temple Traders.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC.—Right Conduct in God's House.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC.—Reverence and Care for God's House.

I. Jesus Attending the Passover (v. 13).

He went up to Jerusalem very often to attend the various feasts. Beginning at the age of twelve this custom was habitual with Him to the end of His ministry. He was under the law and therefore He obeyed it (Deut. 16:16), but primarily He went up because it was His Father's house. It is important that all people from their youth up should make the attendance upon the house of God a habit of their lives.

II. The Temple Defiled (v. 14).

For the various sacrifices in the temple many oxen, sheep and doves were needed. Many persons came from distant parts of the land; therefore, it was impracticable to bring their sacrifices with them, so they brought money and bought the animals needed. This privilege the Lord had granted to them (Deut. 14:24-26). This exchange was necessary, but when evil men used it as an opportunity for gain it became an offense before God. If Christ were to come to many of our so-called houses of God today He would find them polluted in just as aggravating a way. His purging the temple courts shows the need of purity and order in all matters connected with divine worship.

III. Jesus Cleansing the Temple (vv. 15-17).

1. Driving Out the Merchants and Animals (v. 15). Being the Lord of the temple, the very Messiah who should come to His temple, He had the right to cleanse it, to drive out those who polluted it. It is not said that He used the scourge of cords but, at any rate, it was the symbol of authority.

2. His Command (v. 16). "Make not my Father's house an house of merchandise." Merchandise is legitimate in its place. Any use of the Lord's house other than to worship and honor Him is to make it a place of merchandise, to pollute it. There is great danger of a worldly spirit intruding into the domain of religion. Men who unite with the church for temporal interests, men who come to the house of worship with worldly matters uppermost in their thought, ministers who serve as professionals, men who bring their ill-gotten gains to help further the work of the Lord, in fact all who do not behave properly in the Lord's house, are defiling it and therefore all such must meet His judgment.

3. His Zeal (v. 17). He was so completely dominated by the passion to do the will of God that He unreservedly gave Himself to His work. This was according to the prophecy, "The zeal of thine house hath eaten me up." We should take His act as an example to us in the divine service and manifest commendable zeal. This reform did not prove permanent. A few years later He cleansed it again. This shows how quickly the human heart is under the control of sin. The only permanent reformation is that which is wrought in regeneration. The new birth is necessary.

IV. The Jews Demanding a Sign (vv. 18-22).

They demanded of Jesus that He show His authority for such behavior. He told them that the only sign that would be given was His death and resurrection. Destroying the temple and raising it up in three days refers to His crucifixion and resurrection. The resurrection is an irrefragable proof of His divine sonship (Rom. 1:4). Jesus came forth from the grave of His own power. The Jews did not want a sign. They were only finding excuses for their wickedness. Men today who are demanding proof of Christ's divinity do not really wish the proof but are only trying to find excuses for their sins. Jesus had the ability to justify His ways before God and man. After the resurrection the disciples remembered the words of Jesus on this occasion. This shows that no sowing of the truth shall eventually fail. This ought to be a great comfort for Sunday school teachers and Christian workers.

Important to All Women Readers of This Paper

Swamp-Root a Fine Medicine

Thousands upon thousands of women have kidney or bladder trouble and never suspect it.

Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease. If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

You may suffer pain in the back, head aches and loss of ambition. Poor health makes you nervous, irritable and may be despondent; it makes any one so.

But hundreds of women claim that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, by restoring health to the kidneys, proved to be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Many send for a sample bottle to see what Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine will do for them. By enclosing ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., you may receive sample size bottle by parcel post. You can purchase medium and large size bottles at all drug stores.—Advertisement.

Commands Clashed

Little Billy was visiting his grandmother and she was doing her best to give the small boy a good time.

The morning after his arrival she called one of the neighbor's children over to play with him.

"There, now," remarked grandma, in her kindest tone, "You two can have a good time together."

But the two boys merely stared at each other across the room and grandma could not quite understand it.

"Come, now, children," she said, "Go on out into the garden, Billy, and strike an acquaintance."

"But, grandma," complained the little boy, "mother told me just before I came away not to fight."

Pursuing the not-worth-while is always a losing game.

ALABAMA NEWS HAPPENINGS

A Resume of the More Important Events of Interest Condensed To An Epitomized Form.

A tract of 112 acres in East Gadsden, two miles from the city, has been acquired, as a site for the Alabama School of Trades and Industry, according to announcement. It is part of the Paden farm and fronts on the main highway between Gadsden and Anniston. Members of the board of trustees are highly pleased with the location. Dr. John W. Abercrombie, state superintendent of education, announced while here that his assistant and engineers of the T. C. I. Co. and of the Alabama Power company would shortly begin work on plans for the building and equipment. The board has $60,000 which is to be put into the main building. It is stated that much of the equipment will be donated by large industrial concerns over the country. It is the intention to get the school started as early as possible.

The full demand of the Southern Underwriters association, necessary to keep Albany and Decatur property as high-class insurance risks, met some months ago by agreement, are now met in fact, with every new water main, every new force pump and all other fire-fighting equipment, including additional fireman, in place and functioning. This news was given out by T. B. Hale, local manager of the Alabama Water company, which furnishes the entire water supply for the Twin Cities, and Mr. Hale's statement was verified by officials of both cities.

Several hundred shopmen of the Central of Georgia Railway company and of the Illinois Central Railroad, of Birmingham and Columbus, held their picnic at Grime's Lake. The families of many of the trainmen attended. The "Boys' Industrial School, of Birmingham furnished part of the music. Four extra coaches from Columbus and six from Birmingham furnished transportation for the visitors. In the afternoon Birmingham and Columbus played a baseball game, the Magic City shopmen winning easily.

Restoration of depleted oyster areas, under provisions of an act of the 1923 legislature, through planting of seed oysters, will be pushed as fast as available funds accrue to the credit of the sea food division of the department of game and fisheries, according to Commissioner I. T. Quinn.

A petition was filed with Alabama Public Service Commission by C. T. Davidson seeking authority to sell his light plant at Helena to the Alabama Power company. The petition was set for hearing September 8.

The Montgomery Chamber of Commerce, through its board of directors, called upon the city commission to adopt a traffic ordinance that will relieve the congestion in the downtown section. The statement was made that the city had outgrown old ordinances and that one must be adopted that will limit the time for the parking of automobiles in the business section.

Frank A. Vernon, a prominent merchant and farmer of Cusseta, while walking in his sleep stumbled out of the open window of his bedroom and fell to the ground below. In the fall, Mr. Vernon landed on his head and shoulders, dislocating one shoulder and sustaining other painful injuries. Fortunately, the injuries are not of a serious injury.

The Birmingham-Montgomery highway, one of the most important roads which will be constructed with state and federal funds, will be ready for use in two years, according to estimates made by W. S. Keller, state highway engineer. Thirty-nine miles are now under construction and contracts for twenty-five miles are yet to be let.

A skilled instructor for the Boy Scout troops of Huntsville and Albany-Decatur has been secured by the Huntsville Rotary club. The instructor, who will report about August 15, will divide his time between Huntsville and the Twin Cities.

The B. and M. Lumber company has closed down its plant at Bay Minette for repairs and enlargement. A new dry kiln, doubling the capacity of the plant, will be erected.

The first bale of new cotton grown in Montgomery county during the present season was sold at 30 cents a pound. It was graded above middling by the warehouse purchasing it.

Engineers of the state highway department are surveying for the Brandon highway between Greenville and Pineapple.

Following the adoption of a resolution at the meeting of the Anniston Chamber of Commerce asking the Southern Railway company to build a new depot in Anniston and provide "passenger accommodations commensurate with the growth of the city and the volume of business being done there by the company, officers of the chamber of commerce are taking steps to bring before the railway what is claimed to be a recognized need for better passenger accommodations.

The Chicago-Florida Highway association, under the direction of prominent men of Florida and Chicago, with James F. Rogan, formerly of California, in charge of the field work of the organization, proposes to route 100,000 tourists by way of Nashville, Albany-Decatur, Birmingham and Montgomery to the leading center of population in Florida during the coming season.

Gerald Fouke, of the Smithsonian Institute at Washington, and four assistants have begun to explore the Indian mounds near Wilson Dam, which will soon be submerged. The mounds are composed of mussels and periwinkles. The experts services were obtained largely through the efforts of the Tennessee Valley Historical Society.

J. D. Marston, former rural mail carrier in Cherokee county, was convicted on every count of an indictment charging him with stealing money orders. He is alleged to have appropriated between $100 and $150. Judge Grubb, of the United States court, sentenced him to five years in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta.

Traffic law violators led the arrested persons in Birmingham for the month of July, according to figures compiled by Sergeant C. N. Kicker, of the police department. The report shows that 3,412 persons were arrested during the month of which number 2,938 were for traffic violations. Gamers were said to have run second and liquor law cases third.

The contract for the home economics annex at Alliance High School, Jefferson County, has been let to Holley and Berry for $10,000. The annex is being constructed for special home economics training, and is being supported by state and federal aid. Miss Helen Johnson will be in charge of the department for the school term beginning September 15.

United Confederate veterans will hold an annual reunion at the camp grounds near Hartselle August 15-16, according to Adjutant Denton, of the Friendship camp. The Hartselle band will furnish music for the occasion. On August 16 a basket dinner will be served on the camp grounds to all comers.

The state pardon board will hold its August meeting August 26. The meeting was first set for August 12, but owing to the fact that Attorney General Davis will attend camp at Camp McClellan and that Auditor Allgood will be on his vacation, the meeting was deferred two weeks.

Actual work of repairing the bridge over the Alabama river at Selma will begin in ten days. Plans have been made by H. H. Hook of the state bridge department, and have been checked by W. K. Upchurch, who is the engineer placed in charge of the work.

Mrs. Charles Negley, of Florence, announced that the new Jefferson hotel under construction will be made a three story building instead of two as first planned and will have 150 rooms. Mrs. Negley stated the building, under the enlarged plans, would cost $30,000.

A proclamation calling upon the citizens, chambers of commerce, manufacturing and trade associations and other agencies in Alabama to support the Southern exposition, to be held in New York, was issued by Gov. W. W. Brandon.

C. A. Abele, state milk inspector of the office of the state board of health of Montgomery, will go to Albany-Decatur to organize the dairymen in connection with efforts now being made to have the so-called "model license" adopted in Morgan county.

Fully 3,500 visitors from Lee and surrounding counties attended the all-day singing of the East Alabama Progressive Singing convention held at Opelika. The meeting was presided over by President D. M. Slaughter of Roanoke.

The Tennessee Valley laboratory broke its own record for number of specimens examined during the month of July, when 1,901 tests were made. Dr. A. J. Perojo, the director, announced.

Backers of the proposed new modified aldermanic government for Birmingham have secured permit from the city commission to hold street meetings in the city and suburbs in the interest of the move.

Louis Pool, 1912 Sixth avenue, Birmingham, was arrested and sentenced to serve a year and a day in the federal prison in Atlanta on a charge of violating the national narcotic law.

According to Miss Isadora Williams market master of the Tuscaloosa County curb market, 19 selling days in July saw a total of 713 persons selling at the curb market.

Z. C. O'Bryant has resigned as chief of police of Alabama City because of friction, it is said, with some members of the council.

ALBION FELLOWS BACON

If the names of women who are accomplishing things are familiar at the name of Albion Fellows Bacon will conjure up some memory in the vaguest mind. To get a vivid picture of the valuable work she is doing for better housing, alone, one must get well acquainted.

For a beginning, one ought to run through population statistics of the 1920 United States census. Get the unsentimental number of families, and number of domiciles I think is the word they use—available for those same families, on whose success the success of the nation rests. Read of city, town or country crossroads, choose from New York or Alabama or California or any state. The shortage of housing, irrespective of its adequacy in rooms or sanitation or other factors, is shocking. Then send to the National Housing association for some of the pamphlets Mrs. Bacon has written. Or hunt up the nearest wide awake college or women's club, and see whether it hasn't a copy of "What Bad Housekeeping Means to the Community."

Whether there are positions to be filled by young women who want to be of service in promoting better housing, and who have not the creative vision of Mrs. Bacon, I do not know. Perhaps the association mentioned might know. Or a letter to the Bureau of Vocational Information, 2 West Forty-third street, New York city, would probably help. In any case, I should go in search of advice on how to learn housing in the small community and rural housing, to see if a program to fit my own home town could be worked out.

And I'd get acquainted with Mrs. Bacon. Not by a personal letter to Evansville. A busy woman cannot put much of herself into casual correspondence. I'd get at her spirit of service through the best she can write, which is what she has put in print. One is a book called "Beauty for Asphes". Another is "Consolation", published by the Atlantic Monthly Press. Another message is in the pageant, "Citizenship Day" written for the General Federation of Women's Clubs, and very attractively filmed, as I personally can testify, under the direction of Mrs. Baker and Mrs. Percy Penpacker, at Chautauque. Anyone could easily find out how to show it locally. Speaking of local things and national ones in the same breath, do you know that any public library can get you any book in the United States congressional library—which means any in the United States—if you will pay the express?

RECIPE FOR RESISTING THE CITY

Do you remember, when Presidents were nominated in 1920, how reporters and editors and readers alike slurred over speeches of nomination and jumped to the seconding speeches that were made by women delegates? Perhaps you read then one of these speeches, given at San Francisco, by a Florence Cotman of Arkansas. And you wondered, unless you were something of a politician, how these new citizens had been chosen. Suppose Florence Cotman of Little Rock tells her own tale.

"If the story of what I have done will help to any measure to inspire another woman to self-expression, I am glad for you to use it, though it seems to me of no great value.

"An abiding belief in women and a desire to help them as citizens has urged me on here in my own town and on my own Main Street with weekly lectures on current events. I believe the dangerous citizen is the ignorant one. I believe in creating a band of international friendship so strong that neither hate nor aversion nor desire to oppress the weak can break it. I believe a salvation of the world depends on an interested and intelligent electorate wherever the people have a voice in government.

"I do not try to reach out into other communities at this time because I value my home life above everything else. I have been in some thirty states and have been away three or four months at a time, but I find more satisfaction in giving what I have to give to those whom I know best and among whom I shall always choose to live. I think, however, that my success as a suffrage speaker in New York city in 1915 and 1917, and the notices I have from many other cities have increased the appreciation which already existed here.

"The average girl should get her first experience among friends. If she turns out above the average, the cities will nearly always call her. It takes determination and will power to resist the urge.

"I believe every woman should have a home and home life if possible. No career can take their place. But there comes a time when the children are grown and there is much leisure which will be wasted unless training has provided that woman with a vocation. Every girl ought to have business training and experience, if possible, before her marriage."

GOOD ROADS

HIGHWAY BUILDING UNDER FEDERAL AID

Since 1916, when the federal aid road act was passed by congress, up to March 1, 1924, federal-aid highways which had been completed in the United States totaled 33,036 miles. There were under construction at that time 13,800 additional miles of roads. These were reported as 59 per cent complete on that date.

The total cost of this great work, including the roads under construction, as estimated by Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the United States bureau of roads, as $844,389,300, of which $372,721,900 was paid by the federal government and the balance by the various states in accordance with the co-operative terms of the law.

For the fiscal year 1925, beginning July 1, 1924, the government has appropriated for further federal-aid road construction a total of $73,125,000, which brings the total government financial outlay for this purpose since the enactment of the law to $445,840,900.

The apportionment of the federal aid fund for the fiscal year 1925 for all the states, which has just been announced by the bureau of public roads, is as follows:

| States         | Amount          |
|----------------|-----------------|

Highway Costs Exceed Connecticut Auto Fees

More than $1,400,000 in excess of automobile fees was spent toward improving the highways of Connecticut during the 1923 fiscal year. Motorcar fees received by the state for the year aggregated $4,163,140, while the expense for highway work was $5,574,540.

Statistics just compiled by the state highway department show that since 1913 the number of motor vehicles increased from 27,189 to 180,359 in 1923. This includes commercial trucks and passenger cars. At the same time the mileage of surfaced roads increased from 923 at the close of 1913 to 1,779 for 1923.

Connecticut's automobile registration for the fiscal year was 190,350 cars. New Haven led all other cities with a total of 17,988, represented by 13,716 passenger cars and 4,272 trucks. Hartford was a close second with 17,427, exceeding New Haven in passenger vehicles with 14,058, but fell below in trucks with 3,369. Bridgeport came third, with a total of 14,615 cars, followed by Waterbury, 8,482; New Britain, 5,883, and Stamford, 5,819.

Contracts pending in Fairfield, New Haven, Middlesex and New London counties on the improvement of the Boston Post road will materially increase in a few months the payments made in these districts.

Better Roads Stimulate Raising of Live Stock

The raising of live stock has been greatly stimulated through the development of good roads. Proof of this statement is found in the great increase in the number of hogs which now go to market via the motortruck. The old custom was to drive the stock to market with the resulting loss due to overheating and shrinkage, which caused a drop in the market price. Now, through the medium of good roads and the motortruck, the farmer is enabled to haul his cattle, hogs and sheep to the railroad siding or, better yet, directly to the stock yards, at a great saving of time and money.

China Was Called Cathay
Cathay was the name given to China by Marco Polo in the story of his travels, and commonly used it Columbus' time. The great discoverer thought the New World was part of Cathay, which he was seeking.

SUFFERED TWELVE YEARS WITH STOMACH TROUBLE

"My recovery has been a surprise to myself and all my friends," recently declared Jacob Ferdinand, R. F. D. 2, Fond Du Lac, Wis., a prominent citizen of this city, in relating his remarkable experience with Tanlac.

"The suffering I went through from stomach trouble for 12 or 13 years simply can't be described. In my efforts to find relief I spent over one thousand dollars, but kept getting worse instead of better. A large part of two years I was laid up in bed and for four months of that time I couldn't get up at all.

And Then!

One can love any man that is generous.—Leigh Hunt.

"Finally I sent my daughter for a bottle of Tanlac with the result that I found immediate relief, and seven bottles made a well and happy man of me. I will gladly talk to anyone personally and answer all letters regarding my experience with Tanlac. It proved a godsend to me."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

Lucky Fisherman Got This

Taken from the waters of Lake Minniewanka, at Banff, a trout that weighed 37 pounds is now being mounted by local taxidermists and will be placed in the Banff museum. It is 42 inches long and 24 inches in circumference. Many good trout have been caught in the lake this year, but none so large as this. These lake trout in the Minniewanka waters are one of the mysteries of the Rockies. It is said to be the only lake in the mountains harboring this variety of fish.

Relieve That Headache or Cold at Our Expense!

In order to prove to you just how much better Bro-Aspirin is than plain aspirin we want you to take the coupon below to your druggist and get a regular 25c box of Bro-Aspirin, FREE! Then the next time you have a headache, cold or pain, just follow the directions on the box.

When you take plain aspirin to relieve headache, cold or pain, you are merely stopping the danger signal and doing nothing to remove the cause. This is dangerous. Bro-Aspirin contains the purest aspirin, which relieves the pain immediately, and it also contains other harmless ingredients that remove the cause of the trouble. Bro-Aspirin is a perfectly harmless remedy that is recommended for all cases of headache, periodic pains, rheumatic pains, neuralgia, colds and la grippe.

Lots of corn nubbins have been ruined by the recent rains.

A clean, honest election, we dare say, would astonish even the angels.

If everybody would practice what they preach we would need no ticks on our doors.

Just as a fellow begins to think he knows it all the boss usually decides he can do better without him.

The yearly pay day of the farmer is drawing near. Here's hoping he will find his envelope well filled this time.

"Honesty is the best policy" in the long run, but this is such a fast race that few of us have time to wait for a "long run."

Do the other fellow just as quick as you can or he is likely to do you first. That seems to be the modern rule.

It is a guess of ours that Mr. Donald Comer, of Birmingham, will step in to the Senatorial toga at the expiration of Mr. Underwood's term.

What the autos and airplanes don't get the flapper does. So it is not surprising that such a large number choose the first two routes out.

So many young men suffered from their poisonous cosmetics the government has instituted a rigid inspection of face pastes and lip sticks.

Crime grows cheaper in the quiet States every day. Every day paper carries a number of murders, but hardly one in a month carries a hanging.

There is another evil that the government should put an iron-clad ban against, that is responsible for much more evil than even the horrible narcotic curse.

You can't legislate religion, nor even good morals into a person, but you can put that person where he can't do so much harm by proper law enforcement.

Next month, we believe, is the time for the municipal elections. We have a mighty good bunch on the job here now and are not suffering for a chance.

Cotton is opening quite extensively now and in a few more days the sound of the gin whistle will be making sweet music in the ear of the average business man.

The doctors say that balding, thin, female hair will produce early baldness and the growth of a beard. Gee, won't a lot of bald headed, whiskered women make the future a hideous nightmare?

When law enforcement is so lax that people violate the law just for fun, it's about time to either wipe off the statute books or adopt a policy of strict law enforcement.

The friends of an officer will strictly observe the law so as not to hamper his efficiency by accepting favors at his hands, nor embarrass him by making it necessary for him to arrest them for petty law violations.

Young people must be extremely anxious to attract attention to themselves when they are willing to choke their innate modesty to death and ride through the streets on an open truck with only a one-piece bathing suit on.

According to the records, Mr. Davis has been the friend of labor for many years. He was successful in getting a decision from the United States Supreme Court upholding the constitutionality of the eight hour per day law just last week. His record in Congress shows that he voted for labor in every single issue that ever came up.

FAMILY REUNION

Reck the entire family of Mr. and Mrs. O. O. Roper have met at their home for a regular family re-union.

They are as follows: Mr. R. M. Roper and wife, from Duncan, Oklahoma. He is in the automobile business out there.

Dr. G. C. Roper, Boothton, Alabama, who is a practicing physician there.

The entire family are together this week, including Mrs. Dovie Armstrong, their daughter and her husband, Mr. J. D. Armstrong, who live here.

If, at any time, the devil wishes to put on a few extra touches of exquisite torture to the guests who are so unfortunate as to inhabit his hideous home, all he would have to do would be to have the engines of a few Fords raced with the cut-out open.

It is really nice to be told by the "scientists" the ape we all sprung from was a much better looking specimen than the ordinary every day variety that exists now. It has been very embarrassing to us to claim kin with the ones we have seen travelling in cages.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Allies and Germans Getting Together to Put Dawes Plan Into Operation.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

CHANCELLOR MARX and his German colleagues, called to London to confer with the allies on measures for putting the Dawes plan into operation, showed so sincere a desire to reach an agreement that hopes for the restoration of Europe were high. After being given a friendly reception by Prime Minister MacDonald, Premier Herriot and the other allied representatives, the Germans were handed the documents comprising the plans adopted before their arrival and were requested to examine them speedily and make reply. This they did, and their "observations" regarding the work of the conference, 60,000 words in length, were submitted the next day. In general, and so far as the Dawes plan is concerned, these appeared quite satisfactory for a starter and it was believed the committee of experts to which the German documents were handed for careful examination would be able to revise and alter them so that they would accord with the British and French proposals. The Germans reserved the right to supplement their first statement after more detailed consideration of the allied propositions.

Accompanying the German documents was a covering letter saying that there were certain questions outside the scope of the Dawes plan and the conference which must be settled. (Chief of these were the matter of the military evacuation of the Ruhr and the personnel of the German railways in the occupied territory. Dispatches from London said that the French already had begun negotiating with the Germans concerning the evacuation of the Ruhr, offering to carry this out if the Germans would agree to the continuance of German armaments by the military control mission. Marx also demanded that persons expelled from the Ruhr be permitted to return, and the French were willing to concede this if the Berlin government would agree not to persecute those Germans in the occupied region who had co-operated with the forces of occupation.

David Lloyd George and other political opponents of Prime Minister MacDonald have been attacking his policy in the conference, but he has held his own in the debates. He informed the house of commons that if the conference were finally successful, these three agreements were to be expected:

1. An agreement between the German government and the reparations commission regarding matters within the competence of the reparations commissions.
2. An agreement between the allied governments and the German government regarding matters requiring to be settled by direct agreement.
3. An agreement between the allied governments themselves regulating matters of international concern.

In the main Premier Herriot's course was approved in France, especially his refusal to permit any discussion of war guilt in the conference. QUITE unexpectedly, the Anglo-Russian conference, which has been going on in London intermittently for months, has resulted in a measure of success. Early last week the British foreign office announced the parley had failed and was broken off, but MacDonald at once got into action, invited the Russians to resume the conference, and brought about an agreement for the signing of two treaties, one of commerce and one general. Rough drafts of these pacts were drawn up and submitted, and the prime minister insisted on the signing them without waiting for the approval of parliament. The treaties were bitterly attacked by the opposition. David Lloyd George denounced them as "fakes."

It is understood at this writing that the treaty of commerce gives British goods most favored nation treatment in Russia and that Great Britain recognizes the soviet trade monopoly and agrees to give diplomatic immunity to a certain number of Russian trade representatives. Details of the general treaty are not known, but it is believed it provides for British guarantee of a loan to Russia of between $30,000,000 and $40,000,000. Undersecretary Ponsonby told the house that, regarding the claims of British bondholders, the soviet government had given an expression of liability and an assurance that the Russians would negotiate with the bondholders.

Prime Minister MacDonald is exceedingly anxious for consummation of these treaties with Russia, for the trade unions believe that they will mean more work and greater prosperity for the British workingman. They constitute an important part of the labor government's foreign policy, which is being vigorously attacked by the opposition.

Re-establishment of relations with Russia is a very live question in France. It is favored by certain financial interests which seek control of the Chinese Eastern railway, and by the Communists. But the Socialists of France are against it and Premier Herriot has become lukewarm toward Russian negotiations, presumably to obtain and keep Socialist votes. The Communist press blames Secretary of State Hughes, repeating the denied story that he told the premiers in London that so long as Europe countenanced bolshevism, America could not help it.

BULGARIA on one side and Yugoslavia and Greece on the other are still sniping at each other across the borders, and the danger of an outbreak of war has not been removed. Last week Bulgaria called 3,000 reservists to the colors and Serbia put up a loud wall. The French and British governments are doing their best to prevent actual hostilities.

AMERICA'S globe-circling air squadron had both good and bad luck last week. First, Lieut. Erik Nelson successfully flew from the Orkneys to Hovna Hornafjord, Iceland, but Lieuts. Lowell Smith and Leigh Wade were forced by dense fog to turn back. Next day Lieut. Smith made the flight all right, but Wade's machine was forced down by engine trouble when about half the distance had been traveled, and then was hopelessly wrecked during attempts to salvage it. Wade and his mechanic were taken aboard the cruiser Richmond, and it has been decided in Washington to send another plane to Pictou Harbor, Nova Scotia, so that they may continue the flight from there with the squadron. From Hornafjord the two planes still in commission flew to Reykjavik, capital of Iceland, 310 miles, in the face of a 50-mile wind and over land and water where a forced landing would have meant disaster and death. Their course from there takes them to Angmagssalik, Greenland, but ice conditions along the coast of Greenland are such that it was announced that the aviators might be compelled to wait in Reykjavik for a week.

THERE are indications that the LaFollette-Wheeler ticket will not get the unanimous support of organized labor by a long ways, but it is considered formidable enough to occupy a major place in the strategy of both the Republicans and the Democrats. The former have adopted a policy of conceding nothing to LaFollette even in the several states of the middle Northwest which many have conceded to him. In these states the Coolidge leaders will make perhaps their hardest fight.

Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, added to his endorsement of the LaFollette-Wheeler ticket last week by further praise of the Wisconsin senator as the friend of organized labor, and made a lively attack on John W. Davis, Democratic Presidential candidate. He denied that any acts of Mr. Davis have shown him as friendly to the wage earner, and told how Mr. Davis last month sought secret interviews with him and asked him to file with Gompers a "statement of questions in which labor is chiefly interested at this moment." All this, and more, was in a reply from Gompers to William B. Wilson, former secretary of labor, who had asked that the federation's executive council defer action on the proposed endorsement of LaFollette.

Matthew Woll, spokesman for Gompers, followed up this with a broadside directed at Charles G. Dawes, Republican vice presidential candidate, whom he denounced for alleged anti-union activity and especially for his organization of the Minute Men of the Constitution. "This organization," said Woll, "has concerned itself chiefly fighting the organizations of labor and in upholding the right of judges to issue injunctions which have no warrant in law or in the Constitution, and which, as used in industrial disputes, order workers to do what they have a lawful right to refrain from doing, and order them not to do things which they have a lawful right to do."

Returns from the Oklahoma primaries at this time indicate that former Gov. J. C. Walton has won the Democratic nomination for senator over Congressman E. B. Howard. The latter was supported by the Ku Klux Klan and Walton says he will demand an investigation of alleged corruption by the Klan. W. B. Pine was nominated for senator by the Republicans.

MRS. ROSALIE EVANS, American widow of a British ranch owner in Mexico, who for many months made a determined fight to keep her great estate there from expropriation by the agrarians, has been murdered, probably by emissaries of the men who had been unable to get hold of her land. The British government, through the American State department, made upon the Mexican government the demands usual in such cases, and President Obregon ordered that the assassins be apprehended. It is now announced that the murderers, 17 in number, have been captured and jailed in Puebla. The incident, however, is not yet closed. Mrs. Evans' sister, wife of an American marine officer, has gone to Mexico to carry on the fight for retention of the estate.

Charles B. Warren has resigned as American ambassador to Mexico, and his successor will soon be appointed. Mr. Warren in his letter of resignation blamed the Wilson administration for much of our recent troubles with Mexico, and added that relations between the two countries have now been "readjusted to the satisfaction of both governments, and I feel that means have been found to protect American property and rights in Mexico, without offending the Mexican people or interfering in any way in her domestic policies and affairs."

MOST notable of the deaths of the week was that of Joseph Conrad, the eminent writer of sea tales, who passed away suddenly at his home in Bishopscourt, England. Of Polish birth, he was a sailor for many years and began writing while serving as a sea captain. He wrote in English and was considered one of the foremost literary figures of the day.

Dr. Robert Grier LeConte of Philadelphia, internationally famed surgeon, committed suicide in his home, leaving a note ascribing his act to financial troubles. He was former president of the American Surgical association, and during the war was a member of the advisory medical board for the American expeditionary forces.

SOME 5,000 delegates attended the national convention of the Knights of Columbus in New York last week. The pope sent his apostolic benediction in a letter. Bishop Mahoney of South Dakota in an address to the convention bitterly denounced the Klan and scored the conventions of both the great political parties for making "a concession of cowardice because of the fear that the quest for votes might suffer by an expression of opinion on the movement abroad that would eliminate Catholics from the privileges of citizenship and the emoluments of public life."

Tuberculosis Is Traced by Marks

"Tattoo" Instrument Devised to Expedite Eradication of Dread Disease.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The marking of hogs with a "tattoo" instrument which has been devised in the United States Department of Agriculture, for use in tuberculosis eradication investigations, has in some instances incriminated the "old hen" on the farm as one of the accomplices in the spread of the infection to swine. The tattoo marks placed on the hogs shipped from an area where tuberculosis is prevalent among cattle and poultry maintains the identity of the hogs even after they have gone through the scalding and scraping processes in the packing plants and makes it possible to trace any infection to its source.

Infection Suppressed.

During the period November 6, 1923, to April 2, 1924, a total of 18,294 hogs were shipped from Hillsdale county, Mich., an area in which the infection among cattle had been suppressed to less than one-half of 1 per cent, and the hogs were marked with a "modified" accredited area.

Of this number about 10,000 showed slight evidence of tuberculosis. The lesions were so slight, however, that it was necessary to condemn only one carcass entirely; five others, however, were rather seriously affected. The packers paid the premium of ten cents per hundredweight on these hogs.

Marks Show Origin.

The tattoo marks on the infected carcasses showed them to have come from 36 farms in Hillsdale county. On 22 of the farms no infection was found among the cattle. On 15 farms bovine infection had not appeared since 1921. On the remaining farms further into the investigation, tuberculosis tests were applied to 15 lots of chickens containing 75 heads. Twelve of the 15 lots contained reactors. Tests were also applied to the swine on those farms with the result that 17 and a fraction per cent of swine infection was indicated. This figure checked rather closely to the percentage, 16.8 per cent, as reported through post-mortem inspection by the inspector at the packing plant. In the absence of bovine tuberculosis on the farms where the hogs originated, the tests incriminated tuberculous fowls as the probable source of infection.

The department cautions live stock owners against needless exposure of swine to tuberculous cattle and poultry and urges the eradication of infection in poultry by disposing of the older fowls especially and cleaning and disinfecting the premises.

Best Time for Cutting Sweet Clover for Seed

Sweet clover should be cut when three-fourths of the seed pods have turned dark brown to black. At this time some flowers and many immature pods will be found on the plants, but the field will have a brownish cast. The seeds shatter badly when mature and for this reason every precaution must be taken to cut at the proper stage and save as much of the shattering seed as possible. Shattering will be reduced by cutting when the plants are damp from dew or rain. The seed crop is usually cut with a self-rake reaper, grain binder, grain header or corn harvester, the two former being most satisfactory. The crop should be stacked unless it is to be threshed within ten or fourteen days.

Keep a Close Watch for Stinking Smut in Wheat

During harvest, and especially at thrashing time, it is well to keep a close watch for stinking smut in wheat. Seed should be used from fields which show the least amount of smut. Badly smutted wheat, however, can be used if it is treated before being planted. This is sometimes more advisable than buying new seed or exchanging seed. The indications to date are that there is little stinking smut in South Dakota.

Ground Soy Bean Hay

Ground soy-bean hay compares almost identically with ground alfalfa hay, but has only about one-third as much protein as oil meal or cottonseed meal, while soy-bean meal (or cake) is equally as rich in protein as either oil meal or cottonseed meal. Several feeding experiments show conclusively that soy-bean meal or cake, that is, the residue after the oil has been removed, gives equally as good results as either oil meal or cottonseed meal.

Alfalfa After Clover

Although a good crop of sweet clover prepares the way for alfalfa it is often hard to get a stand of alfalfa in the fall after the second year's growth has died down, due to the fact that the sweet clover uses up much of the available moisture and food supply. However, no other crop will provide inoculation for alfalfa like the sweet clover does.

Millet Sown After Rye

Millet is very often sown after rye, and the land may be prepared by double disking, followed by a harrowing, after which the millet may be seeded. Millet is not considered a good hay for horses unless it is cut fairly early, and then it should make up not over half the roughage. Mature millet hay is dangerous to feed to horses.

Late Potato Blight Is Serious Menace

Disease Can Be Controlled by Bordeaux Spray.

Late blight of potatoes is probably one of the most destructive of all potato diseases and is particularly dangerous in a wet season such as this, warns William H. Martin, plant pathologist at the New Jersey agricultural experiment station.

Fortunately, potato growers now have a means of defense against this trouble. Spraying experiments conducted by the experiment station have demonstrated conclusively that late blight can be controlled by spraying with bordeaux mixture. These tests have shown also that even in the absence of late blight, spraying will return a profit.

Best results have followed the use of home-made bordeaux mixture of the 5-5-50 formula; that is 5 pounds of copper sulphate and 5 pounds of lime in 50 gallons of water. This material should be applied immediately at intervals of ten to twelve days. In order to insure success, the vines should be thoroughly covered with a protective film of the spray mixture.

In 1920 the losses from late blight in New York amounted to approximately $5,000,000. In 1918 the disease was severe in New Jersey in Monmouth, Mercer and Middlesex counties. In 1919 it was present, but not severe, and in 1920 and 1922 it was again very severe in central New Jersey. In 1923, due to the very dry season, late blight was not present. Under wet conditions an entire field may be killed in a few days unless measures are taken to prevent the spread of the trouble. It is important that the potato growers be prepared to prevent the losses that are certain to result if this disease does become epidemic.

Look for Lice and Mites During the Hot Weather

The lice and mites problem is a great one during the hot summer, and their control will depend upon the methods of handling them. There is only one way to handle lice and mites, and that is to get rid of them as soon as they are found on poultry. You cannot wait until next week and expect to control lice and mites on your hens. The day they are discovered is the day to begin to rid the flock of them.

Lice and mites, if left to themselves, will rob the hen of her vitality and then you will learn that the egg basket will suffer. A hen cannot lay when she is worried all day by having lice running over her body and by night with mites feeding upon her life blood.

Spray the houses and keep them clean. Dust the houses with a good insect powder. This will mean profit and not loss, for it will mean better and more poultry, and that is what is needed in every community.

Cutting Sudan Grass at Most Profitable Time

The most profitable time to cut sudan grass is between the time it begins to head until it is fully headed out. There is little loss, however, when the grass is allowed to grow until the seed has reached the dough stage, and then cutting begins. Then required to harvest the crop and obtain the maximum yield of forage. When cut earlier more than one cutting may be obtained but the yield per cutting will not be so large. There are few grasses that are injured so little by standing beyond the proper stage of maturity as sudan grass. This is due to the numerous tillers, which, arising from the base, mature successfully and provide immature stalks throughout the season.

Value of Kafir Stems

Kafir head stems, according to the results of experiments by the Texas experiment station, have a digestibility close to that of ordinary hay, and a corresponding value. The digestible protein is low. Mesquite beans were found to have a high digestibility and a productive value about 50 per cent higher than alfalfa.

FARM NOTES

A well-oiled harness outwears an un-oiled one, two to one.

The farm premises can be made brighter and cleaner by the liberal use of some good whitewash.

Any handy man can make a dumb-waiter. It carries loads up and down cellar stairs easier than a woman can.

What repairs will be needed before harvest? A list of these made now will save delay when the field work begins.

Dead trees and branches furnish refuge for harmful diseases and insects. Clean up the dead wood by turning it into fuel.

Experimenters at Columbus find that tomatoes on land treated with acid phosphate withstand frost better than those on untreated land.

The neglect of growing timothy for hay has been noticed in the past year more than ever before. By this neglect there has been a greater acreage of lucas and soy beans.

DAIRY FACTS

CARE AND FEED FOR COWS WHEN CALVING

Cows that are to calve should be provided with a comfortable and well-bedded box stall. It is imperative that the bowels are moving freely before calving time. Laxative feeds such as a mixture of two parts bran and one part linseed meal should be fed. If the cow still remains more or less constipated give a drench of epsom salts or a dose of one quart of linseed oil. A number of troubles which usually occur about calving time can be prevented by proper feeding and care before freshening.

During calving time the cow should not be disturbed except in the case of abnormal birth. During the first days after calving she must be protected from cold and her drinking water should be given at a lukewarm temperature. The vitality of the cow is very low at this time, and careful and thorough herdsmanship is necessary. The feed must be rather limited in amount. Good quality legume hay, a little silage, and bran mash makes a satisfactory ration at this time. Watch the high producing cow for milk fever, and if it occurs resort to the air treatment.

A little time is all that it takes to figure out a good balanced ration. It will be found to be a good investment of time when the increased milk flow is measured. Cows in milk need plenty of protein and mineral matter. These can be obtained within the limits of economic production.

A good cow is a good worker, and a good worker needs plenty to eat. Alfalfa hay at will, silage, and grain in accordance with the amount of milk given should be fed. Each cow should be fed individually. A herdman can estimate the amount of milk and the condition of the cow. The grain can be increased as long as the milk flow increases. If the cow starts to put on flesh, it is an indication of too much feed.

Succession is necessary. This can be obtained by corn silage in winter and a permanent pasture in the summer.

If the grain mixture is too heavy a bulky feed like wheat bran or dried beet pulp should be added.—J. W. Fairbanks, Colorado Agricultural College.

Warning Against Buying Inferior Dairy Cattle

From many states there are now coming warnings against buying inferior dairy cattle from unreliable parties. The good price of dairy products, coming at a time when farm prices in general were depressed, had been largely responsible for the increased demand for dairy cows. The work of testing for tuberculosis is so responsible for considerable demand to replace animals reacting to the test. In Illinois approximately 1,000 dairy cattle are being tested every day, of which some 58 head react and have to be killed. Other states report similar progress.

Unscrupulous cattle dealers, in order to profit by the brisk trade, are buying culls in the stock yards and shipping them back to the farmers. According to M. H. Peterson, head of the tuberculosis eradication department of the Illinois Agricultural Experiment Station, "many unsuspecting farmers have bought diseased animals 'plugged' so full of tuberculin that when they are tested for importation into the state, there is no apparent reaction."

Nebraska recently issued a warning signed by prominent farmers and agricultural authorities against the crooked dealer. Fred Ferguson, dairy expert of Iowa, not long ago sent a similar warning to be posted in every barn of Iowa. Closer contact with farmers and local breeders' associations will help. Those entering the dairy business for the first time must be willing to pay a neighbor or friend who they know is reliable and is acquainted with the business, to help them in the work of testing for tuberculosis, and to assure the reliability of all parties selling cattle before buying.

High Temperature Tends to Encourage Bacteria

Even with reasonable precautions to exclude bacteria from cream, a considerable number will always be present. If the cream is left uncooked these multiply rapidly, soon spoiling the cream. Dr. H. W. Conn of Connecticut has found that one bacterium in milk kept at a temperature of 40 degrees Fahrenheit for 24 hours will multiply to seven, while one bacterium in milk kept at a temperature of 74 degrees for 24 hours will multiply to 700. At higher temperatures the increase is correspondingly greater.

Oats for Dairy Cows

Oats are considered, especially when mixed with other grain, good feed for dairy cows. Grain alone is not good feed. A good grain ration to feed dairy cows consists of 200 pounds of ground corn, 200 pounds of ground oats, 200 pounds of bran and 100 pounds of meal. Give each animal a pound of this mixture for every 3½ pounds of milk produced. Oats alone will not dry up a cow, in fact a cow fed oats will do better than she would if not.

CHAPTER XII—Continued.

They stood together so. Ellen felt the tense heat of his hands, the jerking of his breath. She staggered and gasped, like memory of a dream, coming from the distance, it wasn't she who thrilled to the touch of this Japanese, who had been so kind before, while now . . . now . . . She wished that he would speak, she wondered if he would . . . kiss her. The Oriental does not kiss . . . would he? . . .

Had she drawn away, awayed either backward or forward, moved a finger, an eyelid, his arms would have closed about her tightly in a flash.

Wells did not know for what he was waiting. He knew that he wanted her; close, all of the seductive beauty; to whisper that he loved her. To see her smile, to see her happy in his arms.

That she stood there, so much at his mercy, so entirely at his command, her peevish hands in his, awaiting his will, beaten to it, sobered him.

She had never been so willing before. Had she been swept away by the beauty, enthralled by the magic of the passionate night? Had he? He could not follow the train of his thought: processes went on, but were uncontrolled and uncontrolled. He had acted instinctively before, and did so now.

He wanted her none the less. What was the matter with him? What held him back? She stood there by him. He was his. His wife. He wanted more, far more. But not like this. Never like this. Not bent to his will. He could, said his racing mind, have a name as Bob Wells. As a decent chap, as name as clean as his heart. Was he heart clean? He wondered. His hand had force them to clear. Then and then only.

Very slowly, reluctantly almost, his hand dropped from the silken shoulder, leaving, as remembrance, the silk bunched and rumpled.

"I must—tell you," he broke the long silence, groping for expression that came with difficulty, "that I want you"—he faltered, and she bowed her head again.

As, so Wells remembered with distinctness, as she had bowed it in the temple, before the eager-eyed priests. Did the hands in his tremble?

"I want you to . . . go with me . . . to the foreign land, little wife," he said at last.

He thought he heard her sigh gustily. Perhaps it was a wind in the trees. He was not sure. He was very glad that a torrent of rebuke did not flow from her, chiding him for . . . what she must have known. Then, so gently that he was half unaware of it, she released her hands from his and stepped back.

He must say something. Something to relieve the tension which lingered. He wanted to be alone, and in the same thought, wanted her with him still.

"See, O-Hana," he said in a bright, forced voice, "do you see the little light?"

Her head turned, and Ellen glimpsed a twinkling showing beyond the wall of the low hill. He saw the lovely profile, and a gleam upon her face like a single drop of light.

"There was—once—a miracle there." His voice was uneven, but stronger. "The fourth lesser demon was caught in the sacred tree. Entangled, doubtless, through the mercy of the gods, or he would have accomplished much mischief." Wells spoke very rapidly. "A boy saw it, and thought it was a kite. He fetched a priest, who, of course, being acquainted with such matters as demons, knew better. So a shrine was built, and a hermit paid to pray there day and night. And whoever is sick, or has bowlegged children, or a plague of insects in his fields, goes there and prays with the hermit. For pay. The money paid the hermit by the priests was money well laid out . . . the shrine is very rich . . ."

Then, in a confident voice: "The hermit, and you, and I, and the old woman in the street, are the only ones at the festival. . . . It is very late, it is a . . . good-night, child . . ."

boy," in English, spoken very low, "but, if you want that vow fulfilled, and copious tapers burned before your august self, get busy and keep her away from me. Otherwise, some day . . . I may not be decent enough . . ."

He left the thought unfinished, and was soon asleep.

Old Hana, returning late, entered the room softly and lit the night lamp, marveling that it had burned itself out. She adjusted the quilted silk about Wells, very gently, so as not to disturb him, kneeling to do so.

Then she saw, where it had dropped when Ellen had bowed her head in submission, a curved comb of unmistakable design.

She held it to the light, the better to see. Was certain.

"Yoh!" she murmured as she stepped softly back into the hall. "What did I say? I knew Kiyama's way would be the way of his father!"

She chuckled toothlessly to herself.

CHAPTER XIII

Ellen remained in her room for a moment before answering the summons to leave. It seemed friendly to her: the garden was peaceful, quiet. For what was she trading this sheltering house? Then, fearful of her own inner thoughts, she walked quickly down the corridor, past the row of bowing servants, to the gate where her aged palanquin waited behind that of Kiyama-San and three loads of baggage, as is proper for a woman's.

In the jolting rattle of ancient days, Wells' mind became active; what, he wondered, would be his feelings in the midst of his own people again? He cast aside the possibility that any of the passengers might have known Robert Wells. Even if they had, he was perfectly safe. The cut over his eye had healed, but he still wore the rakish, disfiguring bandage.

There would be a few hours at Yokohama. Surely it would be wise to see that Ellen had Occidental clothes. There must be some American or English shops where a woman could buy things. The time would surely come when she would need them, for her many boxes contained only glittering ceremonial kimono or unpleasant ones for ordinary dress— and, lord, how he'd like to see her dressed as— as Ellen should be!

"You See! Madame is Very Lovely!"

He couldn't go with her to do the buying. Nor could he, as a Japanese should do, buy the things for her. He would say that he disliked foreign clothing and the necessary dealings with the shopkeepers, and she could have a bit of all-too-rare pleasure.

When he spoke of it to Ellen, her first thought was full of the fear that she would not select as she should, and she suggested that a mission-woman be asked to help her.

"You would then appear before my eyes as a coal-black," Wells ejaculated. "No exposure is to be spared, child. You must dress as the finest of sylvan women, that I am not disgraced. I will pay for everything. Since this clothing will be worn in America, it must be—perfect."

Timidly, in the shop, Ellen first asked for a dress "such as white women" wear, adding that it must be the finest. The French girl who waited on her whispered this fact to the French proprietress: the name of Ellen's "lord" was discovered, and in a brief moment a shop's bonanza was uncovered. Ellen was stripped of her kimono.

"Madame must be outfitted—yes?—from the very beginnings!" the owner of the shop gloated, and before the girl, passed in procession the latest importations: silky daintiness, cobwebs of lace; stockings spun upon fairy looms, slippers of the same hue; stouter walking boots—and finally, madame the proprietress was satisfied.

Then dresses: simple frocks, tweed street suit, until madame brought forth with reverent hands an evening gown, a thing of amethyst beauty, which contrasted with Ellen's hair and made it of pyrite lusciousness; a gown trimmed with sea-soft jade child; and about the girl's smooth shoulders rose Venus-like above a sultry sea.

She glanced fearfully in the glass, gasped at her own image there. "You see! Madame is very lovely!" The proprietress was careful to inform Ellen that this gown must not be pressed nor rumpled. "A trunk? No, no. Madame will keep it in the box, and with it the stockings and slippers, yes. A promise, madame! It is a creation of art." So the box remained with the hand-baggage when Ellen told Wells of it.

"Name of a dog," madame the proprietress muttered after Ellen had left. "The poor little thing. Frightened to death, married to that worshiper of devils. My heart aches for her. But," spreading out her hands, "it is none of my business. That is, it is for my business. She has lost her soul, assuredly."

The banker had made good the assurance that all details should be cared for. Wells found that his boarding the steamer had been made an event for both passengers and crew. From some old chest of the steamship company, who in the earlier days had chartered junks to nobles, the Thunder-bird flag was unearthed, and flapped suitably, in protest.

The captain greeted him with many bows. Here, as the officer had explained to the steward, was not only one of Japan's very wealthy men, but of an old, honorable family. The world had been passed about. Passengers lined the rails as he came aboard, followed by Ellen.

A cabin-boy trotted after with handbags, an undersized, thin Japanese. He only, on the great boat, was thinking of this Lord Kiyama with hatred. Here was one, so the fellow reasoned, who owned many tracts of land and rice fields and gold and women; one who did not even glance at him! Had not the knife found such lords before, even in the streets of Tokyo? Had not the radical teacher said that it was a great and noble deed to remove from the earth such parasites—the cabin-boy kicked his lips. He could use a silent knife on shipboard. There would be a splash. None would know who had done it, except himself and the teacher—who would praise the bravery.

The lord was certain to be alone. Some night, in the cabin of the lord when the lights were out—

No suggestion of these thoughts was apparent in his eyes.

Not to be found lacking in bushido, Wells complimented the captain upon his beautiful ship. He spoke in stately tones, and felt asinine.

"Why, he's handsome," lisped a girl. His eyelids flickered. "I wonder if he understood," she added fearfully in a lower tone.

Wells looked straight ahead. There must be no telltale expressions. He had already explained to Ellen, that, from now on, he knew no word of English. She wondered at this.

He felt hostile eyes upon him as he followed the steward down the deck. In turning a corner, he collided with a white man, who recoiled from him, muttering, "Dirty Jap!" Wells turned hot and cold. He bowed gravely to the man, meeting his gaze squarely. The fellow stared at him blankly, his lips curving in disgust at the sight of Ellen with this Japanese.

Kiyama-San. He was Kiyama-San. The man had not recognized him. The man was Williams.

What was Williams doing on the boat? Why had he left his work?

In his cabin, Wells stroked his face thoughtfully. There was little attractive in that visage, so the glass told him: it was sinister, implacable. He felt safe, if he were cautious.

Ellen was to be served in her cabin; she feared the bold, questioning glances. Wells, out of courtesy to the captain who had invited him to his table, and partly for the amusement of it, dressed for dinner in full regalia. His heavy silk kimono blazed with the emblem of his house, and many indrawn breaths told him that his appearance was found barbarically heroic. With silk albatross and whispering against silk he solemnly took his seat.

With intent eyes, he caught many comments; heard sneers, snarls. Was unwhifful of angry phrases—yeah, a white girl—can you beat them Japs—it's a shame that—some one ought to act—

He was apart. A desire for a friendly face became uppermost. Abruptly he left the salon and returned to his cabin. He unlocked the door between his stateroom and Ellen's.

COOKED CEREALS ARE GOOD FOR CHILDREN

Encourage Use of Milk by Serving Each Day.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Thoroughly cooked cereals served to children once a day for the first course and once a day for dessert encourage the use of milk.

It is hard to give general rules for cooking cereals, for there are so many kinds, but it is safe to say that there is no danger of overcooking and much danger of undercooking them. Some grains need longer cooking than others—cornmeal, for example, needs at least three hours, and rice hardly more than half an hour. In general, whole grains, like whole wheat, or grains more or less finely broken, like cracked wheat, require longer cooking (three hours at least) than more finely ground grains, which should be cooked one hour at least. Breakfast foods made from grains with the outer coverings left on require more cooking than those with the outer covering removed—whole barley, for example, more than pearl barley. Many cereal foods, particularly the rolled and flaked types, have been partially cooked at the factory. These require less cooking in the home than those which have had no such treatment; but if they are to be served to children, cereals should be cooked at home for at least an hour. There are also cereal breakfast foods which have been still more thoroughly cooked at the factory, either by parching in addition to flaking or by some other special method. These are improved by putting them into the oven to crisp them.

Oatmeal, corn meal and many other granular cereals can be put directly into cold water and cooked satisfactorily in a double boiler without stirring, the method being particularly good in the case of corn meal, which is likely to be lumpy if stirred into hot water. A convenient method for cooking cereals is to mix with the usual quantity of water, bring to the boiling point, boil for three or four minutes, and then put into a fireless cooker and leave for ten or twelve hours.

The quantity of water required differs with the cereal. A cupful of rolled oats requires at least two cupfuls of water; oatmeal or corn meal, four cupfuls, and rice, three cupfuls.

A level teaspoonful of salt to a cupful of cereal will usually be right, but it is well to experiment a little with an unfamiliar cereal, since failure to salt mushes properly very often leads children to dislike them.

Any cereal may be cooked in milk, besides being served with it. Skim milk, which might otherwise be thrown away, may be used for the purpose. If rice, cooked in an uncovered double boiler, or in a pan in a very "show" oven, can be made to absorb about six times its volume of skim milk. To cook a cupful of rice in this way instead of in water may be considered equivalent, so far as tissue-forming materials are concerned, to serving it with half a pound of lean beef.

ROAST LAMB AND MUTTON ARE EXCELLENT

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Cold roast lamb and mutton, thinly sliced, are excellent, but the family may be tired of having the remains of the roast served that way, or the pieces may be too small to slice. In either event, these suggestions for utilizing this kind of left-over meat, offered by the United States Department of Agriculture, may be appreciated by the one who prepares the family meals.

Minc'd Lamb.

Chop pieces of lean, cold roast lamb fine. A pint of chopped meat will serve a family of five or six. Rub 1 tablespoonful each of butter and flour together; add ½ pint of milk, stir until boiling; add tablespoonful of finely chopped parsley, ½ teaspoonful salt, and a dash of cayenne. Add the meat and stand over hot water. Serve in a border of rice.

Cutlets of Cold Mutton.

From a leg of mutton, cooked rare, cut pieces about the size of an ordinary loin chop. These may be fried in a little fat, or dipped in egg and bread crumbs and fried in deep fat, or they may be brushed over with fat, and broiled. The result is more like meat cooked for the first time than the ordinary warmed-over meat. Cutlets so prepared may be served with any of the sauces served with chops.

ACID FRUIT JUICES FOR SUMMER DRINKS

Special Recipe Not Necessary to Make Fruitade.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Almost any slightly acid fruit juices can be used as the basis for a good summer drink. If desired a small amount of lemon may be added to intensify other fruit flavors. It is a practical plan to keep one or two bottles of water cooling in the ice box to dilute fruit juices readily. Ginger ale or a charged water, such as apollinaris, helps to convert a simple "fruitade" into a "punch" for occasions when a festive drink is appropriate, but the fruit juices, diluted with water only and well chilled, are very refreshing.

A special recipe is not necessary to make a fruitade. Any single predominant flavor may give it its name: raspberry, grape, pineapple, or orange; often four or five fruits are blended in approximately equal quantities. The flavor of peaches combines well with pear juice, pineapple, orange, and lemon; the juice of blackberries, raspberries, currants, blackberries, grapefruit, limes, and plums can be used in any selected combinations. Lemon is necessary (unless limes are used for the purpose) to make the drink sufficiently acid to quench the thirst on a hot day.

The amount of water added depends somewhat on the kinds of fruit used, and also on the preference of the "taster." A preponderance of very acid juices—lemon or lime—will stand more dilution than the milder flavors. In general one part of water to one of mixed fruit juice can be tried at first, and more water added if it seems desirable. Tea may be substituted for about one-third of the water if the punch is made for adults; if children are to have any, it is better to omit the tea. The individual taste must be the guide in sweetening.

Sugar should be added to fruit drinks in the form of sirup, to get the best effect, as well as to use it in the most economical way. Two parts of sugar to one of water should be simmered for five minutes and then cooled before adding to the other ingredients. Sugar sirup can be prepared for several days at a time, and kept bottled in the refrigerator; leftover fruit juices may also be boiled with sugar and kept in a cold place for short periods until one has enough on hand to make up a good fruitade.

A thin slice or two of orange and lemon, some chopped bits of pineapple and banana, a few colorful berries, invite attention to the bowl or pitcher of punch, and a sprig of mint both flavors and completes it. Professional caterers often include a slice of cucumber. When a fruit punch must be prepared for a large gathering of people—a dance, a soiree, or a picnic—it is helpful to have exact ingredients specified. About 40 persons can be served by the following recipe, which is recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture.

Fruit Punch.

1 can grated pineapple, berry, raspberry or strawberry juice.
3 cupfuls boiling water.
2 pint bottles
1 cupful freshly apollinaris or ginger ale.
Juice of 6 lemons. 2 pounds sugar
Juice of 18 oranges. Boil with 1 4 teaspoonful salt. quart water 1 quart grape. 5 minutes.
currant, logan. Ice to cool.

Cook the pineapple for 20 minutes in the boiling water and strain. Cool, add the remaining fruit juices, the tea, and the cooled sirup. It is better to make the punch a few hours ahead and let it stand closely covered on ice to chill and ripen. At serving time, add the apollinaris, ginger ale, or water to dilute to the strength desired. Garnish with thin slices of fruit and mint leaves.

Buttermilk Corn Meal Mush.

White corn meal cooked in buttermilk makes a dish which resembles cottage cheese in flavor. It may be eaten hot, but is especially palatable when served very cold with cream. For this purpose it is sometimes molded in cups. In making it, allow 1 part of corn meal to 6 parts of buttermilk and 1 teaspoonful of salt to each cup of meal, according to the United States Department of Agriculture.

Florida's Big Bridge

Florida is building the longest automobile toll bridge in the world. Five and three-quarter miles in length, including causeways, this great span stretches across the upper arm of Tampa bay, connecting the winter resort of St. Petersburg with the commercial city of Tampa. Thirty-three miles—more than one-half—will be cut from the present distance between the two cities when the bridge is completed. It is estimated that the road way will be thrown open to traffic by September 1.

Paper Currency

It has been computed that the cost to the United States of making a $1 bill is about as great as to make a $20 or a $10,000 bill. The expense is 13 cents each. The length of service varies in direct ratio to the value of the note. The $1 bill lasts little more than a year, it is estimated, a $10 bill lasts about four years, while a $10,000 bill obviously, seldom wears out.

THE JEMISON HIGH SCHOOL TO OPEN SEPTEMBER 1ST

Editor of The Chilton County News,
Clanton, Ala.

Dear Sir:—

I wish to ask for a short space through your columns to say a word in regard to the schools of Chilton County and particularly that of Jemison. I am interested in the schools of the County because I have spent a very pleasant year of teaching in the County High School and because I believe there is as good blood in this County as any in the State. Therefore I am interested in the success of its boys and girls. And since I am principal of the Jemison school this year it is my ambition to pave the way to success for the boys and girls under its care.

The course of study arranged and selected for the Jemison Consolidated School this year shall be taught so far as possible to be of maximum value to the extent pursued. This aim is being pushed forward: Because of the uncertainty of the time that pupils are in school; because it will serve as an incentive for good work; and because it will aid the pupils in understanding values. When we, as teachers, teach people to do better the desirable thing they are going to do anyway, reveal higher activities and make them both desired and to an extent possible and make them realize what is worth learning is worth retaining—the duty of the school has been to a large extent fulfilled. Then the "getting by" attitude will be cast aside and the seriousness of the job realized.

The school is expecting a large enrollment this year. And since the whole policy of compulsory education rises or falls with the ability to make school life an interesting and absorbing experience to the child we hope to take a great deal of work off the attendance officer. To do this we must know what the child has been internally occupied with. What the predominating direction of his intention is, his feelings and disposition. Through the co-operation of teachers, parents and pupils this can most easily be accomplished. With such hearty co-operation as the Jemison people have thus far given, and with the new addition to the school building, it is to be hoped that this will be the banner year in the history of the school.

Respectfully,
J. A. PETERSON.

NEW CODE ON BANKING

Must Not Overdraw Your Deposit Heavy Penalty if You Do.

The new code of Alabama that went into effect on August 17th, among other drastic regulations, does after the illegal issuance of bank checks in real earnest.

Even a depositor in a bank, to be clear of a grave and punishable violation of law, must always be careful and never overdraw his deposit and never allow any check of his to go to the bank unless he has the cash in there to cover it.

The drawing of checks that are no good has become so a common and is worked in so many different ways that this law has been framed for the purpose of breaking up the practice entirely, if possible.

When your check is returned marked "No Funds," you are already guilty, with no chance left for you to deny the charge, or make any explanation that will clear you before the law.

The fines for violation of this law run as high as $5,000 and imprisonment as long as 10 years, one or both at the discretion of the court. All of you business men should post yourselves in this law right now. It is different from the old law and has some vicious teeth in it.

A VISIT OF THE KU KLUX

Last Friday night the large congregation that had assembled at the Samaria Church for the night service were surprised to see quite a large number of white robed figures silently filing in at the doors and marching sedately up the aisles to the pulpit.

Arriving there they halted and dejected to the pastor, Rev. Lawrence, a sealed envelope containing a note endorsing the good work he was doing and a contribution of $25.00. The preacher read the note aloud to the congregation, thanked the donors and then all engaged in prayers after which the white robed delegation as silently departed as they had come and the regular services proceeded.

Our information is that some few people in the congregation manifested a little alarm when the Klansmen marched in, perhaps wondering if the visit was intended for them, but the general sentiment was one of surprise, as the hooded visitors appeared so suddenly and so silently.

From the papers we have noticed trips like this one are common, with the Klan all over the country and they appear to encourage protestant religious movements all over the country.

NOTICE

The County Board of Education will meet at the Courthouse on August 29, for the purpose of determining what routes shall be established for the coming year for the transportation of school children and also to accept bids for these routes.

Any one desiring to bid for any route should do so on, or before that date.

HOWARD L. FOSHEE, County Supt. Education.

FIRE LAST THURSDAY NIGHT

About 9 o'clock last Thursday night fire broke out in the store and grist mill over across the creek on the Lock 12 Highway, on the place of Mr. Plier.

The alarm was given as soon as the fire was discovered, but before help could arrive the store and grist mill were hopelessly on fire and nothing could be done to save them.

By good work the blaze was confined to this double structure and the splendid bungalow of Mr. Plier which was only a few feet distant, was saved, besides other buildings and residences close by.

A Mr. Wells operated the store there and the loss on the goods falls on him. Mr. Plier owned the buildings. So far as we can learn there was no insurance.

TICK CASES CONTINUED

Dr. Cameron, the Federal Cattle tick inspector for our county, was in attendance at court on some cattle tick cases.

Owing to the fact that Dr. Cary, state veterinarian was absent Dr. Cameron had all of the cases continued.

An attachment was issued for the appearance of Dr. Cary at next court and these cases will come up then.

Dr. Cameron tells us that the dipping business is in splendid shape in our county, with the exception of a few small areas.

FOR SALE—Now if it is a real milch cow you want I have one for sale. Cow is fresh with 3rd calf can be seen at T. G. Wood's pasture 2 miles south west of Clanton. C. D. Wells.

DON'T FORGET THAT AUDITORIUM

Just think how pleasant it would be if we had a nice, comfortable auditorium, or community house, centrally located where we could all meet together and discuss the many important questions that arise.

The people in Clanton need to get better acquainted. Need to understand each other better. Need to talk over business outlooks and lay cooperative plans together for our common good. We need to get together, pull together and work together, laying aside every sentiment but an honest desire to help each other and help our town.

DON'T GET THE BLUES

While the very promising cotton crop of 15 days ago has suffered greatly from the dry weather and hot sun, and while no bumper crop need be expected now, the general consensus of reports that we get from the farmers indicates that even yet the crop will be better than what we had last year.

There is no use to get the blues and be unhappy because we failed to get all we expected, for there is enough made in the fields now to ward off the wolf and enable us all to keep kicking awhile longer. In a very few days now dollars will begin to jingle again.

Miss Roberta Hayes is a Birmingham visitor this week.

CHILTON COUNTY DEMOCRATIC EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE CALLED TO MEET

TO RESUME WORK ON M. E. CHURCH.

In conversation with Dr. C. C. Wilkerson, pastor of the Methodist church, we learn that all arrangements have been made and a competent foreman employed to begin work again on the splendid M. E. Church building on eighth street.

This is pleasant news to us all, for the completion of that massive structure will add wonderfully to the architectural beauty of Clanton and be something that we can all point to with genuine pride. The actual work will begin in a day or so.

FIDDLING JOHN CARSON COMING

On next Friday and Saturday nights the world famous Fiddler, John Carson, will give an exhibition at the Court House in person.

You have all heard about him and many of you have listened to his records on the phone. This will be your opportunity to hear and see him in action in person.

At the Court House next Friday and Saturday nights. Don't miss his musical treat.

MEETING AT COLLINS CHAPEL

Dr. Ezell, pastor of the Baptist church here, is preaching twice per day this week in a protracted meeting at the Collins Chapel Baptist church.

Large crowds are attending the services and much interest is being manifested in the good work.

GOOD MEETING AT WALNUT CREEK

The meeting last week at Walnut Creek church was very successful and resulted in much good.

Rev. G. B. Golden, the pastor, has gone this week to Tuscaloosa to aid in a meeting there, and will go the following week to South Alabama to help in a meeting.

Bro. Golden is a young preacher who is making his mark.

OPENING OF CLANTON GRAMMAR SCHOOL

I wish to announce that the Clanton Grammar School will open on Monday September 8. The incidental fee will be $3.50 for residents of the district and $5.00 to non residents the same as it was last year. There will be a complete change of text books except in the primary grades. We are required by law to organize the school under the 6-3-3 plan, which will give us two years of Junior High School work.

W. E. MARTIN, Prin.

RADCLIFF CHAUTAUQUA COMING

A party of citizens have arranged a contract with the Radcliff Chautauqua people calling for the appearance of that organization during September.

The positive dates will be given out later, as the management have to arrange this schedule in a way that will enable them to meet all dates with the least trouble and most certainty.

This Chautauqua has been to Clanton two or three times before and the nature of the entertainments are commonly known.

ALMOST A BASE BALL WEEK

Tuesday of last week, the "Independents," a crack amateur base ball team from Birmingham, came down and played our boys four straight games, concluding the series on Friday afternoon.

The Clanton team won, with all case three games and, as that completed a three to two victory out of five game series, our boys were satisfied and allowed the visitors a victory of 4 to 5 on Friday.

The boys from Birmingham seemed to be nice clever fellows and took their defeat in good part. They are also good ball players, but when any team gets up against the Clanton bunch this year they find out pretty quick that they have tackled the real thing and unless they have real wit and hog luck in their favor they are destined to get beat.

The season will soon be over now and Clanton fans can certainly blow as loud and as much as they please this fall and winter about how our boys came out far ahead of any other team in Central Alabama.

AUTO WRECK

Two young men of our town, Messrs Winfield Watts and Otis Miller, ran their Ford into a stump Sunday night with such force that they were thrown into the windshield and received some pretty severe cuts about the face and head.

Mr. Watts, we learn, was the most seriously cut though both had to have hospital treatment. Nothing serious is expected to develop in either case.

IN EFFECT SUNDAY

A good many autoists were surprised last Sunday as they come skinning into town with one of the kids at the steering, at being called down by an officer and reminded of the fact that they were violating the age limit law.

No arrests were made, so far as we have heard, but a large number were called to time and put on notice and made to change chauffeurs on the spot. You better take notice now and don't let your kid drive any more for it will cost you a fine now.

Messrs Durwood Jones, C. L. LeCroy and Y. E. Smith, of the Jonestown community were in Clanton Monday. If you were to search Clanton county over it would be hard to find a trio of citizens superior to these.

CLANTON ALWAYS LEADS

Pays More for First Bale Than Any Market in the State

Yesterday morning at about 9 A. M., Clanton tacked up another record as the best and liveliest town in Alabama.

Messrs Culver and Tippet brought in our first bale of cotton soon yesterday morning. It was ginned by the Planters Warehouse Gins and weighed 514 pounds. The sample was brought up and given to Auctioneer Fox who put it on sale to the highest bidder at once.

In a very few minutes it was knocked down to Mr. J. C. Jones for 35 cents, which shows what kind of a big hearted cotton man he is.

When you take notice of the fact that this is the record price for first bale sales in Alabama this year, you will have some conception of the spirit that is making of Clanton the best market and liveliest town in the State.

HIGGINS-RAJNER

Just as we were going to press, news reached us of a marriage that took place yesterday that is of general interest here.

Mr. Burton Higgins and Miss Gussie Rajner were married at Elba, Ala., the home of the bride.

Both of these young people are well known here and have a host of friends who are waiting their very best wishes.

Our Employees Are Bonded

Every Bank expends considerable effort to secure none but honest and efficient officials and employees.

The directors of the First National Bank Bank feel that they have been especially fortunate in securing the services of persons of unusual integrity and ability for every position of trust in this Bank.

The Directors, however, feel that for the absolute protection of its depositors they should not depend on honesty alone for this protection, but should place all possible safeguards around those whom it employs.

A heavy bond has, therefore, been placed on every employee of this institution, which insures more completely than would otherwise be possible, full protection for the Bank and individual depositor alike.

MRS. BUSH TELLS OTHER WOMEN

How Pains in Side and Dragging Down Feelings Were Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Massena, N.Y.,—"I had terrible pains in both my sides and a dragging-down feeling that affected me so that I could hardly walk, and I got run-down. A friend who had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advised me to try it and I have taken it with the best results. I do my housework and also some outdoor work on the farm. The Vegetable Compound has given me back my health and I can't praise it enough. I am perfectly willing that you should use these facts if my letter will help other women who still suffer." Mrs. DORIS BUSH, R. F. D. 1, Massena, N.Y.

The spirit of helpfulness shown in the letters we are constantly publishing is worthy of notice.

These women know by experience what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will do. Your troubles are the same as theirs. Isn't it reasonable to expect the same results?

If you have pains and a dragging-down feeling and are nervous and irritable, profit by Mrs. Bush's experience and give the Compound a trial.

His Lucky Time

Brown was interviewing candidates for the job of gardener. The one before him did not seem promising, but Brown thought he would give him a chance.

"Er—how long were you in your last place?" he asked.

"Off his guard, the applicant replied, 'A month, sir.'"

"That's not very long! And how were before that?"

"Three months, sir," replied the applicant, boldly.

"That's better; now, And the time before that?"

The applicant drew himself up proudly as he said: "There wasn't no time before that, sir; I got off with a fine."

MARY SUCCEEDS ON MAIN STREET

By LAURA MILLER

HOSTESS OF TORCH-LIGHT FISHING LAKE

Lac du Flambeau, Wis., seemed in 1913 a very deserted little Main Street. Originally it was a sandy trail through great white pine trees, from Indian fishing village to Indian hunting grounds. Then French voyageurs in search of beaver followed it and translated its Indian name, Was-Wah-Gam-ling, "Near-the-Torch-Light-Fishing-Lake," into their own tongue. Followed Americans who persuaded the descendants of Hiawatha to make Lac du Flambeau the center of a permanent reservation. But year after year, after generation, say the old men, the trail remained the same pine-shadowed, moss-crept highway.

Nineteen fifteen saw it sun-bitten, dusty, desolate, running through a devastated country past a forested saw-mill, beyond rows of unpainted, deserted cabins that mill workers had used while the company stripped the reservation of its timber. One painted house stood apart at the end of the trail where the lake waves up to meet it. One of the two remaining clumps of trees stood near. One of the few spirits who had absorbed from ruthless business the good to be learned and avoided the ill, dwelt in the painted house. The one pair of eyes that saw the green beauty that would soon clothe the land, and the fish that begged for fishermen in the long chain of lakes, belonged to the dweller in the painted house.

There was question from her husband when Mrs. Benedict Gauthier proposed to put all the family savings into a summer hotel for fishermen and their families. There was opposition from the Indian tribe, only to be overcome by long and patient councils. There was argument even from some of her most progressive advisers when it became known that she wanted an architect to design the hotel, and proposed a highly paid man cook, and maids in crisp black and white uniform.

But the architect and the cook and the maids became realities. The Indians found guiding fishermen both lucrative and pleasant as a change from their farming. Of the many guests who drift back to Lac du Flambeau summer after summer, not a few have become fast friends of both Mr. and Mrs. Gauthier, friends such as would never have crossed the door of a couple marooned in the painted house on the lonely trail.

The final dramatic touch in the story to many folk lies in the fact that Mrs. Gauthier, like the village, has an Indian name, given her by a pagan godmother, in a wigwam, in token of her own Ojibway blood.

A REAL TEACHER

If all of every schoolchild's life were guided by such a woman as Alice Talbot, what sort of citizens would we have? And if each of us who considered being a schoolman could put into the job her sure enthusiasm, do you think there would be any question of our success and happiness?

"I teach," she says, "because I have natural ability in that line of work. I teach in high school because it offers an opportunity to help the world of folks in their formative years. High schools are a selective, yet democratic group. I teach because in doing so I serve; and in service there is happiness. I teach because I like folks; I believe folks—just folks—are the greatest things in the world.

"I prefer the smaller high school because it seems to me the teacher has more personal influence than in a large, machine-like organization necessary with a large group. (The teachers in St. Louis schools are requested to put 50 per cent of their energy into administrative work. L. M.)

"My mother and my grandmother were teachers before us. My grandmother's wages were 50 cents a day. Mine represents an increase of more than 300 per cent. (Shades of the arguments about plumbers' increases! Yet we know teachers aren't overpaid. But let's get on to this Alice Talbot's education, and see how she prepared herself.)

"My education includes, in addition to a country school training, five years of high school, more than five years of college and university work with an A. B. degree, private training in dramatics and public speaking, piano, organ and voice. (One doesn't have to accomplish that all at once, you know. The best small-town high school principal I ever met was gaining his university training, summer term by summer term, plus supporting a wife.)

"I worked along social service lines for a year," says Miss Talbot, "in one of the most famous clinics in the United States. Fifty to sixty thousand pass through it each year, six thousand through the section with which I was associated.

"I prefer the Main Street section of the world where there is elbow room for the body and for the soul."

SCREENED FOOD CHEST WILL CHECK FLIES

At any time of the year it is important to protect food from flying dust in the kitchen, pantry, or wherever it may be stored, but after fly season begins it is dangerous not to provide some convenient way of preventing flies from alighting on the food, either in the course of preparation, or between one meal and the next. Cooked dishes waiting to be cooled before being put in the refrigerator, and warm food left after a meal, to be stored later in the icebox, can be cared for by putting them into a screened food chest like the one illustrated. Such a chest, placed in a porch near the kitchen or in some other place where there is a good circulation of air, will protect the food from contamination by flies or mice, and the legs can also be constructed, when necessary, so that ants could not get into it. In hot weather it is not recommended that foods liable to spoil be stored anywhere but in the refrigerator; but one may have need to cool a pudding or cake, or to set aside odds and ends of vegetables for short periods of time until they are cool enough to put in the ice box. In winter, and during part of the spring and fall in northern climates, a capacious screened closet, well ventilated, enables one to do without ice.

The screened chest shown was homemade. Ordinary window screening was used. It was made during the kitchen improvement contest among farm women in Wythe county, Va. The woman who made it used it in a large pantry.

POLISH WAX FLOORS WITH HEAVY BRUSH

Should Be Cleaned Thoroughly Once Every Week.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Waxed floors should be swept with a soft brush or mop entirely free from oil. Oil softens wax and should never be used on it in any way. About once a week a waxed floor should be given a more thorough cleaning with a cloth wrung out of warm soapy water, or, better still, moistened with turpentine or gasoline. Water dulls and whitens a waxed floor and though the color and luster may be restored by polishing, labor may be saved by using turpentine or gasoline, for they dissolve the films of dirt wax on the surface and leave it bright. Both these liquids, however, are very inflammable and are not to be used in a room where there is an open flame of any kind; also, they should be kept in a tightly-corked bottle from which a little is poured onto the cloth as needed. Parts of the floor that have the hardest wear should be refinished.

Small Boy Can Manipulate Brush Very Easily.

with a thin coating of wax and then polished; or occasionally after cleaning, the entire floor may be given a very thin coat of wax and polished with a weighted brush or woolen cloth.

Under moderate use, however, a floor needs waxing only two or three times a year. Applying too much wax is a common mistake; the surplus simply lies on the surface in a soft coat that collects dust and is easily marred. White spots made by water will generally disappear if they are rubbed with a woolen cloth or weighted brush; if necessary, a little wax may be applied.

Oiled floors should be swept with a soft brush and dusted with an oiled cloth or mop. Occasionally, they need a more thorough cleaning with a cloth wrung out of warm, soapy water, followed by polishing with a cloth moistened with kerosene or a good floor oil. Water and soap should be used very sparingly on oiled floors, says the United States Department of Agriculture.

OKRA IS EXCELLENT FOR SOUP FLAVORS

May Be Grown Throughout Greater Part of Country.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Okra, or "gumbo," commonly used in the South, may be grown throughout the greater portion of the United States, except the extreme northern part. The pods are excellent dried and canned, and as these may be obtained in every large market, its use is not confined to any season.

The principal use of okra is in soups and in various dishes in which meats form an important part. The young pods impart an excellent flavor, besides giving a pleasant mucilaginous consistency.

No copper, brass, or iron cooking vessel should be employed in preparing okra, as the metal will be absorbed and the pods discolored, or even rendered poisonous, warns the United States Department of Agriculture. The cooking should be done in enameled, porcelain, or earthenware utensils.

Try these recipes:

Baked Okra.
Place a thin layer of rice in a baking dish, add a layer of sliced okra, then a layer of tomatoes; add salt, pepper, a little curry powder, and a small lump of butter. Repeat with alternate layers of rice, okra and tomatoes until the dish is filled. Cover and bake in the oven until the rice is thoroughly cooked. Remove cover and brown on top. Serve in the baking dish. The rice should be washed in cold water before using, and the okra pods and tomatoes washed and sliced rather thinly.

Winter Okra Soup.
1 can of good New Orleans okra. 1 dozen oysters. 2 cans of tomatoes. 2 tablespoonfuls of rice. 2 tablespoonfuls of butter. A small dried red pepper pod, without the seeds, or a dash of cayenne.

Chop the onions and fry them in the butter. Wash the rice well, then stew the onions, tomatoes and pepper together in about 3 quarts of water and 1 pint of oyster water for about three hours, stirring frequently. Ten minutes before serving add the okra and let it come to a boil. Then drop in the oysters, boil up once, and serve.

Chicken Gumbo.
1 chicken, weighing 3 or 4 pounds. 1 onion. 1/2 pod of dried red pepper, without seeds. 1 pint of okra, or about 50 pods. 1 large slice of ham. 1 bay leaf. 1 sprig of parsley. 1 tablespoonful of butter. Each of lard and butter. Salt and cayenne to taste.

Clean and cut up the chicken. Cut the ham into small squares or dice and chop the onion and the parsley or thyme. Wash and stem the okra and slice into thin layers of one-half inch each. Put the lard and butter into the soup kettle, and when hot add the chicken and the ham. Cover closely and let it simmer for about ten minutes. Then add the chopped onions, parsley, and tomatoes, stirring frequently to prevent scorching. Then add the okra, and when well browned add the juice of the tomatoes, which imparts a superior flavor. The okra is delicate and may scorch if not stirred frequently. For this reason many Creole cooks fry the okra pods separately in a frying pan, seasoning with the pepper, cayenne, and salt and then add them to the chicken

Why Lucy Did Not Leave Ned for City Chap

By MAY COBB

(© 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

THE lighthouse keeper looked round as a light step sounded on the stone stairs. At his side stood a pretty, petulant-looking girl of about nineteen, his adopted daughter, Lucy.

"Father," she said, with the suspicion of a sob in her voice, "I'm thinking of going to New York tomorrow."

John Eldridge's face became a mask, and over it a white pallor crept.

"So! You've quarreled with Ned," he said.

"He wants to remain here after we're married, father," the girl protested. "It's so slow here. I want to see life and gaiety."

"Wait!" shouted Eldridge. "Put a pin in them words, girl, and remember them. I'm going to tell you a story."

"You don't know how I came to adopt you, nor who your folks was, do you? Didn't know your mother lived in these parts? Yet everybody round about here knew Milly Torrance when she was a slip of a thing like you."

"Had the same ideas, too, she said, about seeing life. She was engaged to a young fellow who had just got the charge of this lighthouse."

"There was a young fellow whom we'll call Cray, because that wasn't his name. Son of a millionaire, and hadn't never done a day's honest work in his life. He was a flashy chap, with his gold jewelry and ostentatious ways."

The speaker's voice had become menacing; the girl recoiled and looked at him in dismay.

"Milly and he struck up an acquaintance. She had seen few men of his class—she didn't understand. Used to talk to her for hours about New York and foreign parts. Then he went away."

"The young fellow at the lighthouse was eating his heart out in grief. After Cray had gone back to New York, Milly seemed to realize that she had played with an honest man's heart. She asked him to forgive her. He forgave her, and they arranged the day for the wedding. But there was always a something between them."

"The minister was to bring the girl out in his boat, and they were to be married in the lighthouse. The day before the wedding a note from Milly told him that she and Cray were sailing for Europe together. 'I love him,' the letter said, 'and he has promised to marry me. You must forget me and find some better woman.'"

"He knew the ship on which she was to sail, the Grosvenor, would pass the light at ten in the night. He knew if that little light went out the ships that were eastward bound would dash themselves to pieces upon Rockman's ledge, five miles away, thinking that they were on the high seas before they had cleared the shoals. And as the young man stood, helpless, beside his light a dreadful temptation assailed him."

"If only he let the light go out, the Grosvenor would run aground on Rockman's ledge and, in that tide, split up before morning. Many would die. Perhaps Milly would die, or Cray—well, even that would be better than the future in store for her."

"At nine o'clock he was waiting on the platform. When he saw the distant twinkling of the Grosvenor's lights he meant to put out his own. He gloated over the thought."

"And the lights appeared, and—he couldn't. For you know, girl, habit forms character, and he, who had held his post so long, the one trust of many a mighty ship, he couldn't fail. His hand wouldn't move; the light burned steadily, and the ship swept past."

"That's all, girl. For I mustn't speak of the rest, nor how she crept back home to die, with the little girl. But she saw the young lighthouse keeper before the end, and he forgave her, and that's why—that's why—"

His voice grew incoherent, and the girl, who had been staring, open-mouthed at him, feeling something of the tragedy, recoiled and gripped the stair railing in her terror. All the desire had gone out of her. She wanted a home now, for so many years. Before either could speak a heavy tread sounded below and a boat began spinnling at anchor beside the lighthouse landing. Then a young man, tanned by the sun and weather-beaten and distinctly anxious, strode up the stairs.

"Lucy!" he cried. "So you are here! I heard!—I heard—"

He caught her in his arms and her head drooped and nestled against his shoulder.

"I heard you were going to New York," he exclaimed, with a terror in his voice that contrasted strangely with his looks. "Lucy, it isn't true? You wouldn't go there, when I want you to make a home for both of us? I know it's quiet here, child, but—maybe you'll get to like it when the babies come," he added with rough honesty.

"You'll stay, Lucy, won't you, my dear, for ever and ever?"

The girl raised her eyes to his. "Yes, I'll stay, Ned," she answered, and slipped her hand trustfully into his. And then both turned to look at the lighthouse keeper.

It is a fact that there is in the wall of Jerusalem a small gateway built for the use of pedestrians and known by a name which is translated as "The Needle's Eye." Through this gate it is quite possible for a small undernourished camel, divested of all its equipment, harness, etc., by kneeling, to work its way, though not without difficulty. ## Ale Once Labeled Poison

Years ago in the merry days of the English tavern there was a turmoil among radicals over the "poisoning" of the ale drunk by the common people. The trouble was caused when some one leaped that in making ale sulphuric acid, made from Spanish pyrites, was used and that this contained arsenic. It was a tempest in a teapot, however, because it would have taken five barrels of ale to contain enough arsenic to hurt one individual.

DAIRY

DEVICE STIRS MILK WHILE IT IS COOLED

Fresh milk is often stirred in order to cool it, and this is usually done by hand, which is a slow and tiresome task. A simple device for doing the work automatically by water flowing into a tank, as shown in the drawing, can be made by any farmer from materials that are available everywhere.

The device consists of a shallow box, made of one-inch pine boards. The ends are sloping and the box is divided into two equal parts by a board extending vertically in the center about eight or ten inches above the sides. The box is mounted at its center on a wooden axle, and a stirring paddle is attached to each end as indicated. These paddles are made from laths, planed smooth, and having a number of short crosspieces nailed on. In use, the milk cans are placed in the water tank and the stirring device arranged as shown in the drawing, the rocking-box being located under a water pipe so that the water first flows into one side and then into the other side alternately. As soon as one side of the box is filled the weight of the water causes the box to tilt over, and the other side of the box is then filled.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Young Calves Made Good Gains on Corn Silage

Silage, when fed to calves less than three or four months old, produced good gains economically, with no bad physical effects. In a test made during the past winter at the Iowa experiment station.

Five Jersey and four Guernsey calves, averaging at the start about fifty days of age, were divided into three groups. Before the trial they received whole milk, skim milk, grain and alfalfa hay. After being divided into groups, they were continued for eight days on part whole milk and then changed wholly to skim milk. A grain mixture consisting of three parts cornmeal, three parts ground oats, two parts bran and one part oilmeal was hand fed. Timothy hay, split and water was available at all times.

Each group was fed silage for a 40-day period in addition to the regular ration and then silage roots replaced the silage for a 40-day period. Still a third 40-day period was used in which the calves received only the timothy hay and grain ration. Slightly more than four pounds of corn silage a day was consumed by each calf during the silage feeding period. The consumption of silage roots ran 5.74 pounds per calf per day.

It was found that the silage or roots reduced the amount of hay eaten and that growth was more rapid. Less other feed was required with the silage or roots, and the gains were cheaper. No scoring due to silage feeding occurred.

Dairy Facts

Speaking of poor relations, consider the scrub bull.

Give dairy cows more clean drinking water and shade.

If pastures are short, give the cows a larger grain ration.

The way to improve common stock is by using good sires.

Clean water should be placed before the calf at all times.

Let the calf suck its dam for the first four or five days or until the milk is fit to use. Then wean the calf.

Blood will tell, but not blood alone. The best bred cow in the world won't keep up good milk production unless she has plenty of feed rich in materials that produce milk.

Culling the cows is a constant job. No matter how good your herd, there is always a chance to improve. When you get high up the scale of production the culling process may be very profitable.

Tuberculosis control must be regarded as a long-time problem. Its eradication cannot be accomplished in one clean sweep. A very gradual reduction is all that can be expected and that will take persistent and consistent effort.

Dr. Otto Weidfeldt, German ambassador to the United States, has been relieved at his own request and will return to private life. It is expected that Dr. William Cuno, former chancellor, will succeed him.

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best—Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has no curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says, "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments, corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

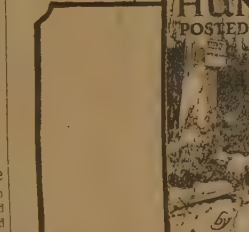

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by parcel post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores.—Advertisement.

Entrenched Prejudice

Most nations, like most men, are foolish only in youth; they become incorrigible as they grow old. When customs are once established and prejudices rooted, it is a dangerous and useless enterprise to try to reform them, the people will not permit their misfortunes to be touched upon, even for their instruction—like the stupid and cowardly sick who shudder at sight of a physician.—Jean Jacques Rousseau.

Easiest and cheapest thing to dispense is praise; and the dividends are always good.

Davis and Coolidge Deliver Acceptance Speeches—Deadlock in London.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

JOHN W. DAVIS and Calvin Coolidge were formally told last week that they were the Presidential nominees of the Democrats and the Republicans, respectively. It has not been necessary to tell Senator La Follette that he is an independent candidate, for he really nominated himself.

Mr. Davis got the word first, at his home in Clarksburg, W. Va., where some 50,000 people gathered for the ceremony and sat through a driving rainstorm while the candidate delivered his speech of acceptance. The address was broadcast by radio so that all the country had a chance to hear it. For that reason any extended summary of it would be superfluous. Having given the Democratic platform his "heartly approval," Mr. Davis declared the supreme need of the hour "is to bring back to the people confidence in their government," and in this connection he referred caustically to the relations between the President and Congress and said the Republican party was a "leaderless and incoherent mob." He then proceeded to indict the Republican party "in its organized capacity for having shaken public confidence to its very foundations. I charge it with having exhibited deeper and more widespread corruption than any that this generation of Americans has been called upon to witness."

To the farmers he promised to remove tariff discrimination, enlarge their foreign markets and assist them in marketing plans. Labor, he said, should not suffer impairment of its rights by injunction or any other device. The eighteenth amendment, he declared, being the law, he would no more think of ignoring its enforcement than he would ignore the Ten Commandments. His declaration in favor of religious freedom was strong, but he did not mention the Ku Klux Klan by name. As for foreign entanglements, he said he would sincerely favor the league of nations as a dead incident, but he did not believe the entrance of America into the league common judgment of the American people is ready for the step. Mr. Davis announced that he had just severed his connection with the New York law firm, but declared he had no apology to offer for his career and conduct as a lawyer.

Leaders of both parties professed to be highly pleased with Mr. Davis' address. The Democrats called it frank, courageous and unequivocally progressive. The Republicans said it drew definite campaign lines which are just what they wish as issues.

THURSDAY evening Calvin Coolidge stood before a throng that filled Continental Memorial hall in Washington and delivered his address accepting the Republican nomination. Much of it was devoted to an exposition of the country's progress in the last four years, under Republican rule. He told of the resumption of friendly relations with foreign governments, the liquidating of more than 40 per cent of the foreign debt due as a result of the civil war, the reduction of our national debt, the revival of industry, "which is spreading to agriculture," the decrease of unemployment and the increase of wages. He defended the immigration law and protective tariff, and cited the economies worked in national government expenditures. He did not claim for the Republican administration too much credit for the recent upturn of prices for agricultural products, but did assert that the government had rendered much assistance to the farmer, and promised more. He warmly commended the proposed child labor amendment, and said of prohibition that he would do his best to enforce the dry law. Like Mr. Davis, he declared in favor of membership in the world court, but reaffirmed his opposition to entrance into the League of Nations. He had a good deal to say about the probable success of the plan to settle Europe's tangled affairs laid down by the commission headed by his running mate, General Dawes.

When the Dawes plan is in operation, he promised, he will approach the great powers on the subject of holding another conference for further limitation of armaments and for the codification of international law.

It was noted that neither Mr. Davis nor Mr. Coolidge alluded directly to the candidacy of La Follette. The former merely said the people must choose between "the delusive panaceas of the dreamy radical and the smug complacency of the conservative," and the latter said: "We are likely to have a great deal of discussion about liberal thought and progressive action. It is well for the country to have liberality in thought and progress in action, but its greatest asset is common sense."

THE Democratic national committee completed its reorganization by electing Clem Shaver as chairman, Mrs. Emily Newell Blair of Missouri, Frank S. Hague of New Jersey and Samuel Amdon as vice chairman; James W. Gerald of New York as treasurer and Charles Greathouse as secretary. James Jones, a Texas banker, was made chairman of the finance committee. Mr. Shaver then went to Chicago to open western headquarters.

SENATOR JIM REED of Missouri has announced that he will support the candidacy of John W. Davis, which may or may not help the Democratic nominee. In Illinois the executive board of the state Federation of Labor has endorsed the candidacies of La Follette for President and Len Small for re-election as governor. Ohio Democrats renominated Gov. A. V. Donahy, and the Republicans nominated former Gov. Harry L. Davis.

THERE is no good reason to believe that the London conference on the Dawes plan will not result in full agreement, but at this writing it is in a deadlock over the matter of the evacuation of the Ruhr. All other questions were virtually settled after the arrival of the German delegation and the French and Belgians on the other could not reach an accord on the evacuation, the point in dispute being the time when that should take place. Premier Herriot, who already has made so many concessions that his political position at home is imperiled, insists that the military occupation continue for 12 months after the application of the Dawes plan so as to insure the carrying out of its stipulations. The Germans demand complete evacuation not later than January, 1925, saying that nothing less will satisfy the Reichstag and German public opinion. Really they fear that the Herriot cabinet will not last for 12 months and that it will be succeeded by a reactionary government that would find some excuse for refusing to carry out the undertakings of Herriot. Also, it is said, they have learned that British bankers would not lend money on a basis of evacuation of the Ruhr a year hence.

The French and German finance ministers, who are in London, have drawn up a Franco-German commercial treaty the signing of which is involved in the Ruhr evacuation. By it France would receive preferential treatment in many respects.

The "big fourteen," as the allied and German delegates are called, have been discussing the matter of relocating the reparations to be recovered from Germany, and Ambassador Kellogg and Colonel Logan both informed them that the United States was deeply interested in this and would be represented at the meeting of financiers planned, if only for the purpose of enforcing its claims for army of occupation costs, Lusatian damages and other losses.

Secretary of State Hughes, on his return home from his European trip, said he was very hopeful of the situation abroad and believed the Dawes report would be accepted and put into effect within a short time.

HAVING received word that the harbor at Angkor, Siam, was comparatively clear of ice, the American flyers planned to make the jump from Reykjavik, Iceland, on Thursday. Then came a wireless report that the ice had again closed in, and the flight was postponed. The Danish steamer Gertrud Rask finally has forced her way into the harbor with supplies for the aviators. Lieutenant Locatelli of Italy, who is flying in the wake of the Americans, was prevented by fogs from making the jump from the Orkneys to Iceland. Major Zanni, Argentinian round-the-world flyer, has reached Rangoon.

Flood several weeks' reports of the western world. More definite stories are now coming, and these say the devastation is terrible. It is estimated that between 30,000 and 14,000 persons have been drowned and that nearly 15,000,000 are in peril of death from famine. The torrential floods were general throughout the country but the provinces of Chihli and Hunan were the worst sufferers. The American Red Cross chapters in the Far East already are doing what relief work is possible. The American legation at Peking says $10,000,000 will be needed.

OUTBREAKS in the Sudan which culminated in a fight at Athara between Egyptian troops and British Sudanese soldiers are looked on in London as serious precursors of trouble and the government has sent warships to Egypt and reinforcements to Khartoum. The disturbances are said to have been stirred up by an Egyptian propagandist society with headquarters in Cairo, which aims to restore the former khedive, Abbas Hilmi. Control of the part of the Sudan affected is in dispute between Egypt and Great Britain.

THERE is grave trouble, too, in Spain, though the censorship keeps the details rather dark. The Moroccan army, as demanded that the king dismiss Dictator Primo de Rivera and abolish the dictatorship, and wishes General Weyler to be the head of a new government. Since King Alfonso supported the revolution that overthrew the constitutional government and placed De Rivera in power, it is considered possible that he will abdicate.

In both the Spanish and the French protectorates of Morocco there has been sanguinary fighting and in the latter the Moors were temporarily successful.

"CONSTITUTION day," the fifth anniversary of the foundation of the German republic, was celebrated in Berlin and elsewhere last week, but with such a monarchist flavor that observers were led to remark that Germany was a republic largely without republicans, especially in the capital.

ENGLAND, France and Italy are determined that there shall not be a Balkan war, and have suggested to Greece, Yugoslavia and Rumania that they lay their grievances against Bulgaria before the council of ambassadors in Paris. Russia is said to have been fomenting the disputes between those smaller nations, but just now she is expecting credits from England, and so may be counted on to behave for the time being. None of the great powers will finance a war movement.

WHITE haired, feeble veterans of the Grand Army of the Republic in national encampment in Boston paraded bravely through a driving rain last Tuesday, and the throngs who watched them cheered and wept as the old soldiers passed. Not many of the boys of '61 are left, and it may be they will never live another annual parade.

On Thursday the veterans elected Dr. Louis F. Arensburg of Uniontown, Pa., commander in chief for the ensuing year and chose Grand Rapids, Mich., as the place for their next encampment. Among the resolutions adopted was one calling for increased pensions

Seems Like Good Idea

A western inventor has patented a system of building construction carried out on the principle of a thermos bottle. A building of any kind, bungalow, large house or commercial structure, has double walls with a vacuum between them. The inventor claims that 50 per cent of the usual heating costs can be saved by his idea. The air space keeps the interior of the building warm in winter, cool in summer, damp proof and sound proof. Also, cheaper construction cost and upkeep are claimed.

Insanity among the vicious high class murdering element is becoming a most popular fad.

The Journal of Commerce has given great credit for the large number of lasting improvements they have put in our city for the last two years.

A dimly lighted parlor and a graphophone furnish the setting for many a private dance that never sees even the questionable light of a hall room.

The acceptance speech of Mr. Davis was an able, scholarly and clean statement of prevailing conditions. He is evidently qualified to make our country a safe executive.

The local tomato crop seems to have about given out as they are very scarce on the market and the dining table has lost half of its attractions for us.

LaFollette is likely to poll a surprisingly large vote in the aggregate, but it will be so widely scattered that it will mean nothing in making him president.

Ladies and girls, when they line up, five or six in a row across the sidewalks, and start along he streets, look like they are naturally looking for trouble.

Edgington endorsed the Dyer anti-lynching law in his speech. That is the infamous proposition to put up a bonus of $10,000 for the pistol. Can you back it?

The red Cotton spider is said to be doing a vast amount of damage in the last week or so. A plain sulphur spray is said to do away with them with neatness and dispatch.

The speech of Mr. Coolidge is conspicuous by the absence of any reference to the oil scandals that have marred up his administration. We are satisfied that his party machinery will be well oiled, however.

The person who consistently contends for the right, the clean and the honest thing in public life, will naturally make enemies in some quarters, but such enmity is a lasting credit to any man.

Both old parties need a house-cleaning and dirty clothes washing, and we rather expect the day is near at hand when these needed sanitary duties will be performed at the ballot box.

When you come right down to brass tacks, Alabama is just about living under a no man government. A power behind the throne has always been a rather sinister situation.

The next election is going to be a revelation to the traditional party leaders. The people are not going to be hand-cuffed and led up to the polls by a party but to such extent as in the past.

The main trouble in counting the majority of social scandals in the average community lies in the truth of that scriptural injunction: "Let him who is without sin cast the first stone."

The Birmingham Post, a daily paper printed in Birmingham, has come out flatfootedly for LaFollette. A few years ago such a move would have killed instantly any paper that tried it in the South.

Since the new Alabama code has been in effect, illegal bank check writers and under fifteen year old auto operators and their guardians are now in the class with the bootlegger and they better sit up and take notice.

The new code of Alabama makes a rather clandestine attack on the Ku Klux Klan. It does not mention the Klan by name in the main body of the book, but Judge Mayfield refers to them by name in the index in referring to certain sections. Professional politicians all seem to fear the Klan.

DEMOCRACY

The standard dictionaries tell us that the meaning of the word "Democracy" is "a government by the people."

That definition epitomizes everything that a real democratic party stands for. That is the "articles of faith" upon which we have always predicated our political faith and anything that departs from that fundamental principle of the great Democratic party does not represent the ideals upon which it was founded, nor the principles for which Thomas Jefferson, and all of the other great leaders of the party have stood for in the past and for which all real Democrats stand for today.

In these peculiar modern times personal politics too often lead the party into error. The principles are the same, the ideals are the same and the possibilities of a real government by the people are the same, and all are embraced in the fundamentals of the Democratic party, and in none other, but the shrewd scheming of selfish politicians who care nothing for the people but worship only the dollar, too often pollute the faith of the party by trickery and bring the millions of Democrats who do not understand why the will of the people has lost its power and why the great blessings that shine out before them, as the legitimate results of their efforts, fall so often to materialize.

There is no place for any secret scheming, nor under cover planning, in a real and true Democracy as dreamed of by its founders and so promised by the very name of this great party. We have no secrets from the world and the greatest desires of all true Democrats is that all of the people may know of its intentions and all of the people take part in its efforts for aiding man and man alike, giving to every voter the opportunity of participating in the government under which he lives.

The great name that designates this party tells us the whole story—a government of the people—and only when we attain that goal in truth, and not in name only, will we all enjoy the supreme satisfaction of living in a land blessed above all other nations.

So wonderful are the machinations of the politicians that more than once, in our personal observation we have seen the two parties—Democratic and Republican fundamentally as far apart as the poles, exchange places, in the course of a few years, and what one set of politicians contended for at one time, was bitterly fought by the opposite party, would in the course of a few years, become the platform of the other party and he as bitterly fought by its former adherents.

Real care for good government and the best interests of the people are lost sight of in such transitory methods as these. Both parties were called into existence as the exponents of certain widely conflicting creeds. Both pretend to stand for these widely divergent political beliefs, still, at times, the political leaders swap places and we find the Democratic leaders piloting the great party into a campaign of centralization, which is the very antithesis of what the party stands for. While at the same time you will find the Republicans championing the cause of State's Rights, which is exactly the reverse of what their party fundamentally represents.

What this country needs to do is to exercise more care in the selection of its public servants. They need to shelve the chronic politicians and look for a few real honest, God-fearing men to put in their places. We need to get back to the fundamentals and to a real Democracy that lives up to the definition of its name. Our people are nothing like as self-governing a people as are the inhabitants of England and they still have a king on the throne.

Everything in this country now is predicated on the almighty dollar. Every party out in the field for the presidential race right now is straining every nerve and pulling every string and selling every government tit in sight to the highest bidder for cash.

Such conditions as these are simple degradation and mean nothing in the world but more and more taxation and more and more crookedness in Washington.

OUR PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE

The speech of acceptance of the Democratic nomination for President, delivered on the eleventh by Hon. John W. Davis, is given up to be a master piece in the way of clearness, logic and simplicity.

He has not been a disappointment to any faction of the party, but is recognized by all Democrats everywhere as a leader in whom all may place their trust, with an abiding faith that he will prove both able and willing to care for the sacred interests of our party with a loyalty not to be questioned.

If elected, Mr. Davis is man enough and honest enough to be the President of all the people, and no other character of man should ever be exalted to that high office. That is a job that calls for a big, broad, able and honest man, and we honestly believe that Mr. Davis will measure up to all these specifications.

We hope to see a Solid South and West line up behind him, with not the shadow of any uncertainty, and land him in the office of President.

He is an able man, an honest man, an astute man of business, and above all, he is not, and never has been a politician in any sense of the word.

The election of Davis and Bryan will assure this country of, at least, four years of clean, honest government for the people.

Birmingham is having lots of trouble. The officials made way with $38,000 of their money and now they are going into an expensive viaduct litigation that no man can see the end of. This is all a pity, for Birmingham is a great city and is destined to be the metropolis of the South in time to come, and all of these tribulations just postpone her future that much.

BACK ON A VISIT

We were glad to shake the hand of Mr. T. L. McKee on the streets Saturday.

Tom is a Chilton County man and don't expect to ever move his home, though he has been in business over at Cherokee Bluffs for quite a time.

He told us that for six months he had been continually sick and had suffered a great deal. He is still under treatment, though he was looking fairly well. It is to be hoped that he will get on his feet again, for it's a great pity to lose such a hustler as he is.

HE TIDED US OVER

That successful farmer and shining light in the Democratic party, Mr. R. M. Smith, came in Saturday and presented us with a super-fine sack of tomatoes. He came just in the nick of time to tide us over Sunday and we certainly thank him.

A super-hick town is where people are permitted to congregate on the sidewalks and stand for hours in conversation, while those on business, who wish to pass, have to take to the street and dodge the autos or give up their trip.

Moving Six States Sixty Miles A big undertaking you'll say—transporting every man, woman and child in the States of Louisiana, Alabama, Georgia, Florida, Tennessee and Kentucky—but if all the passengers who rode L. & N. trains during 1923 could be gathered together in one great group—more than thirteen million people, or nearly 12% of the Nation's population—it would require a train of 158,536 coaches with every seat occupied. Such a train would reach from Washington to San Francisco, an airline distance of approximately 2,200 miles. Every day over 36,000 passengers get on L. & N. trains and travel on an average approximately 60 miles; and there has not been a single passenger fatality in a train accident during the past four years. This is what L. & N. passenger service alone means to you; and it should give the readers of this newspaper a further idea of the importance of the transportation industry, which as a whole is doing a better job than ever before in the history of America—or of the world.

DIPPING VATS BLOWN UP

Just as all of the good citizens of Chilton county were beginning to congratulate themselves that this cattle dipping proposition was going to be finally settled word comes in, that up in the northern end of the county three more vats have been blown up.

The Chilton County News went to considerable trouble nearly three years ago in trying to show, by the acts of the United States Congress and that the general government never gives up, or quits when it starts to enforce a law.

This is as true today as it was then. There can not possibly be any question of local politics connected with dipping cattle. Right or wrong, a good thing or a bad one, has nothing to do with the fact that the government says you must dip your cattle and you are going to have it to do, sooner or later, or never have any peace or be let alone about it.

Besides, some of these misguided people who blow these vats up are going to be apprehended sooner or later, and whenever you are, your hair will be likely turn gray with age in a Federal prison. It is wonderful that some people will undertake to buck the Federal government on such a thing. There is no statute of limitation that will ever relieve you from the violation of a Federal law. They will prosecute you fifty years from now for blowing up one of these vats the other night just the same as they would today. Not only that, secret service men of the government are liable at any time to be on your trail and you are never safe, another day of your life, from arrest after you have violated one of these Federal laws.

It looks like such facts as these would deter any sane person from wantonly laying themselves liable to such an everlasting dread.

There is one thing you can all depend on, and that is that that you will never be free from this cattle dipping worry until you dip your cattle and get a clean bill to that effect from the Federal government. The only possible way to end the annoyance is to dip and clean up the tick infection. All of these people who obstruct the dipping are really enemies to their own county and are running up the taxes that all have to pay.

Rev. J. H. Lembrick filled his regular appointment at Messers Chapel last Sunday.

Mrs. H. S. Burke, of Birmingham, returned home Friday after having spent several days with her uncle and his family, Mr. J. A. Burke.

Mr. and Mrs. G. O. McKee and two sons, of Montgomery, spent Sunday in Clanton. They have scores of friends in Clanton and Chilton county who always appreciate their visits.

Mr. W. J. Duke of Jamison was a Clanton visitor last Sunday. Mr. Duke was a citizen of Clanton for many years but is now engaged in the lumber business at Jamison.

COTTON IS OPENING RAPIDLY

The dry hot weather that prevailed all of last week was an aid in opening cotton and many fields are whitening up in a hurry with the precious staple.

While this is true in that sense the general report from the farmers is, that the dry weather has cut off greatly what they were counting on as a top crop, so the outlook for an unexpectedly large yield is off.

While it is true that a real fair crop of cotton seems to be assured, the optimistic figures that had become to be pretty general, of a very large crop in prospect have shrunk down now to about what is considered 60 per cent of a normal yield before the day of the boll weevil.

There is nothing in sight that indicates anything like as good a crop as we have had for the past two or three years, neither is there any radiant rainbow of wealth to be seen setting in the cotton fields.

If every one will see this situation in the right light and be careful spenders, there will be plenty made to put everybody on easy street, so far as their debts are concerned and tide them over the winter safely and comfortably, provided, the wild extravagance of war times does not predominate again and people spend their money for luxuries they would be better off without.

The corn crop is going to be short, and our western neighbors have found it out already and, in consequence, they are already advancing the price so as to be ready for us when we have to call on their corn cribs for our feed. This being the fact, it is the part of greatest wisdom for every farmer in this section to get busy now and save every pound of hay that he possibly can.

THE NEW HIGHWAY

Last Sunday afternoon, we made an auto trip over a section of the new state highway that is being constructed in the northern part of our county.

Mr. C. Fenn Jones kindly took us in his car and we drove along the new highway from near Lomax to away beyond Jamison. To our surprise, the work is so far advanced on that section of road that even now it makes good travelling.

The road is much wider than the old highway and will be safer for the people who pass over it. Besides, there are no abrupt curves in fact it is practically straight.

The grading, and even the fills, seem to have settled and hardened until the concrete top surface might safely be put on now.

The grading contractors have had good weather for their work and they have certainly taken advantage of it, for, in a week or so they will have their part completed.

SERIOUSLY ILL

Miss Myrtle Popwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Popwell, is at a Birmingham infirmary where she underwent a very serious operation.

Last reports were to the effect that she was doing nicely and it is hoped that she will soon be well and at home again.

Mr. Jesse B. Gaines of Ensley, spent Sunday here with friends and relatives. Mr. Gaines graduated at the Ensley High School last June after having made quite a good record in that excellent institution of learning.

Miss Pauline Wagoner, of the Magic City, was here the latter part of last week visiting her many friends and relatives.

In several sections of the United States the law is being invoked to compel the women to cover up more of their nakedness with their clothes and to conduct themselves with more decency in public. Is female suffrage responsible for this awful decadence in female modesty?

Loeb and Leopold seem to be enjoying the farcial trial going on to determine the easiest way to get them from under the gallows, more than any one else. They are not looking for punishment and boys don't care these days how much the "old man" has to put out.

Birmingham tried city government with three commissioners when they quit the Mayor and Aldermen plan. They did not like that, so they increased the number to five. Now they have lost $50,000 of the tax money and don't know who to blame, so they are talking of going back to the Aldermanic government again. There are a great many other old styles if we would go back to times would be better.

$54,000,000 CASH IS RAISED BY BAPTISTS

RETURNS ON 75 MILLION CAMPAIGN REPORTED TO CONVENTION—$21,000,000 MORE NEEDED.

NEW PROGRAM PROJECTED

Dr. C. E. Burts of South Carolina Named General Director—Dr. McDaniel Heads Convention.

Dr. GEORGE W. McDANIEL, New President Southern Baptist Convention.

Up to May 1 Southern Baptists had contributed in cash on their 75 Million Campaign, the five-year program for the extension of their general missionary, educational and benevolent work, the sum of $53,832,852.79, leaving a total of $21,167,147.21 to be raised between now and the end of 1924 if the original goal of $75,000,000 is attained, it is announced by the general headquarters.

When the status of the Campaign was reported to the Southern Baptist Convention at its recent session in Atlanta, the Conservation Commission was instructed to lay plans to complete the raising of the $75,000,000 by the close of the present calendar year in order to clear the way for another forward program that will claim the support of the denomination during 1925.

Dr. L. R. Scarborough, general director of the Campaign, has been called back to Nashville to lead in the task of raising the $21,000,000 additional needed to complete the Campaign goal. He will undertake with the assistance of the various state and associational boards, to effect an organization that will enlist every Baptist church in the South, representing a combined membership of 3,500,000, in a definite share in the completion of this forward program.

Approximately 6,000 messengers from every state in the South attended the Atlanta session of the Convention and the entire body voted, unanimously to get behind the effort to raise the full amount of money needed to complete the Campaign.

Where Money Came From

Here are the sources from which the $54,000,000 collected so far on the Campaign has come: Alabama $2,429,331.08; Arkansas $2,022,747.90; District of Columbia $266,267.91; Florida $383,408.96; Georgia $4,873,824.36; Illinois $829,736.03; Kentucky $6,056,990.32; Louisiana $1,461,985.84; Maryland $666,716.61; Mississippi $2,739,705.78; Missouri $2,249,746.14; New Mexico $648,816.26; North Carolina $4,511,014.81; Oklahoma $1,349,086.42; South Carolina $4,827,974.09; Tennessee $3,746,261.52; Texas $3,171,762.80; Virginia $5,733,141.38; Specials: Home Board $15,340.00; Foreign Board $86,103.00; raised by foreign churches and expended by them on work there $1,003,390.68.

Future Program Authorized

At the same time Southern Baptist forces will be completing their 75 Million Campaign they will be launching the next program to follow the Campaign. At a session in Nashville the Commission on the future program designated it as "The 1925 Program of Southern Baptists" and elected Dr. C. E. Burts of Columbia, S. C., as general director, and Frank E. Burkhalter, Nashville, publicity director. The canvass for subscriptions for the 1925 budget, which will be for at least $15,000,000, will be taken in the local Baptist churches the week beginning November 30.

Dr. George McDaniel of Richmond, Va., is the new president of the Southern Convention. Actions by that body include the taking over of the Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary at Fort Worth, Texas, decision to defer for a year any action looking to a reorganization of the work of the general boards of the convention, instruction to the Education Board to continue negotiations looking to recovery to the Baptists of George Washington University at Washington, decision to give larger consideration at next year's session to the interests of the country churches, and the adoption of a vigorous protest, which will be forwarded to the president and secretary of state at Washington, against the persecution of Baptists in Russia and Rumania.

The theatrical people have ceased to put on "leg shows" as an attraction now. The every day leg show in the streets has become so common that a spectacle of that kind no longer interests even the bald headed men.

The estimate put out last week by the cotton future gamblers of 13-200,000 bale crop caused a slump of $4.00 on the bale. Hold your cotton at least until something like a definite idea is arrived at as to the yield this year and the surplus on hand and the condition of the foreign markets.

Mr. W. S. Large and Mr. Cal Smallwood, of New Port Tennessee, were Clanton visitors last Saturday. Mr. Large is a brother of Mr. Wilson Laerg who lives in the Jones-town community. Mr. Smallwood is a school teacher who has been engaged in this calling for 55 years and has already accepted a school for another year.

ALABAMA NEWS HAPPENINGS

Resume of the More Important Events of Interest Condensed To An Epitomized Form.

Announcement was made in Gadsden that Otto Agricola, of that city, and the Hammond Byrd company, at Birmingham, had sold their interests in three soil pipe plants, the Coosa, Gadsden and Agricola plants, for a consideration of approximately $2,000,000. The purchaser is the Anniston Pipe and Foundry company, which was recently organized to take over several pipe shops at Anniston. It is owned and operated by former Gov. T. E. Kirby, C. A. Hamilton, W. F. Johnston, Whitfield Clark, of Anniston, and William Byrd, of Chicago. The sale also includes the Talladega Pipe company and the Imperial Pipe company, of Bessemer. The Anniston concern now has 13 plants, their purchase representing an investment of about $4,000,000. Mr. Agricola will retire as manager of the local shops.

Fishermen arriving in Mobile from the lower bay at the entrance of the Gulf, reported observing a large school of devil fish or giant stingrays, the number being estimated at probably 300. A party headed by ex-Senator Jonathan L. Pounce, of Oregon, captured one of the sea mammals, measuring 12 feet across and weighing nearly two tons. The fishermen drove two harpoons into the fish which towed their launch for five hours the big ray being shot a number of times before it could be pulled up alongside of the launch.

Announcement was made that the state highway department is about to enter into contract with Montgomery county, whereby the state will take over the Carter Hill road and Mount Meigs road and make them a part of the state highway system. The county will agree to put the roads in condition acceptable to the state for which it will be paid $25,000 by the state. The mileage of the two roads is forty-three.

Bankruptcy petitions for the Interstate Casualty company, of Birmingham and St. Louis, have been filed in Montgomery and St. Louis and A. W. Briscoe, former state insurance commissioner of Alabama, has been appointed receiver to take charge of a $250,000 deposit in a Montgomery bank and former Supreme Court Judge Revel, of St. Louis, to direct affairs in Missouri.

Plans for "governor's day" at Camp McClellan are being completed rapidly. Governor W. W. Brandon, of Alabama; Governor Whitfield, of Mississippi, and Governor Fuquay, of Louisiana, will be present at the camp on August 23, and review the members of the 31st division. Many other noted visitors from over the South will be present on that day.

J. H. M. Nunnelly and Sam Ottwell, well known citizens of the Ranburne section of Cleburne county, have been appointed as additional road overseers for Beat 9 in the county, a decision to use four overseers to handle the 101 miles of road in that beat having been made by the court of county commissioners.

Recent action of the city school board at Heflin has stirred up a hornet's nest among the people living just outside the city limits, the board having made a ruling that these pupils will not be permitted to attend the city school session because of a limit in the appropriation.

The board of health of Morgan county has passed a resolution which will be presented to the Morgan county board of revenue, requesting the last named body to rescind its action approving Garth Heights, west of Albany, as the site for a new cemetery.

An injunction suit looms as the next step in the fight by a group of Birmingham property owners to block tentative plans of the city commission and the railroads to erect viaducts at Eighteenth and Twenty-fourth streets.

Contracts for the paving of two additional streets of Huntsville have been awarded by the city council to Lasey Brothers, of Chattanooga.

Diversions through Prattville of the Antauga County link in the Montgomery-Birmingham highway has been finally and definitely refused by the United States Bureau of Public Roads, according to Chairman John A. Rogers, of the state highway commission.

Nearly 800 members of the Madison County Farm Bureau and their friends made an inspection trip to Muscle Shoals on a special train.

The store of M. A. Morrow was robbed of between $300 and $400 worth of merchandise at Guntersville.

An experiment in highway work, which is expected to determine whether treatment of sand-clay road surfaces with oil will do away with dust and mud, and at the same time prove as cheap as renewing a sandy-clay surface, is now being carried out by the state highway department near Banks, Pike county, on the Bee Line highway. At this point oil is being placed on about a mile of sand-clay road. The oil was donated by the Standard Oil company. It may be found that by oiling sand-clay roads will maintain them adequately at less or no greater expense than resurfacing every 12 months, at the same time doing away with dust and mud.

For the first time in her history Alabama has passed the billion-dollar mark in taxable values, according to appraisals made by the state tax commission. This represents a large increase over the 1923 assessment and will result in swelling to the total receipts from ad valorem taxes. Beginning right after October 1 the special agents will start on the quadrennial reappraisal of all property in the state, and it is believed that when they are through the present billion-dollar mark will have been largely exceeded.

With a strength of more than 1,600 men at Camp McClellan, Anniston, Alabama national guard has more men in training this year than any year since the world war. It was announced by Captain U. N. James, regimental adjutant of the Alabama guard. The organization of the regiment is working more efficiently and with less friction than ever before, and the morale of the men is at its highest peak, Captain James stated. With all these indications, it is pointed out that this season should prove to be the most successful in the history of the Alabama guardsmen.

Morgan county asphalt has been used for building a short section of the Somerville pike just out of the Twin Cities near the Bee Line highway. In a few hours time, after the raw asphalt had been ground, it was crushed and immediately placed on the pike and ten heavy teams were driven over it. To all appearances, the new product had made a substantial roadway in a few hours' time.

Rodney Thompson, well known young man of Hartselle, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Thompson, was almost instantly killed at a point near Lacon when his car in which he and Roy Penn, of Cullman, were headed toward Hartselle, turned over, breaking young Thompson's neck. The other young man was also pinned beneath the car, and was badly bruised.

After thirty hours of search, sheriff's officers have been unable to obtain any trace of Herbert Jubias, alias James Dorsey, negro, who is charged with the murder and robbery of William A. Simmel, distributor of soft drinks, while the two were returning from Tuskegee to Montgomery on a truck. All clues have been closely followed but have been unavailing.

W. M. Carter was killed and his 14-year-old son severely injured when the automobile in which they were riding was struck by an Atlantic Coast Line train on the Snowdout road, near Montgomery. There were no eye witnesses to the accident. The automobile was demolished.

Judge O. Kyle and Judge James E. Horton of the circuit court of Madison county have cleared up a supposed misunderstanding on account of the law as given by them to the special grand jury recently in session here, according to correspondence which has passed between the two officials.

John Milton, ex-slaver, apparently has made good his escape and is believed to have put many miles between himself and the scene of his crime, which occurred in Jefferson county, Chief Deputy Henry S. Hill said at the close of the six day searching for him.

Papers of incorporation were filed with the secretary of state by the Montgomery Cotton Oil company, a Montgomery concern with $150,000 capital stock, of which $120,000 has been paid in. John F. Stevens, E. T. Allen and Fred E. Calvern are the incorporators.

Just at the time when everybody began to sit back and congratulate Etowah and adjoining counties on the prospects of an unusually large cotton crop, news came in that the red spider is doing much damage in large areas of the district.

Louis Gavan, negro, of Smite Mines, has confessed to the shooting of John B. Fancher, proprietor of the Fancher Bonding company, of Birmingham, on the Osborn road, according to Assistant Solicitor Jim Long and Chief Deputy Henry S. Hill.

Voters of Muscle Shoals city met at the city hall and nominated the following for mayor and aldermen: Mayor, Robert Houston; aldermen, George Harris, F. J. Guzman, O. F. McGuire, J. F. Green and George Vaughan.

Mobile shippers and exporters are receiving letters from the United States shipping board asking for cooperation in directing foreign shipments to American ports.

Invitations to the eighth annual convention of the Alabama Merchants' Association have been mailed throughout the state by J. L. Hicks, president of the organization.

Miss Mamie Ruth Davis, of Ramer, Montgomery county, has been appointed secretary to the state superintendent of education.

ROAD BUILDING

PROBLEM OF PAYING FOR BETTER ROADS

Never before were the highways so thoroughly public property as now. They will become increasingly public as they are improved and as auto transportation becomes more general. Who, then, should pay for their construction and upkeep? Surely not wholly or even largely the abutting property owners.

In the days of the horse and wagon and buggy people did not go far from home. Roads were of a more local use. Now they are of national use. The car from Maine uses the highways of all the states between Maine and California. The car from every locality uses the highways of every other locality. We are a nation of travelers, of tourists. It is well that we should be. It is to be encouraged.

The ox team and the horse team could use mud roads. Mud did not slow them up much and seldom stopped them. They moved so slowly that time was not an object. Distance was always reckoned in miles. Mud is now fatal to transportation. A quarter-mile of mud will block the traffic on a hundred miles of good highway. All our plans for travel now are dependent upon the statement "if it doesn't rain" unless the roads are good in any kind of weather. Distance now is a matter of minutes, not miles, from a given place to a determined distance.

Therefore the roads are indeed public highways. The public, not the abutting property owners, should pay for and maintain them. Property owners for some distance back should pay perhaps a very small tax, because they use them frequently with teams and wagons that do more or less damage to the road surface, a greater damage than soft-tired trucks and autos do. The abutting property owner no doubt uses the local road more frequently than any other highway, and more frequently than any other user. Nevertheless, he should not pay any great amount of the reconstruction cost or upkeep of even the road that goes past his farm. The farmer there days without a car is hard to find. He contributes to the upkeep, at least, when he pays his auto license. Many states have a gasoline tax which makes those pay most who travel most.

Transportation is a national matter. It would be unjust for even states to pay the entire bill for their highways, much less fair for counties to do it all, even when it is no doubt true that travel is a large percentage local. Whatever we may think of the kind of roads we should build, we should devise a means of distributing the cost over all the people of the nation, bearing most of the cost in the locality that gets most use of them, gradually spreading the tax thinner as the field is enlarged. The toll-gate system is a nuisance. It does make the users pay, but it is not a sure way of assessing a tax sufficient only for upkeep of the highway. We do feel that a heavy abutting property tax is wrong.

It is the road nearest a large town or city that gets the most wear. The traffic pours in from distant points and passes into the city, over roads leading into town. The greatest upkeep charge is for these highways. The advantage of living near town is more than offset by abutting property pays most of the highway charge. Likewise the city streets are used by country people and tourists, yet the common practice is for abutting property to pay for the streets. Some way must be devised to more equitably distribute the cost of building city and country highways.—Successful Farming.

Factor for Prosperity

Madison county is one of the richest agricultural counties in the state, and when she gets a system of roads in keeping with her agricultural richness, she will be on the road to great prosperity she has ever known. Good roads do more to make people happy and contented than any other one thing in the world. They bring neighbors close together and eliminate distances.—Huntsville (Ala.) Times.

Better Road Facts

Twelve touring cars were delivered recently to the state highway department of New York for use in the execution of extensive road work being carried on by the state.

Contracts for the construction of new roads in Connecticut covering about thirty-five miles have been awarded by the state highway department. The approximate cost of the work is $1,500,000.

JESUS TALKS WITH NICODEMUS

LESSON TEXT—John 3:1-21.
GOLDEN TEXT—"For God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life."—John 3:16.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Nicodemus Visits Jesus

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Visit of Nicodemus

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What It Means to Become a Christian

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The New Birth

The subject of the conversation with Nicodemus was the new birth. This topic had peculiar significance in the light of Nicodemus' station in life. He was a learned rabbi, a doctor of the law and presumably a man of good character. His coming by night indicates his timidity. Like Joseph of Arimathea he was afraid to openly espouse the cause of the new Teacher of Galilee lest he be put out of the synagogue.

I. The Necessity of the New Birth (vv. 1-7).

It is not a matter of choice as to whether one is to be born again but of necessity if he is ever to see the Kingdom of God. Regeneration is the first demand the Gospel of Christ makes upon men. The reasons for this are:

1. The Kingdom of God is a spiritual Kingdom; therefore there must be a spiritual birth in order to enter it. (v. 3). As we enter the physical kingdom by a natural birth, so we enter the Kingdom of God by a supernatural birth.

2. The nature which we get through the natural birth is radically and essentially bad. Christ declares that that which is born of the flesh is flesh (v. 6). In Galatians 5:19-21, Paul gives a catalogue of the works of the flesh. The flesh cannot be improved (Jer. 13:23). Culture and education, do all you please, and it still remains flesh. Furthermore, in order to enter into the kingdom of heaven there must be a nature fitted for heaven. There is nothing that can be substituted for the new birth. Men are trying to substitute morality and education for the new birth. Nicodemus possessed these; yet Christ declared that he needed something more. Regeneration is the act of God through the Holy Spirit which quickens a man from spiritual death and plants within him God's own nature (II Pet. 1:4).

II. The Mystery of the New Birth (vv. 8-13).

Its process is mysterious, but its results are definite. You may not be able to discern from whence the wind cometh or whither it goeth, but you know that it blows by its effects. The fruit of our lives demonstrates our nature, whether it is heavenly or carnal. We need not be told that we have a natural birth for our bodies with their various faculties in exercise prove it. Even so the presence within us of a nature which has no affinity for the things of the world, a strong affection for God and a disposition to yield prompt obedience to His commands, proves that we have been born from above. Galatians 5:22, 23, is an infallible test.

III. The Ground Upon Which the New Birth Rests (vv. 14-18).

Christ's atoning death on the cross makes regeneration possible. He took the place of sinners. His infinite merit was placed to their account. He suffered in the sinners' stead. Just as the Israelites had only to look on the brazen serpent in the wilderness so the sinner must look to Christ uplifted upon the cross. See Num. 21:4-9, John 12:32, II Cor. 5:21, I Pet. 2:24. Our salvation cost on the part of God the giving up of His only begotten Son and on the part of Christ the sufferings and shame of the cross.

IV. For Whom Salvation Was Provided (vv. 16, 17). "Whosoever believeth on Him."

These verses give in a condensed form the whole plan of salvation. Observe:

1. The Source—God so loved.
2. The Ground—the death of Christ.
3. The Recipients—whosoever.
4. How Appropriated—believing in Him.
5. Results—should not perish; everlasting life.

V. Men's Attitude Toward Christ (vv. 18-21).

1. Some Believe and Are Saved. Those who believe are now free from condemnation (John 5:24).
2. Some Will Not Follow and Are Rejected. Therefore, Under the Condemnation of God. The cause of their unbelief in Him is their love of sin.

"Speculation Vs. Certainties"

When they asked the dying Faraday, "what are your speculations?" he replied that he was not "pillowing his head on any speculations." Said he, "I know whom I have believed, and am persuaded that He is able to keep that which I have committed to Him against that day."—Exchange.

Lead the Way

The best way to lead your boy to heaven is to go that way yourself.—Western Christian Advocate.

He Should Worry

A returning reveller was vainly trying to get his latchkey in his front door when a good-natured passerby offered to do it for him. Taking the key, the stranger gave the lock a violent twist and snapped the key in half, leaving the end in the door.

"I say, I'm awfully sorry," he explained; "quite an accident, you know, but I've broken your key."

"Wasn't that?" murmured the reveller. "Sorry," shouted the stranger, "key broken, couldn't help it, can't open door."

"Oh, thank all right," was the sleepy reply, "the beggars inside'll have to wait."—London Mail.

Jews to Have Own Money

The introduction of a distinctive Palestine monetary system, to replace the Egyptian money now in use, is contemplated by the government, and a commission has been appointed to make recommendations in the matter. Not since the days of the Roman emperors has Palestine had a money of its own, having used that of its rulers through the centuries since then. Egyptian money was introduced at Jerusalem after the occupation by General Allenby's forces.

It is planned that the new money shall be issued directly by the government and without the intermediary of any bank.

How Hydro-Electricity Is Generated

HYDRO-ELECTRICITY now lights the homes of many thousands of Alabamians and turns the wheels of industry in many Alabama towns—and yet a span of only 50 years bridges the gap between the modern hydro-electric generator and its precursor—the old-fashioned, overshot mill wheel.

There is little more complex or difficult to understand in the operation of the modern hydro-electric generator and the old mill wheel which ground the corn for our forefathers.

But in their relative efficiency, the two are as far apart as the smoking pine torch with which our tribal ancestors lighted the dim interiors of their caves and the modern tungsten electric lamp which turns light into day on the streets of our big cities.

HYDRO-ELECTRICITY is generated by the weight of water rushing through a duct to turn a massive steel water wheel, fashioned somewhat on the lines of a ship's propeller.

This wheel is connected to the generator by a vertical steel shaft. The revolution of the wheel, caused by the flowing water, rotates the shaft and in turn, generates the electric current.

The old water wheel could produce but a limited amount of power which extended to the end of its shaft, whereas a single hydro-electric generator, such as one of those installed at Mitchell Dam (27,000 horsepower capacity) can supply the entire light and power needs of four cities the size of Mobile, Alabama, within a radius of 100 miles!

KISS, HUG AND PAT BANNED BY LOUISIANI PARISH LAW

DIAMOND, La., Aug. 9.—Knickerbockers for women went by the board in Livingston parish today as the result of the adoption by the parish police jury, or board of county commissioners, of an ordinance that its opponents declare has all the earmarks of a bit of ancient New England legislation. Among other things the ordinance prohibits kissing, petting parties, one-piece bathing suits and the exhibition by a person of more than one-fourth of a lower limb.

The ordinance was submitted to the jury along with a petition signed by 514 representative citizens of the parish asking that it be enacted into law. The jury did it.

It prohibits under any conditions, "a woman wearing trousers, or bloomers or what is commonly called knickerbockers," declaring that one so attired is "improperly clothed."

Another section declares it "unlawful for any person other than near relatives, when in or about any public place commonly frequented by the public to kiss, hug, pat or embrace or even fondle any other person or to allow any other person to

"hug, kiss, embrace or fondle themselves."

"Participation in what is commonly known and called a 'petting party,' also is placed under the ban. The penalty for violation of the ordinance is a fine ranging from $10 to $50 or imprisonment of from five to thirty days or both."

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to extend our thanks to the good people of Clanton for their kind attention to us in our distress following our auto accident. We have seldom found a people so full of human sympathy, with a desire to be genuinely helpful—lavish in their attention, with words of comfort and cheer and a profusion of flowers. May every good thing come to each of them in rich abundance.

This community is indeed blessed and should be justly proud of such a splendid establishment as the Central Alabama Hospital with its thorough equipment right in their midst for prompt alleviation of suffering. It should receive the loyal support of this entire citizenship.

In our expression of gratitude we would not overlook the nurses of the hospital who administered so completely and faithfully to our needs. We were especially fortunate in falling into the hands of our brother Nobles, Drs. Gregg and Marcus, who proved themselves brothers in the truest sense of the word.

Sincerely Yours,
Mr. and Mrs. Peyton Roeburn.

CHILTON COUNTY NEWS

VOLUME 3 CLANTON, ALABAMA, AUG. 28, 1924. NUMBER 51

THE CITY ELECTION

An election for mayor and councilmen of Clanton is due to come off now in the very near future and, in that connection, we hope that every voter in Clanton will exercise their rights as electors, remembering that a majority is certain to win and that those who chance to be on the losing side have no cause to pout up and kick and do their town incalculable harm because they happened to belong to the minority.

We want to earnestly plead with every voter to go in to this election with an eye single to the future progress of our town and a heart full of patriotic pride in what our town has done in the past three or four years.

It has been our constant aim and unremitting effort, ever since we have been connected with The Chilton County News to do and say everything we could to further the material interests of Clanton and no one who has been a reader of The News, can dispute that fact.

Now, as we approach this municipal election, we feel like it is incumbent upon us to follow up this same line of policy; and do all in our power to keep the wheels of progress rolling and our good town climbing towards that recognition as a progressive little city to which she is so eminently entitled to now.

In reviewing the years of our residence here we can not but feel proud of the wonderful strides Clanton has made as a town and can but note the material agencies that have been instrumental in bringing about this phenomenal era of improvements.

With no criticism whatever and with honest sentiments of absolute fairness to every one, we feel like the present gentlemen, who have so ably served as Mayor and Councilmen for the past four years, are perhaps, more responsible for this splendid period of material advancement of our town than all other contributors.

When they took hold of the situation the stress of war times had materially been heavy and they found a bill of $1,000 for needed and necessary fire hose unpaid. Also a debt of $2,500 hung over our water works well and equipment. Both of these they have paid up in full.

They have also managed to keep paid up the interest on our sewer bonds and have retired $4,000 worth of those bonds and topped that much interest for good. They have also bought and paid for a street and garbage truck and a road work tractor, scrape, plows and other equipment. They have recovered the city school building and have paid each year a liberal fund to the High School and the City School. They have put in and paid for over $1,000 worth of water main and overage, besides spending over $3,000 for the building of concrete culverts and drain pipes and not every school bond as it fell due.

Of course, this is merely a brief summary of some of the big things they have accomplished. They have opened up and built streets where we had none and given us well worked streets practically all over town.

THE HIGH SCHOOL OPENS

The fall term at the Chilton County High School will open for examination and other details of preparation on Sept. 4th.

The regular exercises will be taken up the following week.

Prof. Stephens, the principal, will appreciate the prompt enrollment of all those who intend to make the term.

RATTLESNAKES ARE KILLED IN THE CITY

Through the kindness of Chief of Police Rutherford, we learn that two real, simon-pure rattlesnakes were killed the other day in the yard of Col. Grady Reynolds, whose elegant bungalow home is situated in a thickly populated residential section of the city on North Eighth Street.

Where they came from is a mystery, unless a den of them resides somewhere in the rocks of the deep L. & N. Railroad cut that passes in the rear of the houses built on the East side of North Eighth Street.

One thing is certain and that is that it is wonderful and also very fortunate that the two were discovered and killed before they had fastened their fangs into some of the little children that play around that part of town.

One of the greatest improvements they have made has caused them to receive more or less censure in some quarters, and that is the building of concrete pavements. Like all towns have to do if they ever get any, by assessing the cost to the abutting property.

To ever be satisfactory at all these walks have to be put down to a standard grade, or they would be a nuisance instead of an inestimable blessing. To accomplish this it is necessary to have a competent civil engineer on the job and carry the work on uniformly. If you leave it for each particular property owner to attend to, no argument is needed to show one how that would turn out. We have had some of those kind of pavements in Clanton for quite awhile.

Our town is under obligations to these gentlemen for their splendid work, and, as they are already on the job and are in actual touch with the situation, it looks to us like it would be calamitous to make a change.

This body of men is composed of some of our very best citizens, all men of sound business ability and they have done so much for the up-building of our town during their administration we certainly hope the voters will ask them to serve us for another term.

We have no word of criticism for anyone who may feel disposed to differ with us on this matter. You have that right, but we feel just like a change of management right now will be a sad mistake. No matter how efficient the succeeding ones might be.

AN ATTRACTIVE VISITOR

Last Friday and Saturday there was quite a crowd assembled in front of the Martin Undertaking Parlor most all the time.

A recently arrived visitor from South Alabama was the attraction. This interesting visitor was a genuine, old-fashioned diamond-headed rattlesnake from the wilds of South Alabama and he boasted 23 rattles and a button.

He was very exclusive in meeting strangers, and seemed to spend most of his time in confinement brooding over his imprisonment and dreaming of the halcyon days when he roamed among the palmettos, monarch of all he surveyed.

HAD YOU NOTICED IT?

This year the tourist travel to Florida has never seemed to even slow up. Just about as many Northern people go to the Florida coast for the summer, to escape the heated period at their homes as yow down in the winter to dodge the rigors of the frozen months.

Next year the Federal Aid Highway through here will probably begin to assume a definite idea as to its final location and when ever it is finished, according to the statistics prepared and sent out by the Florida State Board of Trade, no less than 50,000 tourists will pass, too and fro along this route every year.

In view of these approaching conditions, the establishment of a commodious and convenient tourist camp here would result in a wonderful amount of good for our town. Not only that, the person or persons who put it up, by arranging to give gas, oil and eating service to these travelers, would have a land office business for themselves.

A GRACIOUS MEETING

A five-day revival meeting closed last Friday night at the Collins Chapel Baptist Church. From all reports it was one of the most satisfactory and successful meetings ever heard of in years.

Our pastor here, Dr. S. J. Ezell, did the preaching and his able efforts were crowned with a rich harvest of souls.

There were 47 additions to the church and all of them were adults and some of them people well along in years.

Rev. Buford Lawrence is the pastor out there and has given these good people a year of faithful and conscientious service and the Lord is rewarding him now with this wonderful revival.

AUTO TRIP TO SOUTH ALABAMA

Last Wednesday morning, Mr. J. G. Wood, a successful farmer out on Route 3, with his son, J. W. of Lock 12, left Clanton to visit Mr. Wood's father and other relatives in South Alabama.

Their visit took in Fort Deposit, Georgiana, Greenville and McKensie. They report the roads in that country splendid and J. W. says it was a real pleasure to drive his fiver over such roads. They report the crops as considerably spotted, though they believe the general crops down there are better than ours, as they have not suffered for rain.

They were favorably impressed with Butler County and especially Greenville, which they pronounce a pleasant and prosperous town. They had a most delightful trip all the way around.

Mr. J. A. Murphy and son, Brady, of Brent, were over last week-end visiting the family of Dr. Steele. Mrs. Steele is the daughter of Mr. Murphy.

SERIOUSLY ILL

The many friends and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Fox are grieved over the fact that Mrs. Fox is having a very serious illness induced by contracting some kind of a poisonous infection in the woods while out fishing.

The malady seems very stubborn and has occasioned her much suffering.

We all hope to hear of her perfect recovery right away and, in the meantime sympathize with them both in their trouble.

A VERY PLEASANT EXPLANATION

For the first time in a long number of years we have been almost constantly whistling this week.

This was such a very unusual thing for us to do that it had us bothered, until all at once, the light dawned and we got the answer.

Last Saturday afternoon that splendid little lady, Mrs. Jas. Croggins, who resides in West End, presented our good little boss over at the house with a real live, bona fide, full sized frying chicken with the result that we regaled ourself to the full at Sunday noon with some old time fried chicken like mother used to have.

Soon as we thought of that our mind was at rest and we knew why we were whistling so much—then we went to whistling again.

The City is trying to remove free all of the garbage around your place of business and your residence for you, only asking you to keep it collected up and placed in a garbage can, or even a box or barrel, where the street gang can get to it. Still, we have citizens who will not even do that much towards aiding to keep our town safe, sanitary and healthy. They never had to do such things in the days long ago before the village of Clanton grew and became the thriving little city of Clanton, and they fail to appreciate the added menace to us all if we fail to keep our garbage cleaned up and our fly hatcheries to the very lowest ebb of existence.

There is no town of any size anywhere but what has to make and enforce laws of sanitation to protect all of its citizens from the carelessness of a few.

The health of Clanton is almost phenomenal and most of it is due to the persistent efforts of our city government in trying to meet, forestall and guard against our own carelessness.

No town has ever been built that amounted to anything, that didn't systematically lay out and co-ordinate all improvements with an eye to the future. A uniform grade is a necessity in linking together improvements of the years o come. Systematic construction is a necessity if we hope to ever have a town to not be ashamed of.

Take a broad, comprehensive view of all the facts and then lets all resolve to go forward with a program that is making our town what it ought to be.

CLANTON BASE BALL SEASON TO CLOSE

Following is the official schedule furnished by Manager Heard which will officially close the 1924 base ball season for the Clanton team.

On Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week the strong Kellerman team will be here for three games. The Clanton boys played this team one game before and managed by hard playing and good luck to defeat them by a very small margin, so we can feel assured that some line-up.

Then, on Monday, Sept. 1, which is Labor Day, the Clanton team will play on the home diamond the famous L. & N. Pan American team that has to its credit right now 9 straight games won from the best teams in and around Birmingham. This promises to be a battle of the first magnitude, and if Clanton wins from this bunch, they can retire for the season with glory enough to last them until next year.

This will be our last chance to see some star playing, by real base ball artists, on the home diamond this year and the turn out will, no doubt, be a record.

THURSDAY AFTERNOON CLOSING CEASES AFTER TODAY

This afternoon the stores will all be closed for a half holiday for the last time this season. Dull summer is about past and the busy days of fall are dawning.

The News wishes to earnestly and sincerely congratulate the businessmen of Clanton upon their strict adherence to this holiday agreement and the spirit of co-operation it demonstrated.

Every business place embraced in this closing agreement has absolutely lived up to the very letter of their agreement and every door has closed promptly at noon and remained closed until the following morning.

Another thing that is most pleasing about it is, that we have heard of no grumbling nor growling on account of this most considerate and humane proposition. Every body has been in sympathy with the movement and no one has lost a dime by the concession to the people who have derived the benefit of a much-needed rest during the heated period.

It has been so generally popular that we are sure next summer will find the same agreement in force.

PEOPLES' MASS MEETING

All of the good citizens of Chilton County who are interested at all in the progress and prosperity of our County, regardless of their political affiliations, are invited to attend a Mass Meeting at the Court House in Clanton on Saturday, September 6th, at 11 A. M.

INTERESTED CITIZENS.

Every politician we can hear of is gunning for the Ku Klux Klan now. That would rather indicate that the Klan was a pretty clean thing and was trying to do right. The professional politician and clean, honest principles are as far apart as anything can get in limitless space.

Our Employees Are Bonded

Every Bank expends considerable effort to secure none but honest and efficient officials and employees.

The directors of the First National Bank Bank feel that they have been especially fortunate in securing the services of persons of unusual integrity and ability for every position of trust in this Bank.

The Directors, however, feel that for the absolute protection of its depositors they should not depend on honesty alone for this protection, but should place all possible safeguards around those whom it employs.

A heavy bond has, therefore, been placed on every employee of this institution, which insures more completely than would otherwise be possible, full protection for the Bank and individual depositor alike.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Dawes Plan Soon to Be in Operation—Vice Presidential Nominees Notified.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

UNLESS the extreme nationalists and monarchists of Germany and France have their way—and they probably will not—the Dawes plan for the regeneration of Germany and the general recovery of the world's prosperity will soon be in operation. The agreement signed by the delegates to the London conference must be confirmed by the parliaments of France and Germany, as it already has been approved by the cabinets of those countries. There is little danger of its rejection by the French, and Chancellor Marx has warned the German reichstag that if it does not give its approval it will be dissolved and an election called.

The opposition in Germany complains that the Germans "remain at the mercy of the French militarists and are the losers in the compromise." This is because it was agreed that the evacuation of the Ruhr need not be completed until one year from now and because of the fear that France will find some excuse for remaining in the occupied territory even longer. The French objects to the agreement, on the other hand, assert that France has obtained many promises in London, but nothing tangible, while Germany has obtained visible, tangible advantages in the liberation of the Ruhr within a year and the immediate evacuation of some important centers in the Rhineland.

Premier Herriot, however, explains that the Dawes plan does not eliminate sanctions in case of bad faith, and declares: "We have re-established the interlarded front in the event of Germany's failing to keep her engagements." As an earnest of his own good faith, M. Herriot withdrew all French troops from two Baden towns within two days after the signing of the pact.

In connection with the results of the London conference a situation has arisen in England that is unprecedented. Chancellor of the Exchequer Snowden, without resigning from the cabinet, has come out with a severe criticism of the work of the conference. He warns British traders and manufacturers of the danger to them of the proposed Franco-German commercial treaty, and also attacks the policy of permitting the French to remain another year in the Ruhr. Snowden's attack angered the French and served to consolidate public opinion in favor of Herriot's course, bringing the people to an understanding of the great advantages they would gain by a commercial and industrial alliance with Germany.

Americans will have a vast deal to do in the operation of the Dawes scheme. Citizens of its country have been or will be named to fill the following important positions: Director of the new gold bank of Germany; agent general for reparations; permanent voting member of the reparations commission for the declaration of Germany's possible future defaults; member of a transfer committee, of which the agent general is president; unofficial observer on the reparations commission, representing Washington; arbiters for the questions of transfer of currencies and any mechanical troubles in the operation of the Dawes plan.

IT IS inevitable that the adoption of the Dawes plan should have its effects on the Presidential campaign. Both Republicans and Democrats profess to find in the results of the London conference support for their contentions concerning America's participation in foreign affairs. The view of the former may be expressed concisely and rather mildly in the words of President Coolidge:

"This is the most important result accomplished since the armistice. It demonstrates the wisdom of the American position and the effectiveness of the American method of co-operating. The end of the war has come at last and the beginning of an honorable and, we hope, a lasting peace is at hand."

John W. Davis, Democratic nominee for the Presidency, declared that the article in the plan providing for arbitration by the League of Nations in case of dispute as to the index figure of German wealth was but another evidence of the growing indispensability of the league.

LAST week was the week of the vice presidential candidates. Both Governor Bryan and General Dawes were formally notified of their nomination, the Democrats getting in first as in the case of the heads of the tickets. Bryan in his acceptance speech at Lincoln, Neb., praised his party's platform as "broad, strong and progressive enough to justify the support of those who believe in equality before the law." He touched on many questions but paid especial attention to agriculture, accusing the Republican party of having changed the farmers' condition from prosperity to adversity. He promised the farmer a reduction of tariff rates to enable him "to buy in a competitive market at home and remove the restrictions which have injuriously affected the foreign market in which he sells his surplus products."

Without specifically mentioning Defense day, he took a whack at it by depicting war propaganda, mobilization, demonstrations of civilian and industrial resources as a "great economic waste, misleading and unnecessarily inflammatory."

GENERAL DAVES, in the presence of an immense throng at his home in Evanston, Ill., declared that this campaign is a campaign of domestic issues, and after discussing the League of Nations and the world court he entered on a fiery discussion of what he declared to be the most important of the domestic questions—"the formidable attack which has been launched on the fundamental principles of our Constitution." This, of course, meant LaFollette, his candidacy and his aims, and the speaker did not mince words in denouncing the Wisconsin senator.

"Robert M. LaFollette," he said, "leading the army of extreme radicals, has a platform demanding public ownership of railroads and attacking our courts which are a fundamental and constitutional safeguard of American liberties."

"Our nation is asked to leave important constitutional moorings to embark again into those contests through which it has fought up to the establishment of good government. Through the War of the Revolution, through the Civil War and the World War, our people have struggled to maintain our constitutional principles."

"They are asked to follow behind an aggressive personality, who has named behind him a heterogeneous collection of those opposing the existing order of things, the greatest section of which, the Socialists, fly the red flag, and into what? Into confusion and conflict of ideas and into the reopening of war upon those same fundamental principles of liberty and the inalienable rights of man which are giving in this country, safety and opportunity to the humblest, and to establish which the blood of our forefathers was shed. This is the predominant issue in this campaign." From the LaFollette-Wheeler headquarters in Chicago came this sole comment:

"Mr. Dawes in his acceptance speech violates the law which prohibits the use of the flag for advertising purposes. He maintains his standing as a profiteer in patriotism. The law will prevent printing pictures of Coolidge and Dawes on the American flag as a campaign banner, but they might appropriately raise a black flag bearing a four-leaf clover and an oil-can rampant."

Governor Bryan said: "The more Mr. Dawes speaks, the happier the Democrats will be. He is exhibit A of what reactionary policies mean."

SENATOR JONES of New Mexico, chairman of the Democratic senatorial campaign committee, does not see how his party can lose in November. He calls attention to the fact that 27 of the states have Democratic governors, and that seven other states elected Democratic senators in 1922. These states have 346 votes in the electoral college and only 286 votes are necessary to a choice. "All of which does not seem to disturb the confidence of the Republican managers. This confidence was reinforced last week when a large number of prominent labor leaders conferred with National Chairman Butler in Chicago and assured him that a considerable number of the men in their unions would support the Republican ticket, refusing to be delivered to the LaFollette-Wheeler candidacy."

HAVING waited in vain for the harbor at Angmagssalik, Greenland, to be clear of ice, the American globe-encircling aviators decided last week to fly from Reykjavik, Iceland, to Fredericksdal, near Cape Farewell on the southern tip of Greenland. They made one false start, both planes being broken, and then on Thursday they made the jump of about 825 miles, the longest of their tour. With them was Lieutenant Locatelli, the Italian, who had flown alone from Pisa and caught up with them on Iceland. The Americans landed all right, but at this writing the Italian is missing.

Last week the ZR-3, the huge Zeppelin which Germany has been building for the United States, was completed and its 14 gas chambers filled with hydrogen gas for the trial trips. It is believed the airship will be ready for the flight across the Atlantic about the middle of September, but this may be delayed until October 5.

SERIOUS damage to crops and property has resulted from the unusually heavy rains that have fallen in the Mississippi river valley. Northern Illinois, southern and western Wisconsin and parts of Iowa suffered the most. The corn in some sections was nearly ruined. Roads and bridges were washed away, motor camps were wrecked and wind and lightning worked havoc.

TELESCOPES all over the world were turned just now on Mars, which is nearer the earth than he has been since 1804 or will be again for many years. The distance between the planets Saturday night was only 34,500,000 miles. Astronomers hoped to gain further knowledge concerning the nature of the so-called canals, and a few even had in mind the possibility of communicating with the red planet by radio.

AN ODD situation has arisen in Peking from the efforts of Karahan, the new Russian ambassador to China, to recover possession of the Russian legation property there. According to the protocol of 1901, all foreign legation compound properties in Peking are under control of the diplomatic corps members. As acting dean, the American minister refused to turn the Russian legation over to the soviet ambassador except on certain conditions and then only with the understanding that such action did not constitute recognition of the soviet by the United States. Karahan has refused to accept the conditions, and the various governments concerned are wondering what to do next.

LE BARON B. COULT, Republican, United States senator from Rhode Island, died on Monday at the age of seventy-eight years. His term would have expired next March and he was a candidate for re-election. The Democrats believe they now have an even chance to gain this senate seat.

Another who passed away last week was Miss Lucy Page Gaston of Chicago who for many years had devoted herself to the crusade against cigarettes. Before her death she named G. Henri DeRouche as her successor in that work.

FIERCE fighting has been going on in Trans-Jordan between the government troops and the Wahabis, who do not recognize the rule of Emir Abdullah, second son of King Hussein of the Hedjaz. The Wahabis seized several towns, including Tarash, but the government forces in a counter-attack drove them out, killed 300 and took many prisoners.

ALABAMA NEWS HAPPENINGS

A Resume of the More Important Events of Interest Condensed To An Epitomized Form.

The following officers of the Alabama division of the Farmers' Union have been elected for 1924-25: G. T. McEldey, Talladega, president; second term; J. C. Hicks, Centerville, vice president; second term; Mrs. E. A. Painter, Birmingham, secretary-treasurer, third term; W. O. Washburn, Falkville, doorkeeper, and W. S. Cox, chaplain. The executive committee is composed of M. A. Peek, Mrs. W. B. Edmundson, third term; L. O. Cox, R. C. Hicks, second term, and Duran Dobbin. This committee will meet September 18 at the office of the Advance, Birmingham newspaper, devoted to farm interests, at which time they will outline the work of the union in Alabama during the coming year. The committee will hold monthly meetings throughout the year as usual.

Many communities in Morgan county are looking forward to the harvest of a number of crops planted in an effort to ascertain the value of certain kinds of fertilizer for certain soils and certain crops in Morgan county. In association with the county farm bureau, importers of nitrate of soda and the state agriculture department, County Farm Agent J. C. Ford early this spring had demonstration plots planted at Trinity, Rockford, Danville, Massey, Eva, Rhine, Somerville, New Centre, Hartselle and the Twin Cities. Mr. Ford said the different fertilizers used were showing remarkable results. Each member of the different communities where the experiments have been tried are to share alike in the financial return.

A new cotton disease has appeared in Alabama. It is known as "cotton blight" and is caused by a fungus, ascochyta gossypii. Information as to its appearance reached Auburn in the form of a specimen from a Houston county farmer who said that it had spread over an area of a quarter of an acre in his field. Examination of this specimen by Dr. L. E. Miles, plant pathologist for the extension service revealed that it was cotton blight, and a recent examination of the property confirmed this diagnosis.

LOUI TREMMER, 11-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Tremmer, of Attmore, was badly shaken up when he fell 24 feet from a second story window, while walking in his sleep. Leon's explanation of the accident is that he dreamed the family was eating watermelon and that his mother told him to get some salt. He un latched the window screen and walked out, escaping serious injury by landing upright, 24 feet below.

Reduced rates on logs, carloads, from local station Alabama on the lines of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad to Montgomery, will result from authority granted in formal order issued by the Alabama Public Service Commission. The order is based on a petition of the Atlantic Coast Line railroad for authority to revise rates on this commodity between the points named and request for a ruling on the correct present rates.

The Alabama Public Service Commission granted the petition of the Alabama Traction company for permission to discontinue its street railway service in Albany and Decatur, effective September 1, and to dispose of its properties and cease to do business. The petitioner was allowed to continue the service until September 1, as heretofore or to a limited extent, if it cares to do so.

Four hundred persons attended the annual picnic of the Etowah county farm bureau at Nockalus Falls. The speakers were L. N. Duncan, director of extension service at Auburn; E. E. Binford, field agent for the service, and J. E. Kernahan, president of the Alabama Farm Bureau.

Despite permission to do so from the Alabama public service commission, the Alabama Traction company may not discontinue its street car service in the Twin Cities September 1, according to Charles H. Eyster, attorney for the company.

The Davis-Alcott hosiery mill at Gadsden has gone on full time after being operated four days a week for several months. The Atlanta hosiery mill has resumed operations after being idle since the first of June.

The new $65,000 Baptist church at Fayette is nearing completion. The pews are expected to arrive soon. The house will be dedicated as soon as completed.

Walter Wiley, 36, employed as a riveter on the new Shoul Creek bridge near Florence, fell 25 feet to his death

The graphite plants, constructed in Clay county during the war, have been sold to Canadian interests and the equipment shipped to that country. Dan Martin, of the McClary-Jenison Machinery company, said that he had purchased about seventeen of the plants and sold them to various companies in the Birmingham district for purposes other than making graphite, and two to Canadian interests. The statement was also made that the dismantling of the plants was expected to continue until all of the forty-one plants built for graphite manufacturers were removed.

Many accidents have happened on the approach to the Cahaba bridge on the Marion Junction road, near Selma, but none equalled in sheer pluck a Louisiana woman driving several tourists to Selma. Her car collided with a truck driven by G. R. Rents, of Marion Junction and plunged down a twenty foot embankment, but by a marvelous balance landed on all four wheels and was driven back to the road. The lady asked "Is any one hurt?" The Louisiana car then drove on to Selma and bought a new wheel for the Rents truck.

The state securities commission has effected a reorganization of its affairs under the new codified securities law of the state, which went into effect August 17. At a meeting of the commission Captain W. C. Oates, who has held the title of executive officer of the securities commission, was re-elected with the new title of secretary-examiner of the commission. Mrs. R. C. Henry, formerly stenographer of the Alabama Public Service Commission, was employed as stenographer of the securities commission.

A big demonstration has been planned for the celebration of Labor Day by the various labor organizations of Florence, Sheffield, and Tusculum which will celebrate jointly. A monster parade, several miles in length, composed of floats representing the business interests of the three cities will move from Florence to Sheffield thence to Spring Park in Tusculum where the festivities will be held.

Butler county and central Alabama will not produce as much cotton as has been predicted by optimistic forecasters, according to R. A. Beeland one of Greenville's leading farmer bankers. Butler county produced approximately 9,000 bales of cotton last year and according to Mr. Beeland will produce this year approximately 13,000 bales, or about 5,000 bales less than previous estimate.

Auburn alumni are responding readily to a call sent out by Judge H. W. Samford, president of the Auburn Alumni association, looking to the building up of an alumni fund to be used in aiding worthy young men in getting an education at Auburn. The program of the executive committee of the association contemplates the raising of such a fund, and Auburn alumni have been called on to contribute.

A big increase from the sale of 15 licenses for motor vehicles for the first three-quarters of the present fiscal year, from October 1, 1923 to July 1, 1924 is shown by figures furnished by F. C. Marks, member of the state tax commission. The state received during the nine months a sum of $154,979.65 from the sale of motor vehicle licenses.

Coal production in the Alabama field will show an increase of 25,000 tons over the first week in August according to information given by officials of the Alabama Mining Institute. It was stated that the production figures indicated a substantial revival of the coal mining situation which is expected to be followed not by a gradual climb upward.

Birmingham, according to a bulletin just issued by the United States Census Bureau, had 239 industrial establishments in 1920 with a total invested capital of $115,453,258. This statement does not include many of the large plants just outside the city and which would run the total invested capital up to a considerable larger sum.

The Lincoln mills corporation, of Huntsville, has a large force of mechanics at work in the new mill in stalling machinery and it is expected that the new plant will be ready for operation by the first of October. When the new mill is in operation the payroll of the Lincoln company will contain approximately 1,500 names, it is estimated.

The Alabama public service commission in an order granted the petition of the Mobile and Ohio railroad for authority to discontinue Lumber as a flag stop for trains Nos. 1 and 2. A similar request as to the station of Eight Mile was granted in part and denied in part, the railroad being allowed to discontinue train No. 1 at Eight Mile, but not to discontinue train No. 2.

According to the 1924 revision of the rolls of the county medical societies in Alabama, which constitute the Medical Association of Alabama, there are now 2,200 doctors, including surgeons and specialists, practicing in this state, or one doctor to approximately every 1,000 of population.

According to the census recently taken in Tusculum, the population has increased by over 500 during the first six months of 1924. Over 7,000 houses have been built during that time.

The large plant of the Tusculum Lumber company, in East End, Tusculum, was destroyed by fire, entailing a loss of between $75,000 and $100,000.

JESUS TALKS WITH A SAMARITAN WOMAN

LESSON TEXT—John 4:4-42.
GOLDEN TEXT—"God is a Spirit, and they that worship Him must worship Him in spirit and in truth." John 4:24.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Talks With a Samaritan.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus and a Woman of Samaria.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How Jesus Won the Samaritans.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Teaching of Jesus Concerning Himself.

1. The Occasion (vv. 4-6).

The growing popularity of Jesus aroused the envious opposition of the Pharisees, which obliged Him to leave Judea and go into Galilee. There was another way to reach Galilee, one used by many Jews to avoid contact with the despised Samaritans, the eastern side of the Jordan. It must needs go through Samaria in order to find this poor sinful woman in the needy citizens of Sychar. The great necessity which was upon Him was to seek and to save that which was lost (Luke 19:10). The weary Jesus waiting at Jacob's well to speak to this poor, lost woman gives us a picture of the divine human Savior in His work of seeking lost humanity.

II. The Testimony of Christ to the Samaritans (vv. 7-41).

1. Discloses His Identity to the Woman of Samaria (vv. 7-26). This is an example of personal evangelism.

(1) A Favor Asked (vv. 7-9). He tactfully made a request which appealed to the woman's sympathy. He only did the thing which was right, for He being a Jew asked a favor of a Samaritan. He showed His sympathy for her. In introducing the conversation He referred to that which was uppermost in her mind, namely, water. This was the Teacher's point of contact. He spoke passed from earthly water to the water of everlasting life which was in Himself. His aim was to bridge the chasm which separated them.

(2) Jesus' Tender Dealing With the Woman (vv. 10-15). He first appealed to her curiosity by declaring, "If thou knewest the gift of God." He knew the deep unrest of the soul of that sinful woman as she went on her way. He knew that she really knew Him she would believe on Him and be saved from her sins. Therefore, the first thing was to get her attention. He followed this appeal to her curiosity by a promise which directed her attention to the deepest need. The deepest need of the soul Jesus only can satisfy. The real and lasting satisfaction is in Him and His gifts. The woman's reply, "Sir, give me this water, that I thirst not," is the inarticulate cry of every heart.

(3) The Woman Convinced of Her Sins (vv. 15-19). Jesus succeeded in arousing her interest but she did not really understand Him. Before she can understand what the water of life is she must be convicted of her sins. He skillfully gave the conviction which brought her face to face with the facts of her life which she was unwilling to confess.

(4) The Problem of Worship Submitted to Christ (vv. 22-24). This is as soon as she perceived Him to be a prophet. This indicates that she was succeeding in bringing her mind to spiritual things. Jesus, knowing the inner life of this woman, tells her of the glad time, even then, when true worshippers could hold intercourse with God anywhere. He showed her that the place of worship is unimportant, but the all-important thing is to have the true conception of God as brought through the Jew. He exposed the folly of a religion form only and showed that acceptable worship depends upon the condition of the heart.

(5) Discloses His Identity to the Citizens of Sychar (vv. 40, 41). When they heard the testimony of the woman, they invited Jesus to come among them. Though they heard her testimony, their belief was due to Christ's own words.

III. The Testimony of the Samaritans (vv. 27-42).

1. The Woman of Samaria Witnesses for Christ (vv. 27-39). As soon as she was converted she became an enthusiastic missionary. This is as it ought to be and always will be. The soul that realizes Jesus cannot be still (John 1:41-45). The result of her testimony was that many believed on Him.

2. The Samaritans Witness for Christ (v. 42). They declared, "We know that this is indeed the Christ, the Savior of the World."

Begin Upon Yourself

If you must be severe, be sure that you begin with your severity upon yourself. Clean up your own life, and then with the beam taken out of your own eye you are in position to take the mote out of your brother's eye. Gospel Herald.

If Willing to Repent

Dead churches cannot bring about a genuine revival, but living churches can, by God's help. If people are willing to repent.—Gospel Herald.

CHAPTER XV

Wells' fever, so spontaneous in outbreak, burned with widely opened eyes and was soon out, leaving him but little weakened. Of the vanished time, two nights and a day, he remembered nothing. Not even that it had elapsed. Had he awakened suddenly, at any time, he would have surprised Ellen in her long vigil as it was she waited to her own cabin when his welled first flickered. Had not the doctor said he would awake well, and fully conscious?

Neither Ellen nor Wells had heard the soft footsteps along the deck, nor knew of the band on the unlocked door.

Neither had seen the colorless face when the door silently opened; the burning black eyes of the fanatic which took in with gradual understanding that the Lord Kayama was not alone! Neither heard the breath whistle through the cabin-boy's nose as his heretofore steady hand began to tremble. A moment of indecision, and the door had slowly closed again.

Ellen had repaid the debt more truly than she knew.

She heard her husband-in-name moving about, and her impulse to go to him was controlled when he broke into a thin whistle. This stopped almost at once. She wondered at the astuteness of his masquerade, the thread of which snapped at such rare intervals, like this moment's whistling.

When she heard his hand on the door knob, she decided that it would be cruel to force him to walk alone. She slipped on a beautifully gay kimono hastily, without pausing to readjust her hair or increase her lips' redness as the maids of Kayama's house had always insisted upon as proper, and stepped outside, following him to the rail.

His attitude was one of dejection. She was glad of it. He had no right to think, whatever had caused his impersonation of a Japanese nobleman, that it justified him in subjecting her to this constant humiliation, this false position, these critically unkind glances of the passengers. In all else he had been considerate. She knew that his whisperings of her name, over and over, in his delirium, meant but one thing: he loved her.

Wells turned his eyes without moving his head. He was thinking (and had she been watching she would have seen his eyes brighten) how sweet she was with unpainted cheeks and lips, how the bright kimono enhanced her loveliness.

A kimono of less color would be more seemly for such an early hour. Wells said in a low voice, his "Is" again carefully enunciated.

"You treat me like a child!" she exclaimed.

To her own surprise, her voice was steady, and she was frightened at the thought that she might be going to cry, out of sheer mortification. The kimono was a dainty thing, and, as she slipped it on, the silk had murmured that her lord would find it pleasing—and her, likewise.

"In pointing out the forms which are proper and demanded, I treat you like a woman," Wells said bravely.

"I should like to believe that," Ellen answered, without looking at him.

"Is it so hard to believe?" he asked, so softly that she only just heard the words.

"You make it difficult," she said defiantly. "You—do nothing about me please you, Kayama?" She stressed his name.

Both were silent. She felt the deeply disturbing sense of his near presence; this she had felt before when she knew that this man was her own kind, and she had been both frightened and ashamed. He seemed so glad that she forgot her own anger and, timidly, touched his hand as it rested upon the rail.

He took her fingers, smoothing them as he would a child's—so he thought—and, without intent, drew the hand there close to him. Involuntarily she followed her hand, nearer and nearer. At the touch of her kimono against his arm Wells started.

"Your lips are naked of paint, O-Hana," he said. "Of this I have spoken before."

She knew that he had cloaked his true feelings like this often. The idea of plunging him was too strong for her to resist. He deserved a bit of it! And, in so doing, she would be perfectly safe—he must retain, preceding events had clearly shown, his incognito at any cost.

"Do you dislike them so much that I must cover them?" She smiled as she spoke, and tilted her face slightly toward him.

Wells grunted.

"I go to fix my lord's lips as he commands," Ellen added demurely. The doctor had been correct in saying that Kayama—her husband—would recover quickly. He was entire master of himself. She bowed to him and went back to her cabin, tired, so tired from the long sleepless hours of watching, but very happy and unutterably content. The one distressing thought was of the morrow when they would land, and then—what?

Wells, also, as he strode along the deck, was strangely elate. The wind and lack of food made his appetite keen. When he reappeared in the salon, he heard nothing from the captain of his absence from table. It is not hushdore for men to mention such small things as illness, since pain must be borne stoically. Wells attempted to eat, for he was hungry, but the elaborately prepared lapo-lapo, swimming all out of element in a sea of vinegary sauce which took hours to prepare, the soggy-brown pork, heavy with spice, nauseated him. Rising with an apologetic bow, he left the table.

"There is a son of a samurai," the captain praised in a low voice. "He is doubtless very ill, but forces himself to act naturally."

Why, Wells asked himself, as he escaped to the deck again, why hadn't he asked outright for eggs and coffee? It would not have jeopardized the party, and he couldn't eat that stuff. It would have choked him.

A feeling of melancholy, akin to self-pity, surged over him as he watched the careless swells advance and break, to be replaced by others as formless and indefinite as themselves. So, his Orientalized mind whispered, it was ordained. "Why strive," as the Sixth Book has it, "when the wind beats the water to its will; so with the son of man in his strivings." He shook the mood off. Hang it, this Kayama stuff was permeating him, at a time when he would soon need all of his wits. Kayama he was on the surface, but recesses depended upon his thinking as Rob Wells. Ordained? What if it was?

There was a little maid who dressed his hair. She said that when you stroked her hair, all remembrance of heaven and earth departed from her.

"I wonder . . . if this is . . . if it would cause one . . . ?"

No answer.

"Perhaps," not looking at him, "I will see some man in America . . . of my own people, whom I might—"

"My foster father," the august Tak-Kung, said that two blossoms upon the twig gave it the proper beauty, while one alone was an error.

"He was a learned man, O-Hana."

"Then you would be willing?"

He changed the subject hurriedly. "White men and possibly a white woman will honor me when the boat arrives, O-Hana. It will no longer be necessary—as you have always done when others were about—to address me with your few Japanese words. I will speak English when we leave this ship. These white people will not recognize breaches in the wily virtues. But it is probable, since my fame is great, child, that many Japanese will be at the dock for a sight of me, and to welcome me. Before them, see that you remember your lessons well: that you follow me when walking, that your match be ready when I would enjoy the comforts of tobacco, as is demanded of a dutiful wife. It may also be necessary to eat white-man food, which I dislike greatly, but must make pretense of enjoying for the sake of the Courtesies."

"Who will the woman be, Kayama?"

"A great lady."

"Beautiful, Kayama?"

"Undoubtedly."

The woman, Ellen knew, would be the "Alberta" of whom he spoke in the clutches of the fever-god.

"She will greet you? You know her, then?"

He must be careful. "She has never seen me before," which, Wells figured, was strictly truth. Alberta had never seen this Wells. "It is customary," he added shortly, "to bring presents when visiting, as you know. In my boxes I have a gift of silk for the woman, for you to present."

"What are you bringing her?" the girl asked, without looking at him.

"That which she desires above all things."

"You have often said that happiness is most to be desired."

"She thinks I bring something which means happiness."

"You are not bringing it?"

Wells raised his voice. "I bring it, but not as she has hoped for," he said. "And the others? The men?" Ellen did not understand.

"What they desired, also."

"Does it mean happiness?"

"For one of them," Wells tapped his fingers against the stanchion. The rounded range of hills sprung higher and higher from the water. The trip had been long, tedious; he had fretted with impatience; now that it was in sight he was vaguely fearful and uneasy. Although at no time had he attempted to avoid Williams, they had not met again.

It was obvious that Williams did not know that this Kayama-San was the one who was to bring Bob Wells' body. Evidently, Wells considered, Sanderson had not informed him of this fact. Actually, Williams had intended sailing on a boat of another line which left several days before, and only called the change home at the last minute.

Wells remembered, ironically, that Williams and himself had left on the same ship, and stood elbow to elbow against the side; so, also, they were returning.

calm as he spoke, although his voice was level and without cadence of excitement.

"It will not be necessary for you to wear your hair dressed when we arrive," he said. "The white people do not understand such matters. Also, you may be asked by me to attire yourself later in the seijo-jin clothing which you have in your cabin, O-Hana."

"The mission women said that white men have greater affairs than dictating what women shall wear," Ellen said maliciously.

"Beauty is all-important."

"Beauty? You said that I—"

Wells did not like the trend of the talking.

"I try to make you as slightly as possible," he answered unsmiling. "It is doubtless true that the mission women were filled with many words."

"They also said that no one in America beat his wife, as is done in Japan."

"Every husband beats his wife at least once, to instill respect," Wells said cynically.

"Will you beat me?" very softly.

"Why must the girl devil him so?"

"When you deserve it."

"Do you beat your wives very hard, Kayama-San?" keeping her eyes from his.

"I have no other wives," shortly.

She inclined her head to one side. "I heard many tales in the household, Kayama-San. Tales that even I understood, with my few words of Japanese."

"Woman-talk."

"There was . . . let me see . . . there was the little maid who dressed my hair. She said that when you stroked her hair, all remembrance of heaven and earth departed from her."

"I wonder . . . if this is . . . if it would cause one . . . ?"

ROAD BUILDING

IMPROVED HIGHWAYS
HELP GOPHER STATE

Seven thousand miles of open road make up the state highway system of Minnesota. And an average mile of gravel roadbed on one of the main state routes last year cost exactly $8,000 in maintenance and repair.

That excessive maintenance charge on the heavily used trunk lines where gravel is the major type of surfacing, coupled with the lack of immediate funds for a state-wide paving program, forms the chief objection to a working plan that has made Minnesota one of the most popular touring and motor transportation states in the Union, according to members of the state highway commission.

Roads of this Northwest empire have been forcibly dragged from the mud through the use of the state's natural gravel resources and the genius and determination of Commissioner C. M. Babcock, rather than through the application of modern highway financing methods, say students of the national road plans. Traffic has been served for the most part by local road levies which swell the tax burden on Minnesota land and by a sort of halfway haul lease which gives the counties the initiative in issuing bonds which state funds are slow paying off.

About $35,000,000 of such county bonds have been issued and the counties which took the good roads step are now being reimbursed from license fees. Another issue of $20,000,000 is now up to the state legislature, and sentiment all over the state seems to promise it success this year.

If the issue passes the highway department is prepared to clear away the worst of existing highway barriers in a single gesture and gallop into a construction campaign which will set new standards in wider terminal roads and modern paving improvements for the country.

It is possible that No. 1 trunk line, the main traffic road running from St. Paul all the way north to Duluth, will be closed from end to end for construction as the result of the promised bond issue, and all traffic detoured during the construction work. This road is the most expensive of the state's gravel arteries. It carries a large freight and passenger tonnage daily and is one of the primary tourist routes in the fishing and hunting seasons.

At present the Iron range counties and sparsely settled districts to the north may be credited with the state's paving championship. Like the isolated north counties in Wisconsin and Michigan, these communities were first to grasp the importance of modern road improvements. As a result, hundreds of miles of concrete pavements loop their way from Duluth through the northern lake country. Other pavements now center about the Twin cities, one of the longest continuous stretches running from Minneapolis to St. Cloud on the north.

It is possible this year to drive from Duluth along the northern shores of Lake Superior clear to Pigeon river on a good gravel road. Another good automobile road runs from Grand Marais to Hungry Jack lake, and a new road is going in to Gurdin lake on the far north.

Coast-to-Coast Trip Is Made With Utmost Ease

Nineteen transcontinental trips by American Automobile association pathfinders have brought to the motor tourist a wealth of valuable information, according to Thomas P. Henry, president of the A. A. A., in commenting upon the report of the latest trip of the official cross-country pathfinder car, "Wayfarer IV."

Motorists may be surprised, he says, to learn that the coast-to-coast trip can be made comfortably in three weeks' time each way, with a time allowance for side trips and stop-overs. "Simplification of transcontinental touring is largely due to greater familiarity with the ground covered," Mr. Henry explains. "The A. A. A. believes that each successive journey made by 'Wayfarer IV' tends to simplify the trip for the new comer by giving him the benefit of others' experience."

"Dan J. Nee, pilot of 'Wayfarer IV,' reports that the motor journey from the Atlantic to the Pacific now offers no greater difficulties than would a multiplication of trips between Washington, D. C., and Atlantic City, or between any other cities for an aggregate mileage equal to that of the coast-to-coast trip. The 'Wayfarer' pilot says that it would not be necessary to carry much more equipment than would ordinarily be carried on the average motor vacation."

Lincoln Highway Contract

The Ohio highway department has let the contract for the improvement of the seven miles of Lincoln highway between Bucyrus and Crestline for $158,448. The specifications call for bituminous macadam improvement. Work on this gap will be undertaken immediately and it is hoped that the road will be open between Bucyrus and Crestline late this fall. Lincoln highway traffic will be routed over the paved road via Gallon while the construction is under way.

DAIRY FACTS

CAREFULLY SELECT DAIRY HERD SIRES

Ninety-five per cent of the men who buy herd sires wait until they need one, then rush out to buy one ready for service. They don't know it, but they are following beaten paths. The successful breeder selects his herd sire when the general demand is lightest. As a result he gets a better bull at a lower price, says J. P. LaMaster, chief of the dairy division at Clemson college.

Some people have potatoes to sell in the seasons when potatoes are high in price. Some people have real estate to sell when the demand is greatest. But the ordinary man has potatoes to sell when prices are low, and is burdened with real estate because he can't sell it. The reason is that the ordinary man follows the beaten path. The other fellow finds out what people are doing generally and he does something else. He puts in more potatoes after a year when they don't sell, simply because he knows most of the others won't do that. He buys real estate just when almost everybody else wants to get rid of his; and he buys a herd sire during the season when demand is lowest.

This is practically all the difference between "just ordinary existing" and getting ahead. You can find out to which class you belong by asking yourself this set of questions:

When will I need a new herd sire?

Let us suppose you will need a new one before next March.

When will I look up a herd sire?

If your answer is, "Oh, next fall when I'm not so busy," you belong to the "beaten-path gang."

You will start out just when 95 per cent of the breeders start, you will buy one of the "left over" bulls and you will pay all the bull is worth.

Now you have your choice between a great many good bulls. All these will be gone before fall to the successful 5 per cent. If you say, "I'm too busy now," you are following beaten paths. If you sit down this very day and line up your next herd sire, you can depend upon it, you will buy a better one than the luckiest member of the "beaten-path gang" will ever see.

Care and Attention Is Essential for Ringworm

The following is reported as a good cure for calves with ringworm: Wash the parts with strong soap and water to remove as much as possible of the crusts or scabs, and when dry, rub the spots with some of the following ointments. Flowers of sulphur, two ounces; oil of creosote, two drams; prepared lard, four ounces. This ointment should be applied each morning and evening. Painting the affected parts with tincture of iodine on alternate days is also very effective, but this agent should not be applied near the animal's eyes. The woodwork and the walls of the shed in which these calves are housed should be painted with hot lime wash, to which has been added a couple of ounces of crude carbolic acid. With a little care and attention one should soon get rid of the trouble.

Easiest Way to Dehorn Is by Applying Caustic

The easiest and most really painless way to dehorn is to use caustic potash on the young calves. This caustic should be applied on the buttons where the horns come out by the time the calves are a week old. The hair should be cut around the buttons and the skin around the horns rubbed with vaseline to prevent the caustic from burning. The stick of caustic is wrapped with paper to prevent it from eating the fingers, one end of the stick is moistened in water and rubbed on the horns until they become white. The caustic should not be wet enough so it will run down on the calf's head or into its eyes. This treatment will kill the horns, stopping further growth.

Clean Vessels and Warm

Milk of Big Importance

A good rule to go by is never to feed a calf out of a pail you would not drink out of yourself or feed her any milk you would not be willing to drink. Feed the milk as warm as fresh milk from a cow. Keep the pails dry after calf has had her milk. After the helper is weaned then it is well to put some oil meal into the grain mixture. A good mixture much used is:

300 pounds wheat bran.
300 pounds corn meal.
300 pounds ground oats.
100 pounds oil meal.

This is particularly desirable to use after weaning.

Cause of Bad Flavors

Bad flavors in cream and dairy products are usually caused by carelessness in the care of the milk. A little dirt falls in the milk it becomes contaminated with bacteria which gives it bad flavors and if the milk is allowed to stand around the barn before taken to the house and cooled it will often take on a bad flavor. The feeding of some sort of succulent feed will often help to overcome this; roots, cabbage, andilage are good.

WRIGLEYS

After every meal

A pleasant and agreeable sweet and a laxative as well.

Good for teeth, breath and digestion. Makes the next elegant breakfast.

WRIGLEYS' SWEETENED MINT CIGARETTES

A Tactful Man

Sir Robert Baden-Powell can always be relied upon to tell a story worth retelling.

At the recent dinner of the Federation of Ranshams, he related an amusing incident in which he and his wife were concerned while camping in a wood belonging to one of the newly rich.

Lady Baden-Powell asked permission to put up a tent in the wood. After some hesitation, sanction was forthcoming.

"But you must bring the general to see me," insisted the landowner. Her ladyship pointed out the general, who was busy unharassing the horse.

"That him?" exclaimed the landowner. "Good heavens! I thought he was tall, slim and—well, handsome!"

No work is hard if you like it.

MOTHER!

Clean Child's Bowels

"California Fig Syrup" Is Dependable Laxative for Sick Children

Hurry, Mother! A teaspoonful of "California Fig Syrup" now will sweeten the stomach and thoroughly clean the little bowels and in a few hours you'll have a well, playful child again.

Even if cross, feverish, bilious, constipated or full of colic, children love its pleasant taste. It never cramps or overacts. Contains no narcotics or soothing drugs.

Tell your druggist you want only the genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on the bottle. Mother, you must say "California." Refuse any imitation.

TO-NIGHT Tomorrow Alright

NR A mild, vegetable laxative to relieve Constipation and Biliousness and keep the digestive and eliminative functions normal.

NR One-third the regular dose. Made of same ingredients, then candy coated.

For children and adults. SOLD BY YOUR DRUGGIST.

Entered in the Post Office at Clanton, Alabama, as Second Class Mail Matter Under Act of Congress.

Had you noticed what a difference there is in reckless car driving since the 15-year limit law has gone into effect?

The possum trap is still all right but the 'taters don't look so promising since the blistering drouth of the last week or so.

There would be much fewer unhappy marriages and divorce suits if women would spend half as much time trying to look pretty after they marry as they do before.

Many long standing political "rings" are putting on their winding sheets these days and the people are taking over their own business first hand.

Female whiskers with bobbed hair are going out of fashion now. New York. Stick to it, gals, it will make a man out of you after awhile.

The government put out another 15,000,000 bale estimate last week and sent the price down $5.00 per bale. Farmers, go into the future business and hold your cotton.

There are mighty few errors made by the fairly expressed will of the majority, so don't get mad if you are on the losing side. The probability is that you were wrong.

There will be scandalous few old men and women in the next generation if God meant what He said when He told us to, "Honor thy father and mother that thy days may be long on the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee."

All three of the Presidential candidates split hairs in trying to denounce the Klan, without really saying anything. Not that they love the Klan less, but fear the hyphenated and Catholic vote more.

If the women would wear cotton stockings, negligee and dresses and made the latter longer at both ends and the men would also discard their silk shirts and hose, the home mills would have to consume a great deal more of our cotton crop.

It is the greatest curse of our country that personal prejudice, greed and selfish interests dominate too many people, instead of considering the greatest good to the greatest number first, last and all the time.

A wise man and a good citizen is the fellow who is always open to conviction and willing to admit an error and change his mind when he finds that he has been mistaken. "Wise men change their minds but fools never do."

Political results are becoming uncertain these days that even the old bell-weather politicians, who have grown gray in the business, can't even make a forecast. The people are beginning to stop, look and listen and then vote as they please.

The prosecution painted Loch and Leopold, the Chicago million-dollar murders, as frolicked tailed incarnate devils. The defense figured them out to be real little angels with their wings sprouting. They ought not to fear the gallows if they are such saintly characters as Lawyer Darrow made them out to be.

Texas people do funny things. They impeached their governor and kicked him out of office and turned right around and nominated his wife for the office. Her name is Ferguson and if she is elected the great State of Texas will be the first one to ever have gone openly and literally under potboast rule. That "Love Star" must be about to set.

Whenever it becomes necessary for a Presidential candidate to deliver himself of sentiments favoring racial equality, we lose confidence in him for two reasons. One is that he is telling a lie because he would not live up to it himself and the other is that he is making an effort to deceive that class of people and is not to be trusted.

WHY IS IT?

All at once all of the politicians in America seem to have gone daffy on the subject of Ku Klux Klan interference in politics.

There are several things about that craze that strike us as being rather peculiar, to say the least of it.

For instance, for longer years than any of us have any knowledge of, the great and wonderful order of Free and Accepted Masons has existed all over the country. It is, in the very broadest sense, a fraternal order, bound together by such obligations as have formed a basis for all later fraternal organizations to predicate their vows upon. Still, we have never heard of anyone abusing them and wanting to law them and incarcerate them in jail on account of any way they might see proper to vote.

Our Jewish friends, we are told, have about 22 secret fraternal organizations here in free America to which no Gentile can even be admitted. They make any political alignments that suit them, and yet we have never heard of any one trying to read them and their orders into the criminal code on account of the way they cast their ballots.

Last, but infinitely more of a factor in politics than all others combined, we have the Order of Jesuits and the Knights of Columbus. Both of these orders are pledged to wield every vestige of strength and influence they possibly can in directing and dictating the policies of America. Still, we have yet to hear of any National effort to condemn them nor any great party movement to discredit them.

We might add quite a number of other rather erratic efforts that our leaders make to ignore, condone and even commend certain Anti-American activities that bob up here and there during a Presidential campaign. Right here is where we can't see the rhyme nor reason in staging such a wide-spread and Herculean effort on the part of the would-be great leaders of the three political parties in the field today, against the Ku Klux Klan, an order that is confined for membership to free American citizens of good repute, who, it seems to us, have more inherent rights in this great country than any hyphenated gent that you can imagine.

From the fuss being made over the Klan, it appears that free American citizens are not expected to have any rights left, except to work and produce the crops and the merchandise that these foreign hordes grow rich in handling.

So far as we have been able to find out, the Klan has never entered politics at all until they are attacked and driven into the fight in self-defense.

To deny them the rights guaranteed by the Constitution and taken advantage of by every fraternal order in the land would be a dangerous step, even for Congress to take, for a precedent would at once be established that would destroy our freedom of action and thought.

We have no brief for the Klan but we do believe in fair play and so long as the American citizens deem it their right and to their interest to organize as Klansmen or Masons, or Odd Fellows, or any other fraternal order that suits them, we feel just exactly like they have the right to do so and to vote for who they please singly or as an organization.

The Klan has been charged with many outrages and violations of law, but they have never been convicted of any. We are all well enough acquainted with some of the forces that oppose them to at least have room for a strong suspicion that these charges are trumped up by their enemies with the hope of discrediting the order.

What is the matter with letting the Klan alone the same as we do the other secret fraternal orders and allowing it to work out its own salvation?

If it is the vicious and reprehensible thing that some people represent it to be, it will speedily and inevitably come to naught without molestation. If it is the panacea for all ills that plainly threaten our country then no decent law-abiding American citizen can afford to offer any opposition to it.

All fair-minded people are becoming thoroughly disgusted with this "tempest in a teapot" that is being kicked up by a few bloated politicians in an effort to buy the foreign, the negro and the Catholic vote by abusing this organization that claims to be for America for Americans. Get down to the real issues of good government and quit shooting your ammunition at a straw man.

PAT HARRISON'S SERVICE

Former Governor Earl Brewer is opposing Senator Pat Harrison for re-election in Mississippi. The other day Brewer asked what Harrison has done since he went to the Senate and answered his own question by saying that he has done nothing but play politics.

Brewer may know what he was talking about. Maybe Harrison has done nothing but play politics. But the politics he has played has been of inestimable value to the Democratic party. Harrison has been the watch dog. He has stood in the Senate in fair weather and foul and has recorded the accomplishments of the Democratic party and the failure of the Republican party.

He has kept the nation informed. By his effort the people now know who are the faithful and who are the unfaithful. The key note speech he made at the Democratic Convention was indicative of his service to the Democratic party.

If Harrison has failed to accomplish anything directly for the people of Mississippi it is because he has sought to accomplish for the people of the entire nation. Mississippi should not be so selfish as to say that her Senator should devote his entire time to her service.—Montgomery Journal.

Since the above was written the people of Mississippi have spoken their convictions at the ballot box and Pat Harrison was their choice by about 5 to 1.—Editor

CONGRESSMAN JEFFERS FERS IN CLANTON

The especially able, faithful and efficient Congressman from our district, Major Lamar Jeffers, was around to see us all Monday night and Tuesday of this week.

As is his unfeeling custom, he went down Tuesday morning to visit the old Confederate veterans at the Soldiers' Home, at Mountain Creek. He never forgets them, but always calls especially on them every time he is in this part of his district and they all love him, too.

The Major is in fine trim and full of pep as usual, ready at the drop of the hat to take up the cudgels for Democracy and, anxious as always, to serve any constituent of his district, regardless of politics.

Congressman Jeffers is much too broad and brainy a man to allow political affiliations to influence him in the slightest in rendering service to his constituents. He is especially the friend and champion of our soldier boys and is always happy in any service he can extend to them.

In other words, he is an all-round gentleman and a public servant of whom we can all feel proud.

Boy riders, petting parties and lonely parked cars by the road side late at night, always remind us of what some one called "The primrose path" that leads to hell.

The law enforcement department at Washington gives out the statement that more intoxicating beverages are being consumed now by the young girls than the young boys. In a few more years the females will appropriate all of our bad habits and be doing our moonshining and bootlegging for us. Won't that be fine?

Mr. John W. Stanfield, a former good citizen and Mayor of our town, accompanied by his wife, were visiting friends and relatives here last Sunday. Their home is now in Greenville.

Dangerous ONLY to the Careless-

Safety is not a one-man job! Despite the precautions that the railroads have employed to safeguard the public against accident, and death, it is only the careless who are responsible for accidents.

Do your part in the great safety campaign being conducted by this and other American railroads. Let the trains have the right of way; the tracks were made for them and they cannot change their course to prevent an accident. Wait until the train stops before you attempt to get on or off. Do not use railroad tracks as a highway or a loitering place. Be conspicuous only to trespassers. Help us save life and protect against accident.

The Louisville & Nashville Railroad pays nearly a million dollars a year for the single purpose of maintaining constant supervision over the condition of its tracks. 650 track walkers are employed and every day they walk every mile of the main tracks of the road, inspecting rails, ties, bridges, etc. When you are on the train, every precaution is taken to protect you. Do as much to protect yourself when off the train.

Common sense—Caution—Cooperation will pay big dividends in safety and happiness.

MASONIC CONFERENCE

The Chilton County Masonic Conference, which was held at Marbury last week, from all accounts was one of the best conferences ever held in this County. The Masonic spirit was manifested in this conference with a large attendance, and the interest taken by all present demonstrates that Chilton County possesses a large and interested number of men, in the welfare of humanity.

The conference was conducted by Hon. J. B. Atkinson, of Clanton, who won for himself the praise of those attending the conference for his able lectures and was a manner of conducting the conference.

NOTICE

All who want to fish in my pond can start in the first of September, 1924. For a half a day 50c and 12 fish. For a whole day $1.00 (one dollar) and 24 fish. If you don't catch any fish it's your bad luck; you have a chance to try your luck in fishing.

Prof. W. B. Holmes and wife, of Dothan, spent the last week-end here, enroute to Tennessee, where the Professor goes to teach. Mrs. Holmes is the daughter of the late J. H. Roberts, of Clanton, and the Professor is a former teacher in the High School here.

Mr. Ben Hall, of Denver, Col., and his wife and two little children, are spending some days here on a visit to relatives and friends. Mrs. Hall is the daughter of the late J. H. Roberts, a prominent citizen and lumber dealer here who died a few years since.

Rev. C. D. Messer was a pleasant caller at our office Wednesday morning. He preached the day before for Rev. E. A. Gibson at the Antioch Church to a good crowd. He goes next Saturday at Pratsburg, below Montgomery, to his regular appointment.

Our good friend, J. H. Burke, from Route 3, was in to see us last Wednesday morning. He came by our house and left a mighty fine melon, but he told the wife and children to be sure to eat it up before we got in and not let us have even a sniff. What do you think of that? It was mighty good.

Mr. W. T. White, a most successful farmer and merchant out in Mulberry, is taking a vacation now with a kit of carpenter tools and is building a residence at Verbena. After he follows carpentering for a little while, farming and rail spitting would seem to him just like an every day picnic. We followed that trade for a few years and we have not got rested since.

Mr. H. T. Pipes, the popular L. & N. supervisor and much esteemed citizen of our town, in company with his son, Claude, spent last week at his old home in Kentucky. He is on the job again now and says he had a most enjoyable vacation.

MOATS-WELLS

Married last Thursday, Mr. W. A. Moats and Miss Jessie Wells. This was quite a surprise to us all but congratulations are in order just the same.

SOME LUCIOUS MELONS

Last Saturday forenoon our good friend, loyal Democrat and successful farmer, Mr. H. R. Oden, of Maplesville, Route 1, dropped into our office and brought us a couple of especially delicious melons.

Such kind remembrances as this was a long ways towards adding sunshine to the life of the average country editor and we are always glad to know that our work is appreciated and that our friends think of us sometimes. Our little family certainly enjoyed this nice treat by Mr. Oden and we all extend him our thanks and best wishes.

A GOOD THING, TOO

Some years ago a great many towns in the South had a 9 o'clock curfew law that required all young people under 16 years of age to be off the streets unless they were on business of importance.

This law still prevails in some of the Northern and Northwestern towns and is rigidly enforced.

A REMARKABLE REUNION

Last Saturday at the home of Mr. J. A. M. Jacks, out on Fourth Avenue, a family reunion was held, by the mother of Mr. Jacks and she is 80 years of age.

She has something over 80 children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren living in various parts of the country and over 60 of them assembled last Saturday in answer to her invitations.

A sumptuous repast was served in a shady grove near the house and the scene looking more like a big picnic than anything else. It was a most happy occasion and we wish for the old lady many happy returns of the day.

NOTICE OF MASS MEETING

Notice is hereby given that there will be a mass meeting at the Court House on Friday August 29th, at 8 o'clock, p. m. for the purpose of nominating a mayor and five councilmen for the town of Clanton. A meeting was held at the Court House last Monday night and at this meeting a committee was appointed to select available candidates for these offices and at the meeting at the Court House on next Friday this Committee will make its report, and also at this time the qualified voters present will select available candidates to run as Mayor and Councilmen.

The public is cordially invited to attend and here will be refreshments and other things to entertain the crowd. We especially invite all the qualified voters of the Town of Clanton who are in sympathy with this movement. We also especially urge the women voters to be present, as things vital to their interest will be discussed in the way of schools and our town's welfare in general.

COUNTY DEMOCRATIC EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE MEETS

Last Friday at 2 P. M., the Chilton County Democratic Executive Committee met in the parlors of the Wilson Hotel, according to call.

Chairman W. W. Fox, who has faithfully served in that capacity for three years or longer, tendered his resignation, which was reluctantly accepted.

Secretary Gerald, who was not present, sent in his formal resignation in writing, which was also accepted.

Senator S. M. Adams was nominated and elected as Chairman.

W. B. Oden was elected to the place of Secretary and Mr. J. Callen was elected as Treasurer.

This latter office, as we understand, is a new one with this Committee and we wish to congratulate and commend them for the wisdom displayed in creating that office and in the selection of its occupant.

Chairman Adams is known by everybody in this entire section of the country and is recognized by all as a man in whom there is no guile. He will serve that body like he does in every other walk of life—honestly, fearlessly and faithfully.

The Committee called a meeting at the Court House for September 6th at 10 o'clock in the forenoon.

Also a non-political mass-meeting to meet in the Court House at 11 o'clock in the forenoon of the same day. To this meeting all citizens of the County who are interested in good government and the future prosperity of their County are cordially invited. It is the intention to make of this mass-meeting a fair, impartial and non-party assembly, where all citizens who feel an interest in the administration of the home politics of their own County can have an opportunity to give expression to their views and take part in any movement that may develop from all this free and open discussion. It is especially understood that no party politics, discussions nor prejudices, be injected by any one into this meeting. It is intended solely as an opportunity for the good, progressive citizens of the County, no matter what their political creed may be, to get together as friends, personally interested in a common cause to better home conditions and devise ways and means, by the people who pay the taxes, looking to an improvement in schools, roads and general home conditions.

The little war going on in the Northern part of this county between the officers and the hoodlums who want to make whiskey is one of the greatest stigmas that our County has had to bear. The making of whiskey and not the dipping of cattle is the real issue up there. They want no officers around.

REVIVAL AT THE MULBERRY BAPTIST CHURCH

A revival meeting is in progress at the Mulberry Baptist Church this week and much interest is being manifested and good crowds are turning out to each service.

Rev. O. P. Bently, pastor of the Centerville Baptist Church, is assisting the pastor, Rev. Buford Lawrence, in the work and he is doing a splendid gospel preaching to those people out there.

GONE ON SHORT VISIT

Dr. C. C. Wilkinson and his wife left early Tuesday morning for the home of his brother at Columbia, Alabama.

His wife and his brother is quite sick and they are going down to visit them. They will possibly be away for ten days.

It is hoped by the many friends of Dr. Wilkinson here that he will find the sick lady much improved and that his visit will result in a pleasant and restful trip.

NO, NOT HOT, TORRID

You can say what you please, but we don't believe the torrid zone had a thing on Clanton last week when it comes to real, blistering heat.

We feel just like calling any thermometer a plain, old-fashioned liar that tries to make the record of the heat with any less than three figures—and sometimes it looked like it might take four to tell the tale. It began to suggest the advisability of trying to get hold of some asbestos clothes.

REVIVAL AT BILLINGSLEY

Beginning on the fifth Sunday in this month, a series of meetings will be conducted at the Billingsley Baptist Church.

We learn that Dr. Ezell will be on hand and do most of the preaching. Everybody is cordially invited to attend these meetings and the earnest co-operation of the entire community is solicited.

THE CHAMPION MELON

If you happen to notice anything atrocious or bitty in the paper this week I know you will excuse it when you read this.

Last Saturday Mr. J. P. Parrish left at our house the real champion melon of the season. It was a 75 pounder and was almost large enough to make comfortable camp apartments for a poor country editor and his unfortunate brood. It was so large that even our hungry crowd had to eat it on the installment plan.

And talk about the best melons you ever ate, why hush, man, this one was so sweet that sugar would have been ashamed of itself by comparison. When you put a hunk in your mouth, it just melted away with all of the blissful ecstasy that even your happiest dreams can paint.

Then, in addition to all of its other superlative perfections, he told us it was utterly and entirely Democratic, from the dainty film on the rind to the inmost fibre of its luscious heart.

Of course, after he told us that, we expected it to be as near perfection as the mind of man can conceive and it certainly lived up gloriously to the traditions of the great party to which it belongs in its perfect and delicious adaptability to the needs of the human family.

You can't blame us for being sassy after such a delectable treat as that, can you?

ALL-DAY SINGING

There will be an all-day singing next Sunday the 31st at the Pleasant Grove Church, 4 miles Southwest of Jemison. All singers and lovers of music are invited. Bring your song book and a lunch for yourself and a friend.

JAMES FRANKLIN.

MISS MAHAN WRITES TO HER FRIENDS

Montgomery, Ala., Aug. 20, 1924.
The Chilton County News,

Clanton, Alabama,
Dear Readers:

I know most of you will be surprised at a letter from one of the Chilton County girls. However I am still one of you if I don't reside there any more.

How is everything with you all? I am really enjoying life to its fullest extent. I am enjoying the work that I am doing more so than anything else. I am doing stenographic and book-keeping work for the Clanton States Life Insurance Company in Montgomery. I never knew that I would like Montgomery as well as I do but it is a fine place after all. There are lots of good people here that make you feel welcome even by the shake of the hand when you meet them.

I don't get the melons that I did before leaving Clanton but I get plenty to eat and, "What more do we want than three meals a day and one sleep?"

Would be glad to hear from any of you that in case of a rush would be willing to take a brief answer, nevertheless I'll try to answer.

A Reader,
RAVA LEA MAHAN.

SACRIFICE TO HELP THE NEEDY

By CATHLENE SHERIDAN

(© 1936 Western Newspaper Union.)

The young girl dressed in black looked very much relieved when Mr. Sexton, manager of Randall & Co., mortgage bankers, told her brother Ernest that his references were all right and he could start at work forthwith.

Her hand stole lovingly into that of the pale-faced timid lad, encouraging him amid a new and strange environment, and she whispered:

"Be brave, Ernest, dear! You will soon become used to it. And think what a help it will be to poor mother!"

Then her quick intelligent eyes took in the general ensemble of the big office. Her face fell. In an intuitive way her mind recognized in the assurance of the old clerks, the vanity of the typists, the cold calculating manager, the indifference that would chill the retiring nature of her brother, going into a new life after years of care and tenderness, the idol of a loving family circle. Her footsteps lagged. Was she leaving a lamb among wolves? Then near to the door she noticed a man seated at a desk. His glance followed her brother, then it rested on her own face. Something in its token of interest in herself and her affairs, impelled her towards him. She knew not why, but in an intense whisper she said:

"Won't you please look after him a little?"

Her selection of him as a confidant, as a friend, brought to the eyes of Ransom Ware a sudden brightness, in which his true soul of chivalry, of devotion to weak and helpless humanity came to the surface in a flash. Respectfully but fervently he answered:

"I will do more than that. I will remember my own long-ago first days of apprenticeship and help him over the rough places."

"Oh, thank you! Thank you!" spoke the young lady, the quick tears of emotion springing to her eyes and lighting the door the shadow of Ware followed her, a queer longing thrill at her heart.

Just as the noon hour that Ware spent over to where the new employee was stamping the morning's outgoing mail.

"I'll show you the post office," volunteered Ware unhesitatingly, "as I go to lunch—and, by the way, where do you eat?"

"I don't know. I haven't thought," replied Ernest Norton, looking like a school boy.

"Well, I'll introduce you to a joint where you can practice economy when you have to," and Ware not only showed the lad the post office routine, but gave him a free dinner.

"Looks as if he needed and wanted it, too," soliloquized Ware, "Poor lad—I remember my own first break into business life."

The lonely years came up before him in a dreamy and saddened way. He was a good man in his place, but not to court the attention of those in power nor to joust with rivals. He was a valued man, but his keen mercenary employers took advantage of his quietest ways and aspired on him.

He and Ernest became great friends. Ware quite quelled the second office boy who felt it a duty to squabble with all juvenile new comers. Ware took Ernest under his wing in a way that warmed the self-contained assistant manager that he had better leave him alone. Gradually Ernest got on to the office routine. He was punctual, obliging, industrious, but the watchful Ware noticed that about the middle of the afternoon his steps would lag and great dark circles came about his eyes. When he left the office at quitting time, he resembled some being with all the vitality of the day thoroughly exhausted.

"It won't do," sighed Ware one evening, as he saw the boy crying softly to himself in a retired corner of the office, utterly downcast and too weak to start home without a rest. "See here, Ernest," he spoke aloud, approaching the lad and clapping him cheerily on the shoulder. "I want you to come up to my room tonight. I'm home and we'll have a famous meal and go over to the amusement park."

"Oh, I couldn't do that," dissented Ernest at once.

"Why not?"

"My sister Lucia would miss me and worry. Mother, too."

"Well, we will just telephone Miss Norton and it will be all right."

Which it was, and the lad had the evening of his life. He never suspected that a serious-faced friend whom his host introduced was a medical acquaintance of Ware, asked by the latter to look him over and find out what was the matter with him.

"The boy needs a change to outside air and exercise or he won't last two months," was the report of the young physician, and the next morning Ware did a thing that he had never ventured to do for himself—to ask a favor.

In wonderment and then with a smile on his face his employer listened to his appeal.

"It will cost you nothing, sir," explained Ware. "I want to save the lad."

You can help me by sending him to the plant at Lisle."

"But we have no use for him there," "No, sir—only pretend you have. I will really pay the salary. Let him be timekeeper for the outside workers." "We need no timekeeper."

"I know that, but the boy must think you do."

"Have your way," was finally agreed. "If you can afford to play the philanthropist, all right."

And right royally did Ware keep to his promise. Three weeks he visited the mother and sister of Ernest in their humble home. On every occasion there was a cheering letter from the lad, telling of how he was growing stronger every day.

Miss Norton had started and looked troubled. Ware fancied, when he first told her of sending Ernest to Lisle. She seemed on the point of saying something, but changed her mind and was silent, although she exchanged a strange meaning glance with her mother.

Ware took no vacation that year. He did not buy his usual summer suit. When he called on the Norton home one evening he found Lucia and her mother gone.

"They received a telegram from Lisle," explained the landlady, "telling that Ernest was hurt, and hurried away at once."

That night Ware fell ill. For a week he tossed in fever and delirium. When he again opened his eyes to the realities of life he found two nurses at his side—Lucia and her mother.

They had a strange story to tell. For years they had been estranged from a wealthy uncle who resided at Lisle. Ernest had risked his life to stop a runaway which endangered the life of the uncle in question. A reconciliation had come about. The Wares were now richly provided for.

"All through you—dear, brave, sacrificing friend!" sobbed Lucia, her tears falling on the wasted hand of Ware. "And I have learned all about your bearing the burden of the salary paid Ernest. Oh, my friend—my best and dearest friend."

She broke down there, moved to silence in a realization of the deep love this noble man had inspired within her heart of hearts. He read the truth, and a glorified smile passed over his wasted face as he knew that he had won the sun's crown of life—the love of a true woman.

Remarkable Powers of Horse Shown by Tests

Tests made recently proved that a pair of horses, each weighing 1,600 pounds, could haul a load of 50 pounds greater than themselves.

On a metal track one of these animals. It has been shown, can draw one and two-thirds times as much as on a good asphalt surface, five times as much as on cobblestone paving and twenty times the load it can pull on an ordinary mud road.

For a usual type of farm horse a cart carrying a weight of 1,500 pounds is considered to be a fair task. While pulling light vehicles and under saddle, records indicate that horses are equal to great feats of strength and endurance.

A twenty-year-old beast hitched to a light cart is known to have traveled a hundred miles in less than thirteen and a half hours and was in excellent condition at the end of the journey.

Variable Verbs

A boy who swims may say he swum, but milk is skimmed and seldom skum, and nails you trim, they are not trum.

When words you speak, these words are spoken, but a nose is tweaked and can't be taken, and what you see is seldom seen.

If we forget, then we've forgotten, but things we wet are never wotten, and houses let cannot be lotten.

The goods one sells are always sold, but fears dispelled are not dispold, nor what you smell is never smold.

When young, a top you may saw spin, but did you ever see a grin e'er grin, or a potato nearly skun?—London Tit-Bits.

Self-Service

The Kingdom of Heaven is within you. For that matter, the kingdom of earth is within you also. If for any reason you begin the day with the conviction that everything is rotten, and this conviction is advertised by the expression your face wears, the members of your family and the persons with whom you do business will greet you with countenances as cheerless as your own and thus intensify your woe. The big idea is to smile. To a man with a grinch this will seem an absurd idea, but even a man with a grinch will strain a point to increase the dividends.—Baltimore Evening Sun.

"Silent Zones" Real

An old battle rule is "March toward the cannon fire." History records that in 1870 a French division at the battle of Forbach was obeying this rule when, suddenly, it heard nothing more and marched back where it started.

There the cannon firing was heard again, but it was too late, the troops had been deceived by one of those strange zones of silence. Now it is thought Napoleon's defeat at Waterloo, due to the delay of his General Trochu, may have been caused by drowsy getting into one of these zones.

ALL PARTS OF CALF MAKE GOOD DISHES

Appetizing Dish of Calves' Liver and Onions.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Calves' brains are usually cooked in water to which a little vinegar and salt have been added, then cut up and scrambled with eggs. Cooked brains may also be breaded and fried like cutlets or croquettes.

Sweetbreads are usually parboiled and creamed, but they may be baked with a little fat, or breaded and fried as cutlets. For salad combine finely chopped celery with the boiled sweetbreads and serve with mayonnaise dressing.

The liver is usually fried with bacon. It is also good if braised and served in place of game.

The tongue, either fresh or corned, may be boiled and served hot with a tomato sauce or sliced cold and served with salad. A fresh tongue may be braised.

Hearts may be boiled, or stuffed and baked. The heart is a very strong, compact muscle and requires long, slow cooking in order to render it satisfactory for serving.

CHILDREN SUGGEST FOOD FOR LUNCHES

Help to Make Variety for Well Balanced Diet.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

If the children are interested in their own school lunches and are taught how to pack them properly, they will not only take this task off the mother's hands, but help to suggest foods which give the necessary variety for a well-balanced diet. Children should be taught to prepare sandwiches well and to pack them neatly in waxed paper so they will neither fall to pieces nor dry out before they are to be eaten. An occasional discussion of foods suitable for the school lunch will lead to surprisingly good suggestions from the children themselves, as to what they like to have, or what other children bring.

In packing the lunch basket every precaution should be taken to keep the foods clean and in good condition. Foods that spoil easily should be avoided in warm weather. Paper napkins or towels and thin waxed or parchment wrapping paper are inexpensive, especially if bought in large quantities. These not only protect the lunch but the children's clothing. Washable napkins may be used instead, but they are more troublesome and are likely to be lost.

Sandwiches, sweet foods and fruits should be wrapped separately and the heaviest things put at the bottom of the lunch box. Cup custards, apple sauce, jelly and other soft foods can be carried in paper cups or cartons. In small screw-top jars or covered jelly glasses. Milk from home is desirable whenever it can be carried; if no provision can be made for serving it at school.

Recipe for a Reliable Frosting Is Outlined

The United States Department of Agriculture gives the following recipe for a reliable frosting, worked out in the experimental kitchen of the bureau of home economics:

Place the white of an egg, a cupful of sugar and four tablespoonfuls of cold water in a double boiler over a low fire, and beat until it stiffens enough to hold shape. Then add a pinch of salt and beat until thick enough to spread. Add one teaspoonful of vanilla or other flavoring. Chocolate flavoring may be made by melting two and one-half squares of unsweetened chocolate and pouring into the mixture when it has stiffened enough to hold shape; then cook until thick, and spread. For caramel icing caramelize two or three tablespoonfuls of sugar until dark in color, and add an equal amount of boiling water. Substitute two teaspoonfuls of this sirup for two tablespoonfuls of the water in the frosting recipe, and continue according to the above directions.

Rice and Chili Chicken

Cut up a frying-size chicken. Fry in hot lard for a few minutes, then add one onion chopped fine, one green sweet pepper, one tomato, one tablespoonful of chili powder and half a cupful of rice. Add salt and pepper and enough hot water to cook the rice until well done.

PRESERVED PEACHES GOOD FOR A CHANGE

Characteristic Flavor Not Harmed by Short Cooking.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The merit of this recipe lies in the fact that the characteristic flavor of fresh peaches is not destroyed by the short cooking, and is well preserved when the peaches are embedded in jelly. Even in those cases where the jelly fails to set well because of excess of juice or lack of pectin, the product should still be found worth while because of its superior flavor.

Many fruits which are delicious in flavor when fresh change altogether when cooked a long time or made into preserve the usual way. By jellifying sliced peaches in the way described, an unusual product is obtained. The same idea can be applied to raspberries, strawberries, pineapples and other fruits which do not, as a rule, lend themselves well to jelly-making. Department Circular 254 gives directions for preparing the pectin extracts to make these jellied fruits and separate recipes for each one.

Jellied Sliced Peaches.
2 cupfuls (1 pound) sliced peaches
3 1/2 cupfuls (1 1/2 pounds) sugar
1/2 cupful apple pectin extract extra strength or 1/2 cupful lemon or orange pectin extract

Use sweet, fully ripened fruit of rich flavor; it is essential to use fruit of the highest quality. If a superior product is to be obtained, since the flavor of the cooked preserve cannot be expected to excel that of the raw material.

Peel the peaches and remove the pits, slice them very thin, about one-eighth inch in thickness. Measure this sliced fruit, add the sugar and mix carefully. Heat slowly over a low flame or at the back of the stove, stirring constantly, until the juice flows freely and the sugar is dissolved. Then increase the heat and bring to a vigorous boil as rapidly as possible. A very short time of heating is essential if the fresh flavor is to be preserved. Boil hard for one minute with continual stirring. Remove from the fire and add the pectin. Mix well, skim if necessary, and pour at once into glasses.

Composition of Several Kinds of Common Bluing

Bluing differs in composition as well as in form, says the United States Department of Agriculture. The commonest bluing is prussian blue, aniline, and ultramarine. Indigo is now rarely used. Bluings in solution color fabrics more evenly than does bluing that is merely in suspension. Prussian blue is an inexpensive soluble salt of iron. It is easily decomposed by soap and if clothes are not thoroughly rinsed, iron-rust stains may appear on them when ironed. Blue may be tested by adding strong soap; if the color changes from blue to yellow, iron is present.

Aniline blues are also soluble in water and are probably the most satisfactory. Ultramarine is not very soluble. It is sold in balls or cubes. When used, the water must be kept well stirred to prevent the bluing from spotting or streaking the clothes. The balls or cubes wrapped in heavy muslin or flannel so that only the finest particles may pass through, should be soaked in a bowl of water, and the blue liquid added to the water for rinsing and bluing the clothes.

Nothing is so disagreeable to society as unbecoming waste.

Maple sugar may be kept moist by placing in a closed jar in which has been placed in a potato with a slice cut off the end.

To clean straw hats thoroughly cleanse with warm water. Then wash with following solution: One teaspoonful oxalic acid in one pint of water.

MARY SUCCEEDS ON MAIN STREET

By LAURA MILLER

THE DOCTOR ON MAIN STREET

Can a woman whose address is actually "115 Main street" be successful? Or is she so far from the center of things, so near the old-fashioned prejudices about man's place in the professions and woman's place in the home that even the profession which pre-eminently serves the home is a hopeless venture?

Dr. Blanche Haines of Three Rivers and Lansing, Mich., ought to be especially qualified to answer both these questions. She does actually live at that very Main street address. She is a success—if service is any criterion. In what has been for centuries the man's job of making sick folk, and keeping well folk, healthy.

Her title is a lengthy one, yet it describes only in part the scope of her work, which brings her into contact with some 5,000 people a year. She is director of the bureau of child hygiene and public health nursing of the Michigan department of health. There was a time when Doctor Haines and her doctor husband (and a good-looking one, too, she interjects) had time to practice medicine in the country town of Three Rivers in comfortable fashion. Between whiles she indulged in her passion for collecting antique furniture. "A country doctor who starts antiquing from Main street," she opines, "has a much more wonderful time than the 'antiquer' on the lower East side of New York."

Doctor Haines is so busy now with prenatal care and baby welfare that she has had to abandon antiques. Her physician father, who had to be another as well as a mother not only his profession, but his habits of thinking straight, in the best man-fashion. She came under the influence of Susan B. Anthony, and found out the secret of working for and with women. Hence, as Michigan women have grown in power and opportunity for service, they have put Doctor Haines on many committees, most of them having to do with health.

Finally the state, following the example of the national government, has adopted the mother and baby educational measure known as the Shepard-Towner act. Forthwith, Doctor Haines was called upon to make the written law into an actual benefit to those who most needed it. It is, as Doctor Haines says, primarily a rural problem of lowering infant and maternal death rates, outside the large cities, especially in isolated homes where modern medical knowledge penetrates slowly. And having lived on Main street in a small city is the one factor which Doctor Haines chiefly depends on to build success.

FEMINISTS, OR JUST FOLKS?

Cub reporters on city papers, according to women readers, love to turn their cynical vocabulary loose in articles about "lady legislators," "lady mayors" and others whom they conceive to be freak feminists. Unless somebody gets all the women mayors together, no one can know what sort they really are. But here is an actual interview—by mail—with one of them:

Two years ago Mary Paddock went to Florida. She had done her work, she felt, for two sons and four daughters to whom she had been both father and mother, were grown and gone out into the world. Driving south from Palm Beach she found what seemed the ideally peaceful spot in which she might at least conscientiously indulge in a life of selfish ease with time to read and study and play.

"In the little village of Lantana, beside the still waters of beautiful Lake Worth, nestled a cottage. It was picturesque, inviting, yet secluded. Graceful coconut palms and fruit trees surrounded and shaded it. It was scarcely nine miles from Palm Beach, yet Lantana was a quiet, tiny village, barely incorporated. A few weeks later I found myself the happy owner of the cottage. My daughter was with me. My one idea seemed about to be fulfilled; here I should find peace and pleasure, living a quiet, leisurely life in ideal environment.

"But alas! Before many weeks the mayor of the little town was forced to resign on account of ill health. I was persuaded to allow my name to appear on the ticket to fulfill the unexpired term.

"You know the outcome. I woke up one day to find that I was a full-fledged mayor. I can't say that I felt any happiness over the honor conferred upon me. But I decided to do my best to make a success of this new and responsible undertaking.

"A charter for a town of a few hundred inhabitants. Mrs. Paddock imagines, 'is as weird and wonderful an instrument as the one under which New York's Tammany Hall rose to fame. And a mayor's work is absorbingly interesting, when aided by Lantana folks' spirit of co-operation."

AFRAID SHE COULD NOT LIVE

Operation Advised, But Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made It Unnecessary

Glasgow, Kentucky.—"I was run-down, nervous, with no appetite. My side had given me trouble for five or six years. At times it was all I could do to live, and the doctor said I couldn't live but a short time longer without an operation. That was two years ago. My sister-in-law recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound." She had never used it herself, but she said one of her neighbors suffered just like I did, and it cured her. After I had taken four bottles the pain left my side. I had a fine appetite to eat anything that was put before me, and I began to do all my work and my washing, something I hadn't done for years. I am a dressmaker, and this last fall I began suffering with my side again, so I began taking the Vegetable Compound again. I am on my fourth bottle, which makes eight in all I have taken. I feel so much better when I take it and everybody tells me I look better. My appetite improves and I feel stronger in every way. I am a very nervous woman and it seems to help my nerves so much."

Mrs. MAGGIE WALLER, Glasgow, Ky.

The Way of Life

This brief sermon by the wayside is from the Tifton Gazette: "Some men seem to make money without effort, while some women seem to annex more husbands than the law allows without any more effort. It's the other way round with some men, who can't make money no matter how hard they try, while some women find it utterly impossible to even annex one husband allowed by law. But then, that's the way of life."

BROUGHT HOME FROM MEXICO ON STRETCHER

But Mrs. Herman Is Now in Good Health, Thanks to Tanlac.

A few years ago Mrs. M. E. Herman, 215 Hitchings St., San Antonio, Texas, "returned to the states from Monterey, Mexico," she says, "in such a low state of health that she had to be carried to her home on a stretcher." As time went on and she still lingered in the throes of "Nerve exhaustion, stomach disorders and bodily weakness," she determined, "on the advice of her druggist," to try Tanlac, which she declared "brought back my health and strength after I had almost despaired of ever getting well."

The results of Tanlac in the case of Mrs. Herman, while indeed remarkable, are by no means unusual for

BIG ULCER ALL HEALED

"Here is another letter that makes me happy," says Peterson, of Buffalo, N. Y. "One that I would rather have than a thousand dollars."

"Money isn't everything in this world. There is many a big-hearted man who would give all he has on earth to be able to produce a remedy with such mighty healing power as Peterson's Ointment, to sell at all druggists for 50 cents a large box."

"I was an untold sufferer from old running sores and ulcers. I had tried almost everything without any relief from pain. A friend told me of your wonderful ointment and the first box took away the pain that had not left me before in years and after using just nine dollars' worth of the ointment I am cured. The ulcer was 3 inches by 4 inches, is all healed and I can walk. Never, never will I be without Peterson's again."

"You may use this to recommend your ointment, if you wish. I cannot say enough to praise it. Yours truly, Mrs. Albert Southcott, Lyndonville, N. Y." Mail orders filled by Peterson Ointment Co., Inc., Buffalo, N. Y.

Source of Mental Health
In society you will not find health, but in Nature. You must converse much with the field and woods if you would imbibe such health into your mind and spirit as you covet for your body. Society is always diseased, and the best is the sickest. There is no scent in it so wholesome as that of the pines, nor any fragrance so penetrating and restorative as that of everlasting in high pastures. Without that our feet at least stood in the midst of Nature, all our faces would be pale and livid.—Thoreau.

Three Feeds Now Cause Soft Pork

Problem Becoming Nation-Wide Because of Increasing Use of Soy Bean.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The feeding of hogs so as to prevent the development of soft characteristics, once thought to be a problem only in those regions where peanuts are fed, is no longer a sectional difficulty, says the United States Department of Agriculture in calling attention to the results which have been obtained during five years of investigation. It is now almost a nationwide problem among hog raisers because of the increasing use of soy beans which also produced carcasses lacking in firmness. There are now three feeds recognized as producers of soft pork, peanuts, soy beans, and rice polish.

Result of Experiments.

At the recent annual meeting at Knoxville, Tenn., representatives of the state experiment stations taking part in these investigations, and representatives of the United States Department of Agriculture, discussed the results obtained in this long series of experiments. This is the first year it has been possible to make definite statements on the influence of soy beans on firmness of hogs. Summaries of the experimental results obtained by the Alabama, Georgia, Indiana, Kentucky, Mississippi, North Carolina, Tennessee and Texas agricultural experiment stations in co-operation with the United States Department of Agriculture during five years' investigation of the soft-pork problem have shown that:

1. Soy beans grazed or self-fed alone or with minerals self-fed through a period of seven to eight weeks to pigs starting at approximately 100 pounds weight and making gains of 40 to 50 pounds produce soft carcasses. Further, the results have shown that the degree of softness of the carcass increases as the gain in weight of a hog on this feed increases.

2. Soy beans grazed or self-fed alone or with minerals self-fed to pigs starting at approximately 100 pounds weight and making at least a moderate rate of gain through a period of seven to eight weeks will not produce firm carcasses even though a subsequent gain in weight has been made by the pigs on corn and tankage equal to that previously made on the soy beans.

3. Soy beans grazed or self-fed with a supplementary ration of 2 1/2 per cent of shell corn with or without minerals self-fed produce soft hogs when the pigs are started on the feed at approximately 100 pounds weight and make at least a moderate rate of gain through a feeding period of seven to eight weeks.

4. Rice polish and tankage self-fed, free choice on out or rye pasture or in dry lot and with or without a small supplement of skim milk tankage to pigs starting at 35 to 125 pounds weight and making gains of 30 pounds or more through a feeding period of eight to fifteen weeks, produce soft carcasses.

5. There is a direct relation between immaturity and softness in pigs. When pigs are fed on ordinary feed combinations which are not unusually low in fat content, such as corn and tankage, or corn, middlings and tankage on pasture or in dry lot and slaughtered at a weight of approximately 100 pounds or less they are, in the usual case, soft.

Feeding Corn and Tankage.

6. Hogs fed corn and tankage gradually become firmer as they mature or take on weight and finish. While hogs fed in this way are usually soft at 100 pounds or less, the hardening is progressive, so that when slaughtered at approximately 175 pounds or more they are, in the usual case, hard.

7. Brewer's rice and tankage self-fed free choice on out pasture with or without a small supplement of skim milk tankage to pigs starting at approximately 60 pounds weight and making gains of 150 to 200 pounds through feeding periods of 12 to 15 weeks produce, in the usual case, extremely hard hogs. In fact, of a degree of firmness distinctly greater than that occurring in corn fed hogs.

8. The mixture of cornmeal 5 parts and peanut meal (hull free) 1 part self-fed with or without supplementary minerals to pigs starting at approximately 80 pounds weight and making gains of approximately 100 pounds through a feeding period of 9 to 10 weeks produce, in the usual case, hard or medium-hard hogs.

9. Results have shown that when the softening feeds and feed combinations—peanuts or soy beans alone, soy beans supplemented with a 2 1/2 per cent ration of shell corn, or rice polish and tankage (each with or without minerals)—are fed to pigs which have previously received no softening feeds, there is a distinct relation between the degree of softness and the starting weight and the degree of softness which develops in the pigs decreases as the starting weight increases, provided equal gains in weight are made and other factors are uniform. Whether the lighter pig of the higher degree of softness or the heavier pig of the relatively lower degree of softness will be hardened more readily by subsequent feeding of hardening feeds is still undetermined. Experiments to settle this question are now in progress.

Check Soil Erosion by Bench Terracing

Gives Best Results Used on Any Steep Slope.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Soil erosion, which annually results in enormous losses to the farmers of the United States, is most effectively prevented or controlled by terracing. There are two distinct types of terraces, the United States Department of Agriculture points out in Farmers' Bulletin 1386, Terracing Farm Lands, Just published. For use on moderate slopes the ridge terrace is best adapted. It says, while for steep slopes the bench terrace gives the best results.

The ridge terrace is divided into the narrow-base and the broad-base types. The broad-base terrace can be cultivated and can be readily crossed by modern farm machinery without injury to the terrace; the narrow-base terrace does not possess either of these advantages, and under ordinary circumstances is less desirable than the broad-base type.

The broad-base, level-ridge terrace is laid out absolutely level. This more nearly meets the requirements of an ideal terrace than any other type. Its distinct advantage over the terrace with fall is that practically none of the fertile parts of the soil are removed from the field. It is particularly suitable for use on open, permeable soils. When used in connection with the drains on any type of soil it unquestionably is the most effective method employed to stop erosion. The broad-base, grade-ridge terrace, generally known as the Munn terrace, possesses all the advantages of the broad-base, level-ridge terrace with the exception of the one just stated. It may be used on any type of soil, but is recommended for use only on soils where the broad-base, level-ridge terrace without the drainage cannot be used successfully.

Copies of the bulletin may be had free, as long as the supply lasts, upon request to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Liming Treatment Will Increase Yield of Corn

Liming for legumes has become such a common practice that the idea is often held that these crops are the only field crops that will respond to this treatment. It is, of course, true that sweet clover, alfalfa and red clover will not grow profitably on sour soils and lime is often necessary to establish them. Few other field crops are so sensitive that they fall without lime, but though they may not fall utterly without this treatment there are some that profit by it. Among these crops is corn.

On 18 fields of the Missouri experiment station where one and one-half tons of lime were used every six years in the rotation of corn, oats, wheat and clover, the increase in bushels of corn per acre as a result of liming was as high as 7.9 bushels with an average of 3.02 bushels. With a conservative price of 80 cents for corn, this gives a net profit of 81 cents per year on a dollar invested. Surely at the rate of 81 per cent profit, one need have no great hesitation in calling attention to liming for corn as well as to liming for legumes, especially when the effect from lime may be partly lost, since it goes on to the ground ahead of the wheat and two years pass before the corn comes round in the rotation.

Farm Hints

• Vegetables for vitamins, vigor and vitality.

• Save toll and time by spending some mental effort.

• Summer rations for laying hens need not differ greatly from winter rations.

• A dairy cow is a good "middle man" through which to market forage crops and farm by-products.

• Milking machines must be cleaned and kept clean if the milk that passes through them is to stay clean.

• If your local fair was not as good last year as it should have been, start now to make it better this year.

• Unless you "commune" with your neighbors in promoting the general welfare you are not a worthy member of the community.

• Peat makes a mighty good bird litter, and can be prepared at a very small cost when a drained bog is accessible.

• Speaking of co-operation: why not co-operate community orders through home merchants instead of sending away thousands of dollars to the mail order house?

• Pure bred runs give offspring with six and one-half pounds wool clip, as opposed to two pounds from common native sheep. A word to the wise is sufficient.

• Now the savory perfume of the preserving kettle, the soft gurgle of the boiling canner, and the dappled whiteness of the drying screen should be foretelling of good things to eat this winter.

For temporary protection of a river bank being undermined by floods and strong currents, approximately 2,000 discarded automobile bodies were sunk in depths of from 20 to 40 feet. Placed in a barrier along the shore line, the cast-off vehicle hulks formed a "mattress" to hold the land from slipping into the stream. Many that did not readily submerge were filled with rock. It is said that the plan checked erosion of the bank, until permanent dikes could be installed. Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Her mother died some four years ago, a good, devoted Christian mother and left little Inez only a tot, the youngest of three children, but the prayers of that sainted mother were answered in little Inez who was an exceptionally good child, and now, before the wickedness and sin of the world could blight the purity of her young life, God has kindly taken her home to the arms of that waiting mother.

MARY SUCCEEDS ON MAIN STREET

By LAURA MILLER

WHEN THE WHOLE NIGHT WAS HERS

Did you ever hear of Altrusa, which "tries to do for women what Rotary does for men"? If so, you have heard of Maime Bass of Indianapolis and will enjoy the more her letter, dated July 17, about a fellow member:

"Today I had luncheon with Emma Bassett. She handed me your letter of July 12—and she a good prompt business woman, too: 'Read that, said she, a little shamefaced. I haven't done anything worth telling about.'

"No, of course not," said I, "nobody worth a red cent would think she had." And then Emma began to tell me the story of her life and I wish you might have sat at that table."

Space lacks to quote. A little Indiana town where we were poor, and only those who have been poor in a small town know how poor a body can be and be respectable." Her father's death when the eldest child was six; boarders and interminable dishwashing for small Emma; fear that well-meaning neighbors would prevail and the children would be "put out"; a secret dream of "a beautiful house like the Smiths", a mother who could quit working and have nice clothes, and for herself, to be a teacher of English."

An eleven-year-old's summer job as a cash girl. Then the older sister died, there were extra bills, and Emma left school, found a job in a book bindery at $4 a week, "not much, but more than the dollar and a half of the department store. . . . I blush at this," interprets honest Miss Bass, "but perhaps Indianapolis is and was no worse than other cities."

Meanwhile Emma treasured the counsel of a beloved teacher, "Never mind, just do your work better than anyone else does it, and what seems a blind alley will open upon a beautiful park." Forewoman in a better shop, the girl of dreams made a lasting friend of the unusual woman manager.

Followed a period of unrest, a night course in stenography, a multigraphing machine for 75 precious dollars.

"She still kept her job at $12 a week," says Miss Bass, "but she had lots of time, oh, just lots of it—from 6 a. m. until 8, after a light lunch all her noon hour, and after 6 at night on—the whole night was mine," she says. Perhaps it was her womanliness and her sincerity that brought business, too. It was sheer hard work that got the work out on time. Today an obligation with Mrs. Bassett's name on it is always a good investment. Her reputation is modern and she does quite a printing business besides the circular letters. And Emma Bassett, who knows so well how to be a friend, has many friends in Indianapolis who prize her for sterling qualities."

THE UPSIDE DOWN FLYER

Che Horchem's letter head pulls your eye instantly over to the left-hand margin. There in small blue letters is this:

FEATURING

200,000 Miles
2,000 Feet in the Air

After you've puzzled that out, you go on and discover on the right and left margins other astonishing legends, such as "Has Flown Approximately 200,000 Miles," or "Performing on 'Parade 2,000 Feet in the Air' and gradually your eyes come to rest on "If Done in the Air We Do It," with the conviction that Mrs. Horchem must have been learning these things since before airplanes were invented.

Then you discover—if you're as lucky as I was—the picture of an undeniably pretty girl, who isn't the least bit modest about the date of her birth. She discovered America, via Kansas, Kan., in March, 1899. Since then she's found time to get an education in Portland and Seattle. For business success she's come back to the same country. Horchem's Aerial shows have headquarters in Wichita. But Mrs. Horchem explains that she has to be on the road pretty continually—by which I take it she means in the sky—so she gives her "home town address" at Ransom, just like a girl who never goes even to the county seat.

In a letter written in July she told me that she had just made a new woman's altitude record of 10,399 feet while flying at St. Louis on July 5. She's been in commercial aviation four years, parachute jumping two years. (Somehow that simple record of a year or two years to learn one saw form of control over herself and her machine gives one a thrill of realization of the hugeness of each victory.)

As a regular job, Mrs. Horchem specializes on carrying passengers commercially. The last half year has kept her at this work very steadily. On her present notch stick of achievement she has chosen to keep the record of miles flown. Counting from January, 1923, she is aiming to make 30,000 miles before winter shuts down on her job of aerial taxi driver.

WHEY AND MANY DIFFERENT USES FOR IT

Whey Lemonade is Quite Refreshing.

Just as buttermilk represents what is left from cream in butter making, so whey represents what is left from milk in cheese making. Though less nutritious than buttermilk and skim milk, since it contains less protein, whey may be substituted for them in making bread and other cooked foods, and it is also useful in some cases as a mild laxative drink for invalids.

Whey that differs little in composition from regular cheese whey, may be made at home by cooking sweet milk with some acid material, such as vinegar, lemon juice, or cream of tartar, or even with sour milk, according to the United States Department of Agriculture. Fresh curds and whey is an old-fashioned dish still used to some extent, though less common than it was when cheese making was regularly carried on in the home.

Whey Lemonade and Punch.
1 quart whey. Slices of lemon
8 tablespoons or a little grated sugar. or dried
Juice of 2 lemons. rind, nutmeg or cinnamon.

RICE IS EXCELLENT BASIS FOR SALADS

Useful Also in Fixing Up Left-Overs of Many Kinds.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Cold boiled rice, if very dry and flaky, is an excellent basis for many salads and may be the means of using left-overs of vegetables, fruits, meat, or fish, says the United States Department of Agriculture. For instance, left-over peas, carrots, green beans, or fresh tomatoes may be combined with left-over rice, and small amounts of fresh fruits may be used in the same way. Grapefruit makes a delicious salad served with rice and French dressing. Plain, cold boiled rice or cold pressed rice may be served with lettuce with a hot or cold cheese dressing or with mayonnaise. Either adds greatly to the nutritive value of the dish and gives it a distinctive flavor. Because of its texture, rice readily takes up the flavor of any dressing.

Souffle of Peas Useful for Luncheon or Supper

Lima beans, split peas, cowpeas or fresh or canned green peas may be used to make a luncheon or supper dish that is fairly substantial, says the United States Department of Agriculture.

4 tablespoons 1 cupful mashed
4 cups 1 cupful (any kind)
4 tablespoons 2 eggs
1 cupful skim 1 teaspoonful salt milk 1/2 teaspoonful pepper
Few drops of onion juice

Make a white sauce from flour, fat and milk. Mash the cooked peas to a pulp. Beat white and yolks of eggs separately. Mix vegetable pulp, seasonings, sauce and well-beaten yolks. Fold in stiffly beaten whites, put in greased baking dish and bake in slow oven until firm.

Stuffed Green Peppers

6 green peppers. 1 1/2 cupfuls meat
2 1/2 cupfuls fresh stock thickened
1 cup corn. with 3 table-spoonsful flour.
1/2 cup cut up fine. 2 eggs
1 1/2 cupfuls meat 1 1/2 cupfuls bread chopped or crumbs.
Dash of ground fls. 1/2 teaspoonful salt.
Dash of pepper.

Remove the tops and seeds from the peppers and parboil in boiling water for two minutes. Remove from the water, drain, and put in a casserole. Stuff the peppers with a mixture of the corn, onion, meat, bread crumbs, thickened stock mixture, and seasoning and bake. Canned corn may be used. The mixture may be varied by using other materials such as rice and tomatoes, suggests the United States Department of Agriculture.

Mix, chill and serve as a beverage. Variations.—Double the quantity of lemon juice and of sugar and add other fruit juices and a little fruit cut in small pieces. This transforms whey lemonade into whey punch. Set the punch away to chill and ripen; serve with crushed ice if desired. Rhubarb, pineapple, grape, currant and cherry juices lend themselves well to whey punch. A sprig of freshly crushed mint is sometimes added. Nutmeg or cinnamon will overcome any characteristic whey flavor. Whey punch may be frozen if desired.

Whey Honey.
1 cupful whey. 1/2 cupful corn
1-3 cupful sugar, syrup. either white or brown.

Mix whey and sugar and boil the mixture till it is of the consistency of strained honey. This syrup will keep indefinitely if properly bottled and is delicious for spreading on waffles or pancakes. Used a little thinner it makes an excellent pudding sauce. Since it requires no thickening it is the easiest possible sauce to make.

LAMB FOREQUARTERS ECONOMICAL MEAT

Several Excellent Ways of Cooking Are Suggested.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A breast of lamb, mutton or veal, sometimes presents a problem, as it contains more fat and skin and less meat than other parts of the lamb, and yet it is often economical to buy an entire forequarter of lamb, or necessary to dispose of this part when slaughtering on the farm. One way to prepare a breast is to make a pocket under the skin, fill it with bread stuffing and bake it, so that the thin layer of meat is protected by the stuffing from drying out. Other good ways of preparing a forequarter of lamb or mutton are suggested by the United States Department of Agriculture. They apply equally to a breast of veal.

Braised Breast of Lamb or Mutton.
Season a breast or shoulder of lamb or mutton, place in a covered casserole or roaster and surround by vegetables prepared as in the following recipe. Add a little water, cover the pan closely, and cook in a slow oven until the meat is tender, probably from an hour and a half to three hours.

Breast of Lamb With Vegetables.
Season a breast of lamb with salt and pepper and simmer until the bones can be slipped out easily. Remove from the water. In the meat stock cook vegetables such as turnips, carrots, celery, or onions cut in small pieces, green beans, peas, and okra. More salt may be needed. A few potatoes cut small may be added to cook during the last 20 minutes.

Remove the bones from the meat, fold it together, and secure with small skewers or twine. Dredge with flour and brown on both sides in hot fat. Place on a hot platter and surround it with the vegetables which have been well drained. Use the meat stock for soup, skimming it when cold.

Preferred Combination of Meat and Vegetables

Among the many combinations of meat and vegetables which constitute a stew, the recipe below is preferred in parts of Virginia and Georgia, and is one of the dishes made popular by canning club girls under the direction of the United States Department of Agriculture and the state agricultural colleges.

The meat should be cut up in pieces and browned before stewing. A sour sauce may be made of vinegar, tomato catsup, a little Worcestershire sauce and pepper to taste. The meat should be simmered in this sauce till nearly done, the vegetables then added, and the cooking completed.

4 pounds of beef 1 quart sweet or pork corn, cut from 2 pounds liver corn, or canned
(boiled) 1 quart peas, or Small piece of fat lima beans meat for sea- 1 quart tomatoes soning

Household Questions

If the house has no running water that's the first improvement needed.

Careless paring of potatoes or fruits often wastes as much as 20 per cent of their food material.

Tin cans have their place, but their place is not in the back yard, half full of water and serving as happy homes for mosquitoes.

The Y DAIRY

SUDAN GRASS MAKES VALUABLE COW FEED

That sudan grass makes an acceptable substitute for alfalfa when the latter cannot be had is shown by the results of a recent feeding test with dairy cows at the Fort Hayes branch of the Kansas experiment station. Two lots of four Holstein cows each were fed through three twenty-day periods with ten-day transition periods between each of the experimental periods. During the first twenty-day period one lot was fed alfalfa hay and the other sudan grass hay. The hays were reversed for the two lots during the second twenty-day period and again during the third period. In addition the cows received thirty pounds of kafir silage daily and a grain mixture in proportion to their production.

When the cows were fed alfalfa they produced 2.3 pounds or about 13 per cent more milk than when they were fed the sudan hay. The weights of the cows showed no significant changes as a result of the change in rations. The cows seemed to prefer alfalfa to sudan as there was less waste of the alfalfa hay. Their production, however, did not fall a great deal when sudan hay was substituted for alfalfa.

Sudan grass is used a great deal as a hay and pasture crop in Kansas and the southwest. It withstands a dry summer much better than most forage crops. It is a very useful emergency hay crop in the corn belt. Under Iowa conditions fifteen to twenty pounds of seed per acre are used and the crop is seeded in early June. Farmers who have no hay ground this year can make very good use of sudan grass. Yields are from one to two tons per acre.

Flies in Summer Cause Considerable Annoyance

Flies cause considerable annoyance to dairy cows during the summer and not only does the irritation caused by these flies tend to lower milk production, but the restlessness of the animals is a frequent cause of inefficient milking. A good fly spray can be made from 4 1/2 quarts of coal tar dip, 4 1/2 quarts fish oil, 8 quarts coal oil, 3 quarts whale oil and 1 1/4 quarts of lard. Dissolve 3 pounds laundry soap in water, add ingredients of the spray and bring the whole up to 30 gallons with lukewarm soft water. This spray is guaranteed to keep off the flies and prevent the coats of the animals from becoming harsh, according to agricultural extension department specialists at Iowa State college.

Spray twice a day, in the morning after milking and in the afternoon when in the barn for silage or green food. With a portable cart, made from a half barrel with wheels attached, and a spray pump and nozzle, two men can spray 40 cows in five minutes. Thirty gallons of this mixture will spray 40 cows twice a day for ten days at a cost of one cent a cow a day.

Watch Cream Separator to Save All Butterfat

Cream separators that have not been tested for some time may be cheating their owners out of considerable butterfat every time they are used, warns C. A. Iverson, of the dairy department at Iowa State college. This is an avoidable loss which can be prevented by testing the skim milk and then regulating the separator to skim more closely.

Farmers who have the apparatus for the Babcock test can test the skim milk at home. A double-necked test bottle should be used and 20 cubic centimeters of skim milk used instead of 17.5 cubic centimeters as in the case of whole milk. Farmers who cannot do their own testing can have it done by their local creamery or can send a four-ounce sample to the dairy section at Iowa State college. A charge of 10 cents for the testing is made by the college.

Dairy Facts

Keep the barn clean.

Ship cream the quickest route.

Wash the cow's udder before milking.

Use a brush instead of a rag for washing utensils.

Add fresh water to the cream cooling tank frequently.

Ship cream at least three times a week in summer and twice a week in winter.

Give cows no pasture access to salt every day. They need about one ounce per day.

A year-old dairy calf has cost its owner about $50. If it is a scrub the owner has lost money.

From the standpoint of value, dairy animals are the most important class of live stock on the American farm.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

MASTER BROWN PELICAN

Master Brown Pelican splashed with a terrific splash down into his pond. He had had a nice little flying trip and down he came with such a noise and with such a splash that it was lucky all the other birds with him were birds of the pond.

If any had been around who had not wanted to get wet they would have had a hard time of it when Master Brown Pelican made up his mind to splash.

He looked out of one eye at the passerby and he said: "I get a great deal of fun out of life. There is nothing sad or gloomy about me."

"I am what you would call a good old pelican sort. I love the zoo. Some don't love it so much. But I do. I enjoy my keeper."

"He gives me most delightful fish. How do you love fish?"

"Sometimes I say to myself: 'Pelican, old dear, do you like fish better than the keeper or do you like the keeper better than fish?'"

"Then I splash about and answer myself in this fashion: 'It is a different kind of affection, as people would say when they are telling you that it is not that they love their mothers more than their daddies or their daddies more than their mothers, but they love them differently.'"

"Of course I often think they might not like it if they heard me say that. 'People are quite sensitive and touchy. They might not think it was polite of me to speak of the fish and keeper as though the fish were so important. 'They might not like my comparison. 'But then I can't be too fussy. It is a hard question to decide. 'I love my keeper because he is so kind to me, and he is nice and jolly. 'But I love fish, as fish is so good to eat.

"I couldn't eat my keeper, and I wouldn't want to, even if I could."

"I only care to eat fish. Yet my keeper gives me fish. So I might not have the fish if it weren't for him."

"Oh, it is a very hard question to decide."

"But he says I'm a great eater. Now, if you can't be great in one way, be great in another, is my opinion."

"He says he never saw a creature who could eat so much. Well, I've a good-sized beak, you know, and I've also a good-sized, willing stomach."

"I like to fly and I like to swim. I've webbed feet and I'm a good swimmer. I can fly well, too."

"You see I have a number of accomplishments."

"But I can't help laughing at some of the faces I see! Oh yes, they come to see me. Well, I look at them out of my small eyes which look jolly and full of fun and almost as though they were laughing at a very drool joke."

"I look at them out of my eyes, as I have said, which is the correct thing to do—you don't look at people from your mouth or anything like that, and I can hardly keep from laughing."

"Sometimes maybe you have heard me laugh!"

"You see they think I'm a very funny looking creature, and their expressions, as they gaze upon me, are about as funny as any one would ever hope to see."

"While they're thinking I'm so strange looking, they should see themselves as they look at me."

"Often I wish I could show them a mirror and have them look at themselves."

"But I don't mind. I think to myself: 'You're funny looking, too! Why, we're friends!'"

STATISTICS, say you? Just population statistics and dry as dust?
Not so. Quite the contrary. Read between the lines and you will find it a fascinating list. It spells the three hundred years of our history; the march of the American people across the continent; our territorial, industrial and commercial development from a new land to the wealthiest and most powerful nation on earth; the triumphs of both war and peace;
glimpses of the contrasting civilizations of colonial and Twentieth century times.

In proof of this, run through the list and note what each city suggests to you. New York likely says,
"Broadway, Wall Street, Tammany Hall, Woolworth building." Chicago probably suggests Windy City, stock yards, Great Fire, grand opera and phonograph growth. There are living native-born Chicagoans who have seen it grow from about 2,000 when incorporated in 1837 to the fourth city of the world. Boston means baked beans and culture. Detroit shouts "Fliv-vers." Minneapolis spells flour; Grand Rapids furniture, and Tulsa oil. Philadelphia takes us back to the Declaration of Independence, the Revolution and the Constitution. San Antonio recalls the Alamo; Richmond and Atlanta the Civil war. Washington means congress and Uncle Sam. And so on.

STUDY of the names of these cities is interesting. A few are purely Indian: Chicago, Place of the Wild
Onion; Seattle, an Indian chief;
Kansas City, Omaha, Tacoma and others.
Several are Spanish: Neustra
Senora La Reina de los Angeles, San Francisco, San Antonio, El Paso. The French are represented by Detroit
(Strait), New Orleans, St. Louis, Des Moines and Duluth. The Dutch lost
New York (Nieuw Amsterdam) and Albany (Fort Orange) to the English, but gave names to Yonkers and Schenectady.

There are classical names, like Philadelphia, Utica, Syracuse; descriptive names, like Grand Rapids, Fall River, Salt Lake City; made names, like Indianapolis: Boston, New York, New

What Did Gubbio Think?

When King Victor of Italy was on his way recently to unveil a war memorial in the ancient town of Gubbio he found his automobile barred in the street of the little village of Scheggia by crowds of peasants.

They acclaimed the king, but explained to him Scheggia had been on bad terms with Gubbio for some seven or eight centuries, and it was not to be borne that Gubbio should have the honor to her war heroes inaugurate before that of Scheggia, which also had just been erected.

Scheggia may have only 1,840 inhabitants, but she is a proud little town today, for the king then and there unveiled her monument.

SWAMP-ROOT FOR KIDNEY AILMENTS

There is only one medicine that really stands out pre-eminent as a medicine for curable ailments of the kidneys, liver and bladder.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root stands the highest for the reason that it has proven to be just the remedy needed in thousands upon thousands of distressing cases.
Swamp-Root makes friends quickly because its mild and immediate effect is soon realized in most cases. It is a gentle, healing vegetable compound.

Entered in the Post Office at Clanton, Alabama, as Second Class Mail Matter Under Act of Congress.

"Hell Maria" Dawes is certainly a heavy liability on the hands of the republican party this time. He talks entirely too much with his mouth.

We are beginning to conclude that if we ever have any good roads away from Clanton we will have to build them ourselves.

Jeffersonian democracy is the greatest scheme of government in the world but its like whiskey, the pure article is getting scarce.

A person who will put out his lights to cut a corner illegally proves himself to be a criminal by premeditation and intent.

Suppose we suspend this "drive" mania for a year or two and give us all time to accumulate a little cash so we can come across.

It is gratifying to see Davis and Coolidge oppose that nefarious child Labor Bill now pending in Congress.

God is more long-suffering and merciful has even our imagination can paint Him or He would not allow this old impudent and egotistical world to go a minute.

If our law making bodies would spend about two full sessions in repealing false and conflicting laws, law enforcement would be a reality instead of a farce

There don't seem to be any law in Alabama that can not be evaded on some kind of a technicality if there is enough in sight to make it interesting for the lawyers

One is not in political sympathy with the balance of the state, consequently we are treated like an unfortunate step child when ever there are any plans to dispense.

Friendship and community cooperation are worth a darn sight more in moving the wheels of progress than all the politics you can make up in the world.

The national democratic party looks like they don't want to win this time. Every time they turn the steering wheel they get in to more and more trouble.

Some of the wise political prophets say that La Follette will capture 90 electoral votes. If he does the Senate will have to name our next president, but we can't see how he is going to annex that 90 yet.

On the tenth of this month Judge Caverly will tell us how many years he is going to give Lorb and Leopold in the pen. He just as well make it a life sentence for they will be pardoned out inside of three years any how

An old lady 92 years of age who had planned only eight husbands, decided she wanted the ninth. She bobbed her hair and went after him. She got him. "So, bob your hair, girls, there is still hope for most all of you.

Work has begun on the old high way from Marbury to Roy's bridge. Our people had better arrange to leave their cars at Marbury and install an airplane service from here there if they have much business at the state capitol.

Atlanta is the metropolis of the South. They had nothing to build a city on but some old red hills. No coal, no ore, and no natural advantages. They have built, and are still building, that great city on nothing in the world but the spirit of cooperation that dominates its citizens. Atlanta is an object lesson for all towns to study.

In Columbus, Ga., they have a squad of mounted police whose duty it is to haunt the various favorite parking places for nocturnal petting parties. When they land a couple the girl is taken home by an officer and the boy is escorted before the Mayor who revokes his driving license for 6 months or a year for the first offense and puts on a time sentence for the second offense. Looks like the young folks over there will have to do their lugging and kissing in the parlor.

A SUICIDAL POLICY

Politically this great country has fallen upon strange times. Fundamental principles means nothing at all to the hard boiled politicians who have contrived to get both of the old parties into their hands.

All over the country the idea seems to have taken hold of these bosses that the common people, who do the voting, are nothing more than poker chips they are using in their poker game of politics they are playing among themselves for the fat leaves and fishes they hope to collect. Time and long years spent at the game, have rendered most of them blind as bats to the fact that the real people have become aware of the vassalage under which they have been living and are rapidly deciding to exercise their own brain power to some extent and to have, at least, some idea as to what they want and how to get it.

Even these bosses do not profit by bitter experience. When the people rise up and rebuke them at the ballot box so plainly that even a crazy blind man can see it, they don't seem to think it means anything but was merely an accident. Instead of mending their ways and realizing the stern fact of their repudiation by the people, they deal the same old cards and begin the same old game right over, apparently presuming that they, and only they, are the autocrats who are empowered to frame up and direct the destinies of the great political parties.

Here in Alabama we are burdened with the same identical kind of a situation that seems to prevail pretty generally all over the country.

The bosses got together in the last legislature and exercised their regal power to such an extent that they presumed to tell the people by law who they should support at an election

The result was what might have been expected by any intelligent person. They butchered their candidate and accomplished his political ruin, but even that plan and palpable rebuke by the people does not appear to have aroused them to a realization of the fact that the people will no longer stand for such regal power as that from any one.

Here the other day the State Democratic Executive Committee, in august and majestic session, dominated by the same ideals of bossism belonging to the dark ages, put forth an edict that no voter who did not support in toto the nominees of the national ticket, could not participate in democratic primaries ever again until he had buried his independence and swallowed every ticket the bosses might see proper to put out.

This is a Kingly edict, put forth by so-called servants of the people which presumes to take from the voters every vestige of his rights as a free American citizen. This too without the very slightest scintilla of authority, either legal or political. The South is Democratic on principle, and social conditions will cause it to so remain, but the fact of its obseure and inherent democracy is one of the strongest reasons in the world why it will not tamely submit to control, dictation or despotic direction from the hands of any ring, clique not political machinery yet conceived of.

This ruling of the state Committee is already doing for Mr. Davis what the infamous "resolution" of the last legislature did for Mr. Underwood. A palpable attempt to use coercion in driving the free American voter into line is a policy worse than suicidal. They have been cajoled and fooled into to error often but when it comes to hog tying them and delivering them over as so much chattie, the recent presidential election was on object lesson plain enough, it looks like, to have demonstrated, even to the bosses, that it can't be done.

Our State Committee has given the republicans a weapon to fight with in Alabama this year that will mean more to them than all of their other political thunder combined. Watch and see!

The planet Mars has figured in the headlines now for a week or two, but it is still doing business at the same old stand and we do not know anything more about it than we have always known and that is all we need to, or ever will know--it makes a real handsome morning and evening star as the seasons roll on.

LAMAR JEFFERS RETURNS TODAY, TO WASHINGTON

Congressman Lamar Jeffers, representative from the Fourth congressional district left Anniston for Washington early this morning. The congressman stated he was forced to return to the capital city on account of committee work and departmental affairs. He expressed the hope that he would be able to return to Anniston sometime during the month of October.

Congressman Jeffers stated that he had greatly enjoyed his stay in the district and that his tour recently brought him into contact with the citizens of the district and he was gratified to learn of their opinions on matters of national importance. He was greatly benefitted by his sojourn here this summer, Mr. Jeffers stated.

As a final statement given out before leaving Mr. Jeffers asked that all residents of the fourth district feel at liberty to write him in regard to any matter that can be taken up in Washington and that he wanted to prove of service to the district.

TO ALL OF OUR SUBSCRIBERS

Today the Chilton County News is three years old.

According to a ruling of the Post Office Department every one of you are due your subscription for the new year.

Listen. This has been a very dry year. Money has been scarce and hard to get and we have been forced to go in debt to keep the paper going. We are owing money that must be paid and we have plenty of past due subscriptions on our books to more than meet this indebtedness. We have made these debts feeling assured that our good friends would appreciate the extension and would come promptly to our relief this fall. Now, will you do it?

If every subscriber to the News will renew now for an other year, and these delinquent friends come in with what they owe, the Chilton County News will pay up all its indebtedness and be sure to travel on in its work of trying to help and build up our town and county for another year, doing its very level best, as in the past, to be the friend of everyone, regardless of politics.

It is for law enforcement, for good, honest government and with the people first, last and all the time.

Come promptly to our assistance now and tide us over the shoals and we will strive, even harder, if possible to give you a clean, fair and readable paper as the days go by.

Please do not put this matter off. All of you come to our relief promptly and all will be well.

MRS. BEAN DEAD

Mrs. Katie Belle Bean, age 45, died at her home in West Point, Miss. last Friday.

She was formerly a resident of Thorsby and was a Miss Crosby before she married.

The remains were shipped back to Thorsby for burial and were laid to rest in the New Salem cemetery last Sunday, Rev. W. P. Lowery officiating.

Dangerous ONLY to the Careless-

Safety is not a one-man job! Despite the precautions that the railroads have employed to safeguard the public against accident, and death, thru warning signals, watchmen, crossing gates, etc., preventable disasters continue to occur.

Do your part in the great safety campaign being conducted by this and other American railroads. Let the trains have the right of way; the tracks were made for them and they cannot change their course to prevent an accident. Wait until the train stops before you attempt to get on or off. Do not use railroad tracks as a passageway or a loitering place. They are dangerous only to trespassers. Help us save life and protect against accident.

The Louisville & Nashville Railroad spends nearly a million dollars a year for the single purpose of maintaining constant supervision over the condition of its tracks--850 track walkers are employed and every day they walk every mile of the main tracks of the road; inspecting rails, trestles, bridges, etc. When you are on the train, every precaution is taken for your safety. Do as much to protect yourself when off the train.

Common sense--Caution--Cooperation--will pay big dividends in health and happiness. DO YOUR PART.

Blue Ribbon Pressing Shop

Has installed a New Steam Pressing outfit. It is an expensive and modern machine. We are better prepared now to do Dry Cleaning and Pressing than ever before.

We dry clean suits without leaving the odor of gas in the garment.

In order to give the people of the town and county a chance to see and to benefit by having their clothes pressed at a very low price, we will press by the month for $1.75. Press Suits for 40c Dry Cleaning Suits, 65c. We positively do not leave any odor from the gas in the garments.

We call for and deliver in any part of town.

All mail orders gotten out the same day if postable. For the first days I am going to press 1 suit Free where a man, or woman or boy brings me two suits at one time.

WOODYARD—WILLIAMS

We are grateful to Mrs. Parnell for this report of this most interesting marriage, and wish to explain to her why we did not get it in last week. Her letter did not reach us until the paper had already been printed and the paper had already been printed.

A beautiful wedding of much interest to the many friends of the bride, Mrs. Mabel Williams, was solemnized in the Baptist church at Maplesville on Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock when Miss Mabel Williams and Rev. Frank T. Woodward of Statesville, N. C. were married. Her sister, Mrs. James Davis of Birmingham was Matron of honor and Rev. B. R. Justice of Frankfort, Ky. acted as best man. Rev. W. T. Edwards, assisted by the bride's brother, Rev. Grady Williams, officiated. Before the ceremony a violin solo Oh, Promise Me, was rendered by J. W. Guin, Jr., and a vocal solo, I Love you Truly, by Miss Beverly Hester, of Clanton. Mrs. Charles N. Parnell accompanied and played the wedding march. During the ceremony Angelo's Serenade was softly played on violin and piano.

The church was artistically decorated with ferns and potted plants. The bride was becomingly attired in a beautiful fall model of ivory tulle with lace-erotic. She carried a ball from which fell a shower of bouquet of fragrant climatic.

Immediately after the ceremony Rev. and Mrs. Woodward left for Raleigh, N. C. from which place they will go to Statesville, N. C. for a visit with the groom's parents, then via Chicago to Seattle, Washington.

Mrs. Woodward is an accomplished young woman of lovable personality and strong christian character. She is a graduate of Judson College and of the Baptist Training School located at Louisville, Ky.

Mr. Woodward is a young man of sterling worth and high ideals. He is a graduate of Wake Forest College in North Carolina and of the Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville, Ky. On September 5th, Rev. and Mrs. Woodward will sail from Seattle, Washington for China where they will spend their lives as Missionaries. They are followed by the love and prayers of their many friends and relatives.

CHILTON COUNTY ROADS

By C. Cleve Powell

As I see and hear of so much being said about road and road work in Chilton County, pro and con, and as I have been asked to tell the public what I think about the road work in this County, I will gladly give my side of what is being done. Will first say that I am in a position to know something of road conditions in this County for the reason that I travel the County in every direction every week. There might be some by-roads or short roads that I have not traveled but every road that I have traveled has been worked and all that I can call to memory just now have been graded with the machine. It might be possible for some conditions to be improved. Some places might be worked different by me and still be worked different by some other man but as a whole I will say that there has been some mighty good road work done in Chilton County this year. My opinion is that the roads to the County as a whole are better than they have ever been.

Now, My purpose is not to dictate to our County officers or road men who have given their attention to the road work but it seems to me like it would be advisable that when all the roads have been worked and all necessary sewers have been installed and before all appropriations for this year have been exhausted that we ascertain from each community the marshy branches and low wet places. Also the soft clay hills that gives trouble in fall and winter and all those places be properly graded and surfaced with good soil or gravel. Then we will be prepared for the winter rains.

Yours for good roads,
C. C. POWELL

REVIVAL AT VERBENA

Last week our Methodist friends at Verbena engaged in a series of meetings at their church.

Rev. C. P. Roberts, their pastor, ably assisted by his father, who is also a faithful worker in the vineyard.

The meeting was well attended and much interest manifested and is certain to result in much lasting good to the community.

MASS MEETING SATURDAY

A Nonpartisan Mass Meeting at The Court House Next Saturday
Forenoon at 11 O'clock

An urgent invitation is extended to every citizen of Chilton County, who feels an interest in the prosperity and future of his home county, to come out and take part in this meeting.

As we understand it, no political lines are to be observed, or even recognized, in the discussions and action that may be taken at this get-together assembly of the people who "pay the taxes" on the county. It is a matter of the outside, if you see fit, but when you come up in this congregation of citizens, leave everything on the outside except an honest desire to promote some measure, or do something to the betterment of our local conditions.

We all have to live exactly under the same conditions. What helps one will help all and what is injurious to one injures all. The big idea is for the people of Chilton County to govern themselves for awhile. We call this a government of the people, let's try it out awhile.

Remember the day and the hour—
Saturday, September 6 at 11 o'clock.

CO-OPERATION, OR ELSE—WHAT?

In the issues of this paper during past few weeks, there have appeared letters explaining in some detail the basic principles on which the Farmers Co-Operative Association is built. At this time, in bringing this series of letters to a close, we wish to review briefly these basic requirements. As previously stated, the F. C. A. was formed and is being carried on with the conviction that the farmers of this county need an organization embodying the following features:

1. Will market the products of its members and purchase the needs of its members to a better advantage than they could do individually without action.
2. Will benefit the members to a larger amount than it will cost them to support the organization.
3. Will be in full control of the members at all times.
4. Will be in charge of honest and conscientious men in whom the members have confidence, with all officers making money under bond.
5. Will keep all members informed on all matters connected with the association.
6. Is composed of members who want an organization and will do their individual part in making it successful.

In our recent letters appearing in this paper, we have shown why these are the primary requisites for a successful organization in this county at this time and have also shown that the F. C. A. is so organized and constructed that the first five requirements are bound to be carried out in this organization if—if the sixth requirement is met. We make that statement frankly and with the realization of the fact that upon this question hangs the life of the organization. The organization is built upon an economical, safe and profit making plan for the farmers of this county. If enough farmers in this county want this help enough to become members and do their individual part in making it successful it will be a permanent establishment, increasing each year in efficiency and helpfulness. On the other hand if the farmers of this county refuse to support the organization it will be a failure.

The success or failure of this organization is in the hands of the farmers of this county. It is a question for each individual to decide. Before making your decision, we suggest that you remember, that unless you give your support to the organization you are giving your support to those who are fighting the organization.

Ask yourself these questions: How many bales of strict middling cotton did you sell before co-operative marketing was established here in the fall of 1922? Were the local cotton buyers able to set their own price on cotton previous to this time? Yes! Did you have any choice between letting them have it at their own price or not selling it at all? No! Did you know what your cotton was really worth on the market? No! Are you able to buy your fertilizer, flour, seed, feed fruit trees, etc., at wholesale prices without an organization? Nine times out of ten, no!

All of the benefits of the F. C. A. can be had for the small sum of $3.00 per year. How many times this amount would we lose each year if we were without a co-operative buying and selling organization in this county? Of course you will receive much of the benefit of the association if you belong but if you are not a member you are making it harder for it to succeed.

It is a question of Co-operation or else—letting the other man get the profit of our labor.

"Think on these things" and then ACT: Join the F. C. A.

Yours for service,
Farmers Co-operative Ass'n.

PARTIAL RAINS

During the past few days some good rains and a good many showers have fallen throughout this section as well as in other arid sections of the state.

It is to be hoped that the drouth is broken and that good, general seasons may fall all over the country.

The situation had not only been disastrous to growing crops, and cut down the corn yield more than half and the cotton nearly as much, but in many sections a more serious feature was being the people.

Wells, springs and streams were going dry to such an extent that the stock were suffering for water, and in many localities it had become necessary for the people to haul all the water they used for several miles.

This had been especially true up around Birmingham where the drouth had lasted, up to last Sunday, for 46 days.

This is a most unusual thing to occur in the south. A lack of water will cause a famine sooner than a lack of food and when thirst begins to get hold of either people or animals it doesn't take long to finish them up.

Possibly by the time you read this copious rains will have fallen all over the country. It is to be hoped so at least.

SEASON CLOSÉS

The Clanton Ball team closed the season last Monday afternoon with a battle against the L. & N. Pan American club of Birmingham.

This was a much touted team and came down with all of the pomp and assurance of veteran players and pennant winners.

They went back like most of the others have that played Clanton this year, only more so. They carried home a nice full basket of goose eggs while the score board showed up 8 good sound tallies for Clanton.

Last week the great Kellerman outfit came down for 3 games—Thursday, Friday and Saturday. They fought hard, but they were up against a bunch that didn't know how to lose. So Kellerman went home Saturday without a single game to their credit.

After a season of wonderful ball playing the Clanton boys retired for the winter in a blaze of glory. If we never win another ball game in Clanton the boys have piled up a record this year that will go down in base ball annals as a historic memory.

THE LABOR VOTE

A great effort is being made by all three of the presidential candidates to capture the labor vote en masse.

Such a thing as that looks foolish to us and we have belonged to labor organizations for a good part of our life.

Labor organizations, secret fraternal orders and all other things of that kind of which we have any knowledge, are founded for a different purpose than to dabble in politics and we never heard of one but what specifically stated in the obligations and all of its propaganda, that your political belief was your own affair and people of all political parties were fit subjects for membership.

Your political faith has nothing to do with it and you can vote for whom you please. All that is required of a member is that he be fit for membership personally.

No one can tie up the labor vote in a package and deliver it. The organized laboring man will do just like every one else, he will make up his own mind and vote as he sees fit to suit himself, just like they have always done.

VERBENA BAPTIST REVIVAL

We learn that a most interesting revival meeting is in progress this week at the Verbena Baptist church.

It is said that the attendance is very large and a great deal of interest is being taken in the work by the public at large as well as the church.

We failed to learn the name of the visiting ministerial help, but hear that he is one of the able State Board evangelists who labors in that field.

We wish them a gracious outpouring of the spirit.

ARE THANKFUL

The good ladies of Maplesville desire to extend their sincere thanks to the merchants and other business men of Clanton for their liberality in subscribing for advertising space on the drop curtain at the Maplesville High School. Through their liberality the purchase of a splendid curtain was made possible.

NO REASON TO GET MAD

The worst thing that can happen to any town is for its citizens to split up, fall out and go to pulling and hauling against each other.

There is going to be two tickets out in the municipal election this time and both tickets are going to have a strong backing in the election.

Now, that is perfectly all right and is, perhaps an aid to good government, but there is no reason on earth for any body to fall out, or get "het-up" over the contest.

Make this a clean, good humored contest between friends. There is nothing personal in the affair at all.

Some of us want one ticket to win and some of us favor the other, which is our perfect right, but where is there room for hard feelings in the matter?

These candidates are all good citizens and the town will be honestly taken care of, no matter who wins, so what is there to fall out about?

Under the present government, as we see it, Clanton has made wonderful strides in progress and development, and feeling the pride in our town that we do, we do not favor any change at this time, but we do not intend that as an insult, or as the very slightest reflection on any one who may differ with us. We both have a right to our opinion and, as honest citizens and lovers of our town, it is our conscientious duty to do for it what we feel like will result in the greatest good.

When the sun goes down on us all election day let us all be just as good friends as ever and just as patriotic and loyal citizens as we were before the election.

Put the material interests of our town first and let nothing wean you from your allegiance to Clanton.

If you will be out a little at night in Clanton and watch the scenes that will fall directly under your own eyes, you will realize why these old fathers of ours had such a law. It would save many a good boy and girl now from taking the plunge towards ruin that means their final undoing.

GONE TO WORK

The contractors who are to put the concrete surface on the north half of the Chilton county section of the State highway are on the job now and the pouring of the concrete finish on that part of our road has begun this week.

The other half of our part of that road has not even been advertised yet. There is something rather peculiar about the way this part of our road has been handled. It looks like it would have been cheaper and more uniform if they had treated us the same as they have other counties.

Old "Hell Marie Daves" shoots a lot of bombastic bull at the Klan, labor and everything else in sight. The day when a politician could travel by throwing filthy mud has passed, so goodbye, old "Hell Maria."

SARDIS SINGING

Mr. Editor, Please give me space in your paper to say the Chilton County Singing Convention of the Harp and Harmony Books will meet at Sardis Church near Adams on M. & O. R. R. the 3rd Sunday in September and Saturday before.

Everybody invited to come.
The Chairman.

Register.

In the Confederate Home in Biloxi a widow has just married for the eighth time. She had her hair bobbed just before the wedding. The groom was 92. All of which goes to show that women are angles of mercy to the last. Here was a woman who had done her prettiest by seven and was still willing to take on one of 92 and try to reform him also.

She must have seen the feminine of that man of whom President Lewis, of George Washington University, tells. This chap had three wives die on him. Each time he called up one of his men friends to act as pallbearers.

"I am not going," exclaimed the friend, turning from the telephone to his wife "I cannot go accepting that man's hospitality and never returning it."

A RUSTY CUSS

Homer Bruce was exhibiting on the streets Saturday one of the oldsters of the Moccasin Snake family.

It was a rough and rusty looking specimen and must have been eating frogs and tadpoles for lo these many years.

The scarcity of water during the dry spell has put these old time fellows out looking for something to drink.

It is a good time now to keep your eyes open when out in the woods.

ALABAMA NEWS HAPPENINGS

A Resume of the More Important Events of Interest Condensed To An Epitomized Form.

Officials of the East Alabama Fair Association, at Alexander City, are making preparations for the fourteenth annual fair, October 21, 22, 23, 24 and 25. A carnival company has been secured, free acts are being booked and plans are being laid to make horse racing a feature of this year's entertainment. County Agent Day reports that splendid progress is being made in securing community agricultural exhibits. He states that he has already reserved space for more communities than have ever before exhibited. Interest is being manifested in the poultry department since it has been learned that Mrs. Florence Forbes, vice president of the American Poultry Association, is to be a judge of the poultry show. Competition at the fair will be open to all New coops have been bought to replace the old and an expert will be charged of the feeding of the birds exhibited.

The case charging five prominent Mobilians with conspiracy to bribe a federal officer who continued indefinitely when two of the defendants failed to appear in court. The indictment charging William H. Holcomb, Jr., former sheriff and member of the legislature, Dr. A. G. Ward, member of the board of revenue, Percy H. Kearns, Frank Boykin and H. M. Cochran with conspiracy to bribe Aubrey Boyles, federal district attorney, was taken out of the call of court when attorneys asked for a continuance. It was known that the Dwight Cotton mill at Alabama City had cancelled the notice to its 1,200 operatives of a two weeks shut-down. It is understood this action was due to a better tone in the textile trade and increase of orders for the local plant. It is now running on a schedule of 50 hours a week, which is expected to be increased shortly. Announcement also was made that the shops of the Gadsden Pipe company and the Agricola Pipe company, which were shut down August 15, will resume on September 3.

The Civic club and the Commercial club of Moulton have completed plans for the community fair to be held this fall. The dates are Oct. 10 and 11. The Civic club is to have oversight of the flower, fruit, garden, needlework and cooking exhibits for which departmental directors were appointed last spring. The Commercial club will look after grain, hay, cotton and farm exhibits, while both will co-operate in arranging for the prizes. It is planned to make the fair more than a mere community fair by asking exhibits from all parts of the county.

A. J. Harris, attorney for the Morgan county board of revenue and Judre L. P. Troup, ex-officio chairman of that board, are arranging the details of a loan of $150,000 from the state highway commission, to be used in building the courtland and Moulton pikes. They are to be built of gravel and each mile is to cost about 10,000.

The regular fall term of the Chambers county circuit court has been postponed one week on account of the paving of the streets of the town. Court will be held beginning on Monday, September 8. Judge N. O. Jones will preside.

The school census of Tusculum has just been completed. The school census of 1922 showed the number of children to be 1,338. The 1924 census shows 1,535. The 1924 school census gives Tusculum a total population of 6,140.

Dr. Thomas E. Cochran has returned to Marion after spending the summer in North Carolina with his family. Dr. Cochran will assist in getting the business of Judson college in shape for opening in September.

Fully 500 Cleburne citizens assembled at the Mcaville church to attend the Odd Fellows celebration and hear an address by Congressman Lamar Jeffers.

Fire of undetermined origin completely destroyed the home and furnishings of P. F. Manley, at River Falls.

The working party of the Alabama Power company, which is constructing the new transmission line from Hopgood to Decatur, are at work placing poles on the right of way.

Arrangements are being made by a committee of the Alabama League of Women Voters to have a "Get Out the Vote" luncheon on September 17, at the Tutwiler Hotel, at Birmingham. A letter of invitation is being sent to the presidents of every organization of a statewide character in Alabama, whether it be religious, secular, business, fraternal, political, civic or educational. It is the purpose of this luncheon to get the representatives of these diverse interests to formulate some joint plan by which Alabama's qualified voting power may be increased.

The town council of Muscle Shoals adopted an ordinance granting the Muscle Shoals Land corporation the right to construct an adequate water system for Highland Park subdivision. H. B. Danby and G. S. Templemeyer, officials of the land corporation, stated that no time will be lost in installing the waterworks system. The town council also authorized the construction of concrete sidewalks on a number of streets and avenues, the length of same totaling approximately 11 miles. It is stated that work will be started at once on the two developments.

To Jasper will probably belong the honor of being the first city in the state to form a Davis-Bryan Victory club. W. S. Childers, president of the Jasper Trust company, received notification a few days ago of his appointment as representative in Jasper of the national democratic executive committee and local president of the Davis-Bryan club. Immediately upon notification Mr. Childers started to work and in a few hours had more than 30 members.

"God's Acre," a plot of ground so called because its products will be sold and the proceeds used for advancement of religion, is without a boll weevil on it. Robert Blackwell, switchman of the Louisville and Nashville railroad, at Albany, decided he would utilize leisure time to plant 10 acres in cotton here, one of the acres to be reserved for God. There is not a weevil on any of the cotton, it is stated.

Joseph M. Walsh, chairman; George J. Sullivan, vice chairman; John A. Hughes, secretary, and J. H. Fernier, treasurer, have been named to head a committee on arrangements for ceremonies in connection with the consecration of Rev. Father Richard O. Gerow, of Mobile, as the bishop of Mississippi to succeed the late Bishop Gunn.

Emmett W. Baskette, manager of the Montgomery establishment of a chain shoe company, too his own life by drinking carbolic acid following the arrival of the district manager of the company. It is stated that small discrepancies had been found in the accounts of the local store and this discovery was given as the cause of the suicide.

John F. Morton, for 25 years in the United States postal service, 23 years of which have been spent in the employ of the Tuscaloosa office, has received notice of his appointment as postmaster for Tuscaloosa, succeeding Ernest A. Townsend, whose term has expired.

The Piedmont Chamber of Commerce was reorganized with the following officers: A. S. Edwards, president; T. C. Cowan, vice president; George Kass, secretary; J. H. Morgan, treasurer; Dr. G. B. Sharpe, C. L. Morgan, R. V. Webb, C. R. West, P. W. Roberts, directors.

J. E. Searey, tax assessor of Henry county, has completed his assessment rolls for 1924 taxes and the abstract has been made up and forwarded to the state auditor. The abstract shows that the total value of taxable property in Henry county is $5,223,456 as compared with $4,779,809 for 1923.

Mrs. R. A. Mitchell, wife of Col. R. A. Mitchell, vice president of the Alabama Power company, died suddenly at her home at 517 South Twentieth street, Birmingham. Mrs. Mitchell suffered a ruptured blood vessel, and died a very short time afterward.

Cotton picking has commenced in Chambers county. The crop prospect is not so promising as it was two or three weeks ago. Reports from farmers at different parts of the county say the dry weather has practically destroyed the top crop of cotton.

The Episcopal church steeple, the highest structure in Huntsville, is being repaired. The work is being done by Brown & Isaacs, a West Huntsville firm of steeplejacks. The steeple is about 200 feet high.

Work has begun on the new school building to be erected at Verbena. This building when completed, will be modern in every particular and will represent an expenditure of about $30,000.

Preparations are being made by Prof. F. D. Dowdy for the opening of the Walker county high school on Sept. 19.

The oil well drilling operations at Spring Valley have been abandoned. Tusculum and Sheffield people were large financial backers of the well.

Because all of the three bids submitted were considered too low, the Alabama city council refused to sell the $50,000 bonds which had been voted to retire the floating indebtedness of the town.

Two indictments were returned against Hardie C. Harris, ex-prohibition agent, by the federal grand jury at Hot Springs, Ark.

The plant of the Lehigh Portland Cement company, at Tarrant City, now has a daily capacity of 5,000 barrels of cement.

ROAD BUILDING

TAX MOTOR VEHICLE FOR HIGHWAY WORK

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

An analysis of the various sources of highway funds since 1914 made by the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture shows that there is a marked tendency to collect a larger proportion of highway funds from the owners and users of motor vehicles. In 1914, out of a total highway income of $240,282,784, the collections from motor vehicles amounted to $12,882,031, or 5.1 per cent of the total. In 1921, seven years later, the motor vehicle owners and operators paid $118,942,709 in motor vehicle fees and $3,055,400 in gasoline taxes, which together equaled 19.6 per cent of the total income for highway purposes. A similar compilation of payments made by owners and operators of motor vehicles for licenses and permits in 1923 shows a total contribution on their part of $188,970,992. In the same year gasoline taxes levied by 35 states amounted to $36,813,339. The motor vehicles, accordingly, contributed a total of $225,784,331, or 19.5 per cent of the entire 1923 highway income. In the six New England states this contribution is 25.1 per cent. This increase is accounted for by the increase in the total number of vehicles registered and in the change in the average payment per vehicle, which has risen from $11.70 in 1921 to $15 per vehicle in 1923.

A very substantial part of the total highway income, 35.1 per cent, was derived from the sale of bonds, both state and local. General property taxes contributed less than half the highway income, or 44.4 per cent. This means, worked out in another way, that of every dollar collected by the states, counties, cities, townships, and other taxing districts, only 12.4 cents was used for highway purposes. The average annual expenditure per mile of road all over the United States is only .0054 cent—1 cent for each 200 miles of road. This ranges from .0015 cent in the west to .0101 cent in the Pacific states per person per mile in the Pacific states.

Estimated Expense for Road Maintenance High

When highways spend money for maintenance the sales of road machinery and equipment finds an expanded market.

Engineering News-Record points out that expenditures for highway maintenance are reaching huge proportions. Some of the older eastern states already spend more annually for upkeep of old roads than they do for building of new roads.

Throughout the country the practice is the reverse. The vast majority of states have only begun the construction of the improved roads which traffic requires. Their construction account looms large not only in actual figures but in the concern and consideration of the people. These facts have served to overshadow in public thought the growing magnitude of the public road-maintenance business. It is growing up unobserved.

Excluding interest on funded debt for road construction, about 40 per cent of the present expenditures for highways is for maintenance. This percentage is based on the latest complete records of 1922. They are worth noting. According to the bureau of public roads the highway expenditures for 1922 were $317,000,000 for construction and $245,000,000 for maintenance. About 30 per cent of all maintenance expenditures are for the 220,000 miles of state-system highways, which are less than 8 per cent of the total mileage of all highways.

The point to be given attention, however, does not lie in refinement of analysis, which the general figures available do not justify, but in the magnitude of the total maintenance expenditure. This puts highway upkeep among big business operations.

Most Significant Sign of Transportation Age

The motorbus is regarded as one of the most significant signs of the new transportation age. The motorbus business is rapidly developing into an industry itself. This expansion has been so rapid that standardization of design is being attained slowly. The early bus was simply any kind of body to accommodate as large a number of passengers as possible, mounted on a truck chassis. Manufacturers are taking into account in designing busses for city and intercity use such elements as passenger comfort, rough roads, city street car tracks, hazards under bridges, trolley wires, shade trees, as well as mechanical factors of comfort, utility and speed.

Motor Vehicles in Use

On December 31, 1923, there were 15,092,177 motor vehicles in use in the United States, according to statistics collected by the bureau of public roads. During the past year the number registered increased by 8,853,902 vehicles, a greater increase than in any preceding year. This increase which is 187,000 registrations greater than the gain in any other year means that the public demand for road improvement, already strong, will be strengthened.

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. F. B. FITZWATER, D.D., Dean of the Evening School, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

Lesson for September 7

JESUS HEALS A NOBLEMAN'S SON

LESSON TEXT—John 4:46-54. GOLDEN TEXT—"I am the way, the truth, and the life."—John 14:6. PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Heals a Sick Boy.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Heals a Nobleman's Son. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Belief in Jesus—What It Has Done and Will Do. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—What Should We Expect From Faith?

The glorious revival among the Samaritans being over, Jesus, with heart yearning for His countrymen, goes back into Galilee. When He began His work there it was not appreciated as it should have been. His own testimony is that a prophet hath no honor in his own country. Having made a reputation elsewhere He now came to take it there.

1. The Nobleman's Earnest Plea (vv. 46, 47). This father's heart was in deep anguish because of the critical illness of his son, but he had the good sense to go to Jesus in his distress. Parents should eagerly bring their children to the Great Physician. This affliction was used to bring him to Jesus. Many do not think of Jesus until overwhelmed with grief and distress. It is need that always brings men to Jesus. Even when human physicians fail the case is not hopeless, for there is no case too hard for Christ and there is no disease too difficult nor sorrow too great but relief can be found in Him. This is true of our physical ills, but it is pre-eminently true of our souls. We see here that a rich and influential man is in distress, showing that the rich and exalted are no more exempt from afflictions and anxiety than are the poor. Cares and trouble come to all alike. The young are liable to disease and death as are the old. This nobleman learned of Jesus through the testimony of another (v. 47). Had not some one told him about Jesus he would not have called upon Him. Before lost men can call upon the Lord some one must tell them about Him (Rom. 10:14, 15).

2. The Testing of the Nobleman's Faith (vv. 48, 49). In his experience we find an illustration of the development of belief. He had faith, but not an intelligent faith. Before help could be given his attitude of mind must be changed. Jesus declared, "Except ye see signs and wonders, ye will not believe," showing that the nobleman's faith was such as was based upon signs and wonders. The man needed something more than the healing of his son. He must needs know Christ as Savior as well as Healer. He did not allow himself to be put off, but insistently demanded, "Sir, come down ere my child die." This shows that he was now willing to make any experiment to save his boy. His very impotency forced him to lay hold upon the Lord. Jesus desired this man to possess a faith which was based upon His naked word, not mere signs and wonders. The way of Jesus is to first reveal Himself as a Savior and then as a Healer.

3. The Nobleman's Faith Victorious (vv. 50-54). Through his testing he passed with good advantage. He is now ready to receive the Lord's own word, "Go thy way; thy son liveth." These words created true faith and the man stepped out upon them. Because he believed the words that Jesus spoke unto him he went his way. Faith increases in brightness the longer it is exercised. The foundation upon which he reposed his faith was the words of Jesus. On his return his faith met with confirmation. His servant met him and told him that his son was alive. Upon inquiry he found that the recovery of his son was from the very hour in which Jesus spoke the words. This was such an unmistakable evidence of the deity of Jesus that not only the nobleman, but his household, was won for Christ. This affords us an example of the beauty of household religion. May we all learn that the words of Jesus are reliable. That which He promises is just as sure as though it had already come to pass. The salvation of the one who believes in Jesus is just as sure as though he had been in heaven and seen his name in the Book of Life. Anxiety for the son brought salvation to the whole house.

Evangelism

"Evangelism is not merely a work of love. It is the sheer law of self-preservation. The heathenism which is creeping along the fences of society is scattering its seeds on both sides. If Christians do not make the world better, the world will surely make the church worse."—Herald of Holiness.

Innocent Revenge

He that has learned with meekness and quietness to forgive injuries and pass them by, has found the best and surest way of baffling and defeating them; nay, it is a kind of innocent revenge.—Matthew Henry.

CROWDS THROG TO ALTAR OF "HEALER"

Remarkable Cures Credited to New York Minister.

Hundreds of persons afflicted with physical and mental ailments, sought to storm the chancel of historic St. Paul's chapel, Broadway and Vesey streets, where George Washington once worshipped, when the Rev. Dr. R. B. H. Bell of St. Thomas' Episcopal church of Denver, announced that he would cure them of their ills "through the power of God's love."

So great did the press become that the Rev. Joseph P. McConas, vicar of the chapel, became alarmed and, in response to a telephone message to police headquarters, Captain Masterson and the reserves were sent from the Beach street station. Captain Masterson remained during the afternoon and Sergeant Dietrich and five patrolmen were stationed in front of the chancel to prevent the concerted rush that several times seemed imminent.

The crowd was highly emotional. Women became hysterical. Some of those who said that Doctor Bell had restored their sight, or their hearing, or had brought life back into long paralyzed limbs, wept as they struggled through the throng to gain the outer air. Others collapsed in pews.

One woman, Mrs. Amanda Clarkson, eighty-three years old, a widow, who said that she had injured her left foot several years ago and could not walk upon it, threw away her crutch, which was later placed before the altar, says the New York Times. "Thank God! Thank God!" she cried, as she made her way out to Broadway. She was the last to pass that way. The crowd became so dense that the Broadway doors were ordered closed and thereafter every one who came for treatment was required to enter through what was originally the front of the chapel, on the west.

Doctor Bell had intended to treat all comers for an hour. He began his ministrations shortly after 1 o'clock and three hours and a half later hundreds were still waiting, although the dense throng which had filled the church earlier in the afternoon had thinned somewhat. At 4:30 o'clock he stopped, exhausted and announced that he would resume an hour later.

Doctor Bell estimated that he had treated 1,500 persons during the afternoon and that "80 per cent had been cured or greatly benefited."

"It is the greatest day I have ever had in all the years I have been doing this work with God's power and love," said he. "The people of New York have great faith. I have never seen anything like it anywhere."

Catholics and Protestants, Jews and gentiles and some who professed no religion at all, flocked to the altar upon them, usually upon the afflicted part, and made the sign of the cross upon their foreheads. His voice was vibrant with sympathy and with fervor. His words differed somewhat in individual cases, but usually they were, "Lord, Jesus Christ, make Thou this body whole!"

"The cures are exactly the same as those made by the apostles," he said afterward. "They result from God's love and from faith, but love is the greatest thing."

Adventure

It was night. Four men opposed her. Three of them were absolutely heartless. One carried a club. "Oh, you brutes!" she exclaimed. "You wretched, despicable brutes! Not even care for me leaving me. But I might have expected such treatment from you, for you are men and all men are alike. Give them the slightest chance or excuse to get the best of a woman and each and every one of them will grasp at that chance with alacrity and glee. Ah, yes," she continued, "Ah, yes, 'tis the woman who pays and pays and pays." As she spoke of paying I saw her flush. Just a poor sickly sawdust flush that was not even a straight. ## CHAPTER XVI

The Chiyo Maru passed slowly through the Gate, the waters broken and troubled by an outflowing, talus-descended tide. A land breeze met him: harbingers of manzanita and madroño, of rough-bark pine and laurel, of windburned hills with hidden "Y"s of ravine cushioned with maiden-hair and five-fingered fern, woodwardia and goldback; hills mountainous in purple-brown against a peacock-blue sky.

White ferryboats churned their way across the steamer's path. Like a hand with many fingers, the city, with its piers swam past. Tugs met them; hawsers were dragged aboard, and the Chiyo was slowly warped against the dock's end; swung broadside.

A crowd massed on the dock to welcome the Chiyo, and Wells felt homesickness stirring. Before, he had always considered Japan as home; tiny towns in the late evening; handfasted lovers, alike the world over; a boy teasing a girl; a maid provoking more teasing; old Shinto priests, fingers paused in rattling rosaries, smiling upon heaps of ranged urchins tumbling in warm dust; the titillation of little bells and cracked candelas of the temple bell—all this had been a part of his life from the beginning. Now it seemed apart, foreign, already half-effaced and forgotten. Strange that the loveliness of his real homeland had never impressed itself before. It must be that in the past he had been impregnated with the Orient; these hills about the bay were as velvet-scented, as bird-sung and wind-kissed as any in the East—if he had but seen it.

Almost every one on board seemed to have at least one handkerchief waving friend, and most had a dozen or more, but all the smilingly eager faces looking up were strange to his eyes. He saw Alberta and his Uncle Jim, to be sure, but they, also, were strange and strangers; there was no one for Robert Wells, and he felt very much alone.

He saw the police lines, that well-comes might not press too closely to the edge of the dock; saw that a group of men were inside of the lines, men shorter and stockier than the rest. This must be the delegation come to do honor to Aochi-San's son, and they would expect every detail of ultra-courtesy from him—and he would give it. He would be rushed away in their midst, would be banqueted, there would be speeches, and all of the time he would be keen to consummate the purpose of his long voyage. He must remain a masquerade—a part of never-ending conversations and ceremonies long drawn out.

As the boat swung close to the pier, the tugs cast off their lines. Wells tapped at Ellen's door.

"It is the hour for departure," he said. "You will be glad to leave this prison." Ellen noticed that his "It" were even more like the letter "r" in sound than before. So he was practicing, that his part be perfect!

"I fear that which is coming," Ellen said as they walked to the side of the ship. "And I am very excited." "You may touch my sleeve with your fingers, that my courage make you brave," Wells said heroically.

As the boat eased against the pier, Wells' hand touched Ellen's; he was not aware that she was retaining it, nor that a reassuring pressure was giving him that very courage which he had so boldly offered.

He saw Williams as the latter rushed down the gangplank, saw Alberta reach for him, and the long emerald.

"Yoh," he whispered to Ellen. "These people touch their mouths to gether. Japanese do not kiss. It is a foolish custom."

Ellen felt his hand tighten upon her own, but she said nothing. She hoped that he did not see her smile.

As he and Ellen, in that order, descended from the boat, every one who had not been staring at the handsome, arrogant man began to stare. Wells was not displeased. It was the entrance that he desired. He knew that Sanderson must be watching him; the welcome by the Japanese delegation would show clearly that Kayama-San was a Japanese noble, and that what Kayama-San said, being disinterested, would be accepted as approximate truth. Attention was focused upon him, and a path opened before him. Instead of feeling ashamed, as he had feared he would, his kimono with thread-of-gold insignia gave him assurance. He did not glance back at Ellen, but strode ahead, careful to make his steps short.

The leader of the delegation pressed to Kayama-San, Lord of the Thunder Gate, made triple prostration and said in greeting:

"We are honored by your presence." Wells bowed deeply, his kimono giving him a more graceful appearance as he bent forward. "I am utterly unworthy of this attention," he answered, also in Japanese; deprecatingly, which his arrogant air failed.

The others all bobbed their heads in unison, a perfect chorus. They were a curious gathering, from wealthy merchant of broad feature to a professor of language with face as angular and clearly cut as Wells' own. Wells saw instantly, from the glances at his kimono, that he was certain to be told, very apologetically, that it would be well to acquire an Occidental wardrobe—which he had no desire to do.

"And the revered and honored Aochi-San, your father, is dead?" the leader asked.

"He is doubtless in the Highest Heaven, by mercy of Kaminari and Kwannon of the Horse's Head," Wells agreed.

"It is very sad for you. The gods must be delighted by the many virtues of Aochi-San, now in their midst."

Wells bowed in assent.

"You will follow in your father's footsteps?" inquiringly.

"I hope to be found worthy." Where was the interrogation leading him? It was not in accordance with strict bushido.

"No assurance is needed as to that. I mean . . . you are a conservative? One of the few? The leaders?"

Very softly: "You wish Old Japan?"

Wells wished the questioning were well over. "Yea."

"That is well. It delights us all. But . . . you must be careful, Kayama."

"How? Why is care necessary?"

"I dislike speaking of it so soon, Kayama-San. But—you must be prepared. . ."

Wells wished the questioning were well over. "Yea."

"That is well. It delights us all. But . . . you must be careful, Kayama."

"I dislike speaking of it so soon, Kayama-San. But—you must be prepared. . ."

Williams shuddered. "It is on the boat that I came over on?"

Wells bowed for the third time in assent, taking keen enjoyment from the other's distress. A hot dislike struck him immediately upon the close sight of Williams. He wondered how he had ever trusted or liked the man. It was as an unpleasant taste in his mouth when Alberta stepped to Williams' side; her manner was eloquent of so much love—love that could not be a new thing. Williams turned toward her, about to present Wells; smiled at her: the picture that they made was a vivid one to the man they had wronged, whose angry eyes, in spite of all the restraint under which he labored, fell upon Albert's face.

"She gave him a dazzling smile. He had seen that smile before."

"And this is the Japanese lord," Alberta announced gaily, then, quickly, to Williams: "He understands English, doesn't he, Ray?"

"Why—yes—he spoke English to me."

Wells did not see his uncle approach, and the voice at his elbow startled him.

"It is good of you to take so much trouble for me," Sanderson said. "I only trust it is because this voyage fitted into your own plans."

Wells gathered himself in hand, and turned toward his uncle. Nothing of recognition, no amazement at a resemblance, was on the other's face. Why should there be? Wells realized. He had had months to perfect his part, the disfiguring bandage and foreign dress, his acquired habit of narrowing his eyes and holding his lips tightly together, his darkened skin and thinned face, to which he would add, in a moment, his singsong, stilted English—

Wells was shocked at Sanderson's appearance. It told him plainly that the old man had been and still was suffering; there were new wrinkles, the whole face and figure were expressive of laxity, sadness. Wells felt a desire to get matters over with. Settled. Quickly. Instead there must be occasional glimpses and vacant speech.

"Anger surged up in him. He had a perverse desire to hurt some one, and yet did not dare vent it upon Alberta or Williams, who were the cause."

"I am on my wedding journey," he answered Sanderson. He indicated Ellen. "This is my wife. My first wife."

Alberta giggled. "How deliciously naïve!" she whispered to Williams.

Sanderson approached the point at once.

"You know how—my nephew died, Ray? (Alberta whispered huskily to Ray that Uncle Sandy was like that now; always thinking of Bob, and never minding where he spoke of him—imagine, right on the wharf, and in interrupting a Japanese reception!)

Wells was not ready to answer the question at all, so: "I am very tired. We can speak of this later."

Sanderson nodded. "I had hoped, sir, that you would come with me—to my home. I had prepared rooms for you. A suite as comfortable as any hotel could furnish. If you and your wife could—I would like—I am anxious to hear—was about your height, sir, but a bit broader in the shoulders, perhaps—Of course, I did not understand, a glance at the waiting Japanese who chafed at the delay, "that you would have so many friends who have claims upon you. But—" he left the sentence unfinished.

The leader of the delegation smiled, nodding. "There will be a banquet," he admitted, "with the honorable Kayama-San as our guest."

For a moment Wells did not see his way; if he went with the Japanese as Kayama-San rightly should do, it would prolong Sanderson's suspense and pain, to say nothing of his own impatience; if he went with the white man, the Japanese would think it queer—more than queer.

And in a flash it came to him that he need not care longer what they thought!

"I have business so gravely important that the ghosts of my ancestors will come to hear," he confided to the leader of the delegation, dropping his voice and changing the language. "It concerns the honor of my house. Tomorrow, perhaps? I do not cause you too great disappointment? You will excuse me? Good!"

Tomorrow! Let them search for Kayama-San tomorrow, if all went well.

"I will go with you," Wells told Sanderson. "I and my wife."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Arizona's Diamond Hoax

One of the greatest mining bores ever perpetrated was the alleged discovery in 1872 of a diamond field in the northwestern part of the territory of Arizona.

Two men of the names of Arnold and Slack were supposed to be the discoverers, and magnificent-looking rough diamonds and rough rubies which it is said they had picked up in the Arizona field were exhibited in San Francisco. A company with a capital of $100,000 was organized in San Francisco, and the list of stockholders included a number of large mining investors.

The fraud was exposed by Clarence King, United States geologist, who showed that the stones exhibited were from Africa and Brazil, and upon visiting the Arizona field, saw at once that it was not a diamond-bearing country.—Detroit News.

Summer Fattened Steers on Grass

Interesting Experiments Being Made With Cattle in Blue Grass Region.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Cattle feeders in all parts of the country may derive some benefit from the results of experimental work carried on by the United States Department of Agriculture in co-operation with the West Virginia agricultural experiment station, especially those who winter steers with the intention of financing them on pasture the following summer. Because the Appalachian region of which the state of West Virginia is the center, is a good bluegrass country admirably adapted to growing stockers and feeders and to fattening them on pasture, most of the beef produced in this section is produced on grass alone. It has been a common practice in this area to winter steers on dry feed, such as hay, corn stover and wheat straw, and on corn silage to a less extent, in such a way that they are marketed at a loss weight. They are then pastured the following summer and sold as stockers, feeders or finished steers.

Cause for Experiments.

Because there are some who have maintained that it is profitable to allow this loss, which with older steers usually varies from 25 to 100 pounds, and others that believe that cattle wintered on silage, or on a ration of which silage is a part, will not do well on grass the following summer, these feeding experiments have been undertaken. Three years' results are now available and have been published in a new bulletin just issued by the United States Department of Agriculture. It is called Department Bulletin 1251, and discusses the effect of winter rations on pasture gains of two-year-old steers, also the cost of rations for wintering two-year-old steers.

From these results it has been concluded that, generally speaking, the steers which made larger winter gains also made larger total gains for the year when fattened on grass the following summer. The steers which made only slight gains or which were allowed to lose weight during the winter made greater summer gains on pasture than the steers which made the larger winter gains, but were not able to overtake them in the final weight.

Winter Gain Is Best.

Consequently differences in weight of steers at the end of the winter, due to rations fed, are gradually minimized during the summer fattening on grass, but not wholly overcome. Since this is true, it is important that cattle which are to be marketed early should gain considerably more weight during the winter than if they are to be marketed late.

A copy of this bulletin may be secured free, as long as the supply lasts, by writing to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Pasture Is Essential as Feed Yard for Hog Herd

No successful feeder of hogs will attempt to get along without some kind of a pasture for them. Anything, even mixtures of grain, will help some, but alfalfa, clovers or rye, perhaps make the best, in the order named. Alfalfa and clover furnish protein and at the same time some of the minerals needed for thrifty growth, says the Prairie Farmer. Fall rye makes an excellent sure pasture, and down in Christian county they are using a mixture of soy beans, oats, clover and rape with considerable success. The value of this mixture lies in the fact that the different ingredients come on at different periods, so that within six or seven weeks from seeding one may have a succession of good feed all the balance of the season. Anything which will make green feed will be relished. For the hog the pasture lot is every bit as essential as the feed yard.

Increase Production by Freshening Cow in Fall

Other things being equal, the richer the milk, the richer the cream will be in separating. At this time of year the test of herd milk is very apt to drop suddenly, due to the introduction of fresh cows into the herd and the sudden change from dry feed to pasture.

In addition to the usual slump in the test of the herd milk there is a tremendous increase in production with a corresponding slump in price of butterfat, and the consequent discouragement of the producer. There is a remedy available to the producer, for the low price per pound, unless he uses this experience to his advantage by having his cows freshen in the fall and so have his increase in production come on a rising instead of a falling market.

Most Profitable Ducks

Ducks are most profitable if marketed between ten and twelve weeks of age. By this time they are nearly, if not quite full grown, providing they have done well from the beginning. At this age they usually go into a moult and from then on will make little or no growth for a number of weeks and there can be no profit in keeping them beyond this time. From the sixth week on a rather heavy ration of corn will finish the ducklings out in good shape.

No Internal Remedy for Poultry Pests

Medicine Will Not Control External Parasites.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Manufacturing and selling preparations for controlling lice, mites, ticks (blue bugs) and other external parasites of poultry by serving to the fowls in their feed or drinking water is a popular pastime of a number of concerns and one which the United States Department of Agriculture says should not be tolerated. A number of the mixtures advertised for use in controlling external pests by administering in the feed have been tested by the insecticide and fungicide board of the department and all have been found to be ineffective. Among the products which were offered as powders to be mixed with the feed are several containing mixtures of sulphur, charcoal, magnesium sulphate, ferrous sulphate, nux vomica, capister, sodium carbonate, naphthalene, lime, salt and sand. Some of the mixtures were also sulphur solutions to be added to the drinking water; some calcium sulphide tablets of various percentages and having quantities of other chemicals as well. All were tested and found to be ineffective for the purpose advertised.

In view of these numerous tests the board has served notice on the manufacturers who may be selling or contemplating selling the above-mentioned products to be used in this manner for controlling external pests of poultry that they are guilty of violating the provisions of the insecticide act of 1910, and that the products are misbranded. The board is of the opinion that these tests are sufficient to strongly indicate that such a method is ineffective and further that it is extremely doubtful if any substance will be found which will be effective when used in the feed or drinking water. Tests have not been made of all of the mixtures advertised against all of the pests named, but, taking into consideration the tests which have been made and the anatomy and physiology of chickens, it is believed that it is unlikely that any of the substances proposed, or any combination of them, when fed to chickens, will control any of the external parasites infesting them. These preparations are sold for the most part directly to consumers by parcel post.

"Caveat emptor"—let the buyer beware.

Tuberculosis Found in Different Dairy States

Systematic tuberculosis testing of cattle conducted by various states and the United States Department of Agriculture co-operatively, show that nearly nine-tenths of premises contain no tuberculous cattle. The per cent of infection, however, varies greatly, the records show. In ten states infection exceeds 25 per cent, or one in four. In eleven states the average infection is less than five, or one herd in twenty. The other states have intermediate proportions of infection.

Persons who have never had their cattle tested for tuberculosis and who desire to know the extent of infection in their locality, may obtain this information by application to the bureau of animal industry, United States Department of Agriculture. While the information given is believed to be of interest to cattle owners, the only certain method of knowing the health condition of a herd with respect to tuberculosis is the application for a tuberculin test by a competent veterinarian.

FARM FACTS

Save toll and time by using your head.

The toad is one of the best friends the farmer can have.

Woods look well and furnish a cash return from poor land.

Good feed to good cows will make both the land and its owner richer.

A 1-1/2-3 mixture and water clean enough to drink make the most durable concrete.

Uncle Ab says, "It's a wise hen that knows her own eggs, but a tripe-nest tells the poultryman every time."

Remember that mosquitoes have to hatch in water before they can sting you. Empty out all the old tin cans and cover stagnant ponds with oil.

Two very important factors—time of cutting and method of handling or curing—determine the value of alfalfa hay. Watch them.

Late blight is the most severe of all potato diseases, and the vines should be sprayed at least every two weeks as long as new foliage is being put out.

Everyone knows that pure bred anklets pay; why not pure bred seeds? The state college of agriculture knows and advises registered seed; use better wheat this fall.

Any common tin can filled about half full of axle grease in which is placed an old worn-out paint brush will be found very handy on the farm for greasing plow shares and cultivator shovels.

Liner Without Funnels

The number of funnels on an ocean liner has been a popular gauge of the grandeur of the vessel, but the Oorang, recently launched on the Clyde, has no funnels. The vessel is fairly called the first motor-driven passenger liner. She has a displacement of 23,000 tons and a speed of 18 knots. Four sets of six-cylinder Diesel engines deliver 13,000 horsepower, which is applied to four screws. The Oorang will ply between Vancouver and Australia, a route long enough to make economizing fuel and fuel space of considerable importance.—Youth's Companion.

SHOWERS, SLICK ROADS AND AUTO WRECKS

Last Friday night and Saturday and Sunday afternoon quite a number of local showers and heavy rains passed around near the city.

One effect of them was noticeable Sunday by the large number of trips some of the Garage wreckers were making and the more or less crippled cars they were bringing in.

Mr. Hardy Hurtt, with the wrecker of the Lawrence Garage, seemed to make a full day and then some. He brought in wrecked cars in all stages of devastation, one car especially saw him haul in looked like it was more ready for the auto cemetery than for the hospital.

So far as we have heard, there were no fatalities resulting from any of these wrecks, but several people were more or less bunged up.

It had been so long since we had any rain that the autoists must have forgotten how slick some roads get when they are wet.

Carelessness and wet roads don't see well and this good luck of Sunday won't always last. Somebody will get killed.

Mr. R. E. Luckie, for several years the most efficient second truck operator at the depot here, moved last Saturday, with his family to Montgomery.

We understand that he will probably not locate there permanently, but may decide to go on to Florida.

No matter where he goes we wish him all kinds of success, for he is a most kind and affable gentleman and one that we learned to think a great deal of during our acquaintance.

MEETING AT BILLINGSLEY

There is a revival meeting in progress this week at the Billingsley Baptist church and it is reported that a most interesting service has developed over there. Much interest is being manifested and great good will result.

Our pastor, Dr. Ezell, is over with those good people this week, rendering all the assistance possible and doing the preaching. He is a wonderfully earnest and able preacher and the hardest worker we ever saw.

It is a very low and ignorant mentality that prompts any person to violate the law for fun.

TO CUT EXPENSES

We are reducing the size of the News two pages this week to cut expenses. We hate to do this but the financial end of the matter forces us to do so.

But get this fact before you very clearly. We are not cutting down a single line on the local news, nor editorial matter. The paper will mean just as much to you as a home paper as ever. We are going to do our best to give you all of the local news and, as heretofore, we are going to contend for what we believe to be right and condemn what we believe to be wrong. When we fail to stand squarely for a direct government by the people it will be an error of the head and not of the heart.

THE MIGHTY FALLEN

It is really wonderful, and at the same time pitiful, to see the extent to which a potentially great man can allow his spite to carry him.

Oscar Underwood, in a speech delivered at Rockland, Maine, last week, pictured Alabama as being ruled and terrorized by the Ku Klux Klan. He did people were afraid to go to their doors at night, that women were taken out and beaten and that free speech was hampered on account of the Klan.

Is it not shameful that one of the senators from our state will go into the heart of the North and make such unfounded and absolutely ridiculous charges as that?

No such conditions exist anywhere in the state and the Klan has not beaten any woman, nor any one else, so far as the legal records go.

It is sublimely pitiful, that because of his allegiance to certain New York elements in his presidential race he alienated himself from the vote of the Solid South, that he permits his spite to carry him to such lengths in defaming the name of the State that was always proud to honor him as long as he associated with good political company.

Alabama made herself ridiculous and the laughing stock of the nation by staying by him in the convention long after he had a chance, and this pitiful and untrue defamation of her is her fault.

He has been a long time in the long, long years and our disappointment and humiliation at finally finding how really small he is can not be expressed in words.

The only manly thing he could do after making that speech is to send the Governor his resignation as senator.

MAYOR GRAGO WITES

TO THE CITIZENS OF CLANTON, ALA.

Section 1953 of the Code of Alabama 1923, requires that the Mayor shall at least once a year appoint an expert accountant who shall make an examination in detail of all books and papers of the city officials to cover the period since the preceding examination, and make a full report thereof in writing after oath, to be submitted to the council at its first meeting after the completion of such report.

I have complied with the above mentioned section each year since you elected me Mayor and the reports of the auditor have been on file since they were made, however, for the benefit of some who are now agitating that an audit be made, I did not have any books to have audited prior to the date when Mr. Heard, was clerk, and further no audit was found to have been made of the books since the year 1914, until I ordered the books audited in 1920. I have discussed the question of having published annually a detailed statement of the financial affairs of the Town, with the Town Council, and with interested citizens but we have all been unable to find any law, whereby we could legally pay some two or three hundred dollars annually, of the peoples money for this report, when we are donating each year toward the schools of the town, $2240.00, and when there is one record audit by a public certified accountant showing the town's financial condition, which is open to inspection to all citizens of the town, we feel that we have complied with the law and the wishes of the people of the town.

When we went into office four years ago we had practically no funds in the treasury and several thousand of past due debts to pay, among which was one for more than twenty three hundred dollars, which had been due since the first well drilled; also $500.00 on the first fire hose account, together with a large number of smaller items, all of which have been paid by us.

We had before us a $7,000.00 bonded indebtedness for the grammar school, on which we have paid the interest and $1,000.00 principle each year, while contributing from $500.00 to $1,000.00 annually to the High School, as well as supplying the current needs of the grammar school.

There were then 147 water meters. There are now 263 water meters. I am informed that only about 30 meters were running at that time and now they are all kept running regularly. We had never had a foot of new water main installed since the original; however, during our administration we have installed two long lines of main and several fire plugs at a cost of above $4,100.00. One of these lines extends to the grammar school, which prior to this time had had no fire protection, and a very poor water supply.

We had then almost no street work and no tools to work with. Our administration has bought and paid for two trucks, two tractors, a grader, a concrete mixer, and many other implements for street work amounting to up in the thousands of dollars and have done a great deal of street work, opened up several new streets, built a number of culverts and some miles of side-

BAPTIST CHURCH NOTICE

With the night service last Sunday the hour for meeting at that service was changed from 8 o'clock to 7:30 p. m.

The long days of summer have passed and night falls an hour earlier now than it did, so the change was made back to 7:30 which is the regular hour during the winter.

This goes in to effect next Sunday, and the pastor requests every one to take due notice and be on hand by 7:30 sharp.

A SUNDAY ARRIVAL

An honored and important guest arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Prince last Sunday.

He is a young gentleman who weighed, upon arrival 10 1-2 pounds. The mother and child are both doing nicely.

The happy father has rather a sedate and dignified appearance now, but we older people know how to make allowance for that.

The Chilton County News sends its hearty congratulations.

As mentioned before, there was very little in the treasury when we came in, yet we have paid out as described above. We have given more to school than any former administration and have met all our interest coupons on water works bonds etc., and have placed some to our credit to be paid out on the general bonded indebtedness incurred when the water works was installed.

On September 4th. of this year there was actual cash on hand in the bank $2376.90. Accounts receivable $7,120.57, making a total of $9,497.47, which appears to me to be an extremely creditable showing at this time.

As for the platform announced by the "Publicity Committee," Mr. H. Simpson, Chairman; and written by Omar L. Reynolds, chairman "Municipal Election Committee," and backed up by a "Mass Meeting," at which Hon. Percy M. Pitts, was Chairman, and Mr. J. Z. Mims, Secretary; all I have to say is that it reminds of Goldbergs saying. It is an empty bubble of promises and are they going to fill it. Just look at what has been done in the past, and who it was done in the past, and who it is now. Who has been, and is now, for the upbuilding of schools, churches, and the general improvement. Who has contributed liberally to the schools in the past? And who has supplemented the teachers salary each year what called on?

In conclusion I wish to say to the public that the most kindly feeling has existed between my opponent and myself every since I was a boy of twelve or fourteen. I still feel kindly toward him and will frankly say to you that if he is your choice I will hold no ill will toward you for voting for him and will do everything I can to help make his administration a success.

Yours respectfully

V. J. GRAGO.

Mayor Town of Clanton

TOWN COUNCIL MAKE A STATEMENT

TO THE CITIZENS OF THE TOWN OF CLANTON, ALABAMA.

The present Mayor and Council deem it advisable to make you the citizens of Clanton, Alabama, a statement regarding the present Town election, as well as to prior and present conditions of the town's affairs in general.

Upon taking office four years ago, the town was heavily indebted and no money in the treasury, except an amount sufficient to take care of the then present pay roll, of the officers. There was no machinery or tools to maintain and keep the streets in repair. The water works had become so low that our fire insurance rates were based and rated as hazardous; the fire hose was rotten and leaky; the water was not sufficient to supply the demands of the domestic use; the streets and bridges were in a state of condition that made them almost impassable. The cemetery was allowed to grow up in weeds and unbrush, and was unsightly.

The council went to work to pay off all outstanding indebtedness; a debt of over twenty three hundred dollars created in 1913 or 1914 for drilling the well was liquidated, as well as one for $500.00 for fire hose which was bought when the water works were first installed. A large number of smaller items of indebtedness were paid. The interest of $1250.00 per year on the water works bonds has been paid each year, as well as $1000.00 bonds on the grammar school each year with interest on the other outstanding school bonds. The council has contributed each year toward the High School and grammar schools, in fact, the town sends each year around $2500.00 for school purposes.

The streets have been worked and every effort possible has been made to make the streets in first class shape. However, it has been impossible, in the time given us, and the small amount of funds available for street work, to bring the streets to repair as we would like to have them. We have purchased tractors and road machinery and paid for same, as well as other road machinery. Culverts have been installed, and the bridges kept in repair and a large amount of culverts have been installed at street and avenue crossings, thereby eliminating gulleys and ditches being across the same. In co-operation with the Civic Club (of the town) and other citizens, the cemetery has been cleaned and kept in fine condition.

We have purchased fire hose and maintained our water system in such way and manner that the fire insurance rates have been greatly reduced, thereby saving the public several thousand of dollars. The water mains have been extended on the east and west sides, the one on the west extending to the grammar school, which had no fire protection, and was without a satisfactory water supply for the needs of the school. The cost of this extension being around $4,000.00, and which was paid for as the work progressed.

The council has not raised the taxes, nor license and have run on a cash basis. We have collected all taxes and license except some few escapes and some two or three whom we have ordered filed in the Chancery Court for collection. The sidewalk construction has been paid for as the work progressed except for two cars of cement, however, there are assessments due the town sufficient to take care of all indebtedness, and then leave a balance in the general funds of between five and six thousand dollars, which we have strived to accumulate for the purpose of having a fund to meet the water works bonds when same become due and payable.

Each year of our administration the Mayor of the Town has appointed a certified public accountant to audit and examine the books, papers, records and affairs of the town and has delivered this report to the council. These reports are on file in the clerks office, and have been and are now open for the inspection of the citizens of the town.

We were unable to find any books covering the period from 1914 to the date when Mr. Heard, was appointed clerk, to have audited, neither did we find any audit of the town's affairs since 1914, until 1920, when we assumed office. Perhaps our Municipal campaign committee or some of the gentlemen who were on the council during this time and who are now advocating the auditing the books might aid us in locating the books and audits made during that time if there were any, and if not tell us why there were not made.

We have not had published an itemized statement of the receipts and disbursements of the town, for the reason we have not been able to find any law whereby the town can spend two or three hundred dollars each year for this item and further we have complied with the law and made it possible for each citizen to have before him a itemized statement, and further we have felt that this item of money would be more judiciously spent by applying same toward the schools and their upkeep.

We have provided a garbage truck and garbage receptacles in the business district of the town and erected street signs, and numbers to have a city delivery mail. During our term of office we procured the rebuilding of the bridge over the railroad on fourth avenue and built a large fill at each approach to same, which of course entailed some expense also.

The town put down the side walks in front of the cemetery, High School and Grammar school at the city expense.

Your Mayor and council feel that in offering themselves to you, for re-election that the progress is self evident of where your money has been spent and as to what you may expect in the future of them.

STATE CAMPAIGN MANAGER

Probate Judge I. H. Reynolds, of our town, has been appointed State Campaign Manager for the Republican party in Alabama this year, and has established his state headquarters at the Molton Hotel in Birmingham.

The Judge has been a hard fighter for the republican party in Alabama for many years and is widely known all over the state by the people of that faith.

As we see it he was justly entitled to this honor by his party and we look for him to put on an aggressive fight for Mr. Coolidge while, of course he could not expect to win out.

SELFISHNESS

Think of yourself from first to last. Guard yourself from the wintry blast. Feed your stomach and quench your thirst. Feather your nest and feather it first. Fly to your pleasures and dance them through—there is nobody else in this world but you.

Think of yourself and right or wrong give no thought to the passing throng. What if your conduct should bring to shame those who honor and share their name. What if they're hurt by the things you do? Why should their suffering trouble you?

Live for yourself and don't complain when you have come to the worlds disdain. Don't return when the night comes on and wonder where all your friends have gone.

Carry no burden except your own, but always be ready to weep alone.

But if you wish for happy years and the love of friends who see your tears and the worlds respect and honored name and all the joys which the gentle claim you must think of others in all you do—you must think of them first and last of you.

AFTER BABY WAS BORN

Back Weak and Painful. Mrs. Miller Benefited by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Rotan, Texas.—"I am writing to let you know how I have been benefited by taking your medicine. After my second baby was born my back was weak and hurt me continually, so I thought I'd try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as I had read so much about where it had helped so many women. I had been bothered with my back for over a year, and it would hurt me until I could not do my work, which is keeping house for three and cooking and washing dishes. I tell all my friends if they have any kind of female troubles to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. You may use this testimonial if it will help any one."—Mrs. C. E. Miller, R. F. D. No. 1, Box 76, Rotan, Texas.

In a recent country-wide canvass of purchasers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound over 121,000 replies were received, and 98 out of every 100 reported they were benefited by its use. For sale by druggists everywhere.

Account Was There, But Not Much Else

President Ernest Frothingham, of the Commercial Trust company, sat at a bankers' banquet in Denver: "We bankers are often called heartless. You remember the story of the dead shot who, having fallen to the ground, said to the man who was passing by: 'I am a banker.' The man, not knowing it was a banker, said: 'I am a banker.'"

"Hearts, as a matter of fact, are not so kind and indulgent. A young chairman went to a tailor to have a suit made and ordered a dozen suits of clothes on credit. The tailor asked for a reference.

"Oh," said the young chairman, "go over to the Third National bank people. They know all about me, and I can't account there."

"The tailor went over to the bank and said to the cashier: 'I understand that young Mr. Frothingham keeps his account here.'"

"He does," said the cashier, "but goodness knows where he keeps his money."—Detroit Free Press.

WITHIN HOLLERIN' DISTANCE

The Ozark mountain folks of Missouri have their own definitions of success. You must if you would get "within hollerin' distance," they hold, have a backbone that will teach your wishbone its place. Alice Crutche Moyer-Wing, Ozarkian, and proud of it, ascribes all her victories to having a real Ozark backbone.

Her ultimate goal? It's to sit on the President's cabinet. "All things are possible and every new day brings its opportunities," says Mrs. Wing. "Many persons from my district are urging me to run for congress in 1924. Maybe I'll do it." How come—the Southerners say—these ultra-conservative Missourians to be suggesting congress to a woman?

It's a long story, at least three generations long. Grandfather gave up prospecting, and finally home for a concentration camp, in order to be an abolitionist in slave territory. Father and mother pioneered in an Ozark homestead. Mr. Crutche had to teach small Alice, for the county seat that is even now in a county without a railroad, offered little education save in primitive living.

A brief stretch of happy married life, and the young mother was widowed. Stenography gave her an opportunity to develop into an expert business correspondent, by "digging-in," learning all details of the business. "It would have been the most veritable drudgery—that 15 years of side-tracking from the things I most wished to do," she acknowledges. "I had to be content with my children that I was doing it. When the little ones were asleep and I had sewed on all the buttons and darned all the little stockings, I had an article or a story always at hand to work on, for which once in a while I received actual money."

"When my boy and girl grew up, I came to a point where I could choose. I became suffrage editor for newspapers and magazines—for pay. Then illness in my family drove me back to the hills. My stories of this campaign grew into a six years' series of Ozark character stories. Prior to the 1920 election, I made more than 300 political speeches, again in my hill country. I was one of the first two women in Missouri elected delegate-at-large to a national convention, and one of the first few in the United States.

"Governor Hyde appointed me head of the state industrial inspection department in 1921. It was the first instance in the United States in which a woman was made a member of a governor's cabinet. And I am making good, if I do say it, who shouldn't. My sympathies for people who work for a living came to me as first-hand experience."

ONE LAWYER'S WORK

Good lawyers are such accurate-minded folk that I shall feel safe if I share Florence Monahan's letter with you word for word. Otherwise some phrase would be sure to get to a wrong-twisted meaning. I know.

STATE REFORMATORY FOR WOMEN

Florence Monahan, Superintendent, Shakopee, Minn.

Dear Mrs. Miller: Born in Chicago, I have always lived in a city until I took charge of this institution four years ago. However, I may say that I like living in the small town very much better than in the city.

I began my work as a schoolteacher, as so many women do. While teaching school I studied law and, after receiving my degree, I went into the Minnesota children's bureau to handle illegitimate cases. This bureau carries out the model children's laws of Minnesota. The bureau is under our state board of control, and when the reformatory for women was opened the board of control thought that, through my experience with all sorts of girls, I could manage this institution.

We have an average population of about sixty women, all over eighteen years of age. Our average age is about thirty years. Women are sentenced here for felonies and gross misdemeanors. We have all the women convicted of any crime which carries with it a sentence of more than a year, including life prisoners. I have eight women on my staff and five men.

You will see that it is rather difficult for me to answer your questions in regard to the average girl starting in to work. It seems to me that whether she starts in a big city or a small town does not matter so much as her own ability in whatever work she tries to do.

I am intensely interested in the League of Women Voters and have been on the state board since it was organized, and previous to that time I was on the state board of the old suffrage organization.

Very truly yours, FLORENCE MONAHAN, Superintendent.

Lesson for September 14

JESUS DRIVEN FROM NAZARETH

LESSON TEXT—Luke 4:16-30. GOLDEN TEXT—"He hath anointed me to preach the gospel."—Luke 4:18. PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Visits His Home Town. JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Faces a Mob. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Jesus Explains His Message. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Mission of Christianity.

1. Jesus in the Synagogue (v. 16). On the Sabbath day He went into the synagogue according to His custom. He no doubt went that day with a new and definite purpose, but it is refreshing to know that it was according to His habit.

2. The Book Reading the Scriptures (vv. 17-19).

1. The Book Handed to Him (v. 17). It was not only His custom to attend the place of worship but to take a part in it. This privilege was not confined to the rabbis (Acts 13:15).

2. The Passage Read (Isaiah 61:1, 2). Most likely this passage was chosen by Him with a specific purpose.

3. The Content of the Passage (vv. 18, 19).

(1) The mission of the Messiah (v. 18). It was:

(a) To preach the gospel to the poor. The good tidings which Jesus proclaimed are peculiarly welcome to the common people.

(b) To heal the broken-hearted. The gospel of Christ peculiarly meets the needs of those whose hearts are crushed by the weight of their own sins or by the burden of sorrow and disappointment.

(c) To preach deliverance to the captives. The gospel of Christ does actually set man free from the slavery of sin (John 8:36).

(d) Recovering of sight to the blind. Christ did actually make those who were physically blind to see (John 9:6, 7) and also opened the eyes of those who were spiritually blind (1 John 5:20).

(e) To set at liberty them that are bruised. The power of Christ can free the most utterly hopeless ones.

(f) To preach the acceptable year of the Lord. The primary allusion is the year of Jubilee (Lev. 25:10) in which all those in bondage were released.

(2) The special endowment of the Messiah (v. 18). The reason why the Spirit was upon Him was that He might fulfill specifically His Messianic work. It was not for the display of power. The endowment of the Holy Spirit is not for mere power's sake.

III. Jesus Expounding the Scriptures (vv. 20, 21).

1. He "closed the Book and Sat Down." It seems to have been the custom of the Jewish teachers to sit while teaching.

2. "This Day Is This Scripture Fulfilled." This statement is no doubt but a gist of what He said.

IV. Jesus' Reception by the People (vv. 22-30).

Their reception was characterized by:

1. Ignorant Prejudice (v. 22). "Is not this Joseph's son?" As if to say, "This is our fellow townsman with whom we have been acquainted for years. Surely, therefore, He cannot be the Messiah."

2. Unbelief as to His Supernatural Character (v. 23). They challenged Him to exhibit examples of divine power as He had done in other places.

3. Personal Jealousy (v. 24). Jealousy prevents us from seeing the essential worth of the men in our midst. Foreigners are more appreciative. A prophet is not accepted at home, primarily because he is a prophet. Prophets were sent in times of moral and spiritual declination and their messages were stern rebukes of sin. He adduces two outstanding examples of the willingness of foreigners to believe.

(1) Elijah was sent to a widow at Sarepta (vv. 25, 26). Many widows of Israel were passed by due, doubtless, to the fact that they would not have received the prophet.

(2) Samson, the foreigner, of many talents was the only one cleansed.

4. Violent Hatred (vv. 28-30). This comparison of the Jews to foreigners so stung their pride that they madly drove Him out of their city, even tried to kill Him. He showed them that just as Elijah had brought blessing to one who lived in Sidon and Elshah to one in Syria, while the people of Israel went on suffering, even so the Gentiles would receive the blessings of His saving power while they, the chosen nation, would suffer in unbelief.

Religion

Religion, in one sense, is a life of self-denial; but self-denial does not belong to religion as characteristic of it, it belongs to human life. The lower nature must always be denied when we are trying to rise to a higher sphere.—Henry Ward Beecher.

Poor Man's Pride

So many men to whom the East side missionary had given money had expressed a preference for a certain lodging house that he wondered what constituted its particular attraction.

"It makes us feel self-respecting," said the men, when questioned.

So far as the mission worker could see, it was the typical cheap lodging house, whose inducements to self-respect were not discernible to the ordinary eye. So he interviewed the manager.

"That's easy," replied the latter, and pointed to a sign above the desk: "Gentlemen are Requested to Leave Their Valuables with the Clerk."

A MATTER OF JUSTICE

Some very erroneous reports have been circulated in regard to books and accounts of the present city government.

In justice to them we wish to say, that we have repeatedly had business that made it necessary for us to look up certain data at the clerk's office.

We found one of the neatest and most explicit sets of books we ever saw and every courtesy and assistance in finding what we wanted.

They have an annual audit report in their office for every year they have served, made by one of the most noted licensed auditors of the state, and covering every transaction that they have had and they balance out to a penny and are highly commended by the auditor for their completeness and accuracy.

It would be an act of pure justice to them for any book keeper, or other person who is interested, to go up and look over their books.

The audit for this year is just complete and on file. It brings them down to the 4th day of the present month.

Go up and look them over. Every citizens welcome and the books are always at your service.

A CONVENIENT MEMORY

Last Saturday evening the erratic and wonderfully versatile Birmingham News saw fit to devote about a half column of its valuable editorial space to an effort to read us out of the Democratic party because we objected to and condemned the present autocratic habit of a few would-be political bosses and demagogues, in attempting to hand out and control the franchise of the free people of this state without leave or license.

In passing we might say that we are proud that we have never belonged to that professional wing of the party and never will. We believe in democracy because fundamentally it is the only party of, by and for the people and are still defending it along that line.

The Birmingham News took us to task because we object strenuously to a ruling by the State Democratic Committee that would exclude from the party any person who fails to support, in toto, every candidate, at every election, that happens to be on the democratic ticket. It is claimed, by the Birmingham News, that a rule of that kind is, and has always been in force.

This is not the only instance where the editor of that great paper exercises the functions of a most accommodating memory. In fact, he is notoriously famous for his ability to forget anything that does not chime in with his views at the time.

But, as to facts. This same ruling was attempted to be put in force before the last general election. A number of counties in the state are situated like we are here in Chilton, they have a strong republican vote. In that case, what possible hope could you ever have of winning any of them over to your side if you put up the bars and denied them the privilege of helping you to nominate a ticket? None whatever.

This being true, we, and we suppose Democrats from other two party counties, took the matter up, at that time with the chairman and he resounded that autocratic ruling, in so far as it affected any two party county at least.

This same situation prevails still and were these counties forced to live up to such an autocratic order, they would be doomed, so far as their political hopes were concerned.

Such high handed and unauthorized rulings, attempting to take over and direct the voting of free American citizens belongs to the dark ages and will not do to perpetuate in these modern days when people are more and more inclined to do their own thinking. The day of a real democracy is dawning when the people are really going to rule.

COUNTY DEMOCRATIC EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE MET

Last Saturday pursuant to call, the Democratic Executive Committee of Chilton County met.

Several matters of party business were attended to and certain plans worked out for the future.

Owing to the fact that the 1919 legislature, for some rather peculiar reason, passed a law denying the people the right to assemble in mass meeting or public convention for the free expression of their views and the selecting of candidates to serve them in the offices of public trust, the Mass Meeting called for that day was officially called off by the committee.

This action of the legislature is another great argument in favor of the absolute necessity of the people taking over their government into their own hands at once, or lose their freedom and all voice in the carrying on of their own public business.

We still have under the law, the right of putting out a ticket by petition when we wish to go in to an election.

It is more than probable that a ticket will be put out by that means to run in the fall election unless the Democrats in Chilton county desire to quit the game like cowards and time servers, and will not go in to this matter in earnest.

There is a small element who run with that party who will doubtless oppose such a move, but if the good true and real democrats of the county wish to keep up an organization that means a "government of, by and for the people," they will put out a ticket of men who are known and trusted by the masses, and whose hearts are with the people and for good government, and then go out to the polls and elect them.

You can easily do this if you go into it in earnest with a determination to win, but unless you want to work and vote for the ticket it is foolish to put one out.

A PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR

WHEREAS, The Legislature of Alabama, at a session held in 1923, has ordered an election by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which is herein set forth, to be held at the general election in November, 1924.

AND WHEREAS, Notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment is required by law to be given by proclamation of the Governor;

NOW THEREFORE, I, William W. Brandon, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that at the general election in November, 1924, an election will be held for the vote of the qualified electors of the State of Alabama, in the manner, form and places required by law, upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, viz:

"The County of Mobile, through its constituted governing authorities, may levy and collect for public school purposes a rate of taxation, not exceeding in the total of any one year, one-fifth (1-5) of one (1) per centum of the value of such property as assessed as provided by the Constitution of Alabama and the statutes now or hereafter enacted pursuant to the said Constitution of Alabama, which said one-fifth (1-5) of one (1) per centum shall be in addition to taxes levied and collected under and pursuant to the authority of Section 215 of the Constitution of Alabama of 1901, and taxes levied and collected under and pursuant to Article XIX of the Constitution of Alabama of 1901 which said Article XIX was added to the said Constitution by amendment; and existing laws attempting or purporting to authorize, empower and direct the said constituted authorities of the County of Mobile to levy and assess such a special tax in addition to the taxes levied and collected under and pursuant to Section 215 of the Constitution as aforesaid, are hereby validated and confirmed."

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great Seal of the State to be affixed at the Capitol, in the City of Montgomery, on this, the 8th day of August, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-four.

80% of the Soft Coal Mined in the United States

On a total of over a half million cars, was transported during 1923 by the Louisville & Nashville Railroad. With 5,641 miles of track, as compared to a total of 251,175 miles of track in the United States, this figure of 2% of the total trackage, as against 8% of the total amount of coal mined, demonstrates the importance of the L. & N. as a coal-carrying road.

From the mines in Kentucky, Illinois, Tennessee, Virginia and Alabama, this road transports this immense tonnage of "black diamonds," bringing prosperity to the communities in which the coal is produced, and adding to the comfort and prosperity of the sections in which it is consumed.

Taking things from where they are plentiful to where they are scarce, to the mutual and social benefit of both the shipping and receiving communities is one of the great tasks which the American railroads are capably performing. Don't hamper them by hurtful legislation.

Mrs. B. P. Roberts returned last Saturday from a visit to relatives at Eufaula.

Mr. W. F. Gilliland an enterprising and hustling citizen and farmer on route 1 was here Monday.

Our good friend, Mr. D. M. Martin, of Mulberry, gave us the pleasure of his company in our office last Saturday. It is a pleasure to know such a citizen as Mr. Martin.

Mr. W. M. Aldridge and family, of Calera, were visitors to friends and relatives in Clanton last Sunday. He is a mighty fine man, a good citizen and a democrat in whom there is no guide.

Mr. W. W. Jones, route 8, was here Monday. Mr. Jones is a jolly good man and esteemed citizen who always stands four square on any thing for the upbuilding of his home community and county.

Charles Moore left Monday to become a student of the University of Alabama. He is an excellent student and ere long no doubt he will be standing toward the head of his classes at the "Capstone" of Alabama.

Elmer Harris left the early part of the week for another year's work at the University of Alabama. He is in his junior year at the University and has made a splendid record standing around the top of the ladder in his classes.

Joe Hester and Raymond Roberts left the latter part of last week to become students in the college at Auburn. This is a splendid pair of young men who are embarking on their college career preparatory to becoming useful citizens and prominent men in public and private affairs.

Mr. Leon Kemp, who is now a full fledged traveling salesman, was in Clanton to see his many friends and the home folks the first of the week. Leon is looking fine and fit though he says his working hours are from 5 a. m. to about 10 p. m. His territory is in South Alabama and Florida.

Mr. W. H. Popwell, of Midland City, was in town the first of the week shaking hands with his many friends here. He is married now since last July. He is greatly pleased with South Alabama, but says he is going to move back on his farm near here this fall.

Otto Miller left Monday morning to enter college at Auburn. He is an all round mathematician and far above the average student along all lines. He is a son of Mr. E. W. Miller the popular R. F. D. carrier on route 8 and one of the very best farmers in this section of the state. We predict a brilliant career for young Mr. Miller and a successful future no doubt awaits his entering his life work.

Miss Sophia Mullins will leave tomorrow for Madison Wisconsin where she will enter the University of Wisconsin. Miss Mullins has been a student at Randolph-Macon Institute at Danville, Virginia for the past two years and holds a certificate from that institution that entitles her to enter any "A grade" college or University in the U. S. This is an honor that any young lady might feel proud of possessing since it requires high grades to attain that distinction.

Mr. Clyde Davis, a former Clanton boy, and for several years the head and front of the old Clanton Press, a former democratic paper here, was in town Monday. Clyde is now located in Montgomery and connected with the Bradstreet financial reporting work. He came up to bring his mother back for a visit to her many old friends here. Clanton is always glad to welcome them both and is happy in the fact that Clyde has made good and is doing fine.

AN IDEAL SMALL FARM FOR SALE

Up near Thorby Rev. S. M. Adams has an ideal little home, with a splendid and fertile farm attached, that he wishes to sell.

He is no longer physically able to live on a farm and care for it as it should be. His health is not good and he had to give up the farm and move in to town.

Any one who desires an ideal little home with all the needed improvements already made and the land in a high state of cultivation can not do better than call on him, or write to him at Clanton. Address S. M. Adams Clanton, Alabama.

THE OLD CHURCH BELL

Many an old father used to sit a great deal on the front porch of his home at Verbena and many a time on Sunday morning when the church bells began to call attention to the service hours I've heard him say—"Thank the Lord—the country is safe." The bells suggested to him that the worshipping of God fortified the country against the rule of evil and danger.

This is what the notes of a church bell should mean to every person with a normal mind.

By chance I was present when the Masuns placed the corner-stone of the new Methodist church in Clanton some months ago. Just near where I stood in the street, was a pile of building sand and almost covered with the sand was the old church bell which for scores of years has called to worship residents of Clanton who loved God and which reminds others of the existence of a Supreme Being.

It caused me a thrill of sorrow to see this bell, after having served as a voice of God so long, lying there in the dirt, dishonored and unappreciated. In other days the bell has announced to many a clean true bride her wedding hour. And then in tender tones of sympathy, it has proclaimed the last services for many noble men and women. In every instance, its peals have stood for purity, truth, safety and God.

I am informed there will be no bell in the new Methodist church. What a shame that Clanton should abolish such a godly custom and hush a voice which symbolizes everything worthwhile.

There are thousands of other noises all over the earth every hour and every one of them signify commerce, material profit pleasure and gain and these noises are more or less offensive to the ears of peace-loving persons who faith fully listen for sounds of God and who have something else to live for besides dollars and self.

Shall the church bell, the one and only sound and signal of the existence of a living God, be stifled and heard no more in Clanton.

God pity a country or community which has become so modern and up-to-date that a church bell on Sunday morning is no longer needed or is "out of style."

I truly hope I shall never spend a Sunday morning without hearing a church bell ringing, the only earthly sound that proclaims and broadcasts to all men of every station the fact that God is good and worthy to be praised.

S. L. GIBSON, Verbena.

HOPING FOR RESULTS

There is quite a good prospect brewing right now for Clanton to soon get a commodious hall, sufficient to take care of almost any local business or civic meeting that might be needed.

At present we are not at liberty to give out any of the details, but the matter is being figured on and a set of tentative plans have been made.

This is something that we stand in imperative need of and we sincerely hope that it will soon materialize into a commodious hall large enough to care for our present needs at least.

HARD TO PREDICT

Perhaps in all the history of our country there has never been a presidential election that was shrouded with as much mystery and uncertainty as the present one.

All of the political prophets are up in the air. They are not making any positive predictions, but are confining themselves to a discussion of the various possibilities that are hidden in the three handed contest.

In the first place, the unrest that prevails all over the country is a question that no one can solve or even satisfy. Again, it is evident to them, as well as to the rest of us, that party lines are not going to be a criterion to go by this time, for the people are not responding to the sound of the party lash as has been the custom in the past. They are doing more independent thinking for themselves than ever before, and no one can forecast the extent to which this independent spirit is going to effect the final result.

Then again, the LaFollette following seems to be on: that these close and experienced students of political matters can not get a line on. Some of them claim that he will carry enough electoral votes to force the final election in to Congress, while others say he will poll a surprisingly large vote but that it will be so widely scattered that it will not amount to any thing.

As for Mr. Coolidge, he is avoiding all reference to the recent oil scandal in his political family and is contending for a high protective tariff as a relief to the farmer and the laboring man. He is not saying very much at all but that is his main theme.

Our man, Mr. Davis, is out now in the west making some campaign speeches. He advocates an extension of credits to farmers, a reduced tariff on all necessities and a Labor Board composed of representatives from all branches of industry to settle labor troubles and avoid strikes.

Mr. Davis is in favor of a business understanding with all foreign nations and a spirit of international cooperation in settling the differences policies to us, sound fair and truly democratic and worthy of the confidence and support of an unsettled and dissatisfied country.

We predict that the results of this election will open the eyes of the professional bosses to the fact, that their autocratic tenure of control is rapidly passing away and that they will either be retired to private life or a time sentence to serve out in regeneration. We feel just like the real people are going to be heard and felt in this election and that many well laid plans and trades that have been made on the result of certain conditions will be absolutely demolished.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

Quite a happy celebration was held in the Gardner home on the thirty-first, when eighteen guests assembled to pay homage to Mr. B. F. Gardner on his eighty second birthday.

Mr. Gardner's birthday fell on Sunday, and he had not anticipated spending the day other than in the usual quiet way. When group after group of felicitous kindred had assembled, Mr. Gardner's delights knew no bounds—his surprise was complete.

There were eighteen children and grandchildren to spend the day—a few were unavoidably absent. Six of ten children remain in life to comfort their father.

The house had been made attractive with blooming plants placed to advantage here and there.

The very large white birthday cake with its embossed ornaments in pink and its delicate roses from the hearts of which burned many waxen tapers, formed a beautiful centerpiece for the principal dining table. This cake was designed and executed by a local artist.

Many friends called during the day to extend congratulations and to express the best of wishes to Mr. Gardner.

The guests from elsewhere included: Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Gardner and family of Montgomery; Mr. M. Tate and family of Montgomery; Mr. Thompson and family of Prattville, Messrs. N. L. and J. B. Gardner of Verbena, and their families.

A PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR

WHEREAS, The Legislature of Alabama, at a session held in 1923, has ordered an election by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which is herein set forth, to be held at the general election in November, 1924; and

WHEREAS, Notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment is required by law to be given by proclamation of the Governor;

NOW THEREFORE, I, William W. Brandon, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that at the general election in November, 1924, an election will be held for the vote of the qualified electors of the State of Alabama, in the manner, form and places required by law, upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, viz:

"Town Creek School District No. 59, Landersville School District No. 22 and Moulton School District No. 28 in Lawrence County, Alabama, shall each have the right and power by vote of a majority of the qualified electors of such district at an election held for that purpose to levy and collect for the purpose of acquiring, erecting or repairing of school buildings in such districts or paying for school buildings already built, a tax of not over five mills in any one year in addition to all other taxes now authorized by law. The election in such district to determine whether or not such tax shall be levied shall be called, held and conducted as now provided by law for calling, holding, and conducting of elections to determine whether or not a three-mill district school tax shall be levied and collected."

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the state to be affixed at the Capitol, in the City of Montgomery, on this, the 8th day of August, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-four.

"The municipalities of Thorsby, Piedmont and Greenville, and Roanoke and Greensboro and Calera, Florida and Opp, Evergreen and Fayette, and Clayton and Clio in the State of Alabama shall have the power and right to levy and collect a tax of one-half of one per centum in any one year on property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation, for the year ending on the 30th day of September next succeeding the levy; provided, that for the purpose of paying bonds or indebtedness issued and outstanding at the time of the adoption of this amendment and the interest thereon, an additional tax of one-half of one per centum may be levied and collected by said corporations; provided further, that a majority of the qualified electors of any of said municipal corporations voting at an election called for that purpose, may vote a special tax not to exceed one-half of one per centum in any one year for any special purpose or purposes, which tax shall be used only for the purpose or purposes for which same is levied and collected; provided, however, that the total tax to be levied by any of said municipal corporations shall not exceed one and one-half (1 1/2) per centum in any one year. Alabama City shall have the power and right to levy and collect a tax of three-quarters of one per centum in any one year on property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation. Provided, further, that the adoption of this amendment shall in no wise affect, limit, modify, abridge or impair the power, authority or right of either of said municipal corporations to levy and collect the special school taxes, now or hereafter levied or to be levied, or conferred upon them, or of them, under the Constitution or any amendment thereto, including the power of the City of Selma to levy and collect the taxes for schools and school purposes voted in and conferred upon said City of Selma by the amendment to the Constitution of Alabama adopted thereto at the general election held in November, 1916, and which was submitted under Number 215, General Laws 1915, page 297, each election held under the provisions hereof shall be ordered, held, canvassed and may be contested in the same manner as is or may be provided by the law applicable to municipal corporations for elections to authorize the issuance of municipal bonds. The ballots used at such election shall contain the words:

"For _____ excess rate of taxation for the year (or years) _____ and for the year (or years) _____." The rate of taxation proposed in excess of the rate of one (1) per centum to be shown in the blank space provided therefor and the rate or rates in which the proposed rate is to apply to be shown in the blank space provided therefor, and in the event different excess rates are proposed for different years the words mentioned shall be repeated as often as may be necessary to show separately the different rates proposed to be applied to the respective years. And the voter shall record his choice, whether for or against the excess rate or rates shown by placing a cross mark before or after the words expressing his choice. Nothing herein contained shall in any wise change or affect the rights of any holder of bonds or municipal corporations heretofore issued. Elections to authorize the levy of such special tax may be held as often as ordered by the governing body of the municipality but when a proposition to levy a special tax for a specific purpose, and such proposition is defeated at a second election for the same shall be held in one year thereafter."

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the State to be affixed at the Capitol, in the City of Montgomery, on this, the 8th day of August, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-four.

What's Wrong Here?

The Saturday Evening Post says: "It was that hour of a rather sultry early summer afternoon when the merchants along the west side of Main street in a certain western town were about to emerge from their stores, one after another, and lower their awnings against the glare of the afternoon sun."

The west side of the street would be in the shade in the afternoon and it would be the east side where the merchants would be lowering their awnings to keep out the glare—unless the Saturday Evening Post had in mind some novel sort of sun which sets in the east.—The Pathfinder.

CHAPTER XVI—Continued.

"Permit us to send men. You will remember the danger of which I spoke?" The Japanese was truly alarmed.

"None will harm me," Wells answered grandly.

The cabin-boy behind him scraped one foot against the other.

Sanderson came close to Wells' side. He lowered his voice. "I had better see the steamship people about—the body?"

"The proper steps have already been taken," Wells assured him. "Everything has been done in my name, and will be attended to promptly. All details are arranged. Wait. It will not be long. Yoh! Talk is tiresome to me."

Ellen was glad when Albert called her off the dock, ahead of her husband, but she had no opportunity to object, for all of the talk was understandable, and she felt apart from them all. Wells and Williams followed the women to the waiting machine. Sanderson watched them all move off, standing morose, gazing at the boat which held, as he thought, his young boy. Albert missed him and saw him standing motionless. Instantly she smiled and waved her hand at him, but Sanderson, as if in some rigid trance, gave these signals no recognition whatever. Upon this Albert called to him.

"Uncle Sandy! Wake up, dear!" Sanderson gave no sign that he heard, but nevertheless stalked after them.

The Japanese delegation was startled at this unexpected turn. They had already heard that Aochi's heir was given to unexplainable things, surely this then was the reason that he had apparently slighted them. That must be it.

"He's been like that ever since," Albert called back to Williams.

"It is very sad," Williams told Wells. "Although this nephew really was well, he did some things—"

"I understand," Wells agreed. "I know of some of these things. It is desired that I speak of them to that man who is far advanced in the course of life?"

"Excellent!" Williams patted his fingers excitedly against the kimono sleeve.

Wells could see the figure at his side expand. What, so he knew the other thought, would this Japanese know that was not damaging to Wells' case? It would be glib to Williams' mill.

Wells was oblivious to the curious crowd who gathered about the automobile into which, with great swiftness of drapery, he was assisted. The cabin-boy deposited handbags beside the chauffeur's seat and heard the order: "Home."

Sanderson was the name the cabin-boy had already heard. He would find where this Sanderson lived. The great man might have Japanese householders—who might even be "of the faith"—and the cabin-boy had shore leave!

"Your foreign life begins, O-Hana," Wells said in Japanese as the machine moved off the smooth runway of the pier.

"When will it end, Kayama-San?" "As is ordered."

"The woman is beautiful," Ellen said in her halting Japanese.

"Beautiful as Kitsuue." He did not explain that Kitsuue was the fox-woman.

"Good as she is beautiful?" "No woman is good, the gods tell us."

"Would you think me beautiful if I were as she?"

"It is not well to criticize the gods, who make us as we are." He felt that very adroit and was pleased with himself.

"Of what are you two talking?" Albert asked brightly.

"Perhaps, according to your foreign customs, I err in repeating," Wells answered smoothly. "We were discussing your beauty."

"No woman dislikes that," Albert retorted, slipping her hand frankly into Williams'. "Do they, dear?" to Ellen.

"I do not know. My lord does not find me—pleasing in his eyes?" "Why, my dear?" She looked naughtily at Wells. "If you'll just place your wife in my hands, I'll find some one who'll think she's a duck. I think she's ravishing."

"A duck should swim in its own pond," Wells said ponderously. "In Japan a wife is satisfied with the attentions of her own husband. I do not wish my wife to be my one's duck."

"Don't mind Miss Hayward," Williams said. "I, seriously, your wife is very lovely."

"In Japan," Wells repeated the phrase grudgingly. "It is not according to the code of honorable conduct to discuss wives. It is plain that I have much to learn in this country."

enger body thrilled him, her hand hardly left the knob when she was swept to him, lips met, and remained together. Breathless, she pushed him from her, hands on his shoulders. She must speak of the dominant thought, was unable to wait or prolong the ecstasy of the moment.

"Ray . . . Was it my fault that . . . Bob . . ."

"It was his own. No one else's wrote you that, dear?" "Yes, as bad as you said in your letters. He wasn't like that when he was here. You never liked him, you know."

"If a Japanese like Kayama says he was bad, and these Orientals stand for anything! why, he'll be unrepentable when we hear!"

"You don't think I'm heartless about—Bob?" It's because I love you, Ray. Always. Didn't you feel creepy when you found out that Bob had been on the same boat with you?"

"I'm glad I didn't know," he answered. "I was worried when Gordon ordered me home, or I might have found out by myself."

"I explained to Uncle Sandy how Bob's actions handicapped you. He understands it all. Won't he be grand. Ray-boy, for you to"—she thought for an adequate expression—"for you to take the helm? Uncle Sandy's tired of work. He seldom goes to the office."

"This other thing won't get out of my mind," Williams said after a moment. "I hate to think of Bob all alone."

"It was his own fault, Ray?" "Does Mr. Sanderson think that?" "He never admits it. He says that it was his fault. But when this lord tells him, he'll have to." She shrugged her shoulders, blinking to shut out the unwelcome vision. "Let's talk of ourselves, dear. What did you think when I told you that Uncle Sandy is going to make you his personal assistant? I did it all myself. You thanked me—but I've been so lonesome. You didn't!" (eternal feminine) "Think that the Japanese girls were pretty? Tell me!" Williams told her. The while he held her to him, his eyes traveled about the comfortable library. Some day, this would be his. Albert outside probably want a fellow to stick to the office, when there was golf to be played, and trips in a "little car" to be made and cases of Scotch to be ferreted out. With kisses, he could manage her. And that man Gordon, with his damnable "step on the work," he'd step on Gordon the first time the fellow had a word to say.

Albert whirled off upstairs to go through her wardrobe; there would be one perfectly dressed woman that night. She said she was mounting the door behind which was the room of the white wife of the Japanese. Albert admitted frankly that the girl would be pretty, if she were dressed as she should be. But she, Albert, need not fear comparison.

When they were alone, Wells said briefly to Ellen: "I will rest, and also pay devotions to the god of our house. There will be much food, and more talking later. It will be well for you to rest, likewise. When evening comes, attire yourself in foreign clothing, O-Hana."

The stage was being set, Wells thought. Just how he would act, and what he would say, and the manner in which he would make explanation he did not know. He only hoped that he could hold himself in; he must act a part.

Ellen wondered why her husband—she wished that in his delirium on the ship he had spoken his own name—was bringing this body of which she had now heard so much. She knew nothing of any body. It was all a part of the weird occurrence. When would he tell her that he was a white man and that he loved her? Instinct told her that the two would come together.

Sanderson aimlessly wandered about the house. He wanted "it" over; yet dreaded, and he had no idea of it. With no consideration at all as Williams had it, Sanderson walked into the library; the older man found the air of ease which Williams was assuming something close to insolence.

"How did Bob look when you last saw him?" Sanderson asked without introduction.

"Why—very well," the other stammered, removing the cigar from his mouth nervously.

"You tried to keep him straight, Ray?"

"Naturally, sir."

"How did he handle his work?" "I—I'd rather not say, Mr. Sanderson."

"No time for delicacy. Come, man! Speak!"

Delicacy! Williams was pleased. Now he might speak without fear. "Well, from the first he had trouble, sir. We decided, you remember, that Bob was to handle the outside work except when there was actual new construction. I left it to him at first. But—well, there was a drinking-shop near the beach, and Bob must have found the heat trying. It wasn't until he began to drink with the laborers that actual trouble developed. Then the foreman and assistants left us. Said that they had sent caste because the boss—you know, the Japs have a code of conduct, strange thing—anyhow, we were always having the men walk out, that I've pointed out—"

"Hear! this before, from Gordon. From your letters, get down to cases." "Bob got in the habit of . . . staying out late. I knew he'd always done this at home, but in Japan it was different. I spoke to him. You know how much Bob minded! He'd just look at me and sneer. I found it very hard. He'd say, 'Who'd devil is going to be boss of this concern some day? You keep your d—mouth closed. You write to Uncle Jim, and I'll be your job.' I imagine, also, sir, that he knew I admired Albert. It made it very hard for me."

"He . . . must have changed. He was always very gentle. Perhaps it was the Orient. I should have kept him by me."

Williams shook his head sympathetically, and, unargued, for Sanderson had already heard more than he cared, resumed.

"The Japanese in the town were very kind to me. It hurt their sense of dignity to see Bob play the fool—to see Bob disport himself as he was doing, for they taught the natives to look up to the white men. You remember that we had a report that our work would be hindered, so I had a conference with Marakito, the principal man in the district, and found him more than willing to co-operate with me." That was wisely said, Williams decided. If necessary, he could get Marakito to back him up. But it wouldn't be needed; all was complete now, and when that Jap Kayama told him he knew. . . .

"You tried—of course you did, Ray, I must ask!—you tried to restrain him?"

Commonest Metal
Iron is the metal most used by man, yet the metal which is by far commonest in the earth's crust is not iron, but calcium. Forty per cent of limestone is calcium. Calcium is a very light metal, easily hammered, easily drawn out into wire, and almost as pretty in color as gold. Why then, you may ask, do we not make more use of it? There are two reasons: the first that it is very difficult to isolate from its ores, but the second is worse. When isolated, let the merest drop of moisture touch calcium and it flazes away into slaked lime. The present price of calcium is about twenty times that of gold.

FEELS IT HIS DUTY TO TELL THE FACTS

"Tanlac has meant so much to me in the way of improved health that I feel it a duty, as well as a pleasure, to recommend it," is the appreciative statement of J. M. Freeman, well-known resident of 807 Camden St., San Antonio, Texas.

"About a year ago my stomach and digestion got all out of fix and I soon became badly run-down. My appetite went back on me and the little I did eat failed to nourish me. Constipation troubled me nearly all the time and I also had bilious spells and attacks of dizziness."

"My sleep was unsound and I got up mornings with a mean, sickening taste in my mouth and a dull headache that lasted me almost through the day. I lost considerable weight and that tired, draggy feeling was on me all the time."

"After a few days' use of Tanlac I noticed a marked improvement in my appetite, digestion and general condition. So I took four bottles and by that time I was eating as heartily as I ever did and digesting everything fine."

"My liver went to work right, my headaches stopped and I was able to sleep like a log. I had gone down only 145 pounds, but I am now a strong man of 215 pounds, and my health is the best it has been in years. A friend of mine took four bottles of Tanlac at the same time I did and got fine results, too. As a builder of health and strength Tanlac is certainly without an equal."

Proves Vanity Box Not Modern Device

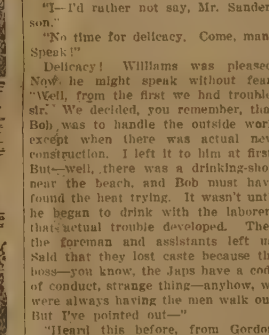

What is believed by experts to have been a kind of vanity box used by the women of 2000 years ago, and a necking of solid gold, were unearthed recently on a Norwegian farm by a peasant who gave the articles to his children for playthings.

Collectors eventually heard of the discovery and induced the children to part with their ancient toys. The articles, in the judgment of the experts, date back to about 120 B. C. The ring, of artistic though barbaric design, has been placed in the museum of Christiania university, while the vanity box has been going the rounds among experts who are eager to determine if it contained a powder puff among its appurtenances, or if not, what might have been in use to take its place in those days.

A PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR

WHEREAS, the Legislature of Alabama, at a session held in 1923, has ordered an election by the qualified voters of the State of Alabama upon a proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which is to be held at the general election in November, 1924, and and in the number, form and place required by law, upon the following proclamation of the Governor:

Section 1. The County of Walker, State of Alabama, shall have power to levy and collect a special county road tax not exceeding one cent on each one hundred dollars worth of taxable property in any necessary to provide a public road for the highway travel between the highways of Mobile and Baldwin Counties, in an amount not to exceed one and one-half per centum of the assessed value of the property situated in Mobile County. To pay said tax, Mobile County may levy and collect an annual tax on said property of not to exceed one-half of one per centum of said value. The indebtedness of the bonds and the tax authorized hereby shall be in addition to those authorized by the Constitution of Alabama prior to the adoption of this amendment. But no such additional tax shall be created, and no such additional bonds shall be issued, until each improvement or construction proposed to be built approximate location, estimated cost and time of completion, amount of the proposed indebtedness and made public by the Board of Public Works and Road Commissioners of the County, and the proposed use of the indebtedness or issue of bonds or tax therefor shall have been first authorized by a majority vote by ballot of the qualified voters of Mobile County, voting upon such proposition.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the State to be affixed at the Capitol, in the City of Montgomery, on this, the 8th day of August, One Thousand Nine Hundred and Twenty-Four.

AS WE SEE IT

To succeed in any enterprise, where the public is concerned especially, a unity of purpose and a spirit of earnest cooperation is essentially necessary.

You can not successfully put over any movement, no matter how essential and meritorious it may be, unless you have cooperation from those with whom you labor, and a spirit of unity must dominate and direct the work.

Your school teachers can not possibly give you the efficient service they are trying to render, unless you back them up in their efforts and cooperate with them in the work they are trying to do. You must encourage them by your support and aid them in trying to impress the importance of their work and the importance of an education upon the minds of the pupils with whom you come in contact.

Then, in even a vastly more important field than of schools, is this same spirit absolutely necessary when it comes to backing up and cooperating with our preachers. No matter how able, nor how willing, a preacher may be to fight the battles waged by the devil against decency, morality and righteousness, he is sadly handicapped if his church sets complacently by and leaves him alone to keep aloft the flag of godliness and the cross of Calvary.

A real church that intends to mean anything before a world chock full of wickedness can not afford to merely "pay the freight" and leave it to their pastor to do all the work. Any good conscientious preacher more than has his hands full by the time he attends to all of the many, many ministrations that naturally fall in to his daily work.

Then, when he gets out to the sanctuary, to deliver his message of grace, mercy and salvation, from the throne of the most High, to a sinful world, how his heart must sink and his zeal freeze when he looks out over empty benches, and meets here and there, the listless eye of a few of those whose names adorn the church book.

That sort of cooperation is not calculated to inspire that man of God with much enthusiasm nor warm his heart with inspiration from the altar. Let us give this matter some serious personal thought, and let's all determine to rally to the support of these human instrumentalities that labor so much and so faithfully for us and ours.

MENS CLASS BAPTIST SUNDAY SCHOOL

We are requested to announce that the Men's Class, at the Baptist Sunday School, will be in charge of the opening exercises next Sunday and every member is earnestly urged to be present.

Don't forget this now, but begin today in shaping your affairs with the view of turning out next Sunday promptly at 9:45 a. m. and lend your presence to making this a creditable occasion.

HUBERT HAPPY

Our esteemed young friend Hubert Jones and his wife are happy this week over the arrival at their home of a hale and hearty little visitor. Hubert begins to feel like a man now sure enough.

PEOPLE ENDORSE PRESENT MAYOR AND COUNCIL

Last Monday was city election day quite a good deal of interest was manifested in the result.

A real live campaign was put on by the friends of the contesting tickets. The incumbent Mayor and Council were renominated by their friends, while a full opposition ticket was put out by other factions.

The voting was brisk all day but when the polls had closed and the ballots had been counted it was found that the majority had endorsed the old board and they were easy winners.

Now, that this contest is over, if there has been any bitterness engendered, let us hope that every one will accept the will of the majority in good faith, that the wheels of Clanton's wonderful progress may not be clogged up and impeded by spiteful opposition.

Below we print the official count:

| For Mayor       |     |
|-----------------|-----|
| Dr. V. J. GRAGG | 232 |
| Dr. J. P. HAYES | 202 |
| Councilmen      |     |
| J. B. ATKINSON  | 247 |
| N. S. JOHNSON   | 289 |
| J. P. LAWRENCE  | 252 |
| J. WATTS MOORE  | 387 |
| M. L. WHITE     | 248 |
| J. Z. MIMS      | 143 |
| T. H. NEIGHBORS | 185 |
| J. LEE SMITH    | 176 |
| F. R. WOODYARD  | 137 |
| MULLINS         | 1   |

The winners compose the Mayor and Council who have so faithfully and efficiently served us for the past four years and is indeed, a high and deserved compliment from our people to these gentlemen.

It is evident from this vote that our people are pleased with the wonderful progress and improvement our town has made and is making now, and we rejoice to realize that no change or impediment will be put in the way of such improvements in the near future. Good luck to everybody.

HIS BUSINESS MUST BE GOOD

One of our cleverest young business men was out in his car one night last week getting a little fresh country air.

As he glided peacefully along the road a fine, fat possum tried to cross ahead of him, but misjudged his own fleetness and the car ran over this noted epicurian bit.

The young business man did not even stop to gather in his body, but speeded on his way.

The conditions resolves itself in to three propositions. He either must have plenty of meat at home, or he feared a raid by officers or thought the Underwood Ku Klux Klan was after him.

REVIVAL FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

A series of meetings will begin at the Baptist church here on October 12. Remember the time and begin now to arrange your affairs so you can attend.

Dr. David Gardner, pastor of the First Baptist church at Ensley, will be present and assist Dr. Ezell in the work. He has the reputation of being an eminent gospel worker in the Masters vineyard.

BAPTIST SUNDAY SCHOOL DAY

On Sunday Sept. 28 there will be a Special Service at the Clanton Baptist Sunday School to which every church member and every parent in Clanton is earnestly invited to come.

The officers and teachers are especially anxious to meet you all at Sunday school at least one time during the year.

For the sake of yourself, your children, your community and your God can you afford to fail.

Be present, at 9.15 a. m. and you will never regret it.

Let's fill the church.

Mrs. Grady Broadhead, Mrs. G. C. Harris, Miss Bettie Mullins, W. A. Calloway, W. B. Corley, Publicity Committee.

A BOLD ROBBERY

For pure hard down boldness in robbery some miscreants made a record at the farm of Mr. Henry Harris just below town Saturday or Sunday night.

A bale of cotton was picked out and piled up in the field. These rogues took a truck and hauled it away and so far, no arrests have been made.

From the tracks it appears that there were three parties concerned in toting the cotton out of the field to the truck in the road, some hundred yards away.

We sincerely hope that these parties will be apprehended and given a good dose of what they deserve. Such absolute boldness needs attention.

THE STORK LEFT A VISITOR

Mr. and Mrs. Lucian Duncan have a new interest and an added responsibility in life now.

The stork left them a little permanent guest this week who will assume charge of their home affairs for them for quite a while now. Mother and babe are progressing nicely and the happy young parents are receiving the congratulations of their many friends.

NEW BAKERY

It is more than probable that Mr. Cottingham, from Centerville, will open up a real first class Bakery here in a few days.

The arrangement now is that he will be located in the old post office building near the railroad, which will give him a central location for the town.

After he gets installed he intends to give us real city service and free delivery at the homes. Morning hot roll for breakfast will be one splendid convenience for ladies who do their own work.

HOSPITAL NOTES

Mrs. Charlie Lee Bailey is doing nicely and will be out in a few days. "Bill Stevens Mahan," the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Mahan, is apparently much improved.

Mrs. Della Ellison was admitted last week and is improving.

Mrs. Lucian Duncan and little daughter Betsy Anne, are getting along nicely.

Mrs. Mattie Cooper was discharged Tuesday.

Mr. John Mims, who is suffering from a severe burn, is resting well.

HELP WANTED

A man to work around a store who is ambitious and is willing to work. Common school education necessary. Wages small but chance to rise. Will not employ one who smokes or drinks. Must be strong, quick, honest, and with good record. Apply in own hand writing to "Employer Chilton County News," Clanton, Alabama.

ACCIDENTAL SHOOTING

Considerable excitement was occasioned last Saturday when a report came in that a white hobo had shot and killed a little negro baby just south of town.

Several large posses went in search of the supposed murder. Later it developed that the 12-year old brother of the baby, who was alone at the house with it, was playing with a pistol and it fired and killed the child. A coroner's jury rendered a verdict of accidental death.

The city of Columbia, S. C. closed its doors one day last week to attend the funeral of a negro man who was shot and killed by a white man. The man was a citizen, but because he had always lived a clean, honest life.

CAN YOU REFUSE THIS PLEA

For twelve long months now the officers and teachers of the Baptist Sunday School have been wonderfully patient and faithful in the earnest and loving service they have so freely given in an effort to instruct and to lead our children into the paths of righteousness.

In this most noble work with nothing but an unselfish love for our children, they have assembled, Sunday after Sunday in good weather and in bad, and have done everything in their power to help us in piloting the footsteps of our offspring in the path of decent living and to point them to the way that leads to a better world. They have most faithfully given their time, their patience and their talent, as a free will offering to our children, to us, to the community and to a higher and nobler future civilization.

What have we parents done? Have we met with them, Sunday after Sunday and given them even the cooperation of our presence? Do we bring cheer and gladness to their hearts by showing, by our presence, that we appreciate this great labor of love? Have we collectively done one single thing to prove to them we even have an interest at all in the matter? The vast majority have not.

Now listen! On next Sunday week, Sept. 28, these valiant workers have concluded to try to find out how we feel about this vital matter, so they have set that Sunday School hour 9:45 a. m. as the time, and are earnestly requesting the parents, and the members of the church, to meet promptly with the school and let them all see whether we approve of the work or not.

In the whole twelve months, it looks like every one of us could manage to spare one hour and a half to our children, our teachers and our Sunday School.

Listen! Can you hear this invitation and afford to stay away? Could you lie down that night and ask God to take care of you and yours if you had failed to heed this summons? God would awaken your conscience and it would drive all repose from your pillow.

Now don't allow business, pleasure car riding, resting up nor anything else except absolute Providential hindrance to keep you away from this meeting.

Come out and let's fill our church up, balcony and all, one time and see how it looks and how good we will feel.

Sunday, Sept. 28, 9:45 a. m.

AT COLUMBUS NOW

Our well known citizen, Mr. C. H. Plier, together with his son Mr. M. S. Plier formerly with the Alabama Power Company, at Mitchell Dam, are now engaged in working on a big dam that is being built across the Chattahoochee river near Columbus Ga.

They spent the last week end here with homefolks. Both of them are well pleased with their new job.

To the delight of his many friends, Senator S. M. Adams has bought him a home in the city and will now become a real citizen of Clanton again.

TO THE CITIZENS OF THE TOWN OF CLANTON

The undersigned each take this method of expressing their appreciation for the magnanimous vote of confidence given us, in the election held Monday. To those who voted for us we desire to say that it will be our purpose during the next two years to conduct the affairs of the town in such way that no one may regret casting his vote in our favor; and to those who voted against us we wish to state that we believe that they are while exercising their liberty and freedom granted every American citizen, and we trust that our administration will be such that they too, will approve it.

We trust that the next two years will bring to our town a continuation of prosperity and good feelings, for all, and that we may all work together to make Clanton one of the best towns in the State.

Yours very respectfully,

V. J. Gragg, Mayor
J. B. Atkinson,
M. L. White,
J. Watts Moore,
J. P. Lawrence,
N. S. Johnson,
Councilmen.

A HUNDRED SCHOOL BOYS

The United States Department of Education has given out some very interesting data to what becomes of a hundred boys in the fifth grade. The facts are said to be true of any hundred fifth-grade boys selected at random. They follow: "One hundred boys in the fifth grade dwindle to 83 in the sixth; they shrink to 71 in the seventh; these leave but 63 to complete grammar school or eighth grade. Economic conditions are such that only 34 start the first year in high school, 24 finish the year as sophomores, 18 then qualify as juniors, 13 secure the coveted high diploma; 7 of these 13 enter the first year of college, 5 return and finish the second year's work, 3 are to qualify for the third year, and but 1 out of the original 100 is graduated from college."

A MAGNIFICENT GIFT

WHOLE FAMILY ENDORSE TANLAC AS BEST TONIC

"Tanlac has been our constant friend for years, and my wife and myself and eight children are all enjoying wonderful health, largely due to this medicine." Is the remarkable statement of Harry H. Pistole, 310 Archer St., Waco, Texas.

"In my own case Tanlac has done what seemed to be impossible. When I began taking it my stomach was in such a bad fix that I had to live in a milk and egg diet and I was almost a skeleton. I had been flat on my back in bed and under treatment for 18 months and felt that my time was about up.

"After my case had been given up as hopeless and I thought I was beyond redemption a relative put me on to Tanlac, and the result is, I gained 30 pounds, and enjoy as good health as anybody could wish.

"My wife was all broken down in health. But now she weighs 135 pounds, and is strong and well and I am giving Tanlac credit for it. We give Tanlac to the children to tone them up and make them grow, and nobody ever had a healthier set of children than we have.

"Tanlac is certainly the greatest medicine on earth for anyone whose life is wrecked by bad health. We sure do have a great deal to praise Tanlac for at my house."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

Tanlac Vegetable Pills for constipation; made and recommended by the manufacturers of Tanlac.

The Lord of Thunder Gate

CHAPTER XVII—Continued.

"Many a night I said, 'Bob, don't go out again tonight. Think of your uncle at home.' He was warm to his work now. Sanderson could hear to more, and without a word shuffled out of the room again. The sound of his footsteps, so lagging and dragging and hopeless, startled Williams for an instant. Bob's feet had made the self-same noise when he left Fushiki. Shu-shu-shu down the hall. It was uncanny.

A fancy came to the old man to speak with the Japanese lord. It would not do to press him for facts until evening, for he had already said that he was tired. Perhaps he would enjoy a view of the city and the bay; many had said that this was very restful. Sanderson knocked at the door.

"It will please me greatly," Wells agreed. "Also my wife, who has never seen a great city." He clapped his hands, calling, "O-Hana-San!"

With Sanderson preceding them, they walked up the spiral staircase which led to the tower room with its many windows. Lord, the times he'd gone up those stairs to the tower room, that had been his room. Wells was thinking. The warm nights he and gone higher up the stairs, to the roof!

At the moment that he was in the room, was oblivious to Sanderson's comments on the broad bay, the city below. Uncle Jim had kept the room as a shrine—there were old posters on the wall, class pictures, even a suit he'd worn the last year at college and left behind as "worn out." A bureau drawer was partly open, and as Sanderson carefully closed it, Wells saw linen—all of his old stuff. And he had thought that Uncle Jim had been "through with him!"

On the dresser he saw an old photograph of a man, a young man with smiling face, who was wearing that same suit. Had Ellen seen it? He'd better get her out of the room—

—out quickly, mighty quickly—Ellen had seen it, before Wells. Had she ever seen the original, ever, anywhere? There was something familiar, distressingly familiar, yet she could not say what it was. Had Wells not been so anxious to hurry her out of the room, she would have thought no more about it. But there came to her remembrance of a sleeping man's face on the ship, a face from which the bandage had fallen and which, without it had seemed surprisingly youthful.

Down at the docks a cabin-boy, with shore leave, had already found out where this San'son lived, and that in the employ of this much-too-rich white man was a servant in sympathy with the radicals. Not a brave man, but one willing to help when at no danger to himself. The cabin-boy walked with rolling sea-acquired gait in the direction given him. Suppose, his inflamed mind taunted him, suppose Kayama-San were to let this city? The cabin-boy, having little gold, could not follow him. If the robber of the poor was to receive his reward, it must be done at once, tonight if possible.

The cabin-boy found the house, and slunk down the alleyway. There was a brief conversation with the cook's helper. Yikes, the cabin-boy had cuzzin in house, could speak wiss, please? The "cousin," when brought to the door, must be convinced in hissing Japanese that no danger but much honor would come to himself; honor, and the month's wages of the cabin-boy. It was soon agreed upon.

"You will come along the stone path as you did now," the "cousin" directed him. "You will find a door. That is to the basement. Hide yourself securely. I will be unable to see you, for there is to be a great dinner. Much depends upon me. I will polish the silver, and peel the potatoes, and even cut the radishes into shapes as is done in the poorest houses in my village, but none here understand this art. After the dinner, the master, the mistress, the Japanese lord—what is his name again?—and his woman will spend the evening in the room of books and will not be disturbed. I will inform you when the dinner begins. You may then slip up the back stairs, which I will show you. And secure yourself in the lord's room."

"Which is the lord's room? You will show me?"

"I will not. Some one might discover me with you. It is to be remembered, brother, that should you be detected I know nothing of you. I receive excellent pay here, and will shortly leave for a ranch which I will rent." He smiled. "There—I talk too much. The lord's room? There are two. One for him, and one for the white woman. I do not know which is which. You must—I have it—wait in the little closet in which linen is kept. It is the first door on the left, and opposite the two rooms. Tell me, eagerly, 'you kill the lord for his sea and money and he has taken from the poor? Ho! I know better. He has taken a maid whom you admired, or perhaps your wife.'"

"No. Never that—I have no wife. It is for the cause! The leader has said that one who strikes earns all the delights of Heaven."

"I do not believe," slowly, scratching his heavy jaw, "that you have courage enough for the purpose. You will steal in the house, and I will be blamed. No. I do not believe I will let you in."

The cabin-boy trembled with earnestness, and pleaded his purpose; the other was adamant. Killing? Yes, he could be in a remote portion of the house, where his every act would be watched, his presence observed. He would be unsuspected. But theft—here was another matter, and he might be accused.

(Copyright by The Bobbs-Merrill Co.)

The cabin-boy felt that some proof was needed. "I—this is not the first one I've killed," he offered. "Is that proof of my courage and purpose?"

"Who," a shoulder shrugged, "who did you kill?"

"O-Matuso-San." He had read of it in the papers.

"Ael! It was you? Did he struggle?"

"With all the strength of his thirty well-fell years! He nearly overcame me, but—"

"Thirty!" shouted the other. "He had a straggly beard like the Sacred Goat."

"No—no! not like a goat. Not as thick as a goat's. Yes, of course, straggly. Yes. I was thinking of some one else who is marked for destruction."

"Did you kill him or did you not?"

"I told you."

"What color was his blood?"

"Black!"

"I saw the nobles at sword-play. One was cut. He bled red as a dog's tongue. I think you lie!"

A voice from the kitchen, calling . . . Nomi'd'n nom, where was that accused boy, with all of the work before him . . .

"Come—I will not permit you—"

"Then return the money which I have paid you, or I will tell of it to your employer, the honorable cook! I know that money. I can tell it by a mark."

The houseboy stroked his pocket thoughtfully. "I still think you lie," he said mournfully. "But—well—you will not steal?—no!—very well, I will assist you, as the money will go far with me. You have it all clear?"

Ellen Was—as He Had Imagined Her—Just Ellen.

It was all clear.

When summoned, the cabin-boy vanished up the stairway, crept into the linen closet, leaving the door a bit open that he might hear and see. One hand he kept on the knob that he might close it if necessary. The other whistled an already keen knife on the sole of his shoe.

Alberta was proud of her arrangement for the dinner. It was really Ray's homecoming dinner; that Kayama and his wife were there was an unpleasant incident. However, Uncle Sandy would believe the Japanese; he would find that those things which he had hinted at in his letters were true. After that—she smiled to herself—Uncle Sandy would be himself again, would give her a free rein to do as she wished. Surely this will be a disastrous conversation. It would make Ray secure. She and Ray—she and Ray. Always in that order. She loved him, loved him dearly; and with her money (she thought of it as her own now) she could do it all.

Wells had chosen as his kimono an austere silk; an unobtrusive black, which made him appear very sorrowful. It was unrelieved by any embroidered figure. His forearm seemed lean as the wide folds of the sleeve fell away from it. He looked a fit harbinger of ill news, a veritable death-bird.

Just before the hour set for dinner he tapped at Ellen's door.

That he gave no grasp of surprise convinced Wells that he would be all in the order which was to follow. Ellen was—as he had imagined her. Just Ellen—Madame, the proprietress of the little Yokohama shop, had done her work well.

So Alberta recognized when Ellen descended to the lower hall. Alberta had never seen such a silk, silk from a master-weaver of the Ta Tsing K'ho, the Great Pure Kingdom, such as was, in the old days, reserved for the Palace itself. The bluish-violet of the gown seemed to surge upward to meet the soft circle of jade-green which made the bodice, as if jealous of the contact with the white skin above. And as the weaver had woven, so had the maker designed: it was beauty adorning beauty. Alberta felt ecstasied beside the wonder of the gown and the girl's own sweetness.

Wells sensed this and was pleased. The table conversation was trite. Wells was very grave, answering Williams' purposeless questions concerning Japanese with exactness, Alberta's queries about Oriental customs with elaborate courtesies. Sanderson sat silent through the dinner, only nodding his head when the Japanese explained some interesting detail of the East. All found it difficult to follow his words, the "I" was always "it," he spoke in singsong, almost. Ellen thought, like the girls in the Flower Bouts of China.

With the disappearance of the last dish from the table, and the bringing of coffee and tobacco, all felt the air become tense. Ellen had wished more than once that her man would include her in the conversation; she knew that under the calmness he was excited. This because of the careful way in which he spoke, the great attention that she knew he was giving to the stilted pronunciation of each word. And she was almost sure—almost sure that she knew.

"Let us go to the library," Sanderson said at last. "I have given orders that we are not to be interrupted. It will be quiet there."

CHAPTER XVIII

Wells fumbled with his cigarette. He felt very cold, although the room was warm with a sea-fair fire. Alberta had seen that all of the setting was ready, nicely arranged: a row of chairs edged about the hearth, with Sanderson between Ray and herself, next the Japanese, lastly, Alberta's new aversion, the Japanese's wife.

Williams was sunk luxuriously in his padded chair, but none of the others was at ease.

The patch over Wells' eye gave him a sinisterly brigandish appearance. He fastened Sanderson with the other, which seemed smaller than usual; hard, glittering, utterly Japanese.

His words were soft and smooth, very gentle and controlled. There was not even an echo of Wells in this modulated speech, with its strange change of "r" for "l."

"I was with the dead man when he was passing into the First Heaven," Wells began. This, he considered, was strictly true. He patted his fingertips together, choosing his words with care.

"It was in the last Prayer-Hour. I was reflecting upon the saying that 'evil passions restrain the perfectness of the human heart' when a servant brought me the news. My revered father had just died, and I was absorbed in devotion for him. But it is said that 'he who expects mercy must give it' and I accompanied the servant to the side of the white man."

Wells felt that this was sufficiently Oriental in tone, and switched to the truth again. "Why was this man killed? As a man have the same passions; the same sun warms us all. There was the matter of a pair of gold cuff-links. Wells described them minutely, 'which must have been seen by some thief. A knife. Zzzt! The work of an instant.' Wells heard them all sigh. This was start enough, and he awaited a question.

"What had he been doing before you saw him?" Williams prompted.

"There had been much brandy."

Wells watched Williams' air of satisfaction. The smug scamp! He folded his hands inside the sleeves of his kimono, fighting for the first time for self-control.

"The dying man told me of his story. Why? Death opens the mouth, perhaps. It is said that those who face the invisible speak truth, as there is no longer need to lie. Well. The trees were bare when this man began a long pilgrimage. An endless journey that could have but one ending. Before this was reached, the trees had blossomed, the petals fallen, and ripe fruit clustered on the branches. Ho! this man had the gift of words. I saw the building of a great bridge. A disagreement: the dead man did not tell me what this was, nor did I ask. He had set out upon a broad trail, a road bordered with many comforts and soft cushions, but which narrowed and narrowed, until, as the river which has its source at the temple of Jizo, God of Travel, there was but one village remaining to be visited. The village of death. The man could speak! I saw nights of cold and rain, when he would foolishly fortify himself with brandy. I saw days when he was a follower of the mother of beggars, scooping ancient meat like any passing mendicant. I saw him harried by dogs."

Betrothed as Babies

For centuries past it has been the custom in China for the parents of a baby girl to betroth her, in infancy, to the youthful son of a friendly couple, and there have been numerous cases in which the girl has not seen her husband-to-be until she arrived at the home of his parents for the marriage ceremony. The match was a question solely for the respective parents and the young couple were not consulted. Western civilization, however, is encroaching on China, and the fact that the old order is changing is proved by the vernacular Press of Peking recently, by which young women have given notice to the world that they decline to recognize the betrothal arranged for them in their infancies, and that they reserve for themselves the right to select their life partners.

Gets Rid of Rats

A Detroit merchant has perfected a device which has cleared his store of rats in a very short time, he says. It has a box on the floor, with a door swinging from its upper edge. The door is smeared with cheese, and as the rat pushes on it, it opens and admits him to a small compartment with a hole into a huge tank of water, where he drowns. The trap is very effective, and has to be emptied every day.

WOMEN NEED SWAMP-ROOT

Thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it.

Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

Pain in the back, headache, loss of ambition, nervousness are oftentimes symptoms of kidney trouble.

Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, may be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

OLIVER—MANNING

A beautiful wedding of much interest to the many friends throughout this county and also Jefferson county, was that of Mr. Cecil Oliver and Miss Bertha Manning which was solemnized in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. O. Manning last Sunday afternoon at three o'clock. Rev. Buford Lawrence officiating.

The hall was artistically decorated with ferns and potted plants. She was becomingly attired in a beautiful fall suit of blue. She carried a large bouquet of roses at her left side. The groom wore a suit of blue. The little flower girl, Floretta Edwards was dressed in blue.

Immediately after the ceremony the bride put on a beautiful fall suit of grey and they left for their honeymoon, where they will go to Montgomery and on to New Orleans and Miami Fla., and back to Birmingham where they both will take up their new positions and make it their hope.

Mrs. Oliver is an accomplished young woman of this county and is loved by all who know her. She has been holding a honorable position for several years with the McCormack Bros. Motor Car Co. of Birmingham.

Mr. Oliver is an accomplished young man of Mississippi but he has been holding a high position with the First National Bank of Birmingham for several years and later after he went there his father and mother moved there for which they reside there now.

Their many friends and relatives wish them a long and happy life.

CIVIC CLUB EXTENDS THANKS

The Civic Improvement club wishes to take this opportunity to thank the town officials for the nice, thorough clean-up of the cemetery. The walks and the enclosure, together with the removal of some unsightly trees make quite an attractive appearance. The club also wishes to thank Mrs. Kicker, the general chairman, who has given so liberally and generously of her time and effort, for weeks, superintending and assisting in this work.

WHEREAS, Notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment is required by law to be given by proclamation of the Governor; NOW THEREFORE, I, William W. Brandon, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that at the general election in November, 1924, an election will be held for the vote of the qualified electors of the State of Alabama, in the manner, form and places required by law, upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, viz:

"The municipalities of Thorsby, Piedmont and Greenville, and Roanoke and Greensboro and Calera, Florida and Opp, Evergreen and Fayetteville and Clayton and Clio in the State of Alabama, shall have the power and right to levy and collect a tax of one-half of one per centum in any one year, on property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation for the year ending on the 30th day of September next succeeding the levy; provided, that for the purpose of paying bonds or indebtedness incurred by such municipalities at the time of the adoption of this amendment and the interest thereon, and for the purpose of paying bonds or indebtedness which shall be incurred by such municipalities hereafter, the levy of one-half of one per centum may be levied and collected by said corporations, providing further, that a majority of the qualified electors of any said municipal corporations voting at an election called for that purpose may vote a special tax not to exceed one-half of one per centum in any one year for any special purpose or purposes, which tax shall be used only for the purpose or purposes for which same is levied and collected; provided, however, that the total tax to be levied by any of said municipal corporations shall not exceed one and one-half (1 1/2) per centum in any one year. Alabama City shall have the power and right to levy and collect a tax of three-quarters of one per centum in any one year on property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation. Provided, further, that the adoption of this amendment shall in no wise affect, limit, modify, abridge or impair the power, authority or right of either of said municipal corporations to levy and collect the special school taxes, now or hereafter levied or to be levied upon them, or of any of them, under the Constitution or any amendment thereto, including the power of the City of Selma to levy and collect the taxes for schools and school purposes vested in that city under said City of Selma by the amendment to the Constitution of Alabama adopted thereto at the general election held in November, 1916, and which was submitted under law Number 715, General Laws 1915, page 37, each election held under the provisions hereof shall be ordered, held, canvassed and may be contested in the same manner as is or may be provided by the law applicable to the municipal corporations for elections to authorize the issuance of municipal bonds. The ballots used at such election shall contain the words:

"For the year (or years) _____
Against _____ excess rate of taxation for the year (or years) _____"
The rate of taxation proposed in excess of the rate of one (1) per centum to be shown in the blank space provided therefor and the year or years in which the proposed rate is to apply to be shown in the blank space provided therefor, and in the event different excess rates are proposed for different years the words mentioned shall be repeated as often as may be necessary to show separately the different rates proposed to be applied to the respective years. And the voter shall record his choice, whether for or against the excess rate or rates shown by placing a cross mark before or after the words expressing his choice. Nothing herein contained shall in any wise change or affect the rights of any holder of bonds or municipal corporations heretofore issued. Elections to authorize the levy of such special tax may be held as often as ordered by the governing body of the municipality but when a proposition is submitted to the electors to levy a special tax for a specific purpose, and such proposition is defeated no second election for the same shall be held on or after that date."

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the state to be affixed at the Capitol, in the City of Montgomery, on this, the 8th day of August, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-four.

Less talk and more dependable service is what the people want out of their public servants now.

One of the greatest and most distinctive characteristics of a really great man is to find him always open to conviction.

A man who has no convictions and does not stand for anything is a non entity and is worth nothing as a citizen.

A marriage matter is sweeping through flapperdom in some sections and the divorce courts are arranging for a busy season just ahead.

It is noticeable that the managers of the Republican national campaign did not hesitate in putting a muzzle on old "Hell Maria." He told too much.

This cotton crop will be gathered earlier in this section than any one before and we fear it will be put on the market as fast as gathered.

Mr Davis is making some strong speeches out west. He is directing his efforts now towards elucidating the democratic position in regard to labor and the farmer.

National Defense Day was largely observed all over the country. We had a city election on in Clanton and did not have time to dabble in small things like that.

It is generally true that the fellow who attempts to sit in two political chairs at the same time, misses them both and gets a good lump on the floor.

The Baptist Sunday School urges all of the parents to attend the services on the morning of the 28. Look like we all could devote an hour and a half to Sunday school one time in a year.

No matter what kind of a politician you are you better play it straight and have an extra good memory if you don't want the past to rise up and condemn you when you least expect it.

The automobile claims more and more victims as the days go by. But that don't mean anything. Plenty of folks seem willing to die if they can only monkey with the gas and steering wheel for a time.

An American girl who had married a foreign prince and become a real live princess, fell over a 1,000 foot bluff up in Maine last week and it killed her just like it would any other ordinary girl.

Every step that is taken in trying to hoodwink the people and fool them into being merely the puppets of a few selfish political tricksters, is a step taken against the very fundamental principles of the democratic party. The man or men who try to do it are traitors to the party.

One time a man ran for governor of a state. He promised so much during his campaign that he could not possibly do, that, after he was elected, his unfulfilled promises rose up and smote him unto death politically. Some of the presidential candidates are doing the same thing now.

Loeb and Leopold, the Chicago millionaire murderers done their first days work last Friday. They are about 20 years of age and had never hit a lick of honest toil before. Their life sentence in the pen is the first opportunity they have ever had to learn how to be human. Up to last Friday they were bred as human monstrosities.

ONE MORE REAL DEMOCRAT

Last week the Birmingham News saw fit to give us quite a lambasting because we objected to the action of the State Democratic Executive Committee in attempting to say who could be democrats and who could not.

That splendid paper and strong democratic organ, the Florida News copied what we had said and also the comment of the Birmingham News, and proceeded to say a few words itself.

We read with great pleasure what it had to say and want to add that its article not only got the Birmingham News told but it embodies such a pure and undivided spirit of what real democracy is that it was actually refreshing to read it.

We notice in a later issue of the S. G. N.—so-called—that the editor was still running true to form and also took a feeble shot at the Florida News, but in this article, we notice that a tincture of fear was beginning to manifest itself, and the editor of the S. G. N. began to dodge and hedge, not allowing the real question at issue to come up, but training his guns on an imaginary situation that has never existed.

One other dominant feature demonstrated by the S. G. N. is their absolute refusal to give but one side of the issue to the public. It has its say to its readers but is very careful to not give space for the other fellow to say a word. In other words, in this particular case it fears to give publicity to the whole truth, knowing that its ego would suffer by the verdict.

The position the Birmingham News has taken on this question is absolutely untenable and they know it. But the truth can be hidden, and more of the people be misled and turned over, like so many dumb cattle, to the mercies of the chronic tit suckers, than if the lime light is turned on to the facts and the people allowed to take a glimpse.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE

Whereas Ralph Calloway and wife Geneva Calloway, did heretofore execute and deliver to Selma Trust & Savings Bank, a corporation, their mortgage dated October 17, 1923, and recorded in the Probate Office of Chilton county, Alabama, in Record Book 194 at page 440 to the record of which reference is here made for the contents thereof; and whereas default was made in the payment of the debt secured by said mortgage, and such default continuing it did declare the entire principal debt together with the then earned interest to be immediately due and payable, and default being made therein and such default continuing, notice is hereby given that acting under the power and authority given in said mortgage, said Selma Trust & Savings Bank will on Friday the 10th day of October 1924, within the legal hours of sale in front of the courthouse of Chilton county, Alabama in the town of Clanton offer for sale and sell at public out cry to the highest bidder for cash, the real estate and other property conveyed in said mortgage and which is located in said Chilton county, Alabama and described as follows, to-wit:

PLEASANT GROVE

The singing society at Pleasant Grove met for the first time Sunday afternoon with a full class and a nice crowd of visitors considering the threatening weather.

Following Sunday School a committee was appointed to arrange a program by the chairman, S. A. Henley.

The following directors sang one song each. Mrs. Nettie Mims, Eula Culp, Callie Culp and Misses Lucile Culp, Gladys Jackson, Vergie Henley, Ora Dell Wilkins, Jeanette Mims, Ruth Williams, Ruby Cox, Susie Huett and Master Albert Headley.

We were indeed glad to have with us our teacher Prof. A. D. Huett and wife and other visitors from their community.

Last but not least we had Prof. Boswell of Cooper with us, who very interestingly sang one song.

We especially invite all singers and lovers of music to come and be with us.

Thousands of Americans Are Earning Their Living From The Railroads.

Yet their names do not appear on the railroads' payrolls. General prosperity comes and goes as the railroads make or fail to make money.

Look at these figures and you will probably have brought home to you more forcefully than ever before the danger of the enactment of any destructive form of railroad legislation.

One miner out of every four gets his entire living from the railroads.

Three out of every ten men employed in the steel mills are supported exclusively by the railroads.

The railroad is the only visible means of support of one-fourth of those employed in the lumber industry.

Of every 100 gallons of crude petroleum produced in America, wells, the railroads purchase 11 gallons.

Think of the importance of these four great industries to America. Read the above figures again; and remember that when the railroads prosper, everybody prospers.

No Privacy These Days

A flapper and her best boy were seated alone together on the sofa, listening in for the first time with the latter's new wireless set. Nor did the fact that both of them were wearing their headphones prevent them from snatching an occasional kiss. Just as they were in the middle of one particularly long drawn-out embrace came the title of the next song: "Take Those Lips Away." "Oh George," gasped the girl, as she drew back blushing. "Oh, George, they can see us!"

A Resume of the More Important Events of Interest Condensed To An Epitomized Form.

Evidence of the activity of the state law enforcement department was furnished in the report of Chief McAdory for the month of August, submitted to Governor W. W. Brandon. The report showed a total of 305 arrests during the month, destruction of 144 stills, 79,850 gallons of beer, 1,480 gallons of whiskey, 105 gallons of wine and 1,411 bottles of home brew. Twenty-six automobiles, one house boat, one mule and one wagon were confiscated during the month. Of cases made by the state officers tried during the month, 158 resulted in convictions, 16 were not prosessed and 13 acquitted. Cash fines assessed amounted to $17,968.80, while expenses of the department were $8,833.27. A total of 14 prison sentences were imposed. Of the arrests, 56 were for distilling, 6 for possessing a distillery and 134 for violating the prohibition law.

Judge Ben D. Turner, of Chatham, of the first judicial circuit, has been appointed by Chief Justice John C. Anderson of the supreme court to preside at trial of a legal action involving title to certain property in Mobile county to be utilized in the Mobile airport development. All Mobile circuit judges are out of the city. The hearing will take place on Sept. 26 in Mobile. The appointment was made at the request of the state docks commission. The property in controversy is that upon which the tracks of the L. & N. Railroad Company will be located, when they are moved from their present location to make room for the docks development.

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Junior Chamber of Commerce of Anniston, it was decided that it would be impracticable for the Junior Chamber to attempt to stage the county fair, which had been planned for several weeks without the protection from circus and other tent show competition by the city council. Formal action was taken to stop all activity pertaining to the fair after the directors had expressed their keen disappointment at the failure of their plan to materialize and the failure of the council to pass the circus excursion ordinance.

After wandering about for the best part of a year, Dewey Wynn, escaped convict, was recaptured at Phenix City, in the same county where he was convicted On April 8, 1921. Wynn court, of grand larceny and sentenced to from 2 to 3 years. In 1922, he made his first escape but was apprehended within a short time. On Jan. 30, 1923, he and another prisoner, Howard Ivey, Tuscaloosa county convict, made their escape from Speigner prison. Ivey was taught in May of the same year and returned to prison.

The Alabama Conservation Association was organized at the Exchange Hotel, in Montgomery, with E. F. Allison, of Bellamy, first president. Other officers of the association chosen at the night session, which took the form of a banquet, were R. J. Goode, of Gastonburg, Wilcox county, first vice president; Dr. W. B. Holmes, of St. Clair county, second vice president, and John M. Goudelock, of Jefferson county, secretary and treasurer.

The oldest store in Walker county still in use is at Marietta, according to Jim Ryan. It is a heater which was brought to South Lowell by Col. Woolhouse 50 years or more ago and has been in use ever since. It has been owned and used by the Masonic lodge at Marietta for a number of years. It is not known how long this heater had been used before it was brought to Old South Lowell in 1872.

C. A. Cary, state veterinarian, was elected president of the Southern Cattlemen's Association at the closing session of its 15th annual convention, at Montgomery. C. B. Heineman, of Atlanta, Ga., was elected secretary. The treasurer of the association for 1923 was chosen as the convention city for 1926.

High Producers Wanted

The breeding of high-producing standard-bred poultry is increasing in importance, because the market for that class of stock is growing at a rapid rate. Poultry culture is getting on a better basis than it was a few years ago when plumpage and fancy points were regarded as of greater value than capacity to produce eggs. That poultry should conform to established standards with reference to color, conformation, type, etc., is just as necessary as ever.

A business deal that included the transfer of large bodies of timber to the south and west of Tuskegee has been closed. The Sinclair & Ridenhour Lumber Company, of Harris county, Ga., bought all the Segrest Milling Company interests at Liver pool and now are moving five sawmills from Georgia to their timber near Tuskegee. This company will operate about 10 sawmills and will run something like 25 trucks to put the lumber on the market. The Mitchell Lumber Company has started to place timber on the plot of ground selected for its new plant, and in a few days 100 men will be employed in the erection of the houses and the construction of the mill foundation. Already a crew of men is busy opening the right of way for a track from the Rich plantation to the mill site at King's Ridge, on the Eufrasia Creek.

Paving of the streets of Haleyville has been started in the main section of town and will include the two main highways of the town before the project is completed. The Muscle Shoals Construction Company has been paving under construction, and is to have the work completed within 120 days. Curbing is to be also laid. City Engineer P. H. Hamner, of Sheffield, is in charge.

The erection of a 40-room apartment house on University avenue, near the state university campus, is nearing completion. The new building is being erected by John Burchfield at a cost exceeding $40,000. The new structure will be the first apartment house of any size to be erected in Tuscaloosa. It is being built especially to care for married students at the university.

Mrs. D. C. Rosier was fined $102.50 in the Bessemer mayor's court for violation of the prohibition law. City Officers Charlie Williams and Andy Eubanks made the arrest. They testified they found 100 gallons of beer, two gallons of whiskey and six gallons of wine at her home in Thompson town.

Boss Henderson was acquitted in the Shelby county circuit court for the killing of Tom Brown, in September, 1923. The jury's verdict sustained the plea of self-defense. In a previous trial, Henderson had been given 10 years. The case was reversed by the supreme court.

Grady Heaton, 12-year-old son of James Heaton, is lying in a local hospital with a hattered right arm and an ugly gunshot wound in his right side as the result of the accidental discharge of a double-barreled shotgun in the hands of his 14-year-old brother, Norman.

The public service commission cancelled a hearing, scheduled for September 16 to hear complaints of Bessemer, Ala., citizens of alleged excessive water rates. It was understood that agreement was reached with the Alabama Power Company for reduced rates.

Castleberry farmers have found a new use for their surplus calcium arsenate, which they bought to poison the boll weevil. They are using it now to kill grasshoppers which have been playing havoc with strawberry foliage.

SUFFERED MANY YEARS WITH FEMALE TROUBLE PE-RU-NA LIKE A GIFT FROM HEAVEN

Mrs. Katie Scheffel.
R. F. D. No. 5, Lowell, Ohio

"I have been suffering for years with female trouble. Was operated on five years ago. It relieved me some but I did not regain my strength. Two years later was taken sick and bedfast several months. I treated a long while without much relief. I was discouraged, my mind affected, so nervous I could neither eat or sleep and unable to do anything. We tried several doctors but one after another gave up my case as hopeless. Finally a good friend advised me to try Pe-Ru-na. I did. It relieved me almost immediately. Your medical department said I was suffering from chronic catarrh of the system. I began taking your medicine in March, 1914, and continued until August. I took ten bottles of Pe-Ru-na and three bottles of Man-a-lin and felt like a new person. Your medicine seemed like a gift from Heaven. It was like coming from darkness into light."

"We have used your medicine since for coughs, colds and grip with good results. We will always keep it on hand. I weigh twenty-five pounds more than I ever did, eat and sleep well and can do a good day's work. Everybody says I look fine. Even the doctors are surprised. I cannot thank you enough and will always recommend Pe-Ru-na to sufferers from catarrh."

MRS. KATIE SCHEFFEL

R. F. D. No. 5, Lowell, O.
Mrs. Scheffel is only one of many thousands of women in the world, who owe their present health to Pe-Ru-na. The record of this medicine is a proud one as Pe-Ru-na has held the confidence of both sexes for fifty years or more.

If your trouble is due to a catarrhal inflammation in any organ or part of the body, do like Mrs. Scheffel. Try Pe-Ru-na. Insist upon having the original and reliable remedy for catarrhal conditions. You won't be sorry.

Quaint Bell Superstitions

For many years it was believed that the ringing of bells dispelled thunder. Records of English churchwardens occasionally have reference to this idea. In those of Sandwich, dated 1464, an item is set down for bread and drink supplied to "ringers in the great thundering." Many and various were the ancient offices of bells. According to some monkish compiles the mottoes of a chime, one bell says, "Men's death I will, by forceful knell"; another, "The winds so fierce I do disperse"; and a third, "Lightning and thunder I break asunder." Rural bell ringers often have a great affection for their bells, and in the superstitious way of their fathers ascribe to each some special virtue.

YOUR DAUGHTER'S HEALTH Mothers of Ailing Daughters, Attention

How Two Mothers Helped Their Daughters by Giving them Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Every mother possesses information of vital importance to her young daughter, and the responsibility for the girl's future is largely in her hands.

When a school girl's thoughts become sluggish, when she suffers the consequences of wet feet, pain, headaches, fainting spells, loss of sleep and appetite and is irregular, her mother should have a care for her physical condition and give her Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which has proved a reliable aid to nature for just such conditions in so many cases.

First Bottle Helped Her

Richmond, Indiana.—"I am sending this letter to tell you how much good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did my daughter. She was troubled with nervousness so that she was restless at night, and then she could not sleep and she was afraid of everything. She could not work as she was not strong enough, and she had to quit school at 14 because she was ill so good at all. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's advertisement in our paper, telling all that the Vegetable Compound had done for other women, so I said, 'We will try it out and see what it does.' She had not taken the first bottle before it began to help her, and we will always say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the best medicine she ever took."—Mrs. E. DAREY, 611 N. 16th Street, Richmond, Indiana.

what it does." She had not taken the first bottle before it began to help her, and we will always say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the best medicine she ever took."—Mrs. E. DAREY, 611 N. 16th Street, Richmond, Indiana.

An Ohio Mother Reports

Columbus, Ohio.—"When my daughter became 14 years of age she was ailing very much. The doctor gave her medicine, but she was very weak, and he always had to write excuses for her as she could not attend the 'gym' classes, and I often had to keep her home from school. I had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for my nerves and run-down condition, so I gave her three doses daily, and also Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine. Our friends are surprised to see how fine and tall she is getting and how well she is. I will gladly answer letters and give you a fine recommendation for other mothers."—Mrs. MARIE MIELKE, 814 Eber Street, Columbus, Ohio.

Over 100,000 women have so far replied to our question, "Have you received benefit from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?" 98 per cent. of these replies answer "Yes." That means that 98 out of every 100 women who have taken this medicine have been helped by it. For sale by druggists everywhere.

Mrs. Roy's negro cook, who went home every night the moment she had washed the dinner dishes, often forgot to come back in time to prepare breakfast the next morning.

"Sara," said Mrs. Roy one day, "every time you fail to come and get breakfast I shall take off a quarter from your wages."

For a few mornings she came in early. Then one morning she did not appear until ten o'clock.

"Look here, Sara," complained Mrs. Roy. "I had to fix breakfast again this morning."

"Well," returned Sara indignantly, "ain't Ah payin' you foh it?"—Everybody's Magazine.

A PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR

WHEREAS, the Legislature of Alabama, at a session held in 1923, has ordered an election by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which is herein set forth, to be held at the general election in November, 1924, and WHEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment, is required by law to be given by proclamation of the Governor:

NOW, THEREFORE, I, William W. Brandon, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that at the general election in November, 1924, an election will be held for the vote of the qualified electors of the State of Alabama, in the manner, form and places required by law, upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, viz:

"Proposed Amendment No. 290. Mobile County may become indebted and may issue bonds for the construction or improvement of concrete or better than concrete surfaced public roads, and concrete or better than concrete public bridges in said county, and for the construction of bridges and roadway necessary to provide a public road for vehicular travel between the highlands of Mobile and Baldwin Counties, in an amount not to exceed six and one-half per centum of the assessed value of the property situated in Mobile County. To pay said indebtedness and the interest thereon, Mobile County may levy and collect an annual tax on said property not to exceed one-half of one per centum of said value. The indebtedness, the bonds and the tax authorized hereby shall be in addition to those authorized by the Constitution of Alabama prior to the adoption of this amendment. But no such additional indebtedness shall be created, and no such additional bonds shall be issued, and no such additional tax shall be levied, until each improvement of construction proposed shall be built thereby, its approximate location, estimated cost and time of completion, and the amount of the proposed increase, shall have been determined upon and made public by the Board of Revenue and Road Commissioners of Mobile County, and the proposed increase of indebtedness or issue of bonds or tax therefor shall have been first authorized by a majority vote by ballot of the qualified voters of Mobile County voting upon such proposition."

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the State to be affixed at the Capitol, in the City of Montgomery, on this, the 8th day of August, One Thousand Nine Hundred and Twenty-Four.

A PLEASANT SURPRISE

The following much appreciated letter, with its spot cash enclosure, reached us Tuesday morning and was not only a great surprise, but a most highly gratifying expression of confidence in our paper.—Editor.

Clanton, Ala., Sept. 22, 1924
Chilton County News:

Having heard that one of the old line democrats of our town stopped taking the News because of its position in the City election, I take this method of making good that loss.

Enclosed please find $11.00 and a list of eleven NEW subscribers for the paper.

There is game in which I saw a looser but in which 7 and 11 are both winners. I have scored both in my list of new subscribers and hope they will help the News in being a winner. Your friend,

O. O. ROPER.

Erasmus said of the reformation that broke Rome's power: "Europe arose with the New Testament in her hand." Go to Sunday School next Sunday.

A MAMMOUTH STORE

To look in at the front of the store building being fitted up on Second avenue for the Chilton Hardware company, is a sight. It looks like almost a day's journey from the front door to the rear.

It is being splendidly fitted up all the way through, and will give this hustling hardware house a mammoth place in which to handle their wares. Mr. O. W. Jones, the genial manager, tells us that his firm expects to open up, as soon as the building is complete, a stock of hardware there that can not be surpassed anywhere.

A BEAUTIFUL JOB

To all of the older citizens of Clanton the recent cleaning up and renovating of the cemetery is indeed a happy change.

The city authorities took the matter in hand, and Mrs. N. A. Kicker, who is a real artist when it comes to cleaning up and beautifying a place, volunteered her services free to go down and direct and superintend the job.

It is completed now and the result is almost magical. One can hardly realize that beautiful and clean "city of the dead" as the former city cemetery. We all are grateful to the authorities and, especially grateful to that big hearted lady who so nobly devoted her splendid services to the care of our sleeping loved ones.

MRS. ELLISON BETTER

Mrs. F. A. Ellison, who was operated on last Thursday at the Central Alabama Hospital, is recovering nicely now.

Mrs. Ellison was in a very serious condition and had to undergo about two weeks treatment before being able to stand the ordeal of such a serious operation.

Our good friend, Mr. Wm. Walker, of Maplesville, was in Clanton last Saturday. He has quite a reputation as a teacher of girls and young ladies in the art of horse back riding.

SOUNDS LIKE RETRIBUTION

Last Monday morning just about dawn, in Birmingham, that alleged bootlegger, Harvey J. Walker, was shot and killed by an officer whom he and a partner had waylaid all night for the purpose of beating him up.

This is the same Walker who ruthlessly run in to a car in which Mrs. Si Watkins was driving and turned the car over and killed Mrs. Watkins, a few weeks ago up near Jemison.

There is sometimes when it looks like a Higher Power steps in and metes out justice where human tribunals have failed.

At all events, this man Walker will not murder any more innocent women in his mad career of crime on earth.

FOOT BALL FRIDAY

The C. C. H. S. foot ball team locks up with the fast eleven of Sylacauga on next Friday.

The C. C. H. S. has one of the best and fastest teams in Central Alabama this season and it is hoped by them that the foot ball fans of Clanton will go down Friday and see this game as it will be worth while.

This team has invested quite a good deal in uniforms and etc. and will need the support of the fans to help pay expenses.

So come on Friday afternoon and see this team perform and you will not regret it.

Jesus said: "It is written, man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceeded out of the mouth of God." Be sure to attend Sunday School next Sunday.

RADCLIFFE CHATAUGUA COMING

This well known educational and interesting organization will be in Clanton now in a few days and they promise an exhibition of a very high class kind.

They will be here on October 6, 7 and 8, giving two performances each day and changing the program daily. The price of admission will be reasonable and all lovers of a good clean and instructive program, interspersed with music and fun, will do well to attend.

Don't forget the date, October six, seven and eight.

WEIGHT SUPPER

The social Club of New Salem church will have a Weight Supper at the home of Ernest Porters, near Thorsby, next Saturday night, Sept. 27. Chicken, sandwiches, salad, cake, pie, tea and coffee will be served. Proceeds will go to the church.

COL. J. O. MIDDLETON

It is currently rumored in Montgomery that Col. J. O. Middleton, of our town will be appointed assistant United States district attorney to assist Col. Grady Reynolds.

That will give Clanton two Federal appointments under the Coolidge administration.

Mr. J. B. Crane, of Route 3, was in Clanton one day last week attending to business.

BAPTIST SUNDAY SCHOOL DAY

On Sunday Sept. 28 there will be a Special Service at the Clanton Baptist Sunday School to which every church member and every parent in Clanton is earnestly invited to come.

The officers and teachers are especially anxious to meet you all at Sunday school at least one time during the year.

For the sake of yourself, your children, your community and your God can you afford to fail.

Be present at 9:15 a. m. and you will never regret it.

Let's fill the church.

Mrs. Grady Broadhead, Mrs. G. C. Harris, Miss Bettie Mullins, W. A. Calloway, W. B. Corley, Publicity Committee.

THAT BAKERY A FACT

As we announced last week, a real jam up Bakery is going to be opened up here, in a day or so, at the old Post Office building next to the railroad.

Definite arrangements have been completed and just as soon as the necessary equipment, which is already bought, arrives and can be installed, the Bakery will open up.

We hope the people in Clanton will take right hold of this business and give them a patronage that will keep them with us. We need a good bakery.

A REAL CITIZEN

In conversation with Mr. Guy Higgins the other day we got a new insight into his local pride and interest in Clanton.

For a number of years he was the foremost lumber dealer of this section, operating a large number of mills contiguous to our town and running a big planing mill here also.

Finally, the timber supply got too far away to haul here, so he moved his mills to new territory and established planing mills at Thorsby and Billingsley.

Of course, this was a loss to Clanton, but here is where Mr. Higgins shines. He still maintains his central office here and it is a sight worth seeing to witness the large number of his employees that assemble at his office every Saturday and draw their pay.

Although the work had to be moved away, the main feature to us is that "pay day" is still here and our tradesmen still get the benefit of this trade. Mr. Higgins is still in the lumber business up to his neck and is booking orders for a million feet in a lump.

It is to be hoped that Clanton can keep men like Mr. Higgins interested in business here and induce others to come in and help swell our pay rolls.

Mr. R. C. Hand, of Route 5, made us a most pleasant call last Saturday.

BAPTIST W. M. S.

The women of the W. M. S. of the Baptist church wish to extend a cordial invitation to all interested in this cause.

Quite a unique way has been derived for drawing the members for the circles for another year.

A beautiful Pageant of clear thought and deep spiritual insight illustrating the title "Our Dreams Come True" will be put on at the church on Tuesday, P. M., Sept. 30 at 3:30.

A treat is in store for all who attend as the pageant has been very tastefully worked out by Mrs. J. H. Hall and is a subject so vitally a part of that cause for which she has patiently and faithfully labored during the two years of her wonderful leadership and we feel that it is not only a child of her brain but the child of her heart as well and therefore expresses that only touch of love which draws us closer to the work of the Master.

This Pageant will be beautifully depicted by the girls of the Young Women's Auxiliary whose efforts we should feel it our duty to encourage. MRS. HAYES

David said: "Thy word is a lamp unto my feet and a light unto my pathway." Please be at Sunday school next Sunday.

NOTICE

The State Capitol Sacred Harp Singing Society will hold its semi-annual singing at the Court House on October 5th, beginning at ten o'clock. The Sacred Harp Singers have been meeting at the State Capitol for the past eight years, and the attendance has grown at each convention. We are anticipating a great day, and all lovers of Sacred Harp music are especially invited to come and bring books.

The good ladies of Montgomery assure me that there will be a good dinner on the ground. Come early and avoid the rush.

W. B. ALLGOOD,

LEST WE FORGET

The officers and teachers of the Baptist Sunday School, ending next Sunday, have most faithfully and efficiently served us and our children for another year.

During that time many of we grown up and older people have left the job entirely up to them while we remained at home and read the papers.

Now, as their years service is ending they are anxious to see how many grown people there are, of that congregation who are willing to come out next Sunday, 9:45 and let them know by your presence, that you have approved of and appreciated their work.

Can you afford to stay away? Will you treat their faithful service to you and your child with indifference? Come out and make their hearts feel good.

EPWORTH LEAGUE ORGANIZED

On Sunday September 21, the boys and girls of the M. E. church, met at the church and organized the Epworth League. The following were elected as follows:

Officers

Epworth Era Agent.
Epworth Era Agent—Loris Calloway.
This League was organized by Mrs. C. C. Wilkerson. It meets every Sunday afternoon at 4:30.

The Officers and Teachers of your Sunday School want to see you at least once a year. Meet them at Sunday School next Sunday at 9:45.

NO ROOM FOR BITTERNESS

While the recent city election was quite a hot contest, it was waged among friends and now, that the votes have been counted and the result is settled, its time to make that election merely a memory of the past.

The best of friends may differ in their religious, political or social deals, but that is no reason n the world for them to entertain bitterness towards each other.

This election was merely a friendly contest, waged between friends and one side had to win. It is over now and the matter fairly settled and, as we see it, no good citizen of Clanton, who is loyal to his town, can afford to harbor any feeling of resentment or dissatisfaction.

Let us forget any disappointment we may have felt over the result and get right behind the bunch elected and give them the support and encouragement that emanates from a united spirit, working first, last and all the time for the benefit and up-building of our town. We want to see prosperity reign no matter who rules.

WELL WORTH READING

THE BIBLE

The Bible contains the mind of God, the state of man, the doom of sinners, the way of salvation and the happiness of believers. Its doctrines are holy, its precepts are binding, its histories are true and its decisions are immutable. Read it to be wise, believe it to be safe, and practice it to be holy. It contains light to direct you, food to support you and comfort to cheer you. It is the traveler's map, the pilgrim's staff, the pilot's compass, and the soldier's charter. Here paradise is restored, heaven opened, and the gates of hell disclosed. Christ is its grand subject, our good its design, and the glory of God its end. It should fill the memory, rule the heart, and guide the feet. Read it slowly, frequently, prayerfully. It is a mint of wealth, a paradise of glory, and a river of pleasure. It is given you in life, will be open at the judgement, and be remembered forever. It involves the highest responsibility, rewards the greatest labor, and condemns all who trifle with its holy contents. The Sunday school teachers selected

MORE BUILDING

One of the cleverest young married men of our town is Mr. L. C. Ross.

He has faith in the future of Clanton, and is going to build him a home out on second avenue as a testimonial of that faith.

The plans are already drawn and preliminary arrangements have all been made and work will be started on this home right away.

Mr. Ross is connected with the old established and popular dry goods emporium known as "Elmore's". Clanton is glad to see such worthy young people making their arrangement to be permanent citizens.

PUSHING AHEAD.

The city street force, under the direct management of Engineer Pentar, are pushing ahead with the sidewalk work on West second avenue.

There is hardly anything that can be done that adds so much to the convenience and looks of a town as a systematic sidewalk service. It also adds greatly to the value of the adjacent property and is an unparalleled inducement in bringing in more people.

Clanton has grown to be a big city and it is necessary to keep step with our growth in furnishing the accessories that go with city life.

OPERATION ADVISED FRIEND SAID "DON'T DO IT!"

Try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound First.
Proved Good Advice

Chicago, Illinois.—"Just a few lines to let you know what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. I was married going on for three years, and went to a doctor and was taking treatments twice a week for pains every month. I used to lie in bed three or four days with them and the doctor would call and inject some into my arm to put me asleep so I would not feel the pain. At last she said I would have to be operated on if I wanted any children. Well, I just happened to go to see a friend with her first baby and I told her I was going to the hospital, and she said, 'Don't do it! You go and get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and you won't need any operation.' So my husband got me a bottle right away. Now I have two lovely children. Believe me, I recommend the Vegetable Compound to any woman I know has any kind of female trouble. It has helped me and a lot of my friends."—Mrs. A. McANDLESS, 1708 S. Morgan St., Chicago, Ill. ## CHAPTER XVIII—Continued.

Wells paused. Recollection shook him. The needlessness of it all, the utter pain of the soul and body which had followed a girl's selfish thoughtlessness and a man's equally selfish carelessness. His finger nails bit against the arms on which they rested. Had the hands been exposed all would have seen his agitation; at it was, no sign was visible; Wells' voice was steady, monotonously cadenced, his eyes blank of expression.

Each of the listeners sensed that this handsome Japanese was withholding something. All were silent. Alberta shivered. Williams' eyes blinked uneasily, then opened wide with satisfaction. The Japanese was furnishing testimony even as Williams had testified as to Wells' downfall. Sanderson made no motion; it was as if he heard nothing. Ellen's eyes were carefully veiled from Wells—she thought of a lonely man, and was almost sure that she knew who that man was.

"It is a dreary tale, but if it is permitted I will continue. The man was sorrowful, but—how do you say?—unrepentant. 'I was thrown out like a poodle sent to capture a fox,' he told me. 'They must have known what would become of me.'"

"God help me, so I should, so I should," Sanderson muttered. "My poor lonely lad."

One of Wells' finger nails, more brittle than the rest, snapped with the sudden pressure.

"Here is my name," he said to me, giving me a bit of paper. 'In this envelope I received a message from the girl I was to marry. She told me that she never wished to see me again. That envelope I have already sent you.'"

Sanderson's heavy brows drew closer to his eyes. Berta wrote that—and yet he had kept the damning photograph from her. She couldn't have known—why, then—she turned toward her: "You didn't tell me you had written Bob?" he accused. "Or that you had heard from him, although I asked. You should have told me."

"It is doubtless a matter of small importance," Wells interrupted slowly. He could feel the palms of his hands moist against his arms, and hoped that his forehead was not beaded also. "It is a great thing that the man did."

"How did you have him buried? A missionary of his own faith?" Sanderson asked.

"I buried him with full ceremonies. Every honor was given him. As I considered that he had suffered much, and wished recompense for him, I recited the holy prayer, only used in my family for those certain to reach the heavens: 'Salve vultu tuo. Amara vultu tuo.' That, honored sir, says, Go forward, straight to the place thou seest before thee. It is to be hoped that the place which the dead man saw was not heated, as your missionaries say! Yoh! the village still speak of these honors, and marvel at them. Never was a white man given such honor." This was also true. Wells thought. "There was the great funeral procession, he thought of the two servants and himself climbing the Jim Road of the Angel Men, 'which wound its way up the cemetery, rested hill by the light of paper lanterns. Look! I show you the van, dead gleam like the shimmer of glow-worms on black leaves! The long train of white-robed women, of white-robed, white-girdled priests. A troop of ghosts. A procession of souls. If the dead man did not attain happiness after that, what hope would there have been even if I had summoned missionaries?"

There was pain in Sanderson's eyes. Visible pain.

Very gently, Wells added an afterthought. "Some day later three missionaries entered my village," (true again!) "and came to see me. I spoke to them of the matter, not telling them any details, since it is well known that missionaries do not understand worldly affairs. Doubtless they made incantation over the grave."

"You have been very kind," Sanderson told him tonelessly. "He—Bob, my nephew—would have done the same for you. He was a gentle lad."

"So. After the ceremonies had been completed, I returned to my house. My honored father, now happy at the rest of the soul, had many papers which I had not investigated since becoming his successor. I did so now. There were many rolls of paper to examine. I found two things which amazed me, since I had heard from the white man that he had been an engineer at Fushiki. So amazed was I that I must do honor to his grave again, by decking it with the white flower of the shikimi, and placing upon it sections of bamboo filled with seawater, since the man had come from across the sea."

He paused. Oriental enough. Now for unadorned facts again.

"Where was I? He drew his brows together, stimulating forgetfulness. 'As I remember. Of my father's papers.' Wells took from the sleeve of his kimono two five-paper documents and spread them slowly on the table, caressing the crackling folds.

"In going over my papers," Wells continued, his hand flat upon the papers he referred to, "I discovered an amazing thing. It seemed that this man Wells had been unfaithful to his employer."

Williams settled back into his seat. For a moment he had been frightened. Sanderson would never forgive that. The names were similar as to letters; each had a "w," two "l's" and an "a." Old Marakito must have mixed the names up, or this Japanese had been confused.

"With all Bob did, I never expected that of him," Alberta murmured. "That he should stoop so low, after all you've done for him, Uncle Sandy!"

Wells patted his finger-tips together.

"I had forgotten one thing else, that I must mention before continuing. He told me a story of a girl whom he had loved, and who—so he said, I am certain—would love him no matter what he did. He laughed about this. He found it amusing."

"Aren't you glad we found him out?" Alberta said to Sanderson. "I knew it all along. That's why, when Ray wanted me—"

"This man said," Wells went on, "that the girl loved him because—"

Alberta sat erect: could Bob have guessed? "because he had a way with him that women could not resist?"

Alberta cuddled back in her chair. The Japanese Kayama had given her an instant's fright.

"Shameful!" Williams ejaculated. Ellen found in Wells—in Kayama—something that made her skin move and prickle; he was putting all ways, but, so she felt intuitively, had claws sharpened to scratch from behind their padded sheaths. She did not see to what purpose he was driving. It was not clear. She strove for hidden meaning in his words, but was unable to discern any.

Wells could see that he had relieved any tenseness in Williams and Alberta. He had been unable to resist causing them a moment's uneasiness. Now, well—

He turned to Williams. "To return to the papers. Here," holding one of them up, "here is a receipt. It is with exceeding regret Remember that Mr. Kayama is our guest, Ray," Sanderson said slowly, painfully. "I—I do not understand it all. Alberta, if this story is true, you have cost me my boy. Ray, if you sold your soul for money I pity you—if the story is true—but if you let my Bob go to the devil, his old hands become fists, 'if you did—out of this house and out of my life, both of you—and yet,' he faltered, 'I see but one thing. Bob's gone, the only one who could tell us. Bob's dead.'"

"You don't know that he is!" Williams snapped. "This fellow wants the reward. He has a cock-and-bull story, without a shred of proof. That envelope; he might have taken it from Bob, or found it. The cuff links he probably saw on Bob. And the stuff he brings to prove that Bob was abused by Alberta and me! It's silly and idiotic. He hasn't presented a bit of proof. Not a silver. Nothing he probably wrote the thing himself! If Bob's dead, you," to Wells, "where's the body? I don't believe you have it. And what you say about me is a d—d rotten lie."

Wells rocked back on his heels. Every instinct said, "Smash him!" Why wait longer? His eyes swept about the room, half unconsciously, lit upon Ellen. If he did, if the climax were now, she would know now, and he wanted to tell her many things when they were alone. He had played a part for months. He could hold it for a minute more. Williams would feel his foot soon enough.

"If only Bob were back," Sanderson muttered again. "If I had his word for all this, just his own word for it—"

"I have brought his word, Mr. Sanderson," Wells said, lifting his shoulders in a gesture that said plainly that all of this was amusing to him but lacking in interest.

"You lie again," Williams shouted. "If you have such a paper, it's a forgery."

Defining Poetry

Here is Stéphane Mallarmé's reply to a query made by Vogue in 1886 as to the definition of poetry. "Poetry is the expression in the language of mankind, brought back to its essential rhythm, of the mysterious meaning of the aspects of existence; it gives authenticity to our sojourn on earth and constitutes its sole spiritual task." Jean Moreas replied to the inquiry with twelve interrogation marks. Paster excused himself. Joseph Caracul wrote that "poetry is the art of saying banalities in an eccentric way," and an unknown writer called poetry "the attempt to express the indefinable."—From Le Figaro, Paris.

Lesson for September 28

REVIEW — OPENING PERIOD OF CHRIST'S MINISTRY.

GOLDEN TEXT—For God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life.—John 3:16.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Things to Remember about Jesus.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Early Events in Jesus' Life.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Lessons of Jesus' Childhood and Early Ministry.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Opening Period of Christ's Ministry.

Two methods of review are suggested:

1. Have the pupils go over the quarter's lessons and bring in reports which will picture Jesus as to His deity, pity, courage, devotion, etc. This should be assigned the week before and the reports should be written out clearly and distinctly and restricted to a certain number of minutes, according to the size of the class and time allotted for the review.

2. The Summary Method. This consists in a statement of the principal facts and leading lessons. The following suggestions are offered:

Lesson 1. That which Micah the prophet foretold some 700 years before and Gabriel announced to Mary and Joseph took place in Bethlehem and was made known to the shepherds. When the shepherds had investigated they went back praising the Lord and telling the good tidings to others. Those who hear the Gospel must tell it to others.

Lesson 2. Though Jesus Christ was the Son of God, therefore divine, and had taken upon Himself the human nature, which the Holy Ghost had created, He developed as a normal human being.

Lesson 3. While Jesus was absolutely sinless, He submitted to baptism, which is a sinner's ordinance, because He took the place of sinners. It was an act of dedication of Himself to the task of bringing in a righteousness which was accomplished on the cross of Calvary.

Lesson 4. Jesus was led into the wilderness by the Spirit to be tested by the power and subtlety of the devil in order to demonstrate the reality of the union of the human and divine natures—in order that man might have a real foundation upon which his faith might rest in order to be saved. Christ met and defeated Satan by the use of the Scriptures.

Lesson 5. When John the Baptist pointed out to his disciples the Lamb of God, they left him and followed Jesus. When they came to know Him as the Messiah, they brought others to Him. The natural thing for one to do who has found Christ is to bring others to Him for salvation.

Lesson 6. Marriage was ordained by God and the first wedding was sanctioned by His presence. Jesus Christ, who was hourly about His Father's business, set a mark of honor upon the man's life by gracing this marriage feast with His presence. The Redeemer of man thus lifted the ordinance of marriage to its proper dignity and beauty. The design was to show the divine glory.

Lesson 7. When Jesus, the Lord of the temple, found it defiled, He drove out the money changers and the sellers of doves. To use the Lord's house as a place of merchandise is to pollute it. Because He was zealous for God He could not rest while God's house was misused.

Lesson 8. Though Nicodemus was a man of high station, a ruler among the Jews, even a religious teacher, he needed to be regenerated before he could see the Kingdom of God.

Lesson 9. Because Jesus' supreme business was to seek and to save the lost He "must needs go through Samaria" to save the immoral woman who came to Jacob's well.

Lesson 10. Sickness of the nobleman's son brought him to Jesus. Because the nobleman believed Jesus he had the joy of seeing his son alive.

Lesson 11. Jesus' habit was to go to God's house to worship. While in the synagogue He read and expounded the Scriptures. It was not only His custom to attend God's house, but to take part in the worship.

Lesson 12. Though Jesus was divine He needed the solitude for the renewal of His strength in communion with His Father.

CARTER BROTHERS CLANTON, ALABAMA

Personals

Mrs. J. W. Wilbanks spent the last week end as the guest of Mrs. J. M. Martin.

Mrs. A. P. Turner, of Maplesville, was a pleasant caller at our office Saturday.

Mrs. J. H. Mann, of Birmingham, was the week end guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Marlar on route 1 last week.

Mr. J. J. Pilkinton, of Route 1, paid us a most agreeable call last Saturday.

Our good friend, Mr. L. M. Rowell, of route 4, took time to pay us a pleasant call last Friday.

Mr. E. D. W. Shirley, route 4, was among the large number of good Democrats we saw here last Saturday.

Mrs. W. T. White and Mrs. Arthur Lerroy, of Maplesville route 1, were shopping in Clanton last Friday.

Mr. W. F. Gilliland, route 2, was a pleasant caller at the News office last Saturday morning. Mr. Gilliland is one of the progressive farmers on route 2.

Mr. J. W. Sisk, one of those successful farmers out on Route 7, was selling cotton in Clanton Saturday. He is a hustler and always makes a good crop.

Mr. Hoyt Bonner, a promising young man who came from Roanoke to Clanton and is engaged in selling aluminum ware, made a business trip to Birmingham last Saturday.

Rev. W. S. Cox spent several days last week in Birmingham looking after important business matters for the Farmer's Co-operative Union. Bro. Cox is a 100% American citizen.

Dr. C. C. Wilkerson, the popular and hustling pastor of the First Methodist church here, gave his hearers two well prepared sermons last Sunday full of good counsel and spiritual food.

Mr. W. N. Burke, of Birmingham, spent several days last week on route 7 with his brother, Mr. J. A. Burke, a successful planter. Mr. W. N. Burke was prominently connected with the Kilby administration as an official manager at Spigener.

Mr. C. W. Toliver who holds quite a lucrative position with the L. & N. railroad being connected with the agency department, was here last Saturday spending the day with our highly esteemed and worthy citizen, Mr. Malley White. Mr. Toliver is located in Birmingham.

Prof. Stanly N. Davis, route 6, was in town Monday attending to business affairs. Prof. Davis is a live wire in the school room and does whatever he started, well. Few young men in Clanton have more warm friends and admirers than Prof. Davis.

Mr. J. E. Calloway went down to the Capital City last Saturday morning and came back on number 10 in the afternoon bringing a planing mill back with him in a sack. The scripture says, "Seeing is believing." We know Mr. Calloway did this for we saw it with "our own eyes." So from now on this efficient blacksmith and wood workman will not have to plane his lumber by hand.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Stroud, of Union Springs, came up Saturday and remained over until Monday with Mrs. Stroud's parents, Judge and Mrs. J. W. E. Gullede in South Clanton. Monday they accompanied their daughter, Miss Julia, to Montevallo where she began her college career. Mr. Stroud owns the leading hotel in Union Springs and is also, and has been, in charge of the soil survey of Alabama for several years.

James Wade is now a student of the Alabama Military Institute at Anniston. He is a son of our progressive citizen, Mr. J. Q. Wade. James is an apt and industrious boy and we are glad to see him get an early start to become a well educated man.

Miss Sara Mullins left Monday to become a student at Alabama College in Montevallo. Miss Mullins is a capable young lady and we are expecting her to measure up above the average in this noted Alabama College. In neatness, efficiency, and accuracy during her career in the grammar school Miss Mullins stood at the head of her classes.

Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Gibbons have recently moved from Minooka to Thorshy. Mr. Gibbons is now working at Cooper instead of Minooka having been displaced by the L. & N. at Minooka. Mr. and Mrs. Gibbons will add one more excellent family to the already good citizenship of Thorshy.

Mr. Thilo Feiring of Chicago, was the guest of his brother-in-law, Mr. B. F. Edwards, last Saturday and Sunday. We are glad to have Mr. Feiring visit our little city and we can vouch for his honesty, integrity, and citizenship by his relatives and friends in Clanton county and Clanton.

Mr. C. C. Jones, of Jonestown, was in Clanton Saturday. Mr. Jones is a brother of Messrs. B. L. Jones, and Buford Jones. The former having served one term as sheriff of Chilton and the latter having been for several years a member of the Board of Registrars of Chilton. They are all genuine Democrats and sinners pure American citizens.

MRS. DUNCAN DEAD

Mrs. Duncan, an aged inmate of the County alms home, died Monday night after a long illness and was buried Wednesday morning at Jackson Chapel, Rev. Dock Wells officiating.

"Silent Cal" is still holding his peace. "Hell Maria" is out in public again and has taken back most of the hot stuff he put out before the managers called him in. He has undergone a change of heart and loves the Ku Klux Klan now.

With seven constitutional amendments to vote for, and the name of three sets of presidential electors all on the tickets for the November election, a fellow ought to have at least a week in which to fix his ticket.

The vote in Texas, Oklahoma, Maine, Georgia and South Carolina have been eye openers to the average politician. Neither of these states did the expected thing. The people are beginning to do their own voting and the politicians, who live by the sickness of their tongues are in trouble.

A PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR

WHEREAS, The Legislature of Alabama, at a session held in 1923, has ordered an election by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which is herein set forth, to be held at the general election in November, 1924, and

WHEREAS, Notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment is required by law to be given by proclamation of the Governor;

NOW THEREFORE, I, William W. Brandon, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that at the general election in November, 1924, an election will be held for the vote of the qualified electors of the State of Alabama, in the manner, form and places required by law, upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, viz:

"The County of Mobile, through its constituted governing authorities, may levy and collect for public school purposes a rate of taxation, on the property situated therein, not exceeding in the total of any one year, one-fifth (1-5) of one (1) per centum of the value of such property as assessed as provided by the Constitution of Alabama and the statutes now or hereafter enacted pursuant to the said Constitution of Alabama, which said one-fifth (1-5) of one (1) per centum shall be in addition to taxes levied and collected under and pursuant to the authority of Section 215 of the Constitution of Alabama of 1901, and taxes levied and collected under and pursuant to Article XIX of the Constitution of Alabama of 1901 which Article XIX was added to the said Constitution by amendment; and existing laws attempting or purporting to authorize, empower and direct the said constituted authorities of the County of Mobile to levy and assess such a special tax in addition to the taxes levied and collected under and pursuant to Section 215 of the Constitution as aforesaid and taxes levied and collected under and pursuant to Article XIX of the Constitution as aforesaid, are hereby validated and confirmed."

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great Seal of the State to be affixed at the Capitol, in the City of Montgomery, on this, the 8th day of August, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-four.

(Seal) WM. W. BRANDON, Governor.
By the Governor:
S. H. BLAN, Secretary of State.

NOW THEREFORE, I, William W. Brandon, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that at the general election in November, 1924, an election will be held for the vote of the qualified electors of the State of Alabama, in the manner, form and places required by law, upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, viz:

"The municipalities of Thorshy, Piedmont and Greenville, and Roanoke and Greenville, and Florida, Florida and Opp, Evergreen and Fayette, and Clayton and Clio in the State of Alabama, shall have the power and right to levy and collect a tax of one-half of one per centum in any one year for the purpose of paying bonds or indebtedness issued and outstanding at the time of the adoption of this amendment and the interest thereon, an additional tax of one-half of one per centum may be levied and collected by said corporations provided further, that a majority of the qualified electors of any of said municipal corporations voting at an election called for that purpose may vote a special tax not to exceed one-half of one per centum in any one year for any special purpose or purposes, which tax shall be used only for the purpose or purposes for which same is levied and collected; provided, however, that the total tax to be levied by any of said municipal corporations shall not exceed one and one-half (1 1/2) per centum in any one year. Alabama City shall have the power and right to levy and collect a tax of three-quarters of one per centum in any one year on property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation. Provided, however, that the adoption of this amendment shall in no wise affect, limit, modify, abridge or impair the power, authority or right of either of said municipal corporations to levy and collect the special school tax now or hereafter levied or conferred upon them, or any of them, under the Constitution or any amendment thereto, including the power of the City of Selma to levy and collect the tax for schools and school purposes vested in and conferred upon said City of Selma by the amendment to the Constitution of Alabama adopted thereto at the general election held in November, 1916, and which was submitted under law Number 345, General Laws 1915, page 337, each election held under the provisions hereof shall be ordered, held, canvassed and may be contested in the same manner as is or may be provided by the law applicable to the municipal corporations for elections to authorize the issuance of municipal bonds. The ballots used at such election shall contain the words:

for the year (or years) ———— "and
Against ———— excess rate of taxation for the year (or years) ————
The rate of taxation proposed in excess of the rate of one (1) per centum to be shown in the blank space provided therefor and the year or years in which the proposed rate is to apply to be shown in the blank space provided therefor, and the event different excess rates are proposed for different years the words mentioned shall be repeated as often as may be necessary to show separately the different rates proposed to be applied to the respective years. And the voter shall record his choice, whether for or against the excess rate or rates shown by placing a cross mark before or after the words expressing his choice. Nothing herein contained shall in any wise change or affect the rights of any holder of bonds or municipal corporations heretofore issued. Elections to authorize the levy of such special tax may be held as provided by the governing body of the municipality but when a proposition is submitted to the electors to levy a special tax for a specific purpose, and such proposition is defeated no second election for the same purpose shall be held in any one year thereafter."

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great Seal of the State to be affixed at the Capitol, in the City of Montgomery, on this, the 8th day of August, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-four.

A PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR

WHEREAS, The Legislature of Alabama, at a session held in 1923, has ordered an election by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which is herein set forth, to be held at the general election in November, 1924, and

WHEREAS, Notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment is required by law to be given by proclamation of the Governor;

NOW THEREFORE, I, William W. Brandon, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that at the general election in November, 1924, an election will be held for the vote of the qualified electors of the State of Alabama, in the manner, form and places required by law, upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, viz:

"Section 14-1-3. No person who honorably served in the Military or Naval service of the United States between January 1, 1917, and November 11, 1918, shall be required to pay the poll tax mentioned in the Constitution of Alabama; such persons shall be exempt from the payment of all poll taxes which have accrued or may hereafter accrue. This section shall be self-executing and retroactive. The Judge of Probate shall issue certificates of exemption from the payment of such poll taxes to the persons entitled thereto under such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the Governor."

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great Seal of the State of Alabama to be affixed at the Capitol, in the City of Montgomery, on this, the 8th day of August, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-four.

Why do they abuse the Klan so much for opposing the Catholic church? The free masons and all protestant churches do the same thing.

Some of the first promoters of the bobbed hair craze are now having to have their hair cut to keep their mustache and chin whiskers from being too prominent.

The question is, who will Congress nominate for President if the matter is finally left up to them. Charley Bryant seems to be the one most likely to be named now.

Several people have told us they would not be able to send all of their children to school this year on account of the high price for books. Still, we call it a free school.

A learned judge of the Alabama Supreme court admitted to us once that the present school system was not worth a darn but said it was the only one we had and we were forced to stick to it.

That great Benoit-Fational organ, the Alabama Christian Advocate, also reprints the speech of Mr. Underwood, made in Rockland, Maine, when he wantonly misrepresented his home state.

During the inflated war period a dollar bill almost entirely lost its social status. But that day has passed now, and the old dollar bill is becoming an honored and cherished guest again in the average family.

During the last three years all of the decent, respectable citizens of Chilton county have turned against the filthy, musk-raking style of campaigning. In the respect at least we have made wonderful progress.

For the first time in the history of our country it is claimed that the death rate is equal to the birth rate. No wonder, either, these new mothers we are raising up do not have time to raise babies, and the auto speeders and drunks are adding more than the world war to the death rate.

Most vocational training in schools that will turn out boys and girls truly trained for some business in life, would be wonderful but one merely turned loose with a high school course in books, is not as well off as the one who has mastered a trade or business. The fellow who can do things right is the one who succeeds.

THE PRESIDENTIAL RACE

We notice this week that the La Follette-Wheeler ticket has been officially entered at the State department and the names of their electors will be included on the Alabama ticket in November.

They have also opened state campaign headquarters in Birmingham and promise to put on a real hot fight in democratic Alabama from now on till the finish.

They have now in operation campaign headquarters in 48 states and are proposing to preach their gospel in all of this broad area.

This will mean a larger vote for that party than most people seem to anticipate, but it will be so widely scattered that it will mean nothing towards this election. To get an electoral vote he must carry the state.

The republican party are extending their fighting line from the mountains to the sea board and from ocean to ocean. They will have plenty of money to back them up and they will thoroughly comb the country for votes. If they do not win, it will not be on account of a lack of energy, effort and hard work.

Under ordinary circumstances, that party would have a terrible load to carry in explaining to the people about the Tea Pot Dome oil steal and several other very shady administration deals that have disgraced the Harding Coolidge regime, but, for some inexplicable reason, their opponents have allowed themselves to be fooled in to making the Ku Klux Klan the paramount issue and are not playing up the real issues with which they could have won.

From the day the great democratic party allowed the politician of New York to buy the national convention until now, it looks like their idea has been to either foster and care for one particular faction, or to go down in defeat.

The very poorest political behavior that we ever saw exercised in any campaign has been used by the democratic leaders this time from the very first. They either did not wish to win, or else they have managed to get entirely out of touch with party sentiment.

The real democratic party founded upon the Jeffersonian principles of self government is one of the greatest and most complete systems of government by the governed that has ever been devised. As such the people have trusted it for years and still trust it, but these freakish invocations that are being made by some of its leaders, are building up a spirit of uncertainty in the minds of a good many good and true democrats, and they are doubtful as to where we are drifting as a party.

There is no doubt but what the south will maintain its proverbial solidarity in the November election and send its 186 electoral votes up for Davis and Bryan, but we fear our majorities will be greatly reduced and a foot hold gained by our opponents in various southern localities that have always been absolutely safe.

It must also be remembered that La Follette and Coolidge are going to hotly campaign the South while Davis is relying on our historical position and is paying no attention to us or our interests.

This is going to be a year of political surprises to a great many people and some of the greatest of those surprises may happen in the South—Texas.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE

Whereas Ralph Calloway and wife Geneva Calloway, did heretofore execute and deliver to Selma Trust & Savings Bank, a corporation, their mortgage, dated October 17, 1923, and recorded in the Probate Office of Chilton county, Alabama, in Record Book 194 at page 440 to the record of which reference is here made to the contents thereof; and whereas default was made in the payment of the debt secured by said mortgage, and such default continuing it did declare the entire principal debt together with the then earned interest to be immediately due and payable, and default being made therein and such default continuing, notice is hereby given that action to the power and authority given in said mortgage, said Selma Trust & Savings Bank will on Friday the 10th day of October 1924, within the legal hours of sale in front of the courthouse of Chilton county, Alabama in the town of Clanton offer for sale and sell at public out cry to the highest bidder for cash, the real estate and other property conveyed in said mortgage and which is located in said Chilton county, Alabama and described as follows, to-wit:

What is the Value of the Railroads

In order that the reader may have a clearer idea as to the real value of the railroads, and whether or not legislation should be enacted which would reduce their valuation, to the great detriment of the carriers, the following figures are presented:

| There are approximately 400,000 miles of track, including switches and side tracks. It is certainly not unfair to figure the value at $20,000 a mile. This gives a total value of about $8,000,000,000.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | $8,000,000,000  |
| There are about 1,000,000 freight cars. The value of them at $20,000 each, the 6,000 in use, the 400,000 in reserve, the 400,000 in the last two years have cost on an average of about $60,000 each. Per freight and $50,000 each for passenger, totals                                                                                                                                                                                      | 2,100,000,000    |
| There are nearly 2,000,000 freight cars. Each car costs at $1,200 each, the average cost of a freight car is about $1,200. This would total                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | 2,400,000,000    |
| There are some 100,000 passenger cars, each valued at only $10,000 each, all these cars, freight and passenger, 2,000,000 each would bring this item to                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | 2,000,000,000    |
| These four items of railway and equipment give us an extremely conservative valuation of $12,500,000,000. Yet they do not take into consideration many important items, chief of which are as follows:                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |                  |
| Value of terminal yards, often located on highly valuable city property—of all stations, roundhouses, shops, terminal freight and passenger stations, general office buildings, coalless section houses and other buildings—of all equipment employed by the railroads for maintenance, such as work cars and locomotives—of all telegraph and telephone lines and other communication facilities—of the value of these communication facilities | 4,120,000,000    |
| Bringing the total valuation to not less than                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | $20,000,000,000 |

The tentative valuation of the railroads at the end of 1919, was found by the Interstate Commerce Commission to be $18,900,000,000. This valuation was based on cost and prices up to 1914, and therefore includes no war-time inflation of values. The subsequent investment of nearly $2,000,000,000 makes the valuation for rate-making purposes more than $20,000,000,000.

With the above figures before you, do you consider a reduction to $13,000,000,000 in the valuation of American railroads, now being attempted by certain interests, fair; or does it not appear to you that such a confiscation of values would, in effect, be a denial to the railroads of their chief means of keeping pace with the development of the country?

Five full tickets, including candidates for mayor, president of the council, eight aldermanic places, chief of police and city clerk have been nominated for the Boy Scout election, by the Rotary, Civitan, Kiwanis, Axis and Business and Professional Women's Clubs at Gadsden. The candidates for mayor are Melvin Brod, Herbert Rosenblum, Walter Murphree, Arthur Hardin and Sam Brooks. The successful one will have full charge of the city government for one day, Oct. 4.

Alabamians turned on on National Defense Test Day in a manner which surpassed estimates of their performance, according to figures furnished by Major S. C. Phelps, regular army instructor of the 31st Infantry division. Figures compiled by Major Phelps for submission to corps at headquarters showed a grand total of 66,991 persons participating in the parades and assemblies, exclusive of spectators, which exceeded the estimation by about 7,000. The number of one-day volunteers in particular was ahead of what was anticipated for the day.

Announcement of the arrival of $300,000 at Mobile as the first proceeds from the $10,000,000 port bond issue, the expenditure of over $30,000 for property owned by John T. Cochran and the Mobile Shingle Company, and needed by the state for port use, and the decision of the First National Bank to sell its one-ninth interest in water front property at the appraised price, has been made by the state docks commission.

Permission has been granted by the Alabama Securities Commission to the Montgomery Loan and Savings Company to sell $100,000 of its common and preferred stock, selling price $25 a share, par value, $20. The commission also granted permission to the Morgan Plan Company, of Mobile, to sell 850 shares of common stock, par value, $20 a share, selling price, $25; also 1,650 shares of 8 per cent cumulative, participating preferred stock, par value, $20; selling price, $25.

Floyd D. Kellum, manager of a collecting agency in Tuscaloosa, has been lodged in jail there charged with threatening, in the name of the Ku Klux Klan, to run certain debtors of the agency from Tuscaloosa unless they paid. He was arrested, it is said, on warrants issued on information obtained by the Klan. A number of threatening letters were sent through the mail, it is said.

Dr. W. S. Seymour, superintendent of the Baptist Hospital, will reach Selma soon to take charge. Dr. Seymour, with his wife and two children are from San Antonio, Texas, where he has been pastor of the Baptist Church of that place. Dr. Seymour, before going to Texas, had charge of a prominent church in Montgomery and left for Texas on account of the health of a member of his family.

I. Vanierstyle, campaign manager for the Baldwin County Kiwanians, who have assumed the task of raising a fund of $30,000 for the State Normal School at Daphne, is making visits to the several towns and communities in Baldwin County. At a recent meeting at Bohemia a large crowd was present and pledged its active support. Meetings have also been held at Bell Forest and several other places.

The Athens College for young women was opened with a good attendance and many yet to enroll. Invitation has been extended to Gov. W. W. Brandon by the city commission of Birmingham to deliver the formal address at the opening of the auditorium on Sunday afternoon, Oct. 19, according to information at the city hall.

Eight men were arrested in Montgomery when state law enforcement officers raided two stills in Shelby County. Nine hundred gallons of beer and 32 gallons of whiskey were destroyed.

Morgan County Kiwanis Club members at a recent meeting discussed plans for aiding school children who need assistance to remain in school this year. Several reports were made on cases which are thought worthy and plans made to render such assistance.

In the proportion of counties of the state with fully organized county public health units, and in the percentage of people served by public health organizations, Alabama is second in the United States.

Certificates of election and award of a contract for construction of a new storm sewer were the principal subjects of business before the Albany council at its regular meeting. The official tabulation of ballots cast last week, in the election, showed little change from the unofficial count. The council awarded to C. E. Malone the contract for construction of the new storm sewer on Sixth Avenue, West.

The State Normal School of Jacksonville, was opened with a very large enrollment and more students are arriving on every train.

Robert McCormick, who was locked up at Gadsden on a warrant sworn out by his wife, Mrs. Allie McCormick, charging him with non-support, has been released when it became apparent that he is unable to work. The man had a convulsion after his arrest and another soon afterwards. Sheriff Leath reported the incident to Judge Gilliland, who ordered the man released and ordered Mrs. McCormick to take him back to their old home in Marshall County and nurse him back to health.

Further proceedings in the Alabama Power Company's application for the extension of the availability of the service transportation D have been postponed by Alabama Public Service Commission until Nov. 5. This classification carries rates for feeding and lighting service which it is proposed to extend to domestic consumers. Objection to the application has been raised by the Tri-City Gas Company, of Gadsden, and the Huntsville Gas Company, of Huntsville.

Denial that she was lured from her home at Anniston has been made by Myrtle Bland in a letter published in Anniston Star in reply to a report from Gadsden a few days ago to the effect that J. O. Haynie and his brother had been jailed on a charge of luring Miss Bland from her home. The girl declared that neither men had anything to do with her leaving home and that she left of her own accord.

The Tusculum fish hatchery now has close to 200,000 minnows. Seven cans of fish have been received from the government hatcheries, including bass, rainbow trout, blue gills and croppies. Game Warden Dr. G. W. Brown has received notice that the sun fish he recently asked for will be shipped soon.

W. J. Buffington, former well known resident of Gadsden, has been surrendered by his bondsmen in a prohibition case, having been brought to Gadsden from Tuscaloosa. On his arrival he was served with two warrants, charging him with passing worthless checks, one at Birmingham and one in Newton County, Miss.

By a compromise agreement between counsel representing the two parties, an increase of $15,000 in the real estate assessment valuation for taxation of the Anniston City Land company has been made, ending a suit which was being tried in circuit court here between the State of Alabama and officials of the land company.

That Joe DeMarco, young white man held at Anniston on a charge of using obscene language in talking with a girl, is abnormal and not responsible, is the opinion expressed by Dr. E. L. Curles, local physician, at the trial of the youth in circuit court here. DeMarco will be sentenced or freed by Judge S. W. Tate next week, it is announced.

Mrs. Kate Stephenson, of Danville, was given a judgment in the circuit court at Decatur for $3,000 against Mrs. Euria Stephenson, her mother-in-law, in a suit alleging alienation of the affections of Mrs. Kate Stephenson's husband, a son of Mrs. Euria Stephenson.

The Tuskegee Normal Institute opened with about 1,800 students registering. Dr. Moton is confident that he will have a student body of 1,400 when all the late comers have registered. This opening compares favorably with the openings of other years.

A group of 150 radio fans at Selma will attempt to form an organization at an early date to adjust interference from local sending stations and to standardize the methods of operating sending stations will be the chief aim of the club.

After Sheriff Blair and Deputy Sheriff Leath and Reed had arrested F. D. Moore, a traveling salesman at Cedar Bluff, on a charge of carrying a concealed pistol, residents of the town swore out a warrant charging Deputy Reed with the same offense, and the sheriff arrested him.

An explosion of naphtha and other chemicals used in asphalt flooring in the department store building of the Beal and Brothers Mercantile Company at Greenville, which is in course of construction, caused a disastrous fire recently, with a loss of approximately $25,000.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It

Applicants for Insurance Should Use Swamp-Root

Judging from reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has been very successful in overcoming these conditions. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of success.

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview of the subject, made the astonishing statement that one reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large. However, if you wish first to test this great preparation, send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing, be sure and mention this paper—Advertisement.

A PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR

WHEREAS, the Legislature of Alabama, at a session held in 1923, has ordered an election by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which is herein set forth, to be held at the general election in November, 1924, and WHEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment, is required by law to be given by proclamation of the Governor:

NOW, THEREFORE, I, William W. Brandon, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that at the general election in November, 1924, an election will be held for the qualified electors of the State of Alabama, in the manner, form and places required by law upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, viz:

"Proposed Amendment No. 290. Mobile County may become indebted and may issue bonds for the construction or improvement of concrete or better than concrete surfaced public roads, and concrete or better than concrete public bridges in said county, and for the construction of bridges and roadway necessary to provide a public road for vehicular travel between the highlands of Mobile and Baldwin Counties, in an amount not to exceed six and one-half per centum of the assessed value of the property situated in Mobile County. To pay said indebtedness and the interest thereon, Mobile County may levy and collect an annual tax on said property not to exceed one-half of one per centum of said value. The indebtedness, the bonds and the tax authorized hereby shall be in addition to those authorized by the Constitution of Alabama prior to the adoption of this amendment. But no such additional indebtedness shall be created, and no such additional bonds shall be issued, and no such additional tax shall be levied, until each improvement or construction proposed to be built thereby, its approximate location, estimated cost and time of completion, and the amount of the proposed increase, shall have been determined upon and made public by the Board of Revenue and Road Commission of Mobile County, and the proposed increase of indebtedness or issue of bonds or tax therefor shall have been first authorized by a majority vote by ballot of the qualified voters of Mobile County voting upon such proposition."

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the State to be affixed at the Capitol, in the City of Montgomery, on this, 8th day of August, One Thousand Nine Hundred and Twenty-Four.

BUSINESS OUTLOOK BRIGHT

It is evidently a fact that when the wholesale man is doing a big business and making good collections, the balance of the business would be in good shape and doing well.

If the retail merchants had no buyers they would need no goods, and it is needed no goods the wholesale man would have no market.

Business is an endless chain that reaches back and gets its motive power directly from the consumer.

If the ultimate consumer is in hard luck, the operation of this endless chain is impaired because the great source of its power is crippled and it can not function properly without power.

So, you see how it is when the whole sale man is satisfied and his business is flourishing, it necessarily follows that the general public is in good shape and that the business outlook is all right.

Well, this week we called on several of our wholesale men to feel their pulse and take their temperature.

To our great delight we found them all wearing broad grins and looking like they were actually in love with the whole world.

Without a single exception they told us that their trade was never better than at this time and that collections were absolutely satisfactory.

They are certainly selling a wonderful amount of goods for their great loaded trucks are constantly going and coming and all kinds of merchandise is moving in great quantities.

As the advanced cotton season is already far gone this buoyancy in business goes to show that our people are not loaded down with debts they could not meet this fall.

A general good feeling pervades in business circles all the way from the plow handles to banks. Every body is wearing a satisfied smile and the future looks bright.

By safe and conservative spending, this fall farmers can make the next crop on practically a cash basis.

THE UNITY ASSOCIATION TO MEET

On next Tuesday and Wednesday, October 7 and 8, the Unity Baptist Association will convene with the Samaritan church in its regular annual session.

Samaria, you know, is situated just about one mile west of town and is so easy reach for us all to attend, so lets go out and help them, by our presence at least, in making this session a success.

Every church in this Association is expected to send delegates and will do so if they discharge their duty. It is earnestly hoped that each church will be represented.

ANOTHER HOME

Mr. G. O. Foshee, one of the life long citizens of our town, is having erected, on East second avenue, an ideal home in which he has embodied his own individual ideas in regard to what a house must be to afford him the comfort and satisfaction he desires.

In several particulars it will be unique and modeled to conform to what he wants. It is going to be a lovely home and an added adornment to that part of town.

PROMOTION DAY

Next Sunday begins the new year with the Sunday School at the Baptist church. In fact, October 1st, begins the ministerial year in all of the Baptist churches affiliated with the Southern Baptist Convention.

This being true, on next Sunday all of the organized Baptist Sunday Schools begin their new year by the installation of the officers and teachers elected for the ensuing year, and also by the promotion of all the students who have completed the course in one department and are prepared for promotion to a higher grade, or class.

On account of this fact, it is especially urged that every pupil and teacher be present ready to cooperate in the exercises of this new year service.

Most of the old teachers have been selected and some new ones added to the roll, so that the School will always be able to give the most efficient service and amply care for the rapidly growing membership.

Don't forget this important occasion and make your arrangements now to be on hand promptly at 9:45 next Sunday morning.

Every young man and lady, every boy and girl and every parent, who can possibly arrange to do so should make it a rule to attend their Sunday School every Sunday morning. Vacate the streets and fill up your churches.

A COTTON SWINDLE

There is a campaign being put on by a gang of swindling brokers in New York to fleece the southern cotton farmer out of his money.

They send out literature proposing to make you rich by dealing in cotton futures.

Last year they scooped in $5,000,000 by this scheme.

You are fairly warned now so don't bite at any "future" proposition you get from them.

MOVED TO CHILTON

Mr. A. J. Lecroy and family have recently moved from Coosa county to Chilton locating near Jonestown. Mr. Lecroy is a son of Mr. Lecroy who moved from Coosa last year and bought land in Jonestown. We do not wish Coosa any harm, but we would like to have 500 more citizens of this type come into our midst.

A GREAT TURN OUT

Although the weather last Sunday was very inclement and rain was falling, the good folks of Clanton rallied wonderfully to the invitation of the Sunday School Officers and teachers of the Baptist school and a great turnout was given them.

It was, perhaps, the largest attendance the school has ever registered at just an ordinary Sunday School meeting and the hearts of those faithful workers there were made glad indeed and they wish to extend their thanks to the generous public and promise to strive harder than ever to give you real service in this great and important work.

CUT DOWN FORD for sale good condition, neat body and seats. Will sell for $40 cash. Can be seen at Chilton County News Office.

Non-Partisan Ticket

The Office Seeks the Man Clean, Honest Service Thereby Assured

In view of the fact that great dissatisfaction as to our local government has been for years one of the most unfortunate features that our county has had to contend with, the following non-partisan ticket has been selected, by an immense petition of citizens, as candidates to fill the respective positions for which they are named.

These gentlemen are all known by the people of Chilton county and need no endorsement by us. If you want clean, honest and non-partisan service you know these men will give it to you.

MR. ALLEN MIMS DIES

Last Sunday at 7 o'clock, Mr. Allen Mims, son of Mr. and Mrs. Perry Mims died at the home of his parents about 4 miles east of Clanton.

At 3 p. m. on Monday following the remains were buried, at the Temple cemetery, Rev. G. B. Golden, assisted by Rev. James Dubose, officiating at the grave.

The deceased was only 24 years of age and was well known throughout this section. His father, Mr. Perry Mims is a prominent and successful farmer in that section.

A mother, father, one brother and three sisters compose the immediate family who are so sadly bereaved by the death of this young man.

We, together with a large circle of friends, extends our sympathy to them in this sad hour.

Undertaker Martin was in charge of the funeral.

THE CHATAQUA

Remember that next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday are the days for the Radcliffe Chataqua to be in Clanton.

It comes to us recommended as an educational and highly interesting performance and, as such, it deserves the patronage and support of the good people who prefer decency to obscenity and vulgarity in their entertainment.

It has been brought here by the influence of some of the very best citizens of Clanton and we urge it to them to support their efforts for our moral uplift.

A GREAT SERVICE AT THE METHODIST CHURCH

Last Sunday night, the large and appreciative audience that assembled at the Methodist church were most certainly not disappointed.

A special service was put on and beautifully carried out. The subject was: "Going to Church." The program follows:

1. Song by the Intermediate League
2. Prayer—by V. J. Elnore.
3. Reading—"Are You" by J. D. Evans.
4. Reading—"Don'ts" for Church Members—by Reese Mullins.
5. Duett—by Jane and Helen Roberts.
6. "Reasons for going to church"—by Mrs. McDavid.
7. "Absentee Church Members"—by J. B. Atkinson.

This splendid program was carried out to its most minute detail, and every participant seemed to be in the spirit and deserve the unstinted praise and gratitude of the public.

Mrs. McDavid was especially earnest and impressive in the delivery of her most excellent address and many compliments were deservedly paid her.

Such services as these are to be highly commended and are of untold value to every community.

There is nothing in this world that is half so important as a study adherence to the principles put forth by the church, and we congratulate our good Methodist friends on this service featuring its importance. Too much work of that nature can not be done.

PAY YOUR SUBSCRIPTION

A TOUCH OF THE ELBOW

Any man who has ever been in battle knows the worth of alignment in the presence of the enemy. The fact that on either side he can feel the touch of elbow to elbow is an assurance to him that he does not have to fight the battle alone and is an inspiration which causes him to go forward. When the rain of shells and bullets begins to decimate the ranks and men are falling out as death wounds make gaps in the line he does not falter but close up so as to get a new touch of the elbow. One man does not make an army. And one man does not win a battle. It is in the united strength of numbers that victories are won. True, there are those in command who plan the order of battle and direct the movements of the army, but leadership would be of no avail if the rank and file should fail to obey orders and every man do his whole duty. This is a principle which applies to all organizations. Governments are made great by the faithful performance of work by those who stand in the discharge of the duties devolving upon them. A missing cog in a wheel will throw out of gear the machinery of a great factory. If conductors and engineers and all the rest of the train crew should desert their posts when the fast mail was under its schedule going toward its appointed destination, the plan of traffic would be disarranged and serious trouble be the result. In spite of the orders of those in authority every train on the road would be off its schedule and great loss would accrue. Lets think of this principle as it relates to higher things than the material. God has instituted His church has laid down the rules of service, has placed in authority those who are to lead and direct its affairs and says to every individual member, you are to follow in obedience to command. Not one can be a shirker or fail in the line of responsibility without damage to the cause. The Pastor of the church is God's appointed leader. He is the man at the helm guiding and directing in all spiritual affairs, and day by day giving himself, mind and heart and soul to the upbuilding of the Kingdom. The members of the church not only the officers, but every one whose name is on the roll are bound to stand by him in all the work he is so faithfully performing. The ones who fall out of line: the ones who forget their obligation, and who fail to do their duty are not giving to their chosen leader that moral support to which he is entitled, but is in large degree giving aid and comfort to the enemies of the truth. What is true of the church is also true of the Sunday School work. There is no opening for individual, personal work which gives to Christian men and women the chance to win souls to Christ and yet how many there are, who evade responsibility along this line forgetting that they are to work for God in the winning of souls. The honest confession of the fellow who gave as his reason for not attending the Sunday School that he "did not wish to show his ignorance" is, in some degree to be commended but how much better if he had gone to learn to know God's will. Three hundred and eleven were in the Sunday School at the Baptist church on last Sunday. Some who

Mrs. F. A. Ellison is rapidly recovering.
Bill Mahan is improving nicely.
Miss C. R. Mahan, who was operated on, will soon be home.
Archie Ratten, son of C. S. Ratten, who was seriously hurt by a loaded wagon passing over him, is doing better.
Posey Williamson, who was in the hospital has returned home.
Euerice, daughter of Mrs. Lula Jones who was kicked on the head by a horse, is much better.

OUR COMMON DUTY

No matter what your religious, fraternal nor political creed and affiliations may be, wherever you cast your lot and decide to live, it is your duty and to your very best business interests, that you lend your every effort and absolutely unselfish cooperation in trying to improve, build up and make better that locality.

We have nothing to do with what you believe, nor why you believe it, so long as your life is decent and does not become a pernicious influence for evil and a nuisance to your neighbors and a moral and legal disgrace, but we do say that you have no right to inhabit any town, community or locality when your every effort is put in trying to injure and hold back the progress of your section.

You may feel like that you have a right to sit back at your ease and make sarcastic and discouraging remarks about the efforts and energies being expended by your neighbors for the uplift and advancement of your community, but you are sadly mistaken. You have no such right and not only that, you are certainly a dishonest and harmful parasite if you adopt such methods, for you are taking advantage of every betterment brought about through the efforts of your neighbors and pocketing profits that you do not deserve and are not entitled to because you have been a real obstruction to the accomplishment of these very benefits.

Try to grow big enough as a man to be four square and not to deal in enmity and spite because all people do not see things through your glasses. Be a real 100 per cent man and always direct every ounce of your influence in building up your community, and in encouraging every movement that will enhance it in a material way, and make it better educationally, socially and religiously. It will make you friends here and brighten your prospects for the other world.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL Sunday School Lesson

Lesson for October 5

THE CHOICE OF THE TWELVE

LESSON TEXT—Matt. 10:1-42. GOLDEN TEXT—Freely have ye received, freely give.—Matt. 10:8. PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Chooses Twelve Friends. INTERMEDIATE TOPIC—The Twelve Apostles. ADVANCED TOPIC—Partners With Jesus in His Work. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Urgent Need for Full Time Christian Workers.

Having set forth the laws of the kingdom in the Sermon on the Mount, and His power to administer the affairs of the kingdom in the miracles of the eighth and ninth chapters, Matthew now sets before us the methods which the King adopted in the propagation of the kingdom. It should be clearly noted that this chapter does not outline the policy of missionary endeavor in this age. To teach it thus will be a grievous blunder. The following divisions of the chapter suggest the dispensational aspects of the lesson.

1. Instructions Bearing Immediately Upon the Apostles' Work to the Death of Christ (vv. 1-15).

In strictness of interpretation these teachings have no application to any later period.

1. The Ministers Chosen (vv. 1-14). These twelve humble men were chosen and commissioned to carry forth the work of the propagation of the kingdom. They were not commissioned with church truth. These twelve stood in a peculiar relation to Israel.

2. The Sphere of Their Mission (vv. 5, 6). They were to go only to Jews. They had no message for Gentiles, or even Samaritans. After Pentecost this sphere was widened. (See Luke 24:46-48; Acts 1:8). This would be a strange restriction to place upon ministers today.

3. Their Message (v. 7). "The kingdom of heaven is at hand." This meant that the promised kingdom of Israel was at hand, that Jesus Christ, the promised King, was present and ready to set up His kingdom if they were willing to have it. This differs widely from the message of the ministers today. After the church is translated, the same message will be taken up for a brief time by the remaining remnant. (See Acts 13:18-19; Rom. 11; Rev. 7).

4. The Supernatural Authentication of Their Mission (v. 8). They were clothed with power to work miracles. These wonderful works were really done by the twelve. Where is the minister today who is so foolhardy as to try to fulfill this?

5. Their Maintenance (vv. 9, 10). They were to make no provision for their support, but to depend wholly upon the Lord who sent them. They had received the message and power gratuitously, and they were to give it in the same way (v. 9). Happy, indeed, would we be today if we had more ministers who are willing to trust the Lord for their support instead of bargaining for a stated salary!

6. Responsibilities of Those to Whom the Message Was Delivered (vv. 11-15). Upon entering the city or town they were to inquire for a respectable place to stay. Into that home they were to bring peace. If the people would not receive them or hear their message, they were to pronounce judgment upon them, and the turning of the Lord from them was symbolized by the ministers wiping the dust from their feet when turning from the people who rejected their message.

II. Instructions Concerning the Testimony From Pentecost Onward (vv. 16-23).

After Pentecost, testimony for Christ would be fraught with great danger. Both Jews and Gentiles would assail the messengers with the most bitter persecutions. They were scourged in the synagogues before heathen magistrates. Instead of bringing peace to the homes they brought divisions of the fiercest kind among families. In their defense they were to rely upon the Holy Spirit to aid them. These conditions were literally fulfilled in the period from Pentecost to the destruction of Jerusalem. Since the fall of Jerusalem no one has ever been scourged in a synagogue.

III. Teaching Applicable in All Ages (vv. 24-42).

The disciple has the position of oneness with his Master. He is to courageously declare the whole counsel of God, though violently opposed, for so completely is the Lord identified with His disciples that He accepts treatment of them as treatment of Himself.

WOMAN WEAK DIZZY, FAINT

Found Relief in Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Always Recommends It.

Bridgeport, Connecticut.—"I was completely run-down, had headaches, dizzy, faint feelings and other troubles women often have. As I had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before, my husband said to take it again. I have now taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine, the Liver Pills, and six boxes of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Tablets. I am feeling very good now and shall continue taking them for a while. I have been telling my cousin about the medicine and she wants to take it, too. I always recommend it."—Mrs. Henry C. Smith, R.F.D. No. 3, Box 6, Bridgeport, Conn.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a splendid medicine for such conditions. It has in many cases relieved those symptoms by removing the cause of them. Mrs. Smith's experience is but one of many.

In a recent country-wide canvass of purchasers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, over 121,000 replies were received, and 98 per cent. reported they were benefited by its use. For sale by druggists everywhere.

Fish Frozen in Ice

It is said that there are authentic cases of fishes and frogs which have survived after having been hibernated in solid ice. However, fishes and frogs frozen in ice would not usually survive.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Important to All Women Readers of This Paper

Swamp-Root a Fine Medicine

Thousands upon thousands of women have kidney or bladder trouble and never suspect it.

Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease. If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

You may suffer pain in the back, headache and loss of ambition. Poor health makes you nervous, irritable and may be despondent; it makes any woman feel like a slave.

But hundreds of women claim that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, by restoring health to the kidneys, put them on the right remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Many send for a sample bottle to see what Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine will do for them. By enclosing ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., you may receive sample size bottle by parcel post. You can purchase medium and large size bottles at all drug stores.—Advertisement.

LITTLE ROCK OFFICER GAINS TWENTY POUNDS

And Recovers Strength by Taking Tanlac.

"Tanlac increased my weight 20 lbs. and left me feeling like a new man three years ago and I am strong for it," recently affirmed J. J. Hardcastle, a special police officer, 311 Poplar St., North Little Rock, Ark.

"Two years ago stomach trouble had pulled me down to where I simply felt all played out and miserable. I suffered so from gas bloating, pains and other uncomfortable symptoms after meals that I actually dreaded to eat anything. My nerves were all undone, too, and I had so little energy that I just had to drive myself to work.

"My improvement started with my first bottle of Tanlac and five bottles of the medicine put my stomach in condition so I can eat anything I want and all I want without a touch of indigestion. The medicine also set me right in a general way and I am glad to praise it to everybody."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

AN ADDRESS To The People of Alabama

—By—

Judge L. H. Reynolds

Chairman Republican State Campaign Committee.

How Long Will the People of Alabama
Continue to Vote a Dead Tradition and a Living Fear?

True Americanism Demands Repudiation of the Democratic Party and the Election of Coolidge.

TO THE PEOPLE OF ALABAMA

The election in November, 1924, will be the most important we have had in years. The voters have an unparalleled opportunity for genuine patriotic service. Our country is rapidly recovering from the effects of the world war, the most demoralizing the world has ever experienced.

Mr. Wilson insisted upon the program which he brought back from Versailles, stubbornly refusing to acquiesce in the changes proposed by the Senate and sponsored by the American people. On this issue, the campaign was fought out in 1920 and the Wilson policies met with a positive rebuke by the votes of the people.

Harding Administration

Mr. Harding, upon taking office in March, 1921, immediately began to devise ways and means to rejuvenate business, and to give stability to Europe. By the election of Harding, this country decided once and for all against entering the League of Nations. Four months after his inauguration, President Harding summoned the world powers to meet in Washington on Armistice day, 1921, to discuss the limitation of armaments and kindred subjects. This conference proved to be the most practical step ever taken towards the actual elimination of war. Six treaties were submitted and signed; practical steps were taken eliminating naval competition, thereby saving to the people of this country millions of dollars in the construction of war ships and other preparations for war. No other agency has ever contributed so much to the peace and contentment of the world.

Secretary Hughes has made wonderful strides in bringing about peace and understanding among the nations of the earth.

General Dawes

General Dawes, our candidate for Vice-President, with his associates, worked out a financial program which has been accepted not only in Germany, but all of Europe. This one accomplishment, within itself, is a complete and sufficient answer to all Democratic criticisms of the foreign policy of the Republican party. Political history records the fact that the Republican party is a party of construction and a friend of all the American people.

Democratic Party, One of Factions

The Democratic party is a party of factions and aims, of various ideas and inclinations, and this fact was forcibly illustrated at the last Democratic National Convention, where the biggest men in the Democratic party spent days and even weeks, forgetting the country's interest, wrangling and abusing each other, to their own and their country's injury.

The Republican party is united and believes in the policy of protection. The Democrats stand for free trade. Our country has never prospered under a Democratic tariff law.

Country Prospers Under Protection

The Birmingham district has advantages in minerals beyond that of any place on earth. Steel rails can be bought in Belgium and shipped to Birmingham as cheap as they can be produced in Birmingham district. But for the policy of protection advocated and pressed by the Republicans, the Birmingham district would not be able to cope with the Belgian producers and the result would be that the steel industry of Birmingham would be paralyzed, plants closed and thousands of workers thrown out of employment and the city of Birmingham wrecked by financial panic. What is true of Birmingham district is true of every section of our country and of every kind of business.

Our country is enjoying an unprecedented prosperity; capital is receiving a just return upon its investment; labor is employed everywhere at the highest peace-time wage yet known. Business of every kind is in a prosperous state, and all over the land is heard the busy hum of the whirling wheels of industry.

Does the country really desire a change in the administration of its affairs?

Coolidge, the Man of the Hour

When Calvin Coolidge succeeded to the Presidency, it can be truly said that the man and the hour met. The country is fortunate in having Calvin Coolidge to take the place of the loved and lamented Harding. The first act of Mr. Coolidge, upon being sworn in as President of the United States by his father in the little New England farm house in the sturdy hills of Vermont, was to announce that he would carry out the policies of his dead chief. Business men rejoiced at this proclamation, and the laboring people knew it meant continued peace and prosperity for them.

President Coolidge does not believe in government by any class; he does not stand for a government by any particular corporations, nor for a government by any particular localities, but he stands for a government of common sense, for all the people, and within the limits of the constitution.

A former distinguished Governor of Alabama has made famous the word "environment," and we do know that character is duly influenced by environment. It is interesting in the record to make character study of the three presidential candidates. The National Republican in a recent issue carried photographs of the faces of the three candidates. The Washington Agent of Laborists, the Socialist candidate for the presidency, looks as if it might have been built especially for the Kaiser, or some other crowned head of Europe. The ancestral home of John W. Davis, the Democratic candidate, looks as if it might have been built for Pierpont Morgan, or some other money baron of Wall Street. Then there is reproduced the little five-room farm house of Col. John Coolidge in Vermont, where Calvin Coolidge was born, and where he received the oath of office as President, administered by his father; there is also reproduced the unpretentious, humble cottage at North Hampton, the half of which for more than fifteen years was occupied by Calvin Coolidge as a home and for which he pays $33.00 rental per month. He lived in this apartment while Governor of Massachusetts, and he maintains it now, as President, as his home. Truly environment is a powerful influence. It is evident from the picture of these homes that the Socialistic and Democratic candidates by their environment are far removed from the common people of America—from those who earn their bread by the sweat of their brow. The environment of Calvin Coolidge, by birth and by inheritance, is such as to make him one with the common people. Reared, as he was, on a little farm surrounded by the rugged hills of Vermont, he has locked in his heart the interests and traditions of the common people, and they are his forever. It was here on this farm that Calvin Coolidge, already second in command of this great nation, was engaged in a farmer's toil when he received the sad intelligence that his great chief had fallen. It was here on this farm, within this humble farm house, lighted by the dim rays of a kerosene lamp, that this great man of the people became President of the United States, and assumed the leadership of the Republican party.

Democratic Party Stifles Education

The South, in spite of itself, has been made the beneficiary of Republican rule. The most pitiful thing in all political history is the slavery and serfdom of the South to the Democratic party; but the South pays the price by being fifty years behind the progress and advance of the other sections of the country. Time and space precludes any adequate discussion of the treachery of the Democratic party in Alabama toward the people. More than twenty years ago, the Democratic platform began to declare for better schools and longer terms. In a statement by Governor Kilby on April 13, 1922, we have figures showing money appropriations for schools as follows:

|                        |                 |
|------------------------|-----------------|
| From 1903 to 1906..... | $ 5,254,000.00 |
| From 1907 to 1910..... | 9,309,000.00    |
| From 1911 to 1914..... | 11,798,000.00   |
| From 1915 to 1918..... | 13,287,000.00   |
| From 1919 to 1922..... | 19,000,000.00   |

It will be seen from these figures that each succeeding legislature increased the appropriations approximately $2,000,000.00. The last was an increase of nearly $6,000,000.00. Has the length of the schools been increased in proportion to the increase in taxes? Mr. G. T. McEldey says in a letter Sept. 3, 1923, which was published, that 42% of the appropriations for education is for overhead expenses and increases in salary. In 1902 the average length of common schools was about four and a half months with from eight to ten hours per teaching day; now with the vast increase of money, we still have about four and a half months with about six hours to a teaching day, and sometimes three hours of this time is spent in athletics. And the parents of Alabama school children are now paying a most onerous tax—the excessive price of the required text books, and this evil has grown to such an extent that many poor parents are in the painful situation of keeping their children out of school because they cannot meet this outrage that is being heaped upon them.

The appropriation for the higher educational institutions has been increased about the same proportion as the common schools and yet it takes about two years longer to educate a man or woman now than ten years ago. Hon. Sidney J. Bowie was appointed in 1919 by the Governor to investigate the educational conditions of Alabama, and in his report he made the astounding statement, that there was more illiteracy in Alabama among the white people today than there was in 1860.

Democrats Increase Taxation

Our State taxes have increased about 300% in twenty years, and yet we do not get any more out of our government now than we did twenty years ago.

For the last sixteen years Democratic platforms have pledged the party to give the people relief from this excessive taxation, and each administration has pledged to abolish the tax gatherers. Although each administration was pledged to this reform, all they did was to change the name of the machine and increase its powers and make it possible to burden the people with greater taxes.

For years and years the Democratic platforms have pledged the party to take the convicts from the mines, but the convicts are still in the mines, and will continue there as long as the Democratic party remains in power.

A Dead Tradition and a Living Fear

Will the people of Alabama and the South never wake up to a proper realization of their political duty? Will they always be slaves to prejudice and the Democratic party? How long will they continue to vote a dead tradition and a living fear? For sixty years with characteristic faithfulness, the South has given its electoral vote to the Democratic party; during this time, two voting generations have passed into the great beyond, bowed and warped with faithful service to the Democratic party, and yet, during all this time, and now, the South has no more influence in the councils of the nation than if it were a mere province instead of an integral part of this great nation.

Paucity of Democratic Influence

Distinguished Democrats are without influence in national affairs. Southern statesmen, by reason of character and ability, are the peer of any, but the solid South constitutes a political barrier over which they cannot pass. The only hope of the South is to break up its solidarity and resort to the two party system. The Montgomery Advertiser in its issue of September 14, 1922, in an illuminating article on the "Statesmen in Alabama and Ohio," pointing out the number of Ohioans who were at that time occupying high offices, including William Howard Taft, Chief Justice of the U. S. Supreme Court, and Warren G. Harding as President, the Advertiser said among other things:

"But what we started out to say is that if Alabama occupied Ohio's position, not less than a dozen of our public men within the past 25 years would have been seriously considered for the presidency. We have produced the men equal in character, brains and leadership to the men who usually bid for the Presidency, men in fact who were, and are, equal to the best in the country. But with the exception of Senator Underwood we have not put them forward in Presidential years for the reason that they were politically unavailable, owing to their geographical situation.

The Price of Democratic Loyalty

"In a state like Alabama, when a Governor is nominated the best he can hope for is an ultimate promotion to the United States Senate, or a seat on the bench. * * *

"It is a big price which the statesman pays to live in Alabama. But of course there are unmeasured compensations for the deprivation. We could write two columns on that, but for the moment we are thinking only of the comparative Presidential prospects of the average statesman in Alabama and Ohio. Ohio produces no bigger men than Alabama, but it produces a greater possibility for candidates in national elections."

Action of Democratic Committee

And yet in the face of these conditions and in the teeth of this remarkable editorial, the Alabama Democratic Executive Committee a few days ago, passed a resolution providing if any voter in Alabama voted for any other Presidential electors in this election than the Democratic electors, such voter could not participate in Democratic primaries, nor counsel with the party for a period of four years thereafter. The Democrats know that their party robe is beginning to hang loosely all over Alabama, and they fear that if the voters in this election are given political freedom that they will vote for Republican electors.

The Women Voters

The women voters in Alabama have a great opportunity of service. Let them profit by the political serfdom of the men in our State, and not permit their hands to be manipulated by the political chieftains of Democratic slavery.

Republican Organization in Alabama

The Republican party organization in Alabama compares favorably with any other political organization. In 1920, from the Official Count, the writer polled 77,337, as against 154,666 for Oscar W. Underwood, for the United States Senate. We believe in the freedom of the ballot box, and the untrammelled right of franchise, to vote for whomsoever the dictates of conscience would direct, and the desire for good government would demand. And thus we open our doors to every voter, and extend to you the glad hand of welcome, even though you might have been expelled from the Democratic party, and we sincerely assure you and concede you the same freedom, without any penalty or punishment whatever. And should you become dissatisfied, or desire to vote for another candidate we gladly concede this right as being the salvation of good government, and we shall not brand you a traitor, but bid you God speed on your way. Truly no political party could offer less.

The President of the American People

Calvin Coolidge is president of all the American people; he favors no faction, sect or religious organization, and he denounces none. Being a Christian man, and an honest servant, he feels that the mighty and the low, the rich and the poor, should be governed by the same standard of justice and the same sense of honor.

A Plea For Patriotism

We plead for a patriotism in peace as well as in war. Let us not merely have that patriotism which burns in the souls of men only when their country is in the dangers of war, but the patriotism of good citizenship, in low places, high places, in season and out of season. Let us have the patriotism which moves men to make their country's welfare their highest business, and in times of peace interest themselves continually in the politics of their community. Good government is certain in no other way. What we need in this country is not less politics, but more attention to politics. There must be two great political parties in Alabama and the South and the nation, and both should be strong and virile. If a political party cannot stand for those things which will bear the severest scrutiny, it is not entitled to succeed and it will not endure. Let a political party determine its acts by how it can contribute most to the country's good. Let the individual membership give attention to party affairs, which is the one instrument through which all individuals can apply their patriotism.

Party Not Condemned by Individual Wrong

Occasionally a bad man will slip into office in either party, but the party as a whole for that reason cannot be condemned. A few years ago, a high Democratic official in Alabama, in broad daylight, walked off with one hundred thousand dollars of the people's money, securely packed in a pine box,—yet, it cannot be said that all Democrats in Alabama are bad simply because this one man proved to be a thief. Even now, an investigation is being made as to who stole the money in Birmingham,—yet, it cannot be said that all the people of Birmingham are dishonest because some one has gotten away with the money. But there is no zone of twilight in politics; right is right and wrong is wrong, and the same standard, righteous conduct, must obtain as in any private business or professional matter. With our politics entirely on this basis and living our patriotism daily, we will do a citizen's full duty, and not until then.

Republican Party, Party of the Future

The Republican party is the party of the future. It was born a national necessity, and from that hour has been a party of patriotism with its loyalty measured only by its possibilities. And now, with our eyes solely on the country's welfare, we will measure our steps by the movement of the new needs of the nation, continuing to be the instrument to apply to changing conditions, the wisdom of experience and the efficacy of honest, valiant service. With a determination for an execution consistent with our record squaring our performances with our promises we will proceed to the fulfillment of the party's mission under the leadership of Calvin Coolidge and Charles G. Dawes.

Citizens' Duty to Vote

The exercise of the right of franchise is the highest duty and noblest privilege that devolves upon the citizen. It is the duty of every man and woman, of voting age, throughout the length and breadth of this Union to qualify themselves for the privilege of the ballot; it is the solemn duty of every qualified voter beneath the flag to go to the polls on election day and exercise this privilege.

In conclusion, let me earnestly appeal to all Republicans to see that our friends go to the polls and vote, and make the most vigorous campaign we have ever made in Alabama, and I trust you will feel free to discuss and advise with me freely and frequently, in this campaign. If we can be instrumental in relieving Alabama from the disadvantages of one party rule, and thus advance our State industrially as well as politically, we feel our efforts will have been repaid.

Mr. Davis can say it plain when he wants to. Ask Ex-Secretary Daugherty.

Usually the person who wont work any where but in the lead makes an awful poor showing when you put him in front.

"Be loyal to your party in all things as long as it is right, but quit it when it is wrong"-Davis. That sounds American all right.

How many automobiles do you suppose would go up in smoke instantly if they should suddenly become able to talk?

Every honest man has an absolute right to his opinion and every other honest man respects him for exercising that right.

The causality list reported each week grows larger and larger in the auto accident list. Keep the battle up and we need fear no evil from a congested population in our land.

Did you ever notice that when any person concludes that he is absolute master of any calling his career is just about to close? Take the average auto driver for instance.

If LaFollette did not have that bunch of bolshevik socialists tied to him, he would poll a vote this time that would make the old parties set up and take notice.

Year by year the amount of the school tax money grows by leap and bounds. Year by year a primary education gets more and more out of reach of the poor man's children.

A man can't get any smaller than when he undertakes to bound down and injure every other man that refuses to look at life through his glasses.

When you get so small that you act like you thought every one who differed with you was a fool, you should crawl in a mustard seed and hide.

One unmistakable evidence of a magnified ignorance and an absolute lack of culture is to see a person who is always trying to "show off" what little they do know.

Loeb and Leopold got enough of the penitentiary in 10 days. They are calling on Attorney Darrow and the old folks to have them changed to a better place. They want to study and write some book.

Don't push yourself into the line, fight, and look for a continued stream of public adulation, and you will find that your popularity will increase and your services will be in constant demand.

Mark this prediction. The next legislature in Alabama is going to be compelled to make some drastic changes in our school system. The school book trust went a little too far this year.

God has never created anything more beautiful nor more perfectly delightful in every way than a good, pure woman. Neither has He ever allowed anything more diabolical to exist than an impure, lascivious female. Both extremes are represented by that sex.

The Birmingham News seems to be "alone in its glory" in trying to defend the mistaken position by the State Committee in attempting to decide a ticket for the people to vote. People are realizing their constitutional right in the exercise of the franchise.

The Montgomery Journal is putting out some splendid editorials in regard to the school book situation. Keep it up, Brother you are laboring in a righteous cause and the real people are with you.

How the Railroads Helped You to Spend the Hottest Summer in Years!

Vacation days are over and the spell has broken. The weather bureau tells us that the summer of 1924 brought to the South more intense heat and a longer heated period than any in years. How did it stand it? Did the railroads? Were you made more comfortable by the transportation systems of the country? On your vacation trip to a cooler climate, or did you weather the weather in the comforts of your car home? In either event, the railroads played an important part—as "do every month in the year—in the South. Fresh vegetables, fruits and melons—the principal items of summer diet—would have been impossible to secure or prohibitive in price, if not for the railroads. At the task which is being so capably accomplished by the railroads. Shall the good work go on; unhindered by destructive legislation, which in practically every instance is fostered by persons entirely unfamiliar with transportation problems?

CARTER BROTHERS CLANTON, ALABAMA

Personals

Mr. John Deramus, of Verbena, was here Sunday.

Mr. A. Bussey, route 4, was in town Monday. Mr. Bussey is a good farmer, church and Sunday School worker.

Mr. H. B. Roper is busy this week scouting around over the county looking after government business.

Mr. O. O. Roper returned Sunday afternoon from Boothtown where she visited her son, Dr. G. C. Roper. Mr. O. O. Roper was sick Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Miner, Mr. and Mrs. Edd Miner attended the Sunday school convention last Sunday at New Cedron church near Billingsley.

Dr. E. R. Steele returned from Bibb county last Thursday after spending several days with his father, Mr. Albert Steele.

Senator S. M. Adams, Prof. H. A. Harris and Mr. H. S. Shaw were among those who went to the Sunday School convention last Sunday held at New Cedron.

Rev. G. A. Hornady returned the latter part of last week after spending several days on Coosa River troubling the finny tribe from their peaceful slumbers in that river.

Wallace Jones was here the first part of the week. Wallace is now in Birmingham and is one of the many promising young men working for Moore and Handley Hardware Company.

Messrs W. H. Ousley, of Jones, Alabama and E. W. Walker, of Plantersville, were here Monday looking after their war insurance. We are glad to see the Ex-Service men taking care of their interest.

Prof. Uday Curlee was here Monday and Tuesday taking in the teachers institute. Young Mr. Curlee is a recent graduate of the Chilton Hi and is now one of the teachers in the Accredited High School at Jenison.

Miss Margie Murphy, one of the teachers in the Jenison school, was here Monday and Tuesday attending the teachers institute. Miss Murphy is one of the leading young teachers in Chilton.

Edward Corley and J. L. Johnson spent the latter part of last week at Mabley Georgia. This is a fine farming country and posses superior citizenship of American citizens. If you want to enjoy real southern hospitality, go to South Georgia.

One day last week a car of cattle was shipped from Jenison to Birmingham and also a car load went from Clanton to the Magic City. From this it seems like the dipping business is getting along nicely in Chilton.

Mallie Armstrong, of Birmingham was here Sunday visiting his large number of friends and relatives. Young Mr. Armstrong holds down quite a lucrative position in the clothing department of J. Black and Sons large mercantile establishment.

Herbert Davis returned last Friday from Jefferson Texas where he has been for some time engaged as a traveling salesman. He is now in the University of Alabama. Herbert is a coming young man and has hosts of friends and admirers who are banking on him becoming a well educated and useful citizen.

Miss Julia Parrish and Miss Jewell Miner opened school Wednesday morning at Cane Creek. Miss Parrish was principal there last year and taught one of the best schools in the county. This is Miss Miner's first year but she is a graduate of the County Hi and has had training in the Jacksonville, Alabama Normal and will meet up to the standard of a teacher.

THE GASOLINE TAX

The tax imposed on gasoline by the state of Alabama, by the last legislature, was equally apportioned to each county.

Under that law, our county received as its portion of that tax for August $2,524.60, as did all of the other counties in the state.

Practically this amount is being turned over to the counties each month. As this money has to be spent on roads only, it looks like that much cash judiciously applied on our roads each month should at an early date, give us a system of fairly good roads.

Besides this amount there are other tax monies that belong specifically to the roads also and when the gross sum is counted up it looks like our roads should speedily become passable winter and summer.

We have always believed that to get the best and most lasting service out of road work it is necessary to have a competent engineer in charge whose duty it would be to see to it, that all drainage was so put in that the heavy rain falls would be taken care of without sweeping over the road beds and washing great holes and gullies. This can and should be done. It is folly to put your money always in to road repairing. A road, properly constructed, will not wash out every time we have a big rain. Intelligent road building is a necessity if we expect to get half the worth of the dollars put in to it.

Mrs. S. H. Brown, of Birmingham, spent last week end with her parents Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Roper.

A PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR

WHEREAS, The Legislature of Alabama, at a session held in 1923, has ordered an election by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which is herein set forth, to be held at the general election in November, 1924; and

WHEREAS, Notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment is required by law to be given by proclamation of the Governor; NOW THEREFORE, I, William W. Brandon, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that at the general election in November, 1924, an election will be held for the vote of the qualified electors of the State of Alabama, in the manner, form and places required by law, upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, viz:

"Town Creek School District No. 59, Landeraville School District No. 23 and Moulton School District No. 25 in Lawrence County, Alabama, shall each have the right and power by vote of a majority of the qualified electors of such district at an election held for that purpose to levy and collect for the purpose of acquiring, constructing or repairing of school buildings in such districts or paying for school buildings already built, a tax of not over five mills in any one year in addition to all other taxes now authorized by law. The election in such district to determine whether or not such tax shall be levied shall be called, held and conducted as now provided by law for calling, holding and conducting of elections to determine whether or not a three-mill district school tax shall be levied and collected."

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the State to be affixed at the Capitol, in the City of Montgomery, on this, the 8th day of August, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-four.

Some very great men have lived in this world until death claimed them. But when they passed away the world moved on just the same. Try to remember that fact when you swell up like a bull frog and imagine your importance. The world won't miss any of us much when we pass away.

Women who patronize barber shops seem to have a decided preference for those conducted for men. We have heard of several efforts to operate shop for ladies only but all of them went broke for the lack of patronage.

Mr. Jno. W. Davis has been putting out some very able arguments in favor of democracy out in the west recently and is making a fine impression that old fashioned democracy that stands for a rule, by and for the people.

MRS. C. D. THOMAS ILL

This entire community will be saddened to learn that Mrs. C. D. Thomas had to undergo an operation this week for appendicitis.

The fourth grade in the city school is especially sad, for she is their teacher and likewise their adored ideal of what a teacher should be.

Latest reports from the hospital are to the effect that she is convalescing nicely.

TEACHERS INSTITUTE

The teachers institute of Chilton county was in session here Monday and Tuesday of this week. The institute was under the supervision of Supt H. L. Foshee ably assisted by Miss Danyla Belser from the Department of Education, Montgomery. Miss Belser is also supervisor of primary education in the state. Practically every teacher in the county present the enrollment was

The highly interesting feature of the first day's session was the forceful and well prepared address given by Dr. Sherrell who was formerly State Superintendent of Education. Dr. Sherrell spoke for his subject, "Silent Reading." Miss Belser proved to be quite a capable and interesting conductor. The teachers of Chilton greatly appreciate her good work. Prof A. C. Shelton, director of Extension Work in the Jacksonville Normal, was here Tuesday and ably presented the value of his line of work to the teachers of the county.

We learn with much pleasure from Miss Belser that owing to the wide awake County Superintendent Prof. H. L. Foshee, that this year Chilton county received $10,000 for school building purposes instead of her allotment of $8,000. This is due to the fact that the Superintendent made application for all he felt sure it was possible for Chilton to receive. So when the month that had not been used by county superintendents went back to the state treasury for redistribution, "Old Chilton" received her prorata share along with the leading educational counties of Alabama. As a direct result several such school buildings as the one at Enterprise have been completed and many rural schools have buildings equal to those of larger school centers of the county.

BAPTISTS REPORT ON MONEY DISTRIBUTED

DETAILED STATEMENT AS TO WHERE 75 MILLION CAMPAIGN COLLECTIONS HAVE GONE IS ISSUED

USE DISTRICT ASSOCIATIONS

Agency Nearest Local Churches Will Be Employed in Bringing About Fuller Development in Future Program

DR. C. E. BURTS
General Director, 1925 Program, Southern Baptists.

Indicating the objects to which the money collected on the Baptist 75 Million Campaign goes, the headquarters of that movement in Nashville has issued the following statement of the distribution of the $53,377,084.43, representing the revised figures on the sum collected on that movement up to May 1, 1924: Foreign missions $9,933,329.20; home missions $5,757,820.03; state and associational missions $9,093,769.27; Christian education $14,849,082.51; hospitals $2,672,692.43; orphanages $4,464,966.87; ministerial relief $1,570,366.94; expenses and fixed charges not otherwise absorbed $2,091,808.56; special credits and miscellaneous items $1,590,990.47; purchase and operation of state denominational papers $62,200.38; foreign relief $87,602.16; the distributed balance $152,330.77; Home Mission Board specials $15,340; Foreign Mission Board specials $86,103; raised by churches on foreign fields and expended by them in work there $1,003,390.65.

All Work Goes Forward

Every department of the general missionary, educational and benevolent work fostered by Southern Baptists has been greatly enlarged and strengthened by the campaign. It is reported, while a suggestion of the development that has come in the activities and liberality of the local churches as a result of this forward movement is furnished in the following statement of progress along general lines furnished by the headquarters office:

Comparing the growth of the denomination during the five years preceding the Campaign with the five years since that program was projected it is shown that during the last five years the following advances were recorded over the previous corresponding period: 1562 more new churches organized, a gain of 229 per cent; 241,968 more new members gained, an advance of 46 per cent; 209,002 more baptisms administered, a gain of 27 per cent; 1,603 more new Sunday schools organized, a gain of 118 per cent; 364,727 more new Sunday school pupils enrolled, a gain of 132 per cent; $35,086,970.83 more reported in gifts to missions and benevolences, a gain of 187 per cent; $51,153,873.88 more noted in gifts to local church purposes, a gain of 95 per cent; $64,417,361.55 more reported in gifts to all causes, a gain of 117 per cent; and $57,147,004 advance shown in the value of local church property, a gain of 81 per cent.

Complete Collections Now

In the hope of completing the collection of all Campaign subscriptions by the close of the year and securing cash offerings from these Baptists who did not subscribe to the five-year program as intensive effort during the remainder of the summer and fall will be waged throughout the South under the general leadership of Dr. L. R. Scarborough, general director, with the cooperation of the various state mission offices and the officers and workers in the nearly 1,000 district associations. It is planned that the intensive effort of the denomination shall be adequately represented at all of these associations in their annual meetings in the hope that the delegates to the associations will in this way be motivated back to their local churches and secure the co-operation of these churches in fully completing the Campaign program so far as possible, the way for the next forward program beginning January 1, 1925.

Dr. C. E. Burts, former general secretary of the Baptist work in South Carolina, has assumed his duties as general director of the 1925 program and announced that he believes the program for next year can be most successfully launched by the satisfactory completion of the 75 Million Campaign during the remaining months of 1924. While making his plans for the projection of the new program he is co-operating fully with Dr. Scarborough in the completion of the 75 Million Campaign.

COMMISSIONER QUINN COMING

Hon. J. O. Cox, of Spigener who is attached to the Game and Fish department, was in town last Thursday.

He announced that Commissioner Quinn, our State Game and Fish man, would be here at 2 p. m. on Oct. 4 and would be pleased to meet every citizen in the county who is interested in the conservation of our game and fish and also, all others who wish to obtain a better understanding of the aims and objects of this important work of conservation.

Mr. Quinn will also be prepared to tell us how to secure a fish hatchery for our county, and we certainly should arrange to locate one, for no county in the state has better advantages, or more favorable water, than we have for the successful propagation of fish.

Let every one go out and hear what Mr. Quinn has to say.

FARM STILL FOR SALE

I have sold my town property in Thorsby but have not yet sold my farm of 20 acres. It is still on the market, but not quite so cheap as I once offered it, as the B. & M. Highway will soon be completed and the farm is right on it.

I have bought a home in Clanton and have on hand all kinds of Bibles and other good religious books, and I will appreciate it, if you need anything of that kind, if you will see what I have.

Your friend,

S. M. ADAMS

HE DESERVES IT

The following item, from the Ozark Star, will be of interest to the many friends here of Mr. Price, who learned to know him and appreciate him as a most competent architect and builder while he was constructing the beautiful Methodist church here. We wish him all kinds of continued good luck.

Mr. W. S. Price spent Sunday here with his family. This popular citizen is a very busy man these days. He is just finishing up a handsome school building at New Brockton. He broke dirt for Arlton's school building Monday morning and is also engaged in building the High School at Brundidge. He also has the contract for the town of Brundidge. Looking after these different jobs keeping him on the go all the time, but he is a hustler and likes to make things move.

WE TOLD YOU SO

Already our advice to the farmers to not rush their cotton on the market in the face of the exaggerated government estimate being put out has been vindicated.

Every farmer who sold a bale of cotton prior to this week is just out the neat little sum of $17.00. From Tuesday until Friday this week cotton advanced $17.00 the bale.

A government report came out in which they began to hedge on their former exorbitant estimates and cotton immediately began to go up.

These millions that have gone in to the pockets of speculators were what we were trying to get our farmers in to their own pockets.

It is so late in this unusually early gathering season, that not much can now be saved by the farmer by holding his cotton, still, it is almost certain that the next two government estimates will be scaled down, more and more and that 25 to 30 cent cotton will be sold here before Christmas.

That fabulous Texas crop is a myth and that state will do well to gather 3,000,000 bales this year at the same time, this last estimate rates them at 4,500,000 bales.

When all of these over estimates are corrected and the estimate gets down to about 11,000,000 crop, then the price will get up to where it should have been all the time.

Any talk you may hear of, or read about, a great big surplus left on hand will be bunk and not worthy of your consideration. There was no surplus this year to amount to anything and there will be none next year.

A 12,000,000 bale crop next year legitimately marketed, will bring not less than 25 cents per pound all the way through and the farmer can afford to grow it at that price.

VERBENA COMMUNITY SINGING

The Verbena Community Singing inaugurated last Sunday evening by Mrs. Sam Scott and Mrs. H. B. Oliver at the Verbena Community House, drew one of the largest audiences seen in this neighborhood in some time.

Mr. Lee Robinson, widely known for his musical attainments as a singer and organist, had charge of the singing and after leading several numbers he called upon Mr. Creighton Norris and Mr. R. Miller, who also ably conducted several selections.

The song leaders were assisted by Miss Sajah Maude Patillo at the piano and S. L. Gibson with the Violin. The service was opened with prayer by Mr. J. C. Pattillo.

Almost every one of the large audience took part and enjoyed the music. The local audience was augmented by music enthusiasts from Mitchell Dam, Coopers and other near by places.

Just before the closing prayer by Mr. Phil Mitchell, it was decided to make a permanent institution of the Verbena Community Singing, with Mr. Lee Robinson in charge. The "Sing" will be held at the Community House the third Sunday evening of each month at seven-thirty o'clock. All the third Sunday evening of each are invited to attend.

S. L. GIBSON.

WHICH ARE YOU?

IN THE lexicon of politics a "reactionary" is one who believes that government was created for the people and not the people for the government; who also believes in economy in public affairs and in the preservation of tried and proven policies rather than in the exploitation of fads where common sense teaches that such exploitation can lead but to disaster.

On the other hand a "progressive" is one who tries to win every fad and without thought of the consequences proceeds blindly to overthrow tried and proven policies for innovations neither tried, proven nor within the pale of common sense.

In other words if you believe in public economy-in protecting the taxpayer against the tax-eater, you are a "reactionary." If you believe in letting the tax-eater run a vacuum cleaner through the taxpayers' pocket, you are a "progressive."

Uncle Tom Pyron is able to be out after being confined for a few days to his room on account of sickness. We are glad to see him up again. He has many friends and admirers who deeply appreciate the services he has rendered here.

Mr. Robert Smith was here Tuesday. Mr. Smith reports that his cotton crop is turning out more than he expected at first. He now sees twenty hales of the "fleece staple" in sight. He is planning to add many improvements to his well located farm just south of town.

MISS MARION SEAWRIGHT

Whereas, God in his infinite wisdom saw fit to take from us, on August 12th, 1924, a beloved member and co-worker in our Sunday School and church, Miss Marion Seawright, and whereas, we, the members of the Methodist Sunday school of Clanton, Alabama, wish to make a public expression of our love and appreciation for her faithful service while with us, and to tribute to her cherished memory

First, that, in her death the Public School, Sunday School and church have lost a useful, esteemed and trustworthy friend, member, and teacher, and that we mourn her loss.

Second, That we shall remember her with love and loyalty; that we may be convinced by her life and example that in a Christian life that death is but the passing from finite to eternal life; that we may draw a lesson from her noble character that Christian service is the outward expression of an inner life consecrated to God; and may be reminded by her life to the span of her years completed, to God her soul be committed, so he called her to the fullness of the blessed promise "Enter thou into the joys of thy Lord."

Third, We the members of the Clanton Sunday School wish to extend to the family our deepest sympathy, hoping that it may comfort and console them in their bereavement.

Fourth, That a copy of these resolutions be read before the Sunday School, one sent to local papers, and another sent to the Alabama Christian Advocate for publication.

A PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR

WHEREAS, the Legislature of Alabama, at a session held in 1923, has ordered an election by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which is herein set forth, to be held at the general election in November, 1924, and WHEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment, is required by law to be given by proclamation of the Governor:

NOW, THEREFORE, I, William W. Brandon, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that at the general election in November, 1924, an election will be held for the vote of the qualified electors of the State of Alabama, in the manner, form and places required by law, upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, viz:

"Proposed Amendment No. 290, Mobile County may become indebted and may issue bonds for the construction or improvement of concrete or better than concrete surfaced public roads and concrete or better than concrete public bridges in said county, and for the construction of bridges and roadways necessary to provide a public road for vehicular travel between the highlands of Mobile and Baldwin Counties, in an amount not to exceed six and one-half per centum of the assessed value of the property situated in Mobile County. To pay said indebtedness and the interest thereon, Mobile County may levy and collect an annual tax on said property not to exceed one-half of one per centum of said value. The indebtedness, the bonds and the tax authorized hereby shall be in addition to those authorized by the Constitution of Alabama prior to the adoption of this amendment. But no such additional indebtedness shall be created, and no additional bonds shall be issued, and no such additional tax shall be levied, until each improvement or construction proposed to be built, thereby, its approximate location, estimated cost and time of completion, and the amount of the proposed increase, shall have been determined upon and made public by the Board of Revenue and Road Commissioners of Mobile County, and the proposed increase of indebtedness or issue of bonds or tax therefor shall have been first authorized by a majority vote by ballot of the qualified voters of Mobile County voting upon such proposition."

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the State to be affixed at the Capitol, in the City of Montgomery, on this, the 8th day of August, One Thousand Nine Hundred and Twenty-Four.

"Article 1, Section 1. The County of Walker, State of Alabama, shall have power to lay and collect a special county road tax not exceeding fifty cents on each one hundred dollars worth of taxable property in such county in addition to that authorized or that may hereafter be authorized for public road purposes, provided that such tax, if it is to continue and the proceeds thereof shall have been first voted to the vote of the qualified electors of the county, and voted for a majority of those voting at such election. Section 2. Twenty-five per centum of all moneys derived from property lying within municipalities and arising from the tax proposed herein, shall be paid to such municipality and shall, by it, be expended for the upkeep of its streets. Section 3. The Court of County Commissioners, board of revenue, or other governing body of said county, may, or upon written petition of ten per centum of the qualified voters of Walker County, shall call and submit said election provided for and authorized by section one hereof to the qualified electors of Walker County either at the time of the general election or a special election called for that purpose; provided, that said election shall be called and held in accordance with the law now or that may be enacted governing county bond elections, and in conformity with the general election laws of the State."

TO THE CITIZENS OF CHILTON COUNTY

I desire to say that at the request of the committee on the Progress of Chilton County, I have agreed to accept the position of Campaign Chairman.

Now, not being a politician I feel my extreme inability to manage such a campaign, but when we stop to look at the men on this ticket, and see what clean, honest, noble, progressive men they are, and how well suited they are to fill these places of honor and trust, more especially how well qualified each man is to fill the particular office for which he offers, it does not seem to me that much should be required of the Chairman of their Campaign Committee.

They are, each of them, leaders in their respective communities. They are every one of them, noted for their honesty, truthfulness, square dealing, and good business judgment.

None of them have been "political extremists" who were ready to throw away principle for party, but have always stood for the right. Therefore, I feel no hesitancy in asking the clean, honest voters of this county regard less of political party or creed, to come out in the open and support this ticket.

As chairman of their Campaign Committee, I respectfully invite and solicit expressions of favor and support from all clean, honest voters in Chilton county.

V. J. GRAGG, Chairman.

OH, IF THIS WAS CLANTON

Last Monday morning the Chief of Police, of Birmingham, gave orders to every officer under his jurisdiction, to arrest every single person who attempted to operate any kind of a motor vehicle in that town with an open cut out.

We know every good citizen of that town rose up at once and called him blessed.

The open cut out is an instrument of annoyance and torture that would be a master piece in hades, and no doubt it shines down there as the crowning acme of diabolical inventive genius.

WHY NOT TRY IT?

A farmer near Albany, Ga., planted 10 acres of cotton for himself and 1 acre for God.

He cultivated it all alike and, while the boll weevils were quite numerous in the cotton of his neighbors, not one appeared on his place. Not only that, the yield on both his and "God's" acre have been phenomenal.

This sounds all right to us, for we always did believe in a personal God, and as a business partner, we don't believe you can find His equal anywhere.

ALL DAY SINGING

There will be an all day singing at Messer's Chapel church, next Third Sunday, October the 19th. Also dinner. Everybody is cordially invited to come and bring your song books.

MORE LIKE A CITY EVERY DAY

Clanton has not only built up until it has assumed all of the physical aspects of a city, but almost every day some live and progressive citizen adds on new city conveniences and innovations that belong strictly to the up-to-date metropolis.

Last Sunday, down at "Dick's Place" the elegant new drug store operated by clever Dick Hayes, the very latest stunt was most successfully pulled off.

Clanton being the home of a large bunch of live base ball fans, Dick made wire arrangements to call the great game in Washington, last Sunday afternoon, in the World series between the two league winners, New York and Washington.

Each inning was called just as played, strikes fouls balls and outs registering in Clanton the moment they were played in Washington.

It was really most interesting and was attended by a large number of interested fans who certainly seemed to appreciate the courtesy Dick had shown them.

MOVED IN

The Chilton Hardware Co. have moved in to their mammoth new home and are beginning to open up an immense stock of modern hardware and furniture, all brand new and right out of the factory.

Mr. Jones is a hustling business man and deserves a great success, that we are sure he will attain.

IN BIRMINGHAM INFIRMARY

Mr. Joe Franklin left yesterday to visit his wife who has been, for some weeks, in a very critical condition in a Birmingham infirmary.

She seems to be utterly exhausted and suffers from a deficiency of blood. Another special diagnosis of her condition was to be made yesterday and the doctors are hopeful that a more encouraging report can be made on her condition.

ALWAYS SIGN YOUR NAME

We received this week a nice communication from some lady or gentleman, whose heart is right on the social evils of our country, but the writer failed to sign their name, or even give their post office address.

We would have been glad to give place to the article, but in writing to a newspaper it is always necessary to give your name and address, not for publication if you so desire, but for the protection of the paper in case there is a come back or dispute in regard to any statement in the article. Please always remember this.

Mr. S. L. Broadhead, of Route 7, was in Clanton on business last Saturday.

Non-Partisan Ticket

The Office Seeks the Man Clean, Honest Service Thereby Assured

In view of the fact that great dissatisfaction as to our local government has been for years one of the most unfortunate features that our county has had to contend with, the following non-partisan ticket has been selected, by an immense petition of citizens, as candidates to fill the respective positions for which they are named.

These gentlemen are all known by the people of Chilton county and need no endorsement by us. If you want clean, honest and non-partisan service, you know these men will give it to you.

One is cordially invited to attend and it is to be hoped that a full will greet every service. at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. will be hours of service.

UNITY ASSOCIATION AT SAMARIA THIS WEEK

The annual convocation of the Unity Association occurred last Tuesday morning at the Samaria Baptist church, some two miles of Clanton.

A large crowd were in attendance and interest was manifested. The sessions took up both Tuesday and Wednesday.

The customary routine of business was transacted and all of the churches represented sent in encouraging letters relative to what had been accomplished during the past year and plans for the future were definitely outlined.

That splendid little community out there heaped honor upon their head by their liberal and elegant entertainment of the many visitors and their wonderful hospitality was a pleasant thing to see every side.

We had no opportunity of obtaining a detailed report of the session in time for the paper this week, but we are perfectly safe in saying that it was a most pleasant, harmonious and valuable session from start to finish.

Mr. W. E. Broadhead, manager of the Calera Motor Company, was in Clanton Monday.

THEO H. FARR

Mr. Farr is one of the Home Mission Board's who has had considerable success as teacher, soloist and driver. He here Sunday morning and bring your friends.

HOSPITAL NOTES.

Mrs. C. R. Moates went home Wednesday.

Mr. Briggs Crumpton was operated on for appendicitis Monday.

Mr. J. D. Sanders was brought to the hospital Sunday night as result of being gored by a cow.

Mrs. Curry Thomas is now rapidly convalescing and will soon be in school again.

Mrs. F. A. Ellison was discharged the latter part of last week on the road to complete recovery.

Master Bill Mahan went home Saturday.

A SPECIAL MUSICAL PROGRAM

Will be put on in opening the Baptist Sunday School next Sunday at 9:45.

Be on time. Do your part. Meet me there. Beginning of Revival services. Lets begin with 400 in Sunday School Sunday morning.

UNION SERVICES SUNDAY NIGHT

Last Sunday night Union Services were held at the Baptist church for the purpose of giving every one an opportunity to hear Professor Birmingham, a noted lecturer and educator, who is, at this time, making a lecture tour throughout the country under the auspices of the Radcliffe Chautauque.

A very large audience assembled and his address was well received and enjoyed. He is an international figure and some of his points failed to elicit in exactly with some of our more provincial views, still it must be admitted that he is a man of rare magnetism and knows how to tell a story or point a moral in first class style.

Miss Belser, also interested in and connected with the educational work, made a brief address that was also replete with a great deal of real merit and much valuable educational matter.

Another delightful part of the program was a beautiful solo, most artistically and gracefully rendered by Miss McKinnon, one of the local High School faculty.

The large volunteer choir gave us some splendid music that was much enjoyed.

PROSPECTS LOOK GOOD

After interviewing quite a number of our leading merchants and general supply men, we failed to find a single one who was not absolutely satisfied with his collections so far. In fact, they were all in excellent spirits and talked most optimistically of the future outlook from a business standpoint.

Cotton is still coming in at a lively rate, though a large per cent of it has been picked in this immediate locality.

There are some sections, out from around the town, that have found it difficult to get pickers-and, in consequence they are behind with their picking.

Across the river, in Coosa county, Mr. D. Y. Johnston tells us that he saw a number of snow white cotton fields last week that have not been picked a single time yet.

The weather is holding out very favorably for the picking of cotton, but it would be good policy to keep your fields as nearly clean as possible now, for no one can tell, at this time of the year, when a general wet spell will set in.

Retail trade is first class now in the stores and money is circulating quite freely. All in all, the prospect looks good and smiles have taken the place of frowns to a large extent on the streets.

A SAD SHOWING

Clanton has at least 1,500 people who could attend Sunday School every Sunday.

Clanton also has four protestant Sunday schools that throw their doors open one time every week and earnestly and cordially invite every one of these people to come out and study with them the Word of God—the only waybill from earth to heaven.

Less than one third of this number answer the roll call at these schools.

Does that sound good to you? Is it not rather a sad reflection on our town?

If you would only stop and ponder over these figures, surely you would resolve to go out to Sunday School yourself and to use your influence in getting others to go.

Make this important matter a personal thing. Get your own self right and then work on your friends, and get them to work on his friends and so on. Make an endless chain out of this work and let us systematically push the attendance at our Sunday Schools.

How about entering the New Year with one thousand names enrolled on the Sunday School books of Clanton? Will You Help?

THE U. F. OF A.

Mr. A. B. Baxley returned this week from a month's campaign in Fayette county.

Mr. Baxley is State Manager of that important Farmer's organization in Alabama. He tells us the order is doing a great work in Fayette and is very popular with the people over there.

They are now putting on a three year poultry and dairy campaign over there in the hope of making the farm self supporting on a cash basis by self supporting on a cash basis by week.

They claim to have already saved several thousand dollars in the co-operation of marketing their cotton.

BAPTIST ASSOCIATION WILL MEET

The Chilton County Baptist Association will meet with Oak Grove Baptist church on Oct. 15, and 16 1924, 2 miles north of Jemison.

We ask all churches in this section to send messengers.

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best— Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has a curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system, the remedy is recommended by those who have benefited to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says, "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case of urinary troubles, such as catarrh, cystitis, etc., it results as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments, corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by postal card. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores.—Advertisement.

Forbear to mention what you cannot praise.

CHAPTER XIX—Continued.

"She isn't," Alberta repeated. "If you had truly married her, we'd have heard of it. You yourself told me how they do in Japan. Perhaps you married her under an assumed name—if you did it at all. Uncle Sandy, do you want a woman like this in the house, even if Bob's crazy enough to—"

Sanderson ignored her, and stepped to Ellen's side.

"This is a strange welcome for a bride, my dear," he said. "Your name? Ellen? A dear name, girl. Bob here is a good lad, but overgrown to place meanings where none were intended. You thought I meant that this was your last chance, Bob? Was that it? Boy, even if you'd done the things you were accused of . . . don't you see, Bob? I see you thought—"

"That was it, Uncle Jim. Now I know. Williams said that he'd tell you he had asked me to entertain the Japanese nobles. And then your wife came, when you found out . . ."

"You are a big dummy," Sanderson told him. "But it passes me how you fooled us all. That is, it does now. Lord, Bob, what a story you must have to tell! He did look like a Japanese, didn't he, dear?"

"Ellen thought I was a Japanese all along, Uncle Jim. She was as surprised as you were."

"I think that you were a great fool not to have told her," Sanderson said doubtfully.

"You are a man of great wisdom," Ellen agreed, smiling. "Your nephew was sick on the boat. I . . . nursed him . . . and then, of course—"

"Tell me, young Bob—" Sanderson stepped and turned to where the silent Williams and equally silent Alberta stood.

"Still here? Better do your bit packing, Alberta. I wish you a better fate than with that . . . that . . . with Williams. He'll abuse you cruelly. But that's what you seem to have wanted. . . . Come to the office in the morning and I'll give Gordon a check for you—don't thank me, it is for your father's memory, and there'll be no more of them. It will set you up modestly, nothing more."

A long pause, then, with the two outside, and the mutual recriminations drifting through the door Sanderson added soberly, "He'll abuse her. But she'll give him as good as he sends."

He turned to Bob.

"Tell me, Bob, seeing as how you were dressed like a Jap, and Ellen here thought you were one for a time, you must have been married looking like one. Was it a Jap who married you?"

"It was, Uncle Jim."

"It was? Get a minister, Bob. Think of the proprieties!"

"Worse than that, Uncle Jim. I actually bought her. We were married after that by a Shinto priest."

"How much did you pay?"

"Six rolls of gold. About eleven hundred dollars."

"For once you had the better of a bargain," He smiled at Ellen, sitting down again. "This is too much excitement for an old man. Sit on the arm of my chair, lass. I'm near enough to cryin' this minute, although," very loudly, "you are not worth it, after the fright you gave me, Bob."

Wells' throat was very tight as he smiled at the two. "If you don't mind, Uncle Jim, I . . . well, there are a few things I'd like to say to Ellen."

Sanderson patted the bright head so near his own.

"Get the minister first," he retorted. "While you're gone, I've a word or so of warning to say to your Ellen. I'll tell her about this man she has had fastidiously upon her."

Why? Bob? . . . you scamp! kissing her right under my eyes! . . ."

CHAPTER XX

Ellen and Bob stood on the rough board platform which marked the end of the railroad at Fushiki. Odd trees, distorted by fierce winter winds, rose from the crest line of hill by which sand-dunes stretched. The town lay in the sun like a basking lizard, houses and hills following the curve of the sea-seeking stream.

A heavy-wheeling bird came by with a screech and flap of wings.

"There are demons abroad," Wells laughed. Then he saw an advancing figure, brave in gay kimono: "Assuredly there are demons abroad. Here comes the foremost of them all. He looks like Sukuna-no-Kami, the God of Scarecrows, with his wrinkled old face."

Marakito stood staring at Wells.

He had been told that an engineer was being sent to complete the bridge system. But this man, this Robert Wells, was, of his own knowledge, dead, and had been buried. He walked toward Ellen and Wells slowly; he shook his head a few times, stroked his chin; finally, his composure partly restored, ruffled toward them quickly.

"It is you," he announced in a voice that for the first time in his many years, shook slightly.

Wells admitted it.

"Your health is good?" Marakito inquired politely. "You will finish the much-delayed bridges? I fear that the time remaining is very short. Yes, very short indeed."

"Very short, honorable Marakito-San," Wells answered. "The work must progress with rapidity to be complete within the prescribed time."

"If I can help—"

"You will assist us, Marakito-San?"

"I shall do my best. Yes, yes, I shall do my best," He smiled. "Simply ask me when—"

"I shall ask now," Wells said disarmingly. "See to it that none of our tools nor materials disappear, and that our workers remain at their labor."

So the white man had guessed. Marakito immediately spread out his hands in denial.

"The money paid to you by the Japanese nobles—by the Imperialists—will be wasted, I fear," Wells assured him. "We will finish on time."

"Money?"

"Such as Aochi-San of Mitagiri paid."

"Who told you? It must have been that boasting fellow Kaguna—I heard that he was in America—well, no matter, since you know—there will be no more delays." Of course, Marakito figured calmly, there might be bits of glass in the food . . .

"And if anything happens to me," Wells added, divining the thought, "there is a sealed letter in the hands of . . . he whispered a great Japanese name—'which will then be opened. It might be that the name of Marakito-San is mentioned therein. Yes, I think that it is."

"I am your servant," the old Japanese said humbly.

In spite of the impropriety of the question, which was entirely lacking in bushido, Marakito must add: "I thought that you were dead. How, then, do you return?"

Wells grinned. "Ask the gods," was all the answer he would give.

Marakito shuffled away, seeking the village priest. The same thought was in his head.

"I am face to face with a great mystery," he mourned. "It is very plain that the god of my house has lost his power. It cannot be that he is angry, for I make the proper devotions, and have burned much incense. It is this: a dead man, whom I wished dead, has returned to life."

"Perhaps the god of this dead-one-whose lives is more powerful than your own?" the priest hazarded.

"God? He has none, being a seiyō-jin."

The night was so luscious, so still, so very sweet, that old Kaminari of the Thunder was unable to inform them of their mistake. Instead, he peeped down at the beach where Ellen and Bob walked arm in arm. He must search for a moment; found them close to the cliffs which shadow the blunished sand.

He saw the taller figure stoop, saw a happy white face raise. Smiled (the villagers called it shooting star, but, of course, it was a gentle lightning flash), and drew together the curtains of the heaven again.

[THE END]

A Javanese Invention

Japan and China embroider their colors on their materials. Sumatra dyes the threads and weaves them in, India stamps, and the South Sea Islands paint them on, but Java paints the pattern on in wax, and dyes the colors in. Batik, the process used in Java, is a science, an art, an industry, a religion, a mystery, an inheritance and a treasure peculiar to this tropical island. Batik makers draw their designs in hot wax on white cotton cloth, and then color the uncovered portions of the pattern by dipping the waxed cloth again and again into vats of vegetable dye. That the Javanese have been able to make the plain cotton so rich and magnificent a fabric entitles Java to a high place in the world of art. As the batik draws, the hot wax flows from the miniature spout of a very small copper cup, or janting, which is fastened securely in one end of a short bamboo handle. This instrument was invented by the Javanese.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

"A Blessing to Suffering Women," Writes One

Louisville, Illinois.—"I certainly thank you for the great benefit I have received from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I first learned about it from my step-mother who got so much help from it. Several years ago I took it for inward weakness and since then I have taken it during the Change of Life and it has been a great help to me. It certainly is a blessing to suffering women and I take pleasure in recommending it. My health has been better this summer than it has been for five years. I am now able to do all my work and have gained 340 pounds of fruit and vegetables this summer."—Mrs. KATE McPEAK, Louisville, Illinois.

Wants Letter Used As Proof
Frankford, Pennsylvania.—"I am sure if women who suffer through the Change of Life as I have, with hot flashes, nervousness and other weaknesses, would give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial they would be benefited as I was. My nerves were so bad that every little noise made me jump, but now I am not bothered that way at all. My husband says he really hated to look at me I looked so miserable. I hope you will use this letter as proof of the help the Vegetable Compound is giving me."—Mrs. ABBIE HARVEY, 6701 Leonard St., Frankford, Pa.

The Silent Motorcycle
The noise and vibration of the motorcycle are two features which have worked somewhat to the detriment of this mode of travel. But these objectionable features seem to have been overcome by a motorcycle design which has been recently shown in England. The noise is eliminated by entirely enclosing the engine of the transmission and several new features are introduced to overcome the vibration. As a test recently, a motorcycle of the new design and a standard automobile were driven toward an observer on the roadside. The latter heard the automobile at 134 yards, but the motorcycle approached within 70 yards before its noise was noticed.

Her audience was rather bored, but she thought she caught a glimpse of understanding on one boy's face. Brightly turning to him she said: "Now, Tommy, give me one definition of prose." "People who get paid for playing golf," was the answer which proved enigmatic to the teacher.

Personals

Dr. A. J. Marlar, of Billingsley, was in Clanton on business last Saturday.

Mrs. Walter A. Calloway went to the Capital City Monday.

Mr. W. F. Hudson, until recently of Mt. Creek but now in the Metropolis of Alabama was here Monday.

Mr. Hugh Foshee came up Sunday afternoon from Montgomery where he has been for several days visiting relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Vaughn McKee, of route 3, were in Clanton last Friday. Mr. McKee is quite an interesting and prosperous young farmer in beat 15.

Mr. W. B. Rainer, of Elba, Coffee county, was the guest of his daughter, Mrs. V. J. Elmore, the first part of the week.

Mr. J. B. Coe, of beat 15, was here Monday. Mr. Coe is a brother-in-law of our esteemed fellow citizen and townsman, Joe Franklin.

Mrs. J. R. Mullins came up Saturday from Montgomery and returned Sunday afternoon after enjoying the time with home people and her many friends in Clanton.

Mr. C. C. Wallace, of Birmingham, was a Clanton visitor Sunday. Mr. Wallace is a son-in-law of Mr. Jasper Calloway. He is salesmanager of the Dominack shoe Company.

Robert Wooley dressed up early Sunday morning in his fine tailored blue serge suit and staid in town until some time in the afternoon and then went toward Lock 12. Wonder why?

Mr. J. T. Raspberry and family of Aniston, were guests of Mr. Raspberry's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Raspberry, the first part of the week. Mr. Raspberry is salesmanager of the Electrical Steel Company at Aniston.

Mr. Joel H. Gulledege, of Verbena, was in Clanton Monday. Mr. Gulledege is not only one of the best business men in Chilton but he has few equals when it comes to building up his home town, community and country.

Wallace Cox, son of our leading Chilton county road builder, Mr. C. B. Cox, was here Sunday. Wallace is now in Shelby engaged in helping construct the state highway through that county.

Prof. E. H. Willis and wife, of Montevallo, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Lyman last Sunday. Prof. Willis is the eminent successful business manager of the Alabama College at Montevallo.

Mr. E. W. Mims, that good farmer out on Route 7, brought us last Saturday a tangible evidence of the fact that he knows how to make farming pay. He left some extra fine fall turnip salad at our house and it sure was a treat. Our thanks.

Mr. Ed Smitherman, of Maplesville, was here Monday looking after his interests in the cattle dipping business of Chilton. Mr. Smitherman is a man who stands for the right and you can bet on him being able to cover the ground he stands on.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Oden, of the Shoultz community, were in Clanton Monday. Mr. Oden owns and operates one of the best farms in west Chilton. He is well and favorably known and numbers his friends by his acquaintances.

Prof. E. H. Reed, of Chattanooga, Tenn., principal of the Consolidated school at Isabella and Dr. H. W. Caldwell who has charge of the vocational department of the same school were in Clanton recently. These two citizens are new comers in Chilton but they are already making themselves felt in the educational work of the County.

KLAN NOT IN POLITICS

The organization known as, the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan is not in politics, neither is it a political party. The members of the Klan are American citizens, entitled to all the privileges and responsibilities of citizenship and franchise.

There are in America, two great political parties—the Republican and Democratic parties. These two great parties in solemn convention this year adopted platforms which provide a home in either party for the conscientious Klansmen thereof. These two parties provide a natural outlet for an expression of public opinion with regard to approving or disapproving the policy of the administration of the party in power.

Members of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan as individual citizens naturally belong to one or the other of these great parties.

We find ourselves now and are ready to co-operate and work with any American citizen or group of citizens whose purpose is to make of this a more enlightened, a more prosperous, and a more homogeneous nation.

We will permit no political party or group of politicians to annex, own, disown, or disavow us. Where our conscientious leads us, we will be found, regardless of whom we find in the different political camps.

Yours very truly,
IMPERIAL WIZARD,
Knights of the Ku Klux Klan

WHEN YOU GO TO MARRY

When you look at it right this matter of marrying is a life time business, and when ever you decide to take this important leap in the dark.

The first thing to do is to be very certain in your own mind that you are able and willing to assume the very grave responsibility of devoting the very best that is in you, for the balance of your life, to the task of making happy and comfortable the partner you are contemplating taking on. Be sure not to neglect this very important and fundamental principle of devotion.

Then after you make up your mind thoroughly, if you can find out that the party of the second part is also exactly in the same frame of mind, after due consideration, that you are, it is a pretty safe proposition to go ahead feeling assured that your future will be made better, brighter and happier than it could be under any other circumstances.

If you want to take on trouble, enlarge and lasting hunk, jump in to double harness on a joy ride frolic, both parties half full of booze.

Or dash off on the spur of the moment, and get married "just for now."

Or get your "business" in a jam and papa is talking about looking for you with a shot gun.

Or marry just to show off and "cut out" some other guy.

Do any of these kind of nuptial stunts and the rest of your life is about worth a dime with a hole in it.

Marriage is a sacred and God appointed ceremony, and when properly entered into, is the safest, most lasting and sweetest existence and communion that can exist between a man and a woman. It makes both of them better in every way.

But when plunged in to as a joke or mockery you have taken hold of something that will mar the rest of your life.

WHY BIRMINGHAM PROSPERS

Although Birmingham has just been undergoing some very shameful disclosures that lay bare the crookedness of some of those they had placed their trust in, they have demonstrated their nerve by going determinedly after the wrong doers without fear or favor.

That city is not afraid to launch out and do things in a big way and they do them too.

Their city is truly called the "Magic City" for it was born and has grown to its present magnificent proportions easily within the memory of many of us.

Just a few years ago they spoke in terms of hundreds and thousands up there almost in awe. Now they speak in terms of hundreds of thousands and millions, but still they press on.

Naturally with such rapid growth they have encountered obstacles at every turn. Their city government could not be made fast enough to meet the demands of such tremendous thousands of new people, bringing with them new problems in sanitation and in government every day. But they never faltered. They have fought on as winners, and are still fighting new and more momentous battles each day of their progress and are still winning as they go. We are proud of Birmingham.

DON'T BE THE "OTHER FELLOW"

About 15,000 lives were lost in motor accidents (exclusive of grade crossing collisions between motor vehicles and trains) in the United States during 1923, an increase of nearly 2,000 over the 1922 record. Grade crossing fatalities make a total exceeding 17,000.

This estimate was made by the National Safety Committee of the Automobile Department of the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters on the basis of statistics of 135 cities.

It may be all right to insure your car against fire, theft, collision, public liability and property damage, and so long as the accident which may be due to your carelessness merely hurts the "other fellow" you let the insurance company worry about the cost. But if you happen to be the "other fellow," insurance collected by your heirs may not help you in the place to which you go.

No insurance has yet been found which will prevent death and injury; it pays to be careful.

A PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR

WHEREAS, The Legislature of Alabama, at a session held in 1923, has ordered an election by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which is herein set forth, to be held at the general election in November, 1924;

NOW THEREFORE, I, William W. Brandon, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that at the general election in November, 1924, an election will be held for the vote of the qualified electors of the State of Alabama, in the manner, form and places required by law, upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, viz:

"Town Creek School District No. 1, Landersville School District No. 2, and Moulton School District No. 3, Lawrence County, Alabama, each have the right and power to vote of a majority of the qualified electors of such district at an election held for that purpose to levy and collect for the purpose of acquiring, constructing or repairing of school buildings in such districts or paying for school buildings already built, a tax of not over five mills in any one year in addition to all other taxes now authorized by law. The election in such district to determine whether or not such tax shall be levied shall be called, held and conducted as now provided by law for calling, holding and conducting of elections to determine whether or not a three-mill district school tax shall be levied and collected."

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great Seal of the State to be affixed at the Capitol, in the City of Montgomery, on this, the 8th day of August, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-four.

FOOT BALL LAST FRIDAY

The C. C. H. S. boys locked up with the last Autauga eleven on last Friday p. m.

Several years, the Marbury boys have beaten Clanton in foot ball but this game went the other way. Clanton winning the game 20 to 0.

A hard fought struggle on sides, but Chilton Hi had it on when it comes to a foot ball this year.

Chilton Hi has one of the best teams in the year in the state, and at the close of the season, they will be standing near the top, if not the top. Their coach, Mr. Heard, is doing some first class training, so if they continue as they were started, they cannot help but

"The municipalities of Thorsby, Piedmont and Greenville, and Roanoke and Greensboro and Calera, Florida and Opp, Evergreen and Fayette, and Clayton and Chlo in the State of Alabama, shall have the power and right to levy and collect a tax of one-half of one per centum in any one year on property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation for the tax year ending on the 30th day of September next succeeding the levy; provided that the purpose of paying bonds or indebtedness issued and outstanding at the time of the adoption of this amendment and the interest thereon, and for the purpose of paying bonds or indebtedness which may be incurred or incurred after the adoption of this amendment and the interest thereon, an additional tax of one-half of one per centum may be levied and collected by said corporations; provided further that a majority of the qualified electors of any of said municipal corporations voting at an election called for that purpose may vote a special tax not to exceed one-half of one per centum in any one year for any special purpose or purposes, which tax shall be used only for the purpose or purposes for which same is levied and collected; provided, however, that the tax to be levied by any of said municipal corporations shall not exceed one and one-half (1 1/2) per centum in any one year. Alabama City shall have the power and right to levy and collect a tax of three-quarters of one per centum in any one year on property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation. Provided, further, that the adoption of this amendment shall in no wise affect, limit, modify, abridge or impair the power, authority or right of either of said municipal corporations to levy and collect the special school taxes now or hereafter levied or to be levied on or conferred upon them, or any of them, under the Constitution or any amendment thereto, including the power of the City of Selma to levy and collect the special school and school purposes taxes levied and collected upon said City of Selma by the amendment to the Constitution of Alabama adopted thereto at the general election held in the City of Selma, and which was submitted under Law Number 315, General Laws 1915, page 337, each election held under the provisions hereof shall be ordered, held, canvassed and may be contested in the same manner as is or may be provided by the law applicable to the municipal corporations for elections to authorize the issuance of municipal bonds. The ballots used at such election shall contain the words:

"For _____ excess rate of taxation for the year (or years) _____ and "Against _____ excess rate of taxation for the year (or years) _____." The rate of taxation proposed in excess of the rate of one (1) per centum to be shown in the blank space provided therefor and the year or years in which the proposed rate is to apply to be shown in the blank space provided therefor, and in the event different excess rates are proposed for different years the words mentioned shall be repeated as often as may be necessary to show separately the different rates proposed to be applied to the respective years. And the voter shall record his choice, whether for or against the excess rate or rates shown by placing a cross mark before or after the words expressing his choice. Nothing herein contained shall in any wise change or affect the rights of any holder of bonds or municipal corporations heretofore issued. Elections to authorize the levy of such special tax may be held as often as ordered by the governing body of the municipality but when a proposition is submitted to the electors to levy a special tax for a specific purpose, and such proposition is defeated, no second election for the same shall be held in one year thereafter."

CIVIC CLUB BUSINESS MEETING

The Civic Club will have a business meeting at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, of Oct. 9, at the home of Mrs. Watt Moore.

All members, new and old, are urged to come to help make plans for the coming year.

Let us make this Club year more valuable to us and more helpful to the community than ever before during its years of existence.

MISSIONARY MEETING

The Missionary Society of the Methodist church, held its regular business meeting at the home of Mrs. I. C. Jones, on Monday afternoon, with Circle 4 as hostess.

The devotional services were led by Mrs. Wilkerson.

The subject was: "The Stewart and the community." Scriptures from Isaiah and Luke.

After the various reports were made the members discussed and planned for their annual Christian Bazaar.

RECEPTION

On Thursday Oct. 9, at 4 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Watts Moore, the Civic Club will give a reception in honor of the Faculties of the Grammar and High Schools. All who are interested in Clanton and its schools are cordially invited to come to meet there and welcome the teachers into our community life.

BITES BY PEOPLE

A puppy, belonging to a Mr. Clack, of Avondale, suddenly became a victim of hydrophobia Monday morning. He first bit four members of the Clack family and then escaped to the street and bit 25 others before he was captured.

It seems that even a pet puppy can become a very serious menace in a community and it is the part of wisdom to take no chances when ever a dog manifests the least symptoms unusual to his daily life.

SENATOR HEFLIN IN GREAT DEMAND IN THE NATIONAL CAMPAIGN

Senator Heflin is in great demand as a speaker in this campaign. He opened the campaign for the Democrats in Tennessee at Knoxville, September 24 and Governor Peay of that state pronounced it the greatest political speech that he had ever heard. Senator Heflin will speak in Tennessee, Kentucky, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska and Maryland. He will be back in Alabama in time to make three or four speeches before the election.

MUSIC TEACHING

I am giving Piano Lessons Tuesday and Friday of each week across street from High School building in the Ed Plier residence. Examination and credit units will be given. If interested please see me and arrange for lesson period.

UNIVERSITY EXTENSION COURSE

The University Extension Group will meet at the High School Building here on Saturday October 25, at 9 a. m. Dr. Thomas will be the instructor and the course will be given in "Socially Significant Literature." This course will give you credit in either the department of Education or in the regular College of Arts and Sciences. The course is primarily for teachers but any citizen will be admitted to the course that may desire to take same.

It would be the part of wisdom to always take out eye insurance before going out to a public entertainment here. The boys and girls give an opening act with peanuts and pebbles that seems to be funny to them but is out dangerous to those who need to keep their eyes in service.

NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNERS

To whom it may concern:
Notice is hereby given that the assessment roll or list, prepared in accordance with the laws in such cases, made and provided under an ordinance entitled (Improvement Ordinance number five, an Ordinance to provide for certain improvements on Second Avenue North) adopted and confirmed on July 28th, 1924, by the Town Council of the town of Clanton, Alabama, has been delivered to me and is open for inspection in the office of the Town Clerk, the person authorized to make collection of assessments of improvements constructed under said ordinance and that the council of the Town of Clanton, will meet on Oct 1st, 1924, in the Council Chamber of the City Office of Clanton, at 10 o'clock a. m. to hear any objections, protests or defenses that may be filed to such proposed assessment, or the amount thereof.
The general character of the improvement constructed under said ordinance consists of certain concrete sidewalk paving and alley crossings.
The Streets, Avenues or other highways or portions thereof, which improvements have been constructed and the terminal points of said improvements are as follows, to-wit: On Second Avenue North from Eighth Street to the intersection of the North boundary line of Section Two, Township twenty-one North, Range, fourteen East.

THE NEW M. E. CHURCH

We were all glad to notice last Monday morning that a bunch of workmen had gone to work on the beautiful Methodist church again.
This work has been suspended for quite awhile now and the great amount of scaffolding, that had to remain until the outside work was completed, has detracted so much from the symmetrical beauty of that massive structure, that all of us were anxious for its removal.

If the weather permits in only a few days now we can get a real view of that splendid house.

Rev. R. M. Honeycutt, of Jemison, was a pleasant caller at our office last Saturday.

Always On Time

WE WERE READY FOR THE FROST

Although October broke all previous records and gave us a white frost the first day, it found us ready.

Our stock of Fall and Winter Merchandise is up to the minute in style texture and especially price.

Entered in the Post Office at Clanton, Alabama, as Second Class Mail Matter Under Act of Congress.

Davis, Brandon and Al Smith are giving the "down easter" a show for their money this week.

The Democratic campaign has been conducted in such a way that if we lose New York our name will be Dennis.

If political lies amount to anything the book keeping department up above have to work overtime during a campaign.

There is a shortage in some sections has caused a backward gathering of cotton. When there has been abundant the cotton is sold at a low price.

The public is keeping up of political matters and are sure that our tax dollars buy us no little service in road roads and efficient schools.

It is our duty to select men of good, honest stable reliability for our public offices. And then it is our duty to go to the polls and elect them.

We long for an administration that will so arrange the school funds that the rural boy will have as many dollars spent on his education as any other boy, no matter where he lives.

The national democratic party will never be a successful winner in the United States until it undertakes to treat without New York by analagizing the national West.

When a little pitiful two for a penny man happens to get in to a prominent office, the way he rattles around in there is a sight to behold. Ain't it?

"Hell Maria" Davis is getting a pretty free application of the first part of his name about now. Senator C. K. Hearst is giving him a few lessons in punishment these days.

There is no use in trying to please everybody, for God does not succeed at that. The thing to do is to contend for what is right, and the friends you make will be worth a thousands times more than those you lose.

La Follette and Wheeler are certainly in the race in the Northwest, according to the Literary Digest. They seem to be running Coolidge a tight second, while our man is bringing up a lagging third out there.

The great thing in politics is to have your name on the ballot. It is the only way to get in. It will be sundown with some of that bunch when they complete their present term.

They say the bobbed haired women whose whiskers are beginning to show are getting the mustache as a substitute. A lady told me that she had a man without a mustache, so she ate the whiskers off his chin without salt. So they do not seem to be disappointed. If the mustache is the substitute for the whiskers, the mustache is the substitute for the whiskers.

THE NON-PARTISAN TICKET

The people of Chilton county, it seems to me, are not interested in party lines. They are interested in the election of a man who will do the best for the county. They are not interested in the possibility of a county election without injecting in to it a great mass of personal bitterness and shame.

Listen at this: Are we not all a unit in desiring to have the very best possible government in our home affairs?

If good, honest clean government, managed and controlled by men who are not now, never have been nor ever will be politicians, is what we need, then why not drop this absurd national political line, and look about us and select stalwart citizens of the county, who live at home and board at the same place, and have made the management of their own affairs so openly and honestly, before all the world, that not even one finger of suspicion has ever been pointed at them, and elect them to look after our interests with the same degree of honesty, carefulness and economy that has marked their own life?

Vote as you please and for whom you please in the national election, but let us leg of you, in the interest of your own home and family and in behalf of the political salvation of your county, to obliterate utterly this foolish idea of partisanship when it comes to taking care of our own home interests and the future of our great county.

Let us crown the closing days of this good year of our Lord, by killing forever this local prejudice that has cost us so woefully much in the past, in lack of a harmonious co-operation and in the estrangement of a people who should always stand shoulder to shoulder, in the building up of their home and their country. Reason this thing out for yourself and see how worse than foolish it is for people who are naturally linked together, in every local question affecting our common good, to fall out and fight each other, "cutting off their nose to spite their face," and making of us all the joke and laughing stock of the surrounding counties.

AN EPOCH IN OUR HISTORY

About 60 years ago a Republican war congress added what is known as the 14th Amendment, to the Constitution of the United States. This amendment was intended to enfranchise the negro and made of him a bona fide citizen of our country, legally entitled to all of the rights and privileges guaranteed by the constitution.

Since that illegal measure was passed, every one has accepted it as final and the negro has been granted those rights right along.

In some southern states local laws were passed, and are still in force, that denied to the negro his right to vote, unless he could comply with certain conditions not affected by his color.

These laws were made possible under rulings of this same constitution, that guarantees, what is known as "States Rights" to the various states to govern themselves. In all other respects the negro has been peacefully allowed to take his place as an American citizen.

To ever amend this Federal constitution in any way, by due process of constitutional law, it is necessary to refer the proposed amendment to the voters of every state. Then, it requires that three fourths of the states in the union shall endorse the amendment before it can even be offered to Congress for action.

This provision having been strictly complied with, it then requires a two thirds vote of Congress to enable the amendment to be added to the constitution as a part of our fundamental law. In no other way can an amendment be legally added to our fundamental document.

Here is what has now developed along the lines of the negroes rights to be known and classed as a citizen.

Mr. Harding appointed a negro named Cohen as Collector of the Port at New Orleans. The Louisiana Senators and Representatives made such a kick that the Senate refused to pass the appointment. After Congress adjourned, Mr. Harding gave Cohen a recess appointment any how. When Congress convened again they proceeded to turn Cohen down again. After Mr. Harding died President Coolidge gave Cohen the appointment again and again Congress turned him down. Later Coolidge got the party whip to work and Congress reconsidered its action and made the appointment of the negro Cohen a fact.

Here comes the epoch making part of the story. Some Washington lawyers have made a complete research of the manner in which the 14th amendment was passed and they claim that Cohen, is not a citizen of the United States on the ground that this 14th amendment was illegally passed, and can not stand as part of our constitution for that reason, and that all negroes are Africans and not citizens of our country, hence, they are not entitled to either vote or hold office.

According to these lawyers, eleven states were totally debarred from representation in the Congress that passed this 14 amendment. That six other states were forced to vote for it and, that they neither had the sanction of three fourths of the states, nor a two third majority in the Congress that claimed to make it a law.

On these grounds they have filed suit to disqualify Cohen, and if he is disqualified, the entire negro population will fall with him.

If this matter is pushed to its final disposition the United States Supreme Court will have a most embarrassing question to settle. It is a far reaching question than you think if you follow it up.

POLITENESS A LOST ART

The writer has never attempted to be either a Chesterfield on politeness, nor an Oscar Wilde on etiquette, but there are some of the more common aspects of politeness that always did seem to us to be an indispensable part of common decency and human intelligence.

For instance you rarely ever hear young people these days say yes sir, or yes mam, or nor sir and no mam, excuse me or thank you, or display the faintest degree of respect for older people in the routine of their daily life. On the contrary, it appears to be the prevalent idea with the young people to show as little respect for age as they possibly can get by with. Now, the older people do not personally care a tuppence about how they feel towards them, but a sense of pity and unavoidable contempt, is certain to fill their heart with sadness when they observe such low brutal instincts directing the course of these future citizens who will have to take up the burdens of the world's care in just a few short years.

What will a future citizenship be that does not possess a single one of the finer sentiments of common decency and respect for each other? Even the higher order of brute life has a common respect for its kind, and manifests a feeling of comradeship and personal interest in the welfare of each other.

Next to the saving grace of God, there is nothing more precious than the love, confidence and respect of friends, but when one goes through life ignoring his fellows and treating them with a studied and malicious disrespect, there is a dormant sentiment in every human bosom that will freeze against them and leave them alone to work out their own miserable destiny. You can neither live nor die to yourself. No matter how self-sufficient you imagine you are. No matter how insignificant and useless to you may appear the association and sympathy of friends, take it from us as a truth older than the ages and as true as God Himself, that you are utterly mistaken—you are helpless as a babe—and the time will speedily come to you when you would freely give all of the wealth in the world if you could only turn back and come over the road again. How eagerly you would clutch to your vanishing soul, every friend, no matter how humble, that your courtesy, politeness and even your love could tie on to your pathway.

These facts are as true as Holy writ and as inevitable as death. Would that we could burn them upon the soul of every young man and woman in the world.

Some of us older people have travelled the road ahead of you. We did not ride in automobiles, but the snares and pitfalls were just the same. Many of us will carry the scars of our folly to our grave. We know the way by sad experience and how gladly we would counsel and advise you of the danger, that you might profit by our experience and save yourself from the heartaches and bitter memories that will come to you in after years, when it is too late to do anything but repent and grieve over the foolish mistakes of a misspent young life.

JOB HOLDERS

Figures from authoritative sources assert that nearly $4,000,000,000 is paid out in the United States every year to public officials, active and retired.

These figures are not surprising when we know that nearly 3,500,000 persons are on the public payroll, federal state and local.

Nearly one-half of the $8,500,000,000 spent yearly by our government goes to officials and former officials. Every taxpayer should understand that almost one-half of his taxes goes to support office-holders.

One of Mussolini's first acts was to dismiss 100,000 men from the public payroll.

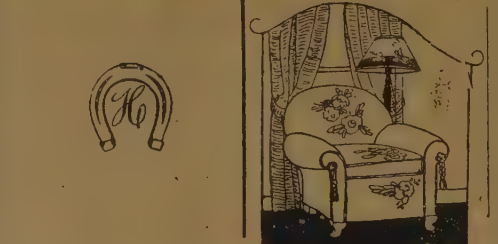

Our trouble is that the job-holder is the backbone of every political party. Jobs are the currency in which party debts are paid. And this currency is at present inflated.

Mr. J. A. Burke, one of the cleverest men in Alabama, remembered us this week with a nice lot of delicious roasting ears. They came in mighty handy and we are duly grateful.

Cotton
Is Going to Market.
All over the cotton belt, loading platforms are piled high with "the staple of the South", ready for shipment to the mills. The 1924 crop will bring millions of dollars to the growers, and the distribution of this money will benefit everybody.
Just at this time it is interesting to remember that U. S. Department of Agriculture figures for last year show that the average farm price paid to the producer for 100 pounds of cotton, was $27.80; whereas, the railroads received an average of 66c for hauling each 100 pounds to market.
These figures indicate that in cotton, as in all other commodities, the freight rate represents a relatively small percentage of the cost, and is not a controlling factor in the determination of prices.
The Louisville & Nashville Railroad directly serves more than half of the cotton-producing states; its tonnage during 1923 totaling approximately 9,000 cars.

The Best Biscuits You Ever Tasted

NOTHING adds more to a good meal than a heaping plate of delicious biscuits made from self-rising flour. Everybody loves them. Tempting, nourishing, wholesome, you'll find in them a food value equalled by no other bread.

"I find that biscuits made out of self-rising flour are delicious and require less shortening," writes Mrs. C. S. P., of North Carolina. "The danger of having greenish-yellow ones occasioned by the use of too much soda is entirely eliminated. . . . Now I can be sure that even my sixteen year old daughter cannot fail in making biscuits or cakes when self-rising flour is used."

Self-rising flour is pure and wholesome—the ideal flour to use whenever uniformly good bakings are desired. It consists of choice soft wheat flour and healthful phosphate baking powder measured and mixed so carefully that your bakings are always dainty and tasteful. Once you try it, you'll never be without it. Look for the Blue Shield on the bag. It means that you are buying guaranteed flour.

FOLLOW THESE FIVE RULES For Making Perfect Biscuits with Self-Rising Flour. (1) See that your oven is hot; (2) Always use sweet milk or cold water; (3) Never add lard, grease, or oil; (4) Use good shortening—lard, vegetable fat or butter; (5) Make soft dough—bake quickly.

USE SELF-RISING FLOUR

MONEY-BACK GUARANTEE
Every bag of self-rising flour bearing this Blue Shield is guaranteed to make perfect biscuits. If you are not satisfied, we will refund your money. No questions asked. Write to us for full particulars.

Sunday School 'Lesson'

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D.D., Dean of the Evening School, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)
(C. 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for October 19

THE PARABLE OF THE SOWER

LESSON TEXT—Mark 4:1-20.
GOLDEN TEXT—The sower soweth the word.—Mark 4:14.
PRIMARY TOPIC—The Garden of the Heart.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Good Soil for Good Seed.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How to Receive and Use God's Word.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How May I Improve the Soil of My Heart?

The method of teaching by parables was not employed by Jesus until the rulers had set their hearts against Him. When, in the light of His wonderful works, they turned against Him and attributed His works to the Devil (Mark 3:22) He denounced them in scathing terms and began to teach them by parables in fulfillment of Isaiah 6:10. The parabolic method of teaching makes clear the truth to those who love it and conceals it from those who dislike it.

A great multitude gathered to Him at the seaside (v. 1), so that, in order to escape the pressure of the crowd, He was obliged to enter a boat. From the boat as a pulpit He taught many things in parables. In this parable the sower and the seed are the same in all instances, but the results are entirely different. The difference lies in the condition of the soil. The central purpose of the teaching of this parable is to show that the results of preaching the Word depend upon the condition of the human heart.

I. The Wayside (v. 4, 15).
The wayside means the track beaten down by the hoofs of animals and the feet of men. Because the soil was unbroken and uncultivated the seed could not get beneath the surface, therefore was devoured by the fowls that came along (v. 4). The great truth taught here is that the heart unbroken and hard is not fit soil for the Gospel. Such a heart it penetrates not, but lies loosely upon the surface. It is not recognized as God's means for restoring them unto Himself. While in this condition the evil one finds some way to snatch away the truth. The fowls that devour the seed represent the agents of Satan (v. 15).

II. The Stony Ground (v. 5, 8, 16, 27).
This means not stones mixed with soil, but stones with a thin layer of soil on them. With such conditions a seed springs up quickly and likewise scorches quickly, as it has not much depth. The great lesson is that hearts superficially impressed receive the Word with joy, but when affliction or persecution arises for the Word's sake, immediately they are offended. They wither away and die.

III. The Thorny Ground (v. 7, 18, 19).

In this case the ground is good, but has thorns in it. It is mellow enough and has sufficient depth, but has not been cleaned of the thorns. Such really hear the Word, but "the cares of this world, and the deceitfulness of riches, and the lusts of other things entering in, choke the Word, and it becometh unfruitful" (v. 19). The thorny ground hearers of this age are those:

1. Who are so immersed in worldliness, business and anxious cares that the good seed cannot mature.
2. Who are so rich. Anxious care in business brings riches and the effect of riches is to blunt the spiritual perception of men and women, thereby rendering them unresponsive to the call of God, to higher things in life.

3. Who are running after the pleasures of life. All these things choke the Word. Many of the enjoyments of the world may be innocent in themselves, but they attract so much attention and consume so much energy and time that one has not time for Bible reading, meditation and prayer.

IV. The Good Ground (v. 8, 20).
This ground differs from all the rest. It is soft and mellow, deep and moist; therefore, is capable of bringing forth fruit, some an hundred, some sixty and some thirty-fold, indicating different degrees of fruitfulness even of the good ground. In the measure that the heart is kept free from worldliness, riches and pleasure, the good seed matures.

VOTERS OF CHILTON County!

Do You Want Clean, Practical Men In Office ? Then Consider the Momentous Situation Before You

HOWARD R. ODEN

Born and reared in Mulberry community of this county. Has been active in school matters for past 20 years. Spent 7 years teaching in Rural schools of this county. Six years as R. F. D. carrier from Maplesville. Balance of life been spent on the farm. Always working for better schools.

TO THE VOTERS OF CHILTON COUNTY

Some three weeks ago several of the best citizens from both political parties in Chilton county approached me to know if I would allow them to use my name on a Non-Partisan ticket as a member of the Board of Education, and by request of our Chairman I desire to say a few words to the good citizenship of our county.

First, I want to say that those who first came to see me were people who here-to-fore have not been active or extraneous in politics in this county. They also promised me that if I should be elected that I would be under no obligations to any one.

Now, I must say, I am proud, or feel honored to know that my running mates are all clean, honest men. If my past life has been the same, (and I have done my best) then I promise you emphatically that in dealing with school matters in the future that I should at all times, be clean and honest. If I should make a mistake, you can rest assured that it would be an honest mistake.

With the training I have had in our Normal school at Jacksonville, and experience as teacher in our public schools I feel like I would be able to render fairly good service to the schools of our county.

After giving our ticket your most careful consideration you then think our opponents are the best qualified for the places to which they aspire then it becomes your duty to vote for them. On the other hand, if you see fit to give me or our ticket your support I promise you it will be highly appreciated and every citizen in the county shall be treated alike. Thanking you for every consideration, I am,

Praternally,
HOWARD R. ODEN.

H. T. BRADFORD DEAD

The many friends of Mr. H. T. Bradford, of Thorsby are grieved this week because he is no more.

Mr. Bradford has been a resident of Thorsby for a number of years, and for a time operated a drug store there.

Later his health gave way and he had to retire. He had come to Greenville for treatment, but death came Sunday night.

The remains were brought and buried at Thorsby Tuesday.

JAMES CATO PATTILLO

Born in Autauga county, November 13, 1874. Son of Rev. A. L. Pattillo. Has resided in Chilton county nearly all his life. Never been active in politics. Has sometimes voted for men of different political affiliations from his own, when he considered them best qualified for the office. Has been an untiring worker for the building up of the schools of his community and of the county.

TO THE PEOPLE OF CHILTON COUNTY

At the request of a great many of my good friends in Chilton county, I have consented to become a candidate for one of the vacancies on the Board of Education, subject to the action of all the qualified voters of the county, regardless of party affiliations. I am offering as a candidate for this place solely because it has to do with the administration of the affairs of the schools of our county so as to give every child in it equal opportunity in securing an education, regardless of whether they are poor or wealthy, in the rural communities or in the towns or are situated near or far from the school centers; and because the education of our boys and girls, who are soon to be our men and women, is next to the church, nearer to my heart than any other department of our social or governmental affairs. I feel that I am competent to render efficient service in this capacity and hereby pledge, if elected, to render that service earnestly, honestly and impartially to all of the people and to give my very best efforts toward the betterment of our educational facilities.

I am a man of moderate means. I have to work for my living and, therefore, will not be able to make a personal canvass of the county, but ask that you, who do not know me, make inquiry as to my competency and character and if you find me more desirable for the office give me your vote on election day.

Yours for the best interests of our county,

J. C. PATTILLO

W. A. KEMP

Here is another Chilton county product. Born and reared in the county and has spent all his life here. For a number of years he devoted himself to farming exclusively. For several years now he has been engaged in the mercantile business as well as farming. He is widely and favorably known as an honest, lighted citizen and especially qualified to discharge correctly, courteously and promptly the duties connected with the office for which he has been named.

TO THE VOTERS OF CHILTON COUNTY

Upon the solicitation of a large number of my friends, I have allowed my name to be used as a candidate for County Treasurer.

If I am elected I promise to give you all, regardless of party, the very best service that I am capable of.

I have lived among you all of my life and you know me. If you can give me your support and I am elected, you will find the office of Treasurer always open and glad to render you every service.

I will appreciate your support and serve you faithfully in recognition of it.

Your friend,

W. A. KEMP.

W. M. U. TO MEET AT MARBURY

The annual meeting of the W. M. U. of United A. M. will meet at the Marbury Baptist church, October 28, at 10 a. m.

Two of Alabama's most popular and efficient speakers will address the assembly.

A Fugant, "How Dreams Come True," will be presented. This wonderful allegory has been presented before and has met with rapturous approval as an inspirational lesson. Numerous requests have been made to repeat it.

Everybody are cordially invited.

PAY YOUR SUBSCRIPTION

Why should you, in county affairs, adhere to any party, or creed, when you know the candidates personally, and know his reputation for truthfulness, honesty, business ability and clean living to be above reproach.

R. L. OUSLEY

Was born and reared in Chilton county and is living now in the same house in which he was born. Employed for 12 years by Jackson Lumber Company, most of the time as superintendent and builder of roads, and is considered an authority on road building.

Is a strong advocate of education and especially feels an interest in rural schools and their development. Believes in good roads and knows exactly how to build them. Is a successful farmer who "lives at home and boards at the same place."

TO THE VOTERS OF CHILTON COUNTY

Pletcher, Ala., Oct. 11.
I understand that R. Lee Ousley of near this place is a candidate for Commissioner from this (the 3rd) district. For those who do not know him, I desire to say that this man would make us an unusually good Commissioner. He is competent and efficient for this place in every respect; he has had years of experience in road building and bridge work and has had considerable experience in grading work for big sawmill companies. He has been and now is deeply interested in school improvements etc. He is a public spirited citizen, is a good business man, a hard working farmer. He is upright and clean. If any one should doubt these facts ask any of those who know him, regardless of party.

I do not know his opponent, but I do know if he is as good a man as Ousley, that we are certainly going to have a good Commissioner from this district, regardless of which wins.

Yours very truly,

E. G. CALDWELL

BIBLE STUDY

The Bible Study Class will meet on Monday October 19, at 2 o'clock at the Methodist church. Mrs. Wilkerson, the teacher, urges a large attendance. The time of meeting has been arranged so that those who wish may attend the afternoon Revival Services at the Baptist church.

JOHN MONROE PARRISH

Born in Chilton County and resided here all of his life. His life occupation has been farming. Is a son of Rev. M. J. Parrish. Never been a candidate for office nor active in politics. A clean, honest citizen, a close student of local conditions and truly a Christian gentleman. Is highly qualified to make a Commissioner of whom all people and all parties will be proud.

TO CHILTON COUNTY VOTERS

Upon the earnest solicitation of a large number of friends and neighbors, I have allowed my name to be put on the Independent Progressive ticket for County Commissioner.

I am not, nor have I ever been, a politician, but I do believe firmly in better rural schools and in good roads and am always ready to cooperate with any movement that is pledged to their improvement.

I will appreciate greatly your support and pledge myself to every voter in the county, that if I am elected I will honestly discharge the duties devolving upon me to the very best of my ability and with absolute fairness to every one regardless of politics I thank you.

Your friend,

J. MONROE PARRISH

THE BAPTIST REVIVAL

A ten day series of gospel meetings are in progress now at the Baptist church since 11 a. m. last Sunday.

Dr. David M. Gardner, the able and popular pastor of the first Baptist church of Easley, is doing the preaching. He is a gifted man of God and is giving us some of the plainest and best gospel preaching you ever heard. Prof. Theo. H. Farr, a noted singer and a widely known and popular master is in charge of the music and it is well worth your time to spend an hour or so each day at the service if nothing else was offered than the music.

Large crowds are attending these services and a great deal of interest seems to be manifested so far.

There are two services per day, one at 3 o'clock in the afternoon and the other at 7:30 in the evening. An invitation is extended to every one to come out and take part.

Remember, they run exactly on time and unless you are in your seat promptly, at the appointed hour you will miss some of the service.

GO TO CHURCH

Be at church Sunday morning Every Sunday is Go to Church Sunday. There will be a special two minute talk on the Absentee member by Mr. McDavid. Come hear this and also a good sermon by your preacher. Come to the Methodist church Sunday.

Persian Philosophy

Miss Elisabeth Marlbury praised, at dinner in New York, the single life. "Married life is so complicated," she said. "It is like the Persian story. 'A Persian, you know, used to buy six loaves of bread every day. Another Persian asked him why he did so. He answered: 'One of the loaves I keep; one I throw away; two I return; and two I lend.' 'Complicated, most complicated,' said the other Persian. 'Can't you be a little clearer, friend?'"

"Well," said the first Persian, smiling, "it's like this. The loaf I keep is for myself. The one I throw away is for my mother-in-law—may the foul fiend get her! The two I return are those I give my parents. The two I lend are those I give my children."—New York Mail.

Skin so sore could not touch water to it

Resinol relieves it within few hours

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—"I am so grateful to you for your splendid products and for what they have accomplished for me that I feel I must give you the details."

In attempting to improve the appearance of my chin, I used a soap which had been recommended for that purpose but which proved to be too harsh for when I washed off the lather, the skin came with it. I applied cold cream, but the damage was too severe to yield to so mild an agent. My husband consulted our neighborhood druggist and asked if it would not be advisable to call in our family doctor. The druggist said: "You do not need a doctor in this case. Get a jar of Resinol Ointment and a cake of Resinol Soap and have your wife use them according to directions—they will beat everything else a hundred ways." So my husband bought the Resinol products and hopefully brought them home.

My skin was so tender and sore that I could not touch water to it. So I cleaned it gently first with pure olive oil and then applied the Resinol. I used a soft handkerchief that night for protection. In the morning, I bathed it gently with warm water and Resinol Soap, rinsing off with tepid water, and I could hardly believe that such a miracle of healing could occur during one night. The raw surface had flamed over and now looked only like a bad case of sunburn. I kept my face anointed with Resinol all that day and by night the improvement was so great that I was able to go out.

This experience is now only a memory for my face is softer, fairer and smoother than ever. A jar of Resinol is my best pal in the future and I will never be without it." (Signed) Mrs. C. P. Tapley, 1023 8th St., N. W.

ALABAMA NEWS HAPPENINGS

A Resume of the More Important Events of Interest Condensed To An Epitomized Form.

Municipal license fees prescribed by the General Revenue Act of the State of Alabama and based upon population figures, must be assessed and collected, according to the Federal census, and not in accordance with any subsequent municipal census. The Supreme Court of Alabama has established this ruling in reversing the decision of the Alabama Court of Appeals and remanding the case of ex parte E. M. Jones. Original appeal in this case was from Barbour County, where the appellant made application for a license to sell cigarettes in Buftala.

An illicit still hidden in the grass on Hall's Mill Creek in Mobile County has finally yielded to the efforts of the State and Federal law enforcement men. This still was searched for several times although the officers came within ten feet of it. The reason for the officers being baffled was that the still and all fixtures were painted green to resemble nearby grass and brush. The long worm of the still leading to the water was camouflaged also. The officers destroyed the still and 500 gallons of mash.

The attendance banner of the Rus sell County Baptist Association, awarded to the Westside Baptist Church of Phenix City by the association in convention at Owichee, Ala. Mrs. L. G. Silas of Fort Mitchell was elected president and Miss Ruth V. Kelly of Phenix City was elected chairman for the young people's department when officers for the ensuing year were elected.

L. M. Gilbert lost his $10,000 damage suit against Etowah County because Judge Steele sustained demurrers of the defense in which it was claimed the county cannot be sued by an employee since it is a part of the State government. The court held that the county can be sued only in a few cases specified by law.

The total assessment of Pike County this year will amount to $9,850,510, not including the automobile values, which will not be definitely known until February, 1925. This is according to information given by V. A. Gibson, assessor, who has sent in the county report of tax assessments to the State Tax Commission.

Etowah County watermelons are still coming into Gadsden. They are much the finest seen here this season. The Humphrey brothers, of Sand Mountain, recently brought in three wagon loads. They were much larger than any others received here during the season.

Patrons of the White Oak School, near Leighton, recently gave a barbecue to raise funds to pay off the debt incurred by the erection of a modern three-room school building. A large crowd from many sections of the county was present and almost enough money raised to pay off the debt.

The Chamber of Commerce, at Gadsden, has been successful in securing a substantial reduction in scrap iron rates to Gadsden from points on the N. C. & St. L. Railway in Tennessee and Alabama. Rates now range from 79 cents to $2.25 per ton in minimum carload lots of 50,000 pounds.

The City Council at Huntsville, added another street to the paving program when it adopted on its final reading an ordinance providing for the paving of Locust Street extension. Bids for the work were opened October 14.

At the first meeting of the new City Council and the Mayor at Jacksonville, G. C. Currier was elected Mayor pro tem; C. A. Whitmore, re-elected City Clerk; W. A. Venab's, re-elected Chief of Police, and Fayette Johnson, assistant chief.

Funeral services were held at Gadsden for Ott Smith, 27, at Mt. High Marshall County, following his suicide at the home of a neighbor, Lon Latimer.

J. I. Guyton, a prominent merchant of Vernon, who was severely injured when an automobile struck him a few days ago, is now able to be at his place of business.

Slim Carter, of Hazelgreen, has been unanimously re-elected "Bama's cheer leader. Hamilton Perkins, Bessemer; Waldo Macon, Wetumpka; and Troy Allen, Oxford, were named his assistants.

The public terms of the Hefflin City School was opened Monday, October 13.

Decatur people are happy in the belief that their new streets are to cost them only $250,000 instead of $300,000 as was at first expected, following an announcement by Superintendent Brownlee of the Independent Paving Company, of Birmingham, which has the contract for building all the new streets. Mr. Brownlee says that he did not expect to turn in a bill for over a quarter of a million when his street building contract is completed at the end of this year. The original bond issue for the streets was $300,000 Mr. Brownlee explained that of efficient working men, reduced estimates and a saving in the cost of much of the machinery of his company was already here when he began work.

Ed Gwin, tax assessor of Hale County, is the banker farmer so far heard from. On a two-mule farm near Decaturville, he has made a wonderful crop of cotton, on which he expects to clear $3,000. He has rushed his work to take advantage of the clear weather has picked and ginned his crop plowed his land, and has a good stand of vetch already up on it.

T. C. Germain, owner and manager of a moving picture theatre in Talladega has been arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Pickard at Gadsden on the charge of not paying the theatre tax as required by the act of Congress on February 24, 1919. He pleaded guilty and his bond was fixed at $500.

NATIONAL HONORS AND LOCAL SALES

Would you ever think of being hugely interested in corsets, other people's corsets at that? And if you had discovered that all the fascinating art and science of salesmanship could be wrapped up in corset and whalebone, would you think you had any chance of carrying off a record, way out in Idaho? Well, Sophie Boellert was and did. That is to say, she found herself a saleswoman in a Boise store. She set herself to "work, and hard work, with tireless ambition to go on and on." She took one course of study after another, for "we never have enough learning."

That she won the national prize in corset selling not long ago is just one milestone on her way. She's buyer and department manager in the Boise Mode. That means that she has come to know intimately the buying public of Idaho, and the manufacturers of America and the world as they are translated to the retail trade through the clever, complicated, ever changing, ever interesting New York market. She's a director of the store, which means that she's managed to learn how to work with other people day in and day out, to get her own way when it's based on good hard knowledge without irritating the other person, and to yield her opinion as gracefully when other judgment is the better.

Her position means work with much overtime, but Miss Boellert finds opportunity for outside interests. "I've always been interested in helping girls up in their work," she says. "My own experience is that the best foundations for the average girl are laid in smaller towns. People seem to have more time. But in any place the study of human nature is the most interesting one. This many-sided study is a great help in any work. One of the most interesting studies today is selling. We are all doing that. It has many angles and the whole world enters it at some angle."

Miss Boellert's own life seems to bear out her statement about the wide angle vision possible to the good saleswoman wherever she is. The war brought more than one honor to this Idaho woman who had been so conscientiously preparing herself. And when, just after the war, the National Federation of Business and Professional Women was started, the women of Idaho chose Miss Boellert to be their representative in the national council. Each year they have re-elected her. This year she has mothered two new clubs into being, and has two more on the point of organization. "So," she comments, "I'm busy most of the time."

"KINDLY WATCH JANE"

If a woman really wants to have fun in this modern world, said woman gets into a niche where she can watch, report upon and, on occasion, manipulate some of the currents of feminism. There's a woman out in Topeka doing that very thing. Wherefore there has grown up a tradition in Kansas, particularly in Kansas politics, "Kindly watch Jane." Now Jane is merely a nickname for a newspaper known officially as the Kansas Woman's Journal. It is the initials of the paper plus the necessities of the case that worded the slogan quoted.

Who and what are behind Jane? There's an advisory board that covers all one side of a sheet of paper. There's a motto, "Devoted to the interests of women, children and home," that is honestly lived up to. There was during the last political campaign, the Republican state central committee, which made the paper official organ of the Republican women of Kansas. There are the subscribers, both men and women. And there is Lilla Day Monroe, editor, who describes herself as "chiefly responsible except when the printers of my most capable publishing company commit some kind of crime, mayhem possibly, on some pet article."

It was July when Mrs. Monroe wrote, "Ha! merry! I have the rheumatism. I've one wrist trussed up in a redannel bandage. (Dr. said hot applications, and I'll leave it to you if there's anything more torrid than a redannel bandage.)"

"I was born into a family that was crazy to have a girl. As the only girl in a bunch of boys, I had many privileges, but I had to learn to be a good sport. My father died. I became a school teacher, read law, grew up and married a lawyer politician. When I first went away to school I boarded at the same place with a newspaper man and his wife, who were mighty nice to the lonesome little stranger. The editor took the most inconvenient times to become drunk. With his wife I used to get up in the middle of the night to get out the Courier. To keep awake I learned to set type."

"I only advise a girl to go to a big city for a bit of post graduate work, for a journey that will make her appreciate the wide spaces more when she comes back. One of the greatest boons for women is the feeling that they have a sort of proprietary interest in the home town, such as I have for Topeka."

HELPED HER IN EVERY WAY

So Writes Mrs. Trombley of Sharon, Vt., Concerning Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Sharon, Vermont. — "I was weak and run-down, had a tired feeling and was a purgative. I started taking a course of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and began taking it. It has stopped the bearing-down pains and other bad feelings, and has helped me in every way. I have so much faith in the Vegetable Compound that I keep it on hand all the time and recommend it whenever I look better. I am glad to help others regain their health, and you may use my testimonial." — MABEL HARTMANN, 1824 Greene Ave., Brooklyn, N.Y.

You must believe that a medicine that has helped other women will help you. You should try it.

Glad to Help Others

"I had pains in my back and sides for many months, and my work would have to be left undone at those times. My sister told me what good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was doing her, so I tried it, and from the third bottle I was well and every one thought I looked better. I am glad to help others regain their health, and you may use my testimonial." — MABEL HARTMANN, 1824 Greene Ave., Brooklyn, N.Y.

Mrs. R. A. Bearden of Centerville, Ala. a Clanton visitor the latter part of the week.

Mr. J. R. Williams and Mrs. R. L. Davis of Maplesville, were shopping in Clanton last Friday.

Mr. S. S. Scott of beat 5, was among the large number of highly educated citizens here last Saturday from that section of Chilton.

Mr. J. T. Gains, of Haynes, was here last Friday. He owns a good farm in this prosperous section of Chilton county.

Mr. J. P. Dykes, of Calera, was in Clanton last Saturday. He is a member of the County Board of Education.

Mr. Henry S. Hicks, of the Shouts community, was here last Saturday. He is not only a good farmer but he is quite an important dealer in five oak.

Mr. Brooks Young, of Birmingham, was here last Friday and Saturday. He is a brother-in-law of our highly respected citizen and industrial farmer, Mr. H. B. Roper.

Mr. J. W. Cox, of beat six, was here last Saturday. He is a true American citizen and when necessary you can always hear from him on the right side of every public question.

Miss Mary McGibbonney, quite an attractive, cultured and accomplished young lady of Shelby, Ala., spent the week as the guest of Mrs. Warner W. Wagnard.

Mrs. and Mrs. W. A. Johnson, of Centerville, were in Clanton Friday. While this worthy family gets their mail in Dallas we are more than glad he Chilton county line is beyond their capital home.

By having a five wide awake County School Superintendent, Chilton of $5,780.00 of the State School building fund. This sum was derived from the funds not claimed by less vigilant counties. Our man was on the job and our county is one of the six counties in the state that got as much as $5,000.00 out of that fund. Don't you appreciate that kind of service.

THE CHATAUQUA

Well, the Chatauqua has come and gone and is only a pleasant memory now.

They put on a most excellent program this time, and the people of Clanton and vicinity demonstrated their approval of a good, clean educational entertainment by giving them a wonderful support at every performance. In fact they did not have ten men sufficient to accommodate the crowd at the night performances.

It was announced on the second night that the $550 guarantee fund had already been realized so the ladies of the Baptist and Methodist churches, who worked so faithfully in putting over the project gathered in all that was taken in at both the other performances, which netted them a nice sum for their church work.

In justice to the Tchoute organization, we wish to say that not even a single dirty or ugly intimation appeared in any part of their program, and the lecture course put on here was really worth more, to any intelligent community, than the entire price of the show. It was wonderful.

As a tangible evidence of their pleasing success here, some fifty or more leading citizens signed up a guarantee securing a return of the Chatauqua here next year. That's what talks

"HOW DREAMS COME TRUE"

The Wonderful and Beautiful Religious Pageant at the Baptist Church Last Sunday Night

The largest audience that has ever assembled at the Baptist church was there last Sunday night. The large auditorium was filled to overflowing while the spacious balcony was packed to the limit. A hundred, or more, chairs were crowded into the aisles and every available foot of standing room was occupied.

The occasion was a very momentous one, being the opening service of a ten day revival, and also, the putting on of an allegorical exhibition, entitled, "How Dreams Come True," that was the most true, suggestive and appropriate service we ever saw dedicated as the opening scene for a religious revival.

This superb delineation of the trials and crosses that dog the footsteps of the devoted pastor and his flock, was conceived, written and dramatized by Mrs. S. J. Ezell, the most accomplished and zealous wife of the pastor, Dr. S. J. Ezell. In its development, almost every phase of the daily opposition that is met with in the effort to spread the gospel, and to point the footsteps of humanity into the better way, was strongly portrayed and most effectively brought out. One young man remarked to us that he got more out of that wonderful and beautiful service than out of all the sermons he had ever listened to. It was indeed a master piece in its spiritual conception and sublimely wonderful in its appeal to all that is best in the human heart.

The gifted authoress of this inspirational service should be humanly proud of its success and divinely elated over the spiritual influence it exerted. With the very greatest respect, we extend to her our sincere thanks and warmest congratulations.

W. B. CORLEY.

ONE OF THE "SALT OF THE EARTH"

Tuesday morning we had a most pleasant call from Mr. W. C. Blalock, of Route 2.

You know, it is indeed a pleasure to meet one of these old time pioneer citizens like him.

His heart is pure gold and has never become tainted with the fads and follies of modern times. Men like him are passing away and the earth grows poorer as they leave us. His kind are in truth "the salt of the earth."

BROKE THE RECORD

Last Sunday there was an enrollment of 312 at the Baptist Sunday School.

The Superintendent announced that this was a new record, there being no more present than had ever reported at any previous service.

GOOD WORK

Down on Second Avenue South the street department is having some splendid work done. Mr. D. Y. Johnston has had his grading crew down there for several days and things begin to look Cityfied sure enough.

YOUNG FOLKS LISTEN

A city boy and girl between the ages of 9 and 17, is cordially requested to take part in a special song services that is to be put on at the Baptist church next Sunday morning at 9:45.

Prof. Parr, the distinguished musical director, who is handling the music for the revival services, desires to get in touch with every one of you who will assist him in this song service, and he will arrange with you all for a rehearsal or two before hand, so you will all be up on the job and prepared to give a notable musical treat to the public that day.

A JOB DEPARTMENT

For some time our Job Department has been almost discontinued owing to a lack of help.

This week a new Job Printer has been added to the force and a considerable amount of additional job type and other material.

In future that department will be run separate from the newspaper department, so that no delay will be occasioned in getting out job orders on account of the work on the paper.

This new man will devote all of his time to the job work and your orders will always receive his prompt attention.

If you will be good enough to favor us with your patronage we shall do our best to give you prompt and satisfactory service.

Respectfully,
W. B. CORLEY.

"The municipalities of Thorsby, Piedmont and Greenville, and Roanoke and Greensboro and Calera, Florida and Opp, Evergreen and Fayette, and Clayton and Clilo in the State of Alabama, shall have the power and right to levy and collect a tax of one-half of one per centum in any one year on property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation for the year ending on the 30th day of September next succeeding the levy; provided, that for the purpose of paying bonds or indebtedness issued and outstanding at the time of the adoption of this amendment and the interest thereon, and for the purpose of paying bonds or indebtedness which may be issued or incurred after the adoption of this amendment and the interest thereon, an additional tax of one-half of one per centum may be levied and collected by said corporations; provided further, that a majority of the qualified electors of any of said municipal corporations voting at an election called for that purpose may vote a special tax not to exceed one-half of one per centum in any one year for any special purpose or purposes, which tax shall be used only for any one or more of the purposes for which same is levied and collected; provided, however, that the total tax to be levied by any of said municipal corporations shall not exceed one and one-half (1 1/2) per centum in any one year. Alabama City shall have the power and right to levy and collect a tax of three-quarters of one per centum in any one year on property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property next assessed for state taxation. Provided, further, that the adoption of this amendment shall in no wise affect, limit, modify, abridge or impair the power, authority or right of either of said municipal corporations to levy and collect the special school taxes, now or hereafter vested in or conferred upon them, or any of them, under the Constitution of Alabama, and the amendments thereto, including the power of the City of Selma to levy and collect the taxes for schools and school purposes vested in and conferred upon said City of Selma by the amendment to the Constitution of Alabama adopted thereto at the general election held in November, 1918, and which was submitted under Law Number 315, General Laws 1918, page 331, each election of the words mentioned herein shall be ordered, held, canvassed and may be contested in the same manner as is or may be provided by the law applicable to the municipal corporations for elections to authorize the issuance of municipal bonds. The ballots used at such election shall contain the words: "For ———— excess rate of taxation for the year (or years) ———— and "Against ———— excess rate of taxation for the year (or years) ————". The rate of taxation proposed in excess of the rate of one (1) per centum to be shown in the blank space provided therefor and the words mentioned therein shall be repeated as often as may be necessary to show separately the different rates proposed to be applied to the respective years. And the voter shall record his choice, whether for or against the excess rate or rates shown by placing a cross mark before or after the words expressing his choice. Nothing herein contained shall in any wise change or affect the right of any holder of bonds or municipal corporations heretofore issued. Elections to authorize the levy of such special tax may be held as often as ordered by the governing body of the municipality but when a proposition is submitted to the electors to levy a special tax for a specific purpose, and such proposition is defeated no second election for the same shall be held in any year thereafter."

PULLING TOGETHER

There is hardly a person in the world who does not realize and admit that in unity there is strength. In cooperation there is success. In confidence and fellowship there is happiness.

Well, why can't we all agree to lay aside every cause of community discord, and put our united energies to work in fostering a cooperative spirit and building up a bond of mutual confidence in each other that will enable us to stand united in every program and project that is presented for our mutual betterment in every way—materially, socially and religiously? Certainly the home has struck in all human affairs when it is the duty of every good man and woman to expend all of their energies in making the world better for our children and more pleasing in the sight of God.

The practice of professional politics has been the bane of our country for years and, that too, when no logical excuse offered for it. So far as our home affairs are concerned, national political lines have no part nor influence in them. We have been exploited to serve the political ambition of individuals too long. It is time now for us to serve each other and our children.

It is time to get in touch with the spirit of today and go forward to greater and better things.

To do this the most feasible plan that we can think of is to erase our local political differences and to join hands in a united, sincere and determined effort to elevate and improve both our moral and material conditions.

"United we stand. Divided we fall."

Below is the report of their committee on Temperance.

Temperance Report.

Intemperance embraces more questions than one; all intemperance is a violation of nature's laws and therefore a violation of God's laws. The intemperance of the tongue is great evil, and should be well guarded together with all intemperate acts in life. But intemperance in drink and the traffic of liquor so far outstripped all other evils until the people of these United States rose up against it at the ballot box, and amended the Constitution, so as to place in the organic law Prohibition, and now becomes our sacred duty to watch the liquor interest, and see to it that they do not elect men to Congress who would so amend our laws as to weaken constitutional prohibition.

There is a new party in Clanton against the open cut out? Oh! We beg your pardon.

Let's make for Chilton county a record for unity good will and united operation that will astonish all of our neighbors.

The better element and the tax payers of Chilton county, will declare to the world on November 4, whether or not they wish to handle their own business.

Before you make up your mind and condemn the other fellow, be honest and "put yourself in his place" and see how much worse you might have done.

Very injurious diet. That is exactly all right. They are so expert we can not even afford to ask at one in the show case.

The honesty, integrity, nor ability of the Progressive-Independent ticket in the county field. Absolute fairness to all with no favorites is their slogan.

Too narrow to lay down party lines and vote for the good of his home and family is out of date. Get in line and spirit with the times and vote your own honest convictions.

When ever all of our officials, from Washington on down, quit passing the buck, roll up their sleeves and get to doing the work they were elected to do, expenses can be cut and taxes can be reduced.

Too narrow to lay down party lines and vote for the good of his home and family is out of date. Get in line and spirit with the times and vote your own honest convictions.

Mutual friendship, amity and co-operation causes prosperity, happiness and greatness to abide continually while suspicion, strife and discord dooms any community to lag far behind in the march of progress.

There is an inexorable punishment that, sooner or later, follows our every transgression of the laws of Nature. The same is true as regards our failure to exercise and live up to the great fundamental laws of our wonderful land of freedom.

LaFollette swears he has the labor vote put away on ice. Coolidge claims it as a birthright of the republican party. The Federal Trade Council, of New York, officially pledged themselves to Davis last Friday. Now, what you going to say?

Do you ever take time to reason out to yourself what you believe in and why? Do you really possess good sound reasons for being a Methodist, a Baptist, a Presbyterian, or any other sectarian? How many of you can define the real fundamental differences between the democratic and the republican party?

Mr. W. L. Lenoir, of Jeunison, was a pleasant caller at the News office last Saturday. He is a brother of Messrs C. B. Lenoir, in beat 3 and E. L. Lenoir who lives in beat 14. This is a trio of brothers whose citizenship is rarely equalled and seldom excelled.

TO BE EXPECTED

The Independent-Progressive county ticket appears to have met the demands of a long felt want among the better and true type of our citizenship.

It is above the putrid slime and the bitter personalities that have so long and so disgracefully abused the feelings of the better and higher elements of our citizenship.

It was to be expected, of course, that it would meet with opposition from the supporters of the other ticket already in the field, as well as from certain elements that do not desire peace and harmony unless they can name the price and dictate the terms. Both of these classes were discounted before this new ticket was put in the field, and their efforts to stay the march of progress, and to discourage every movement that tends to destroy these party hatreds, are no surprise to any one.

The primeval object and the paramount desire of the people who are behind this ticket is to build up a better community understanding in the county and to forever blot out the utterly absurd notion that our county interests can be divided on national party lines to our benefit.

We are all of one people. Our home interests are the same. We live under exactly the same local conditions. No matter who is elected president it can not possibly affect, in a single particular, the way we conduct our schools, the amount of county road building we do, what county taxes we pay, nor what we do with them after they are paid. So far as the county is concerned we have the right to govern ourselves and no national political party ever can, or does, have one particle of influence on how we handle our local affairs.

This is no fight on any individual, or set of individuals but is an honest and sincere effort to blot out and obliterate this line of political party demarkition that has, for years, resulted in keeping the good citizens of Chilton county embroiled with each other to such an extent that cooperation in any line of endeavor for the common good has been impossible. No one can honestly nor truthfully deny the fact that our local party differences have done more, than all other interests combined, to stay our material progress and to keep our good people at enmity with each other.

It is our honest opinion that all good loyal citizens of the county will be willing to aid in this cause and we feel absolutely assured that the great Rally of all the earth will stamp the movement with His approval because it is dedicated solely to the cause of wiping out discord and bitterness and bringing people in to a common fellowship for good.

DONT WASTE ANY WATER

Owing to the excessively dry weather, the earth is getting deficient in water and many wells are going dry.

Our city water department has been fighting this situation for some time, but conditions are becoming acute now and they earnestly urge every user of city water to be just as sparing as they possibly can and not to waste any water at all.

They are endeavoring to keep enough on storage in the reservoir to give fire protection, but to keep this up, it is going to be absolutely necessary for every user of water to co-operate with them.

No one knows when the drought will be broken and it behooves every one to do all in their power to conserve the supply and help the authorities to take care of the situation.

Give this matter your careful attention and lets all help out all we can until such time as this shortage is relieved.

TRADE AT HOME

One of the remarkable freaks that seem to inspire some people is a fad of wanting to "Order" everything they buy from a distant market.

In opposition to this idea are several good and sufficient arguments that can not be answered and that it looks like would appeal to every person of reasonable intelligence.

In the first place, when you bite at the "mail order" bait you surrender your independence and throw yourself on the mercy of a fellow you do not know. It is up to him to "frisk" you at his pleasure and you are helpless in his hands. Held up, so to speak, at the muzzle of his gat. In material, in fit, in make-up, and in style, you are powerless to protect yourself without a great delay, an accumulated expense and a whole lot of worry and trouble.

Again, you send your money out of the county and decrease our local circulating medium to that extent.

Also, you patronize a person who never has and never will pay a five cents worth of tax to your town and county, and never contributes a penny to keep up your roads and schools, and dont care whether you have any or not.

If you lay down and die he don't care, and if trouble enters your home or sickness puts you on starvation he never even thinks of you.

The mail order man has no interest whatever in you and your affairs except to get all the money out of you he can.

On the other hand, every dollar you spend at home radiates throughout the community.

Part of it helps build you a road. Part of it helps to educate your children. Part of it helps keep up your churches and thus helps to make us all better, happier and safer. Part of it goes to feed our local hungry, clothe our local poor, helps to care for them in sickness and buries them when they die. It helps to keep our laboring people in work and brings happiness into a thousand homes.

You can get anything you want in your home market. You can look at it before you buy it and get exactly what you want before you turn your money loose. If you have not all the price, you can get accommodation. In fact, you can get ten times more personal service out of your dollar to start with, in the home market than you can anywhere else, besides the vast good it does by keeping it at home.

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Sims, of Bessmer were in Clanton last Saturday.

HARD TO SAY

Only two and one half weeks now until the tale will be told and somebody will be elected president of these United States. or Congress will be given a chance to try their hand at making presidents.

Even at this late day in the campaign the political prophets are still up in the air and are not making any definite prognostications.

The fact of the business is that, never in the history of this generation has the political situation been as badly muddled as it is now.

The common people have not, as yet, manifested but a scandalous little interest in the matter. They do not seem to care a straw how the "old jumps" will come out. They have either lost confidence in the whole bunch, or else they have stood so much buncing in the past that they have decided they can put up with anything that comes along.

If the platform artists and bull shooters get up any enthusiasm in the rank and file, it will be after this. There is more apathy and indifference manifest at this time than we ever knew when a presidential election was this near at hand.

It will probably be after the vote is counted before any one can give anything like an accurate guess of the result.

OUR HOSPITAL

The Central Alabama hospital is establishing a wide, and an eminently deserved reputation for good service.

Recently a gentleman who resides in Birmingham, was suffering intensely with what they called rheumatism up there. After taking a treatment of about four weeks in the Magic City, and not receiving any relief, he came to our hospital.

A very slight operation was performed, the pain ceased and the patient returned home the next day and is sound and well now.

Just a case in point for you to think about. This patient is a Mr. Jas. Thacker.

Congress was Swamped with 251 Bills Affecting the Railroads

WHEN Congress adjourned last June this large number of proposed laws affecting the railroads was receiving the attention of members of the House and Senate. Fortunately for the American people, for you who are reading this newspaper, none of the bills was passed, but many of them are now on the calendar and will be considered without further preliminary action when Congress convenes on December 1st.

Congress generally wishes to do right, but certain interests are now proposing railroad legislation, which, if enacted, would not only impair the railroad service but would be seriously harmful to the general business interests of the country.

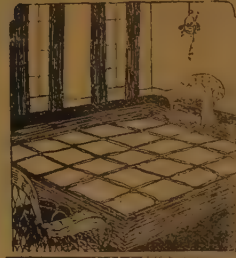

The railroads should have further trial under the existing laws. They need a prolonged respite from legislative agitation, during which the railroad managers and other forces can devote themselves to plain transportation and the people can enjoy the high-class railway service and prosperity which they now have without risks from experimental tinkering.

Railroad managers feel that it is their duty to acquaint the public with the facts about the railroads, and in that way, through the building up of a sound public sentiment, hold up the hands of fair-minded Congressmen and Senators, who are willing that the railroads shall have their fighting chance at this time of crisis in their affairs; that they shall have an opportunity to work out their salvation under the provisions of the laws now on our statute books, and that their operations shall not be further hampered through obstructive legislation.

SOME BEING HELD

Several gentlemen who travel a great deal over the rural districts in town as that give a good deal of cotton is banked up at the homes along the roads.

It seems that a good many farmers, after settling off their obligations have concluded to hold their surplus cotton awhile to see what the future may bring forth.

The great German loan has been floated over here and they were a drawing account of several million dollars with banks in this country. They are needing cotton badly and will spend a good part of the loan for cotton, and we feel like the cotton will be here by the first of the year at least.

A PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR

WHEREAS, the Legislature of Alabama, at a session held in 1923, has ordered an election by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which is herein set forth, to be held at the general election in November, 1924; and WHEREAS, Notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment, is required by law to be given by proclamation of the Governor:

NOW, THEREFORE, I, William W. Brandon, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that at the general election in November, 1924, an election shall be held for the vote of the qualified electors of the State of Alabama, and in the manner, form and places, required by law upon the following amendments to the Constitution of Alabama, viz: "Proposed Amendment No. 390. Mobile County may become indebted and may issue bonds for the construction of bridges and roads, and for the improvement of public travel between the Mobile and Baldwin Counties, in an amount not to exceed six and one-half per centum of the assessed value of the property situated in Mobile County. To pay said indebtedness and the interest thereon, Mobile County may levy and collect an annual tax on said property not to exceed one-half of one per centum of said value. The indebtedness, the bonds and the tax authorized hereby shall be in addition to those authorized by the Constitution of Alabama prior to the adoption of this amendment. But no such additional indebtedness shall be created, and no such additional tax shall be levied, until each improvement or construction proposed to be built hereby, its approximate location, estimated cost and time of completion, and the amount of the proposed loan, shall have been determined upon and made public by the Board of Revenue and Road Commissioners of Mobile County, and the proposed increase of indebtedness or issue of bonds or tax therefor shall have been authorized by a majority vote of the ballot of the qualified voters of Mobile County voting upon such proposition."

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the State to be affixed at the Capitol, in the City of Montgomery, on this, the 8th day of August, One Thousand Nine Hundred and Twenty-Four.

YOUR OPPORTUNITY

In some quarters of Clanton and Chilton county we hear of a few people who profess to misunderstand or misconstrue the motives of those who favor the independent county ticket. This is to be expected of certain ignorant who are always opposed to anything that is not saturated with political venom, but it is surprising if any real progressive citizen, who is loyal to his home county and longs for a sentiment of cooperation among its better citizens, can find it in his heart to oppose the only movement that has ever been put on foot here to weave a bond of sympathy and understanding among us all as neighbors and friends.

As we have said before, we are not making any fight against any person or persons, but we are doing our best to build up and foster a spirit of unity and cooperation that will make of our county what it ought to be—the banner county of the state in progress, in education, in religion and the common brotherhood of man. Don't let anyone fool you nor mislead you in the belief that there is any ghastly political monster hidden in this movement. There is no effort being made to invade your political rights. This is first, last and all the time, a clean cut, honest appeal to your patriotism, your love for your home and your desire to see prosperity smile upon our county.

You are at liberty to vote for whom you please for president, for that will not affect our county, but when you come down to a matter of helping your home county up in the world, we ask you to come and help us.

Let's all get together on this one common interest. It is in no sense a political issue, and if any person tells you otherwise, get him to show you how it is. You are not bound by a bond by this ballot, but the common bond of good local self government and a spirit of county cooperation.

The question is, will you not track down your own peace and harmony with your fellow man and cooperate together for the common good, or do you want to go on being cats and dogs, abusing and interfering each other and never making anything that looks towards a better and a better life?

His ticket is absolutely local in all its meanings and effects. "When you vote for it you mean no particular, nor you can still vote your ticket right on. It does not mean a thing but a better, a cleaner, a higher life."

As will doubtless be told you in a matter of old times out of date political times, but do not heed it this time. A full grown tree man and vote and vote for what you know.

Do you want to see an era of better and cleaner things, or do you wish to go on building hatreds and enmities between neighbors and make your choice.

Mr. Jasper Callaway, Little Miss Wallace and Master Anderson Wallace visited friends and relatives in Talladega the latter part of week and the first part of this week. Miss Wallace won distinction in school work last year.

FARRIOR-SPIGENER

Wedding to be Solemnized at the Baptist Church this Afternoon

Promptly at 4 o'clock this afternoon, in the spacious auditorium of the Baptist church, Mr. William Laurie Farrior, of Birmingham, will lead to the liminal altar, Miss Warren Brooks Spigener, of our city.

The church will be appropriately decorated for the occasion with ferns and flowers, while Dr. Ezell, pastor of the Baptist church and Dr. Wilkerson, pastor of the Methodist church, will both officiate in the sweet and solemn ceremony that will bind the two fond hearts together.

The groom is a rising young man of Birmingham, with every promise of a successful career before him.

The lovely bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Spigener, prominent residents of our city, and is known and loved by a very large circle of friends here. She is a favorite among her girl associates and is a faithful young worker in the Sunday School and civic work of our town.

The happy couple will depart immediately after the ceremony for New Orleans and other southern points on a bridal tour.

They will be at home, after November 1, at Highland View Apartments, Birmingham.

The very best wishes of Clanton follow this happy young couple on their voyage of life.

TAYLOR-KEMP

At the home of Mrs. Wayne Atkinson, in East Lake, who is a cousin to the bride, Mr. Parker A. Taylor, of Roanoke, Ala., and Miss Agnes Kemp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Kemp, of Clanton, were happily married yesterday afternoon.

The groom resided in our vicinity for awhile and made many friends here. He is now located at Roanoke, where he and his bride will make their future home.

The happy bride was reared in our town and numbers her friends here by the score, and will be sadly missed by all of her close associates.

The news takes pleasure, in company with their large circle of true friends, in extending to them every sincere wish for their future happiness and prosperity.

DUNLAP-MADDOX

On last Thursday afternoon, Mr. James Dunlap and Miss Gertrude Maddox were happily married at the home of Mrs. M. J. Parrish, who performed the ceremony.

The young groom is well known and admired by a large circle of good friends, and is popular wherever he is known. A young man of splendid physique, qualifications, sober, steady and reliable.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Maddox and is a lovely, domestic flower well fitted to adorn a home. She has many friends who will join with her in their social activities.

The news is glad to join with their many other friends in wishing for their every possible happiness and success.

Mr. B. B. Armstrong, of beat 13, was here Monday. Mr. Armstrong is not only a good young farmer but also a successful sawmill operator.

THE BAPTIST REVIVAL

Noted for its Splendid Preaching
Delightful Song Service and Uniform Large Attendance.

With the service last night the ten day series of meetings at the Baptist church came to a close.

Dr. David M. Gardner, the able and eloquent pastor of the Baptist church, at Ensley, has been doing the preaching.

He is glided a wonderful pulpit orator. He is eloquent in his earnestness, and divinely simple and clear in the appeal he makes for righteousness. His sincerity is so intense that it almost seems to burn its way in to your very soul. He clings to the word of God in all he says and backs up his every utterance with a truth that is the Lord's.

Prof. Theo. H. Jones, a noted musical director with years of experience and training for the work, has been in charge of the song service.

As an organizer he is a wonder. He has had his large choir gallery filled each night with the best talent in the vicinity and their singing has been a noted feature of this great meeting. Besides, he kept a large class of boys and girls, always on hand, and ready to take part in the music. So well do he have them in hand that their young voices added greatly in rendering the beautiful songs sung.

The attendance here has been what could be desired at any series. The spacious auditorium has always been filled and at several services the large gallery has had all it could accommodate.

About forty addition were made to the church, (we do not know the exact number) and much good seems to have resulted throughout the community.

All who failed to attend this meeting lost much of the better things that go to make up life. The preaching aside from its divine import, was such as to hold the interest of any hearer. The music was well worth any one's while to go out and hear it and the universal good fellowship that seemed to pervade every service was a real inspiration.

OYSTER SUPPER AT THORSBY

Next Monday evening at 6 o'clock the Woodmen of the World are going to have an oyster supper at Thorsby. All Woodmen and families, as well as all visiting Woodmen, are most cordially invited to be on hand and take part, and let's build up Woodcraft in this section.

An initiation program will be put on and a degree team from the Deatsville camp will have charge of this work.

You can not afford to miss this entertainment. Come out and bring your folks.

CHILDREN'S WEEK

To Be Observed by Methodist Church

Do you believe that preaching and teaching are both essential? The church needs every member in its Sunday school services. The church needs its whole constituency in the preaching services. Let every officer and teacher attend services and encourage the pupils to do the same.

Let every church member attend the teaching services and encourage others to do the same. Two hundred and fifty thousand new members during September, October, November, December, 1924.

Let Clanton Methodist do their part in putting over this great program.

The aim set forth for this local school observance is as follows:

To present an opportunity by means of which the parents with the Sunday School officers and teachers may consider together certain needs of the children and determine ways of meeting these needs. Special program to be rendered on Sunday evening October 26, at 7:30 o'clock.

Programme

1. Special music by choir.
2. Hymn—Love Divine, all Forces Excelling.
3. Prayer—by Pastor.
4. Solo—By Miss Madelyn Orr.
5. Talk—Home Atmosphere—Mrs. J. O. Wade.
6. Talk—Home Atmosphere—Mrs. R. C. McDavid.
7. Hymn—O Master Let Me Walk With Thee.
8. Talk.

9. Duet—Mrs. Armstrong and Evans Parrish.
10. Reading Tis Thine to Teach—Mrs. Claude Jones.
11. The Forward Step—Presented by Supt.
12. Hymn—A charge to keep I have.
13. Benediction.

A THING OF BEAUTY

The workmen have completed the outside on the new Methodist church and torn down the scaffolds. One can get a view of the building itself and it certainly is a massive and beautiful structure.

When it is finally completed there will not be a more commodious, better arranged, nor more inviting looking edifice in central Alabama than it.

When the pastor, Dr. Wilkerson, is finally taken away from us by his duties, he will leave behind him a wonderful and lasting monument to his vim, energy and worth as a minister in that grand house of worship.

CONSIDERABLE BUILDING IN PROSPECT

When ever the final and irrevocable route for the R & M highway through Clanton is definitely settled upon, there are several important building projects that will assume shape.

The plans are all made and have been for a long time and the parties are anxious to go forward with the work, but the protracted uncertainty as to where the highway would finally land has kept them all in obedience until something really definite developed.

FOOT BALL GAME LAST

A football game was played between the Clanton and Talladega teams. The Clanton team won by a score of 23 to 3.

The game was played on the Clanton grounds. The Clanton team was coached by Mr. H. B. Lock.

The Talladega team was coached by Mr. J. O. Wade. The game was a very close one.

Your Health is Your Best Asset

Montgomery, Ala.—"At different times when rundown in health or when I was suffering with headache and pain in my side, I was always greatly benefited by taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and Golden Medical Discovery. I advise ailing women to try the 'Favorite Prescription', and, if the blood or stomach is out of order, take the 'Golden Medical Discovery.'—Mrs. W. H. Carr, 432 McDonald St. All druggists. Tablets or liquid.

New Words

According to compilers of a standard dictionary, the general use of the radio since its invention has added 7,000 new words and terms to the English language. Flapperdom has added several hundred more, and the poor compilers were just getting over the shock of having to define 7,000 words and terms which our participation in the unpleasantness in the late world war brought to the average vocabulary. Now what to do? We have been informed previously that women talk too much anyway—just "words" what they ain't got nothin' else to say—An the language of a popular writer of negro tales; yet it is proved by this company that less than 25 per cent of the new words discussed have been invented or coined by womenfolk, men having done the dastardly deed!—Kansas City Times.

SWAMP-ROOT FOR KIDNEY AILMENTS

There is only one medicine that really stands out pre-eminent as a medicine for curable ailments of the kidney, liver and bladder.

Dr. Jimer's Swamp-Root stands the highest for the reason that it has proven to be just the remedy needed in thousands upon thousands of distressing cases. Swamp-Root makes friends quickly because its mild and immediate effect is soon realized in most cases. It is a gentle, healing vegetable compound.

Start treatment at once. Sold at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation, send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing, be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

Broadcast Beetle's Song

The broadcasting of a beetle's love-song to his mate was the feature of a recent radio program sent out from the London station of the British Broadcasting company. The occasion was a natural history lecture, in which the life cycle and habits of the beetle were discussed. At the appropriate moment the beetle, which had a special microphone to himself, was permitted to give his call. Many radio fans complimented the beetle on his performance.

ALABAMA NEWS HAPPENINGS

A Resume of the More Important Events of Interest Condensed To An Extremized Form.

Colonel R. S. Knox and Major A. M. Prentiss of the general staff of the United States army and C. G. Smith, of the department of agriculture, visited Anniston for a conference relative to the establishment of a forest reserve on that part of the army reservation at Camp McClellan which is not to be used for military purposes. The visitors went to Anniston from Washington, D. C., to make an inspection of the camp site prior to drawing up a report to submit to the war department on the adaptability of the land at the army post for forestry growth. The government has for several years been seriously considering the merger of the area at Camp McClellan which is not being used for training purposes into a forest reserve. It is said, and it is thought that the report of the committee will be the last step which will be taken prior to a recommendation to this effect by the war department to the President.

Because November 4 is election day the Supreme Court announced that the submission of cases appealed from courts in the fourth division will be made Wednesday, November 5. The call had been set for November 4 but attorneys and persons interested desired to vote before going to the capitol. Counties in the fourth division are Barbour, Bullock, Coffee, Covington, Crenshaw, Dale, Geneva, Henry, Houston, Pike and Russell.

The Government steam power plant at Nitrate Plant No. 2, under lease to the Alabama Power Company, has been put in operation for the purpose of supplying power to the industries in Alabama, Tennessee, Georgia, North Carolina and South Carolina, where droughts have curtailed the supply of hydraulic power. The plant was closed June 6, and has not been in operation regularly since that time.

County Agent J. W. Sartin, who is in touch with more farmers of Walker County than any other man in the county, says crops are turning out better in Walker County this year than he or any one else thought they would have a few months ago. Cotton, corn, potatoes, sorghum and other crops are turning out well enough to keep the farmers in heart.

J. E. Vann, superintendent of the Wisconsin-Alabama Lumber Company, has been put in operation for the purpose of supplying power to the industries in Alabama, Tennessee, Georgia, North Carolina and South Carolina, where droughts have curtailed the supply of hydraulic power. The plant was closed June 6, and has not been in operation regularly since that time.

An advertising club was recently organized in the School of Commerce and Business Administration at the State University. The purpose of the new club is to carry on research work in the field of advertising, and to undertake a scientific study of that subject.

According to reports the corn crop is very short in Wilcox County, and they are saving much hay. The dry summer made the hay crop short, until the late fall cutting. Sugar cane molasses also will be scarce this winter, as a great many plants will have to save all their cane for seed.

Alf Naro, now serving a 25-year sentence for killing Ralph J. Roberts, of Pratt City, two years ago, was denied a new trial by the State Supreme Court. Naro's wife, also sentenced to 25 years for participation in the murder, was granted an appeal. The shooting occurred in Naro's home.

Voicing the opinion that a large part of the accidents in Franklin County are due to reckless driving and speeding, Mayor W. W. Ramsey, of Russellville, has declared war on law violators.

The Federal Construction Company, of Birmingham, has been awarded the contract to build water mains connecting existing water systems in Mobile. The Birmingham company bid $90,296.65.

The Alabama Fox Hunters' Association will hold its annual fall meeting in Heflin November 4. Between one hundred one hundred and fifty sportsmen are expected to attend the event.

Proceeds from a half-acre of sweet potatoes will defray the expenses in school this year of Nathan Wood, of Centerville, who has realized $200 from his sales.

Ground has been broken for the new Methodist Church building at Lipscomb, which will be built in the near future.

The Alabama Public Service Commission has won a complete victory in its fight to obtain the restoration of its authority over intrastate rates on hay, cotton, clay, concrete and shale products and gravel, which it lost as a result of the decision of the interstate commerce commission in the famous Merid rate case. Authority was returned by decision of the Federal Commission, a copy of which was received by the Public Service Commission. The immediate effect of the decision is to open a wide market for hay and other commodities produced in the Western section of Alabama, a market which was closed by the capture of the rate fabric by the Meridian decision.

Frank Schwartz, a Gadsden boy, employed in the local steel mills, has just completed and patented an automatic electric fire alarm system for stores, factories and residences and all kinds of buildings where the fire hazard is great. The moment a fire breaks out anywhere in a building using the system, the alarm is instantly turned in, notifying watchmen and patrolmen on the outside that a fire is in progress. The system is connected with the fire department.

Dallas County fair attracted to Selma last week an immense crowd of farmers, community workers, as well as social leaders. In the large 370-foot tent were assembled the work of the home demonstration clubs, clerks, community workers and the women's department. Communities having booths were Sardis Burns-ville, Pleasant Hill, Marion Junction, Plantersville, Casey, Section, Valley, Vallengrande, El Bethel, Safford, Tasso.

Warrior River traffic during September was reported heavy in the Government figures tabulated, despite the fact that the river water closed nine days while repairs were being made on Lock 13. Fifty-eight tow boats and 108 barges passed through Lock 10 during the month, the report states.

Men who do not pay their debts cannot remain in the employ of the City of Gadsden, Mayor Wier told policeman, fireman, sanitary inspectors, clerks, engineers, street workers and others who gathered at the city hall at his call. He told them they were believed to be gentlemen and honest and they would have to live up to that reputation.

Five freight cars, loaded with cotton from Fort Payne and two with lumber from Louisiana were burned in the Southern Railway at Attalla, the loss being estimated at $20,000. The blaze was discovered in one of the lumber cars. Two switch engines were forced to work at great speed to save the trains.

Congressman W. B. Bankhead has received communication from the acting first assistant postmaster general advising that a post office inspector will be sent to Carbon Hill to see about establishing free city mail delivery there. The matter was taken up with Congressman W. B. Bankhead by the Kiwanis Club three weeks ago.

Farm Agent R. S. Mitchell, of Butler County, states reports coming in daily show that Luther farmers are manifesting unusual interest in the Butler County Farm Products Show to be held at Greenville October 24 and 25.

Announcement was made at the Department of Archives and History that Mrs. J. C. Long, of Selma, has accepted the chairmanship for the district of the Lafayette Centennial, to be celebrated in that city, April 6, 1925. She has already begun work.

Mobile has many problems to solve, according to Harry T. Hartwell, mayor. One of the most important of these is the traffic congestion of the city. Mr. Hartwell says he welcomes any suggestions which will lead to a solution of these problems.

With approximately $130,000 of the required amount in sight for erection of a hospital in Huntsville, the campaign in charge of the finance committee is actively at work in an effort to raise the remainder.

Work of installing Mobile's automatic traffic signal system at principal intersections in the downtown district has been started, according to assistant chief of police William N. LeClerc, traffic bureau director.

Four cases of diphtheria have been reported in Tuscaloosa County this month with indications of several unknown cases, County Health Officer A. A. Kirk said. Nine cases were reported in September.

A contract for Selma's new Y. M. C. A. has been let to the West Point Iron works of West Point, Ga. The work, including plumbing and heating, will cost $50,000. The job is to be completed in 180 working days.

Sportsmen of Clarke County have organized the Clarke County Game and Fish Protective Association, with a membership of 125. Dr. J. G. Bedsole, of Jackson, is president of the organization.

Formation of late afternoon and evening classes in the School of Commerce and Business Administration, is announced by State University authorities.

Boy Scouts will have charge of the erection of booths at the Tuscaloosa County Fair October 23 through 31. R. R. Sapp, scout executive, will superintend the erection.

Main Street in Goodwater, now has all the burnt buildings replaced with modern brick buildings, or soon to be finished and ready for occupancy.

NERVOUS & HALF-SICK WOMEN

Relieved by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

These Three Letters Prove It

Lowell, Mass.—"I am sending you a few lines to let you know what good your medicine has done for me. I want you to let every one know that it has helped me in nervous troubles. I have four children and you know there is a lot to do where children are. They would come in from school and they would start telling me about their little troubles but I could not stand it. I had to send them away. I could not even walk on the street alone I was so nervous. I found one of your books and read it and then I saw in the paper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I got it and had taken one bottle when I saw a change in myself. I was surprised. The children can talk all they want to now and it does not bother me. I am still taking the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. JOSEPH LEMERE, 84 South Street, Lowell, Mass.

Felt Like A New Woman Springfield, Missouri.—"For four or five months I was run-down, nervous, my back ached and I did not feel like doing a thing. Sometimes my legs ached and felt like they would break and I had a burning in my sides. I had been reading in the newspapers the letters of other women who had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and the advertising of it appealed to me so I bought some and saw results in almost no time. I had hardly been able to do my own work and after taking the Vegetable Compound I felt like a new woman. I recommend it to my friends who have troubles like I did, and hope they will find the same results."—Mrs. M. M. CARPENTER, 607 W. Chase Street, Springfield, Missouri.

40 Years Old, Feels Like 20 Hagerstown, Md.—"I was very bad off with backache, a bearing-down feeling in my body and a pain in my left side. I could not be on my feet at times and once I was so bad I walked bent over to one side for three weeks. My sister read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and got me a bottle. I got so much relief that I took more until I was well. I am 40 years old and feel like 20. I am sure this medicine will help all women."—Mrs. MARY E. SANDY, 438 W. Franklin Street, Hagerstown, Md.

Over 100,000 women have so far replied to our question, "Have you received benefit from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?" 98 per cent of these replies are "Yes." That means that 98 out of every 100 women who take this medicine for the ailments for which it is recommended are benefited by it. All druggists are having increased sales of this medicine.

SARDIS

The home of Mrs. J. D. Deason was saddened on Thursday morning by the death of aunt Martha Patrick. She will be sadly missed by those who had known her. She had been administered to her during her many months of suffering. She was 84 years of age. Has lived in the Sardis community 45 years. She was a devoted christian and submissive to the will of her Master.

She deceased was the wife of uncle Lewis Patrick who passed away about two years ago.

On account of their age and affliction it became necessary for some one to take care of them, and having no nearer relations Mrs. Deason, a half sister of uncle Lewis felt it her duty and she cared for them for 5 years and the little house in her yard is a lonely spot where two lovely old people have resided and passed away.

The funeral services were conducted by Bro. J. Deason and her remains were laid to rest in Sardis cemetery. One who loved her.

FORD WITHDRAWS BID

For some political reason not apparent as yet, Henry Ford has withdrawn his bid for Muscle Shoals. He assigns no other reason except that he can not afford to wait on Congress any longer.

A great many people will regret that he has retired from the field, but really, we never could see what his bid amounted to as a business proposition. It was entirely too indefinite.

One thing he did do, however, that he deserves lasting credit for. He dipped in to the matter when the republican administration had declared the entire Muscle Shoals project a pile of junk, and were preparing to give it away to the first pet who applied, and suddenly made of it a most wonderful and valuable asset. In no other way, perhaps, could he have produced this result so quickly, nor so conclusively, as by making his spectacular offer for the property.

But when you stop and analyze his bid you will find that it was always very far from a clean cut business proposition, such as big business men are accustomed to make.

He agreed to make nitrate for the farmers at only a profit of 8 per cent on the cost, but made no estimate as to what the cost would be. Suppose his cost of manufacture had been $100 per ton. It would have cost the farmer $108 and he already buys it for less than half that price. His fertilizer premise did not mean a thing in the world.

Mr. Ford, perhaps, sold a million Ford cars on the free advertising he has been given. He is a sharp old guy.

PROSPECTS BRIGHT

We have been asking a good many questions lately to our farmer friends. It has been our aim to get a fair and conservative line on the crop situation from all parts of the surrounding territory, and the summing up of all this data is a matter of great satisfaction to us.

In the first place, we find that there is more corn and feed stuff made than we had thought possible under the weather conditions we experienced in the late summer and early fall.

Of course, some farmers are going to be forced to buy feed for their stock next year, but this is a fact that is more or less true every year. Some of them always fail to raise a sufficiency feed stuffs. So far as we can learn, there will be very little more feed bought next year than is usual.

Another pleasing truth that seems to be generally established, is that the setting up of indebtedness this fall has been above the average. People have been paying up promptly and in full. This is one of the most potent factors there is in putting over a wave of prosperity. Also, owing to the late fall and the absence of rain, the weather the gathering of the cotton crop has neither been retarded nor damaged. Besides, the warm sunshine has, in many localities, developed a top crop of cotton added considerably to the yield.

People who travel by auto a great deal through the rural districts all are manifesting their surprise at finding so much cotton stored at the homes. They say you hardly pass a farm where you do not see bales of cotton stacked back waiting for a better price.

The fact that so many farmers are able to do this is most encouraging. It shows that they are out of debt and have really cleared something on the side.

All in all, it looks like our section is in splendid shape to meet the winter in comfort and be prepared to do business next year more independently than ever.

The planting of fall oats is being prohibited so far by the long drought.

IS THANKFUL

R. W. Milford, who lives out near Liberty church, paid us a pleasant call Saturday.

We were sorry to learn that his good wife has been very seriously ill, and he requested us to say for him, that words are inadequate to express his thanks to his good neighbors and friends who have been so wonderfully kind to him and his wife during this affliction.

SOME FOOD FOR THOUGHT

There must be conviction of human error before there is conversion of faith, in any line of belief.

Individuals are much easier influenced by appeal to prejudice, than by an appeal to reason.

Isolation from the busy world of daily happenings gives time for reflection. Supply those hours of reflection with unwholesome information in print and prejudice is planted.

The feigned mind is shown with false theories and the pregnant brain cultivates a crop of hate.

Hate based on envy, fed by demagoguery, cultivated by hypocrisy, gathered by greed of those of the poisoned tongue and pen.

Hate for everyone who has succeeded, because that one is pointed out as an enemy of the unsuccessful ones.

Hate of every industry in operation, because that is painted as a despoiler of the rights of those who have not succeeded.

Hate of every train that moves to feed the world, because that train is owned and operated by the successful.

Hate of every bank because that bank gathers money and refuses to loan it without security.

Hate of the well dressed, because in comparison they make a better showing.

Hate of the law of the cause they are taught injure the poor.

Hate of the Church of God because they are taught that they are not welcome within.

Hate of the man who employs because he takes the risks and also the profit.

All of which is taught by those who loaf and live without labor. These who feed and fatten on around prejudice instead of developing individual intellect.

Those array class against class by oral and printed word.

Think of how much propaganda is mailed daily that poisons thought.

Think of the speakers who devote time to spreading such propaganda.

Think of the enormous evil of that method of informing humanity.

Who pays the bill?

SOME ONE DOES BUT WHO?

TRIBUTE TO SENATOR HEFLIN

The following is the brief speech of a beautiful Tennessee girl presenting a bouquet of flowers to Senator Hefflin at the close of his great speech October 1, at Paris, Tennessee.

Senator Hefflin, these flowers came from the pure rich soil of the South. They are free from the touch of oil and as free from the taint of graft and corruption as are the hearts and minds of the splendid people who dwell among them. And men and women here and everywhere who believe in clean and honest government sincerely wish that your splendid efforts in behalf of such government may be crowned with the success that they so justly deserve.

LATEST IN MOONSHINING

Law enforcement Officer, Walter Gillispie, was visiting his home folks here last week end.

In conversation with him he told us that most of the moonshiners now had abandoned large stilling outfits and adopted cheaper and smaller stills, so they can set down in a place, make a run or two, and then pick up and move before any word can reach the officers and they can make a raid.

They very often hear of a still and go out to raid it, but when they get there they find it gone.

This must reduce the output and increase the price.

A REAL TREAT

Last week one day, that good friend, good citizen and good christian gentleman, Rev. C. D. Messer, halted at our door and gave us a big arm full of real roasting ears right off the stalk.

That was a real treat, for the dry weather and the lateness in the season, had already caused us to lay away, in memories casket, the fond recollection of luscious "feed like the king."

Our hat is off to him as a real farmer, who knows how to raise corn without rain. Accept our thanks and best wishes for this kind remembrance.

8,500 ALABAMIANS TO SHARE $200,000 IN STOCK DIVIDENDS

Alabama Power Co. Issues 18th Quarterly Dividend Checks on Oct. 1—Increase of $15,000 Over Year Dividend.

Approximately 8,500 Alabamians in all sections of the State will share in a dividend of over $200,000 on October 1 when the checks covering the eighteenth quarterly dividend on Alabama Power Company preferred stock will be distributed, according to W. M. Martin, president of Alabama Power Company.

Mr. Martin stated that this dividend will exceed the one of July 1 by $15,000, owing to a large increase of stockholders during the past three months. He pointed out that Alabama Power Company preferred is now possible the most widely owned security in the State and expressed gratification at the confidence of Alabamians in his Company as manifested by their constantly increasing investments in its securities.

Ownership ownership has become one of the most important features of the life of the State and power management during the past few years. It originated comparatively recently in California where it proved so successful that it spread throughout the country. The Alabama Power Company entered the customer ownership field in June, 1929, when it created an investment department under the management of Thomas Trace, which has had full charge of the sale of preferred stock. The immediate and continued success of this department is considered one of the marvels of the public utility world and the Alabama Power Company is said to lead all utilities in the country in amount of stock sold in proportion to the population served.

IN OPERATION

That bakery we have been telling you about is now a fact. It began business last Saturday and if you want something fine and dandy in that line, you will find it next to the railroad in the old post office building.

Mr. Cottingham, who is a baker with a pedigree, is in charge and will be glad to serve you at any and all hours.

People from the country tell us that the quail crop is very short this season. Our sportsmen better organize a gun club and go to shooting at glass balls to keep in practice.

La Follette and Wheeler seem to be gaining strength as the campaign progresses. It is about conceded that they will carry six small northwestern states. In the other states they will probably poll a surprisingly large vote, but not enough to win any electoral votes.

A PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR

WHEREAS, The Legislature of Alabama, at a session held in 1923, has ordered an election by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which is herein set forth, to be held at the general election in November, 1924; and

WHEREAS, Notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment is required by law to be given by proclamation of the Governor; NOW THEREFORE, I, William W. Brandon, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that at the general election in November, 1924, an election will be held for the vote of the qualified electors of the State of Alabama, in the manner, form and places required by law, upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, viz:

"Town Creek School District No. 59, Landersville School District No. 23 and Moulton School District No. 28 in Lawrence County, Alabama, shall each have the right and power by vote of a majority of the qualified electors of that district at an election held for that purpose to levy and collect for the purpose of acquiring, constructing or repairing of school buildings in such districts or paying for school buildings already built, a tax of not over five mills in any one year in addition to all other taxes now authorized by law. The election in such district to determine whether or not such tax shall be levied shall be held, held and conducted as now provided by law for calling bondings and conducting of elections to determine whether or not a three-mill district school tax shall be levied and collected."

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great Seal of the State to be affixed at the Capitol, in the City of Montgomery, on this, the 8th day of August, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-four.

Any person who honorably served in the Military or Naval service of the United States between January 1, 1917, and November 11, 1918, shall be required to pay the poll tax mentioned in the Constitution of Alabama; such persons shall be exempt from the payment of all poll taxes which have accrued or may hereafter accrue. This section shall be self-executing and retroactive. The Judge of Probate shall issue certificates of exemption from the payment of such poll taxes to the persons entitled thereto under such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the Governor."

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great Seal of the State of Alabama to be affixed at the Capitol, in the City of Montgomery, on this, the 8th day of August, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-four.

AT HOME AGAIN

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Franklin will be glad to learn that Mrs. Franklin, who has been for some time very low in a Birmingham sanitarium, has so far recovered that he was able to be brought home last Friday.

Mr. Franklin is making good at the "Capitane" of Clanton. They have hosts of friends looking forward to their becoming a big family.

CAPTAIN'S HOME

Uncle Dock Wells is home again. He was on his visit shorter than he expected because he got home sick for Clanton.

There is no place that feels so much like home to Uncle Dock as Clanton does and he can't stay away long at a time.

$54,000,000 CASH IS RAISED BY BAPTISTS

RETURNS ON 75 MILLION CAMPAIGN REPORTED TO CONVENTION—$21,000,000 MORE NEEDED.

NEW PROGRAM PROJECTED

Dr. C. E. Burts of South Carolina Named General Director—Dr. McDaniel Heads Convention.

Dr. GEORGE W. McDANIEL, New President Southern Baptist Convention.

Up to May 1 Southern Baptists had contributed in cash on their 75 Million Campaign, the five-year program for the extension of their general missionary, educational and benevolent work, the sum of $53,832,852.79, leaving a total of $21,167,147.21 to be raised between now and the end of 1924 if the original goal of $75,000,000 is attained. It is announced by the general headquarters.

When the status of the Campaign was reported to the Southern Baptist Convention at its recent session in Atlanta, the Conservation Commission was instructed to lay plans to complete the raising of the $75,000,000 by the close of the present calendar year in order to clear the way for another forward program that will claim the support of the denomination during 1925.

Dr. L. R. Scarborough, general director of the Campaign, has been called back to Nashville to lead in the task of raising the $21,000,000 additional needed to complete the Campaign goal. He will undertake with the assistance of the various state and associational boards, to effect an organization that will enlist every Baptist church in the South, representing a combined membership of 3,500,000, in a definite share in the completion of this forward program.

Approximately 6,000 messengers from every state in the South attended the Atlanta session of the Convention and the entire body voted unanimously to get behind the effort to raise the full amount of money needed to complete the Campaign.

Where Money Came From
Here are the sources from which the $54,000,000 collected so far on the Campaign has come: Alabama $2,123,351.03; Arkansas $2,022,747.30; District of Columbia $256,257.01; Florida $852,103.95; Georgia $4,878,624.28; Illinois $629,735.03; Kentucky $5,636,300.32; Louisiana $1,451,935.34; Maryland $606,716.51; Mississippi $2,739,706.78; Missouri $2,249,746.14; New Mexico $645,816.26; North Carolina $4,511,014.81; Oklahoma $1,349,033.42; South Carolina $4,527,974.09; Tennessee $3,746,251.52; Texas $8,171,762.80; Virginia $5,738,141.38. Specials: Home Board $15,340.00; Foreign Board $86,103.00; raised by foreign churches and expended by them on work there $1,005,390.63.

Future Program Authorized
At the same time Southern Baptist forces will be completing their 75 Million Campaign they will be launching the next program to follow the Campaign. At a session in Nashville the Commission on the future program designated it as "The 1925 Program of Southern Baptists" and elected Dr. C. E. Burts of Columbia, S. C., as general director, and Frank M. Burkhalter, Nashville, publicity director. The canvass for subscriptions for the 1925 budget, which will be for at least $15,000,000, will be taken in the local Baptist churches the week beginning November 30.

Dr. George McDaniel of Richmond, Va., is the new president of the Southern Convention. Actions by that body include the taking over of the Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary at Fort Worth, Texas, decision to defer for a year any action taken to a reorganization of the work of the general boards of the convention, instruction to the Education Board to continue negotiations looking to recovery to the Baptists of George Washington University at Washington, decision to give larger consideration at next year's session to the interests of the country churches, and the adoption of a vigorous project, which will be forwarded to the presiding and governing bodies of the denomination, for the persecution of Baptists in Russia and Rumania.

RED CROSS IS URGING BETTER-HEALTH BATTLE

Tireless in Services Advancing Cause of Freedom from Human Suffering.

Not alone in preparedness for emergencies, but in a positive battle for better health is the American Red Cross nurse maintaining in peace time the high tradition of her war service. As in war, the same self-sacrificing service for humanity goes on in a quiet, active way content in its accomplishments, seeking no public acclaim. Enrolled in the Red Cross Nursing Service are 40,636 of these missionaries of health, nearly 1,000 carrying the message of a finer public health to as many communities and 1,100 teaching large classes in home hygiene and care of the sick. Exactly 100 Red Cross nurses are still on duty overseas, helping the struggle forward toward the high standard of American nurse efficiency in many countries.

In the Government services 3,117 enrolled Red Cross nurses are on duty with the Army, Navy, Public Health Service and the Veterans Bureau, while the entire active enrollment is maintained as a reserve for the Army Nurse Corps and available to the Navy in a national defense emergency. Nine hundred nurses were added to the roll the last year.

Red Cross nursing, however, has perhaps its finest expression out in the places laid waste by fire, flood and storm, and in the back reaches far from the centers of population. In every disaster the Red Cross nurse is first called for, first to respond, and the last to leave her post of duty among the suffering victims. In the isolated sections of Alaska, North Carolina, Virginia, Idaho, and among the bleak islands of Penobscott Bay, Me., her ministrations are making hard lives easier and working for a brighter future for the children. Her part in the human drama of the time is increasingly important, although it is subdued by the very nature of her work.

The policy of the American Red Cross to establish under Chapter control public health nursing services in communities lacking such facilities has been justified and this pioneering work is everywhere endorsed by authorities who are quick to take it over as a proper municipal function and a duty of taxpayers. The Home Hygiene and Care of the Sick program has further penetrated into the schools as a definite part of curriculum. During the year 29,000 school pupils took this Red Cross course. Three telephone corporations adopted it and graduated 300 employe students.

As good health depends upon right eating the Red Cross Nutrition Service continued to promote individual and community health, particularly the health of mothers and children. This service reached nearly 150,000 persons during the year and found work to do for several thousand Red Cross volunteer workers.

Red Cross Fighting First Aid Battle To Conserve Life

Reliable records establish the fact that more than 75,000 accidental deaths occur every year in the United States. The records show that 208 American citizens are killed every day; that 38 of these deaths are due to automobiles, 25 to falls, 19 to drownings, 16 to burns. Facing such distressing sacrifice of life is the First Aid Service of the American Red Cross, fighting through education and demonstration to instill a consciousness of safety in the public mind and teaching approved methods which assure that competent hands will care for injured persons until the arrival of doctors. Trained service in the first few minutes is vital in serious accidents and saves many precious lives.

One of the most encouraging signs of the past year is the record of the Red Cross First Aid Insurance Car No. 1 which traveled 9,700 miles along trunk lines, stopping at 137 places. The car's staff of surgeons gave 311 demonstrations to audiences composed of 42,150 railroad men, 71,000 high school and college students, 13,000 industrial workers, 2,000 members of clubs, and nearly 18,000 policemen, firemen, and other municipal employes, a total of 147,000.

Red Cross First Aid certificates were conferred upon 15,855 persons who took the course last year, an increase of 4,000 over 1923. Telephone, gas and electric companies, public service corporations and other large employers of the country adopted the Red Cross course, and their team leaders, by their example, have crowds with as much interest as develops at popular athletic games.

In the industrial field the growth of first aid instruction is a positive preventable accidents and unnecessary loss of life has received wide recognition. The promise of an unprecedented advance in this line of service lies in the evidence of the great strides systematic instruction in First Aid has made throughout the country through the Red Cross Chapters and the work of the experts in this service under direction of the national organization.

Sign the American Red Cross roll this year for humanity's sake.

THE YOUNG OLD WOMAN

"Old Man" Coolidge and Old Woman Coolidge would be the respectful way in which a delegation of Indians would describe the first two citizens of our land. Long since they discovered that humor and responsibility and wisdom might well on heads that have learned by experience how to make a home, rear a family, get along with the neighbors, and otherwise make a success of life.

But the eighty-three-year-old editor of Farm and Ranch is a solitary, dramatic figure in our civilization, where we love to put a cap on "grandma" and set her in the chimney corner, a pensioner on our bounty, without interests or hopes—somebody without friends. Mrs. S. B. Buchanan of Dallas might have been just such a grandma, only she chose not to. At fifty, she had reared a large family of her own children and started many grandchildren off in the world. But she had no job that was especially her own. So she made one. She became "Aunt Sally," who for thirty-three years has been writing, out of her overflowing experience, on the problems of living.

The friends and followers of "Aunt Sally's" column have come to consider themselves members of an informal league; they number now probably 50,000. They offer her "handshakes," as she calls her friendly letters, "from Maine to Mexico, even Alaska; occasionally there is a foreign visitor from Brazil, Central America or Japan.

"Business is a new and sometimes difficult life for a girl to find herself in," this adviser of many girls has found. "It's best to begin at home where the influences of home and former associations can assist her."

"She sent me the facts for this story with permission to 'dress 'em up,' and then write me post-haste. 'Now that it's entirely out of my reach, I'm stricken with stage fright. I'm shocked at having said so much about myself. I never did it before. Do please suppress the ego in the story!'"

Anybody would feel like confiding in and depending on "Aunt Sally." She's wholesome and quite unspoiled by her power. Her wildest recreation is an occasional piece of fancywork. She's so comfortably old-fashioned that she'd rather answer from 500 to 600 letters a month by hand than have them go through the artificiality of a stenographer's assistance.

A COAL MINING CAREER

Did you ever think of coal-mining your way to wealth and happiness? I did. One was taken whirling into a long West Virginia mine "head" on an electric car. I saw little sticks of dynamite loosen a whole wall of black diamonds, watched a great undercutting saw rip the wall loose at the bottom and send it tumbling down almost into the shovel of the miner. Somehow it was the power thus released with so little effort, not the fearfulness of being a mile under ground, that I carried away with me.

But our state laws have definite ideas against women as mine workers. So the only chance is to make good as an owner. And Lucie B. Gunn of Middlesboro, Ky., has done just that. Not because she wanted a spectacular career. Far from it. It is because her husband needed help to acquire full ownership of a good mine that Mrs. Gunn is now president of the Lower Lignite Mining company. He had married without capital or expectation of the inheritance that so often determines ownership of the great underground wealth. So the two of them buckled down to a long systematic struggle that lasted more than twelve years.

Meanwhile there were children. The three of them have all graduated at high school, each with the highest standing in the class, thus setting a record for the Gunn family.

And there's the home itself. Mrs. Gunn planned the inside of the residence, and won a newspaper prize for its arrangement.

Then there's the world about them. Physically, it's wonderful. "We sit on our porch," reports Mrs. Gunn, "and look out on a million-dollar sunset every evening. We gaze at mountain scenery such as city people travel hundreds of miles to see. We have one of the purest water supplies that can be had anywhere."

But mentally and emotionally? Well, I asked Mrs. Gunn about that. "I've won a college education for my children," she answered first. Then she went on, "I do not come in contact with an unassimilated foreign population, and my children's friends are pure-bred Americans. I've many desirable friends. I have a good deal of influence over the Middlesboro schools. I'm a member of the Democratic state committee. And I've been asked to do a good deal of newspaper writing on home economic and political. Besides, the human animal has been used to out-door life and to family life through hundreds of generations. City life is antagonistic to the entire history of the race."

Lesson for October 26
THE STILLING OF THE STORM

LESSON TEXT—Mark 4:35-41.
GOLDEN TEXT—What manner of man is this, that even the wind and the sea obey him?—Mark 4:41.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Story of a Great Storm.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Stills the Tempest.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Power of Jesus Over Nature.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How to Meet the Storms of Life.

Jesus was a great Teacher, as was shown in the parable of last lesson, but Mark's aim was to show Him as the Divine Servant doing mighty deeds. Hence after the parables are presented deeds which show Him to be the master of the forces of nature, demons, diseases and death. His mastery of the forces of nature is the particular deed shown in this lesson.

I. Jesus and the Disciples Crossing the Sea (vs. 35, 36).
Weary with the teaching of the day, He proposes that they take a ship to the other side of the sea, the aim doubtless being to escape the crush of the multitude. They did not delay, for "they took Him even as He was in the ship."

II. Overtaken by a Storm (v. 37).
Storms were frequent on Galilee, but this was an unusual storm. It was a furious onset, so great that the waves beat into the ship so that it was full. Even though Jesus was in the boat with the disciples they were overtaken by a storm. To follow Christ does not necessarily mean smooth sailing or cloudless skies. Indeed, it rather implies that we will have to encounter storms. However, those who have Christ on their boat cannot sink.

III. Jesus Himself in the Storm-Tossed Boat (v. 38).
The day had been a very strenuous one and He was weary. In the midst of the turbulent elements He was resting in sleep. He who made the sea could well lie down and sleep though the storm did violently rage. His being asleep did not indicate that He was indifferent to the need of His disciples.

IV. The Terrified Disciples (v. 38).
In their minds nothing but disaster and death awaited them. There was absolutely no danger for no boat can go down regardless of the violence of the storm which has Christ on board. The disciples were not only terrified but they chided Him for sleeping while they were in such great danger. It was all right for them to come to Him for help but it was presumptuous on their part to make a demand upon Him.

V. Christ's Rebuke (vs. 39, 40).
He arose and rebuked the wind. Unless we see Him as the God-Man we will be perplexed for we see a human being sleeping because of exhaustion and then we hear the divine voice of the Creator and Ruler of the universe. He who was asleep has power to rebuke and calm the raging elements.

1. The Wind (v. 39). This showed that He had power over the elements of nature for at His command the wind ceased and there was a great calm.

2. The Disciples for Their Lack of Faith (v. 40). They were looking upon their circumstances instead of upon their Lord. For all the disciples had seen and heard they should have been without fear in the company of Jesus. Let us learn to trust Him for He has power over all things.

VI. The Effect Upon the Disciples (v. 41).
They were filled with great fear. A little while ago they were afraid in the face of a storm. Now they are afraid in the presence of the Lord. Frequently marvelous deliverances by the Lord so affect God's children that they are more alarmed over the presence of a divine being than they are by the threatening perils. Let us see that standing in our midst though unseen today is our Lord and that despite the raging of the storms we can hear His voice of peace.

Christianity

Christianity is a religion of the Spirit. Ah! whatever else a church may or may not have, possession of the Spirit of God is that which makes it Christian. Elaborate formalism, beautiful architecture, ornate discourses may be vehicles for the expression of the Spirit, but they must be understood to be secondary and contributory only. When so understood they are legitimate and praiseworthy.—Charles B. Tupper.

Our Blessings

We fail to get much benefit from many blessings because we do not try to impart them to others.—Herald and Presbyter.

The Wages of Sin

The worst of the sin is that they are always paid in part by the innocent.—Lucas Mallet.

Riches of Friendship

A dollar is soon spent, but the riches of friendship are inexhaustible.

How To Save Time In The Kitchen

THERE'S no reason why you should spend needless time and energy in the kitchen fretting with the cooking when you can prepare so easily the many delicious dishes with self-rising flour. It affords a new way to make tasteful and appetizing the old familiar foods every one loves so well. Biscuits, hot muffins, cakes and dainty pastries, all rise better and have a more tempting flavor when made with self-rising flour.

"I consider self-rising flour one of my oldest friends," writes a noted Southern cook. "I would not be without it. . . . When I'm in hurry I know that with a hot oven and plenty of self-rising flour everything will be all right."

As in plain flour, self-rising comes in a number of different grades. Your grocer will sell you exactly the same grade of self-rising that you have been using in plain flour. See that the Blue Shield of the Soft Wheat Millers' Association is on every bag you buy. It means that you are getting guaranteed flour. Accept no other.

FOLLOW THESE FIVE RULES For Making Perfect Biscuits with Self-Rising Flour. (1) See that your oven is hot. (2) Always use meat or cold water. (3) Never add baking powder, soda or salt. (4) Use good shortening—lard, vegetable fat or butter. (5) Make soft dough—bake quickly. SOFT WHEAT MILLERS' ASS'N, Inc.

Use SELF-RISING FLOUR

MONEY-BACK GUARANTEE
Every bag of self-rising flour bearing this Blue Shield of the Soft Wheat Millers' Association is guaranteed to be absolutely pure and wholesome and completely up to the standard of the Soft Wheat Millers' Association. If you are not satisfied, your money will be refunded.

AFTER SUNSET ON THE FARM

The Sun has set, over the western hill, and the night is warm and still. Each one's gathering without a chill, over the peaceful farm. The clock is fast for the day is done. The childrens' glad their work is done. Break for the house on a joyful run. To the life of a farm. For the night comes they speedily go. All tunes of joy, not of woe! As they are done, and so, for their meal, is with a flame of red. To the eaters of milk and bread. And not a complaining word is said. For all contented feel.

DIRT EATERS

From the amount of dust the average citizen has inhaled during the last week or so, it looks like our lungs might make possibly could truck patches by now. It is the most ingenious and penetrating dust we ever saw. It not only blinds and stifles you on every street corner, it follows you right on in to your office or home and is the constant attendant upon your footsteps every where you turn. Screened doors and windows are its delight and the dining table seems to be its favorite rallying ground. It is no respecter of places nor persons. ### A PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR

WHEREAS, the Legislature of Alabama, at a session held in 1923, has ordered an election by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which is herein set forth, to be held at the general election in November, 1924, and WHEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment, is required by law to be given by proclamation of the Governor:

NOW, THEREFORE, I, William W. Brandon, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that at the general election in November, 1924, an election will be held for the vote of the qualified electors of the State of Alabama, in the manner, form and places required by law, upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, viz: "Proposed Amendment No. 290. Mobile County may become indebted and may issue bonds for the construction or improvement of concrete or better than concrete surfaced public roads, and concrete or better than concrete public bridges in said county, and for the construction of bridges and roadways necessary to provide a public road on vehicular travel between the precincts of Mobile and Baldwin Counties, in an amount not to exceed six and one-half per centum of the assessed value of the property situated in Mobile County. To pay said indebtedness and the interest thereon, Mobile County may levy and collect an annual tax on said property not to exceed one-half of one per cent of said value. The indebtedness, bonds and the tax authorized hereby shall be in addition to those authorized by the Constitution of Alabama prior to the adoption of this amendment. But no such additional indebtedness shall be created, and no such additional bonds shall be issued, and no such additional tax shall be levied, until such improvement or construction proposed to be built thereby, its approximate location, estimated cost and time of completion and the amount of the proposed increase, shall have been determined upon and made public by the Board of Revenue and Road Commissioners of Mobile County, and the proposed increase of indebtedness or issue of bonds or tax therefor shall have been first authorized by a majority vote by ballot of the qualified voters of Mobile County voting upon such proposition."

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the State to be affixed at the Capitol, in the City of Montgomery, on this, the 8th day of August, One Thousand Nine Hundred and Twenty-Four.

Sec. 3899—Code of 1923.

(Political adv. authorized by V. J. Gragg, Chairman, Clanton, Ala.)

TO THE CITIZENS OF CHILTON COUNTY

As Chairman of the Campaign Committee for the Independent-Progressive ticket I desire to make this final appeal to you in behalf of our county. It is the duty of every citizen to go to the polls on next Tuesday and vote for the best interest of our county and no one should neglect this duty regardless of which party he is aligned with, nor should he permit his political prejudice to make him swerve from performing this duty in the direction that his conscience dictates to him that would be best. Keep in mind always the up-building of his county in general. Don't fail to vote!

The men that are running on the Independent-Progressive ticket were selected solely for their ability, fitness and general reputation, for honesty and morality. No one can lay at the feet of either of these candidates any charge that his life has not been clean and above board and for square dealings in every station of life that they have held. Even the Union-Banner pays them a tribute wherein it said that each of these men were good citizens.

Regardless of the results of this election I feel very proud of having been honored with the management of the Campaign for the Independent-Progressive ticket composed of five of the cleanest citizens that have ever been nominated by any party in the history of Chilton county and I shall feel that I have shifted the burden from my shoulders to that of the people in seeking to return our county to a better government should the ticket be defeated and if it is elected, as I firmly believe it will be, I know that I shall have been instrumental in the beginning of a new era in Chilton county for clean local politics and government.

The responsibility of putting Chilton county into the right sphere as regards local government will rest with you voters next Tuesday and I ask with all earnestness and sincerity: Do you want good men for office? Men whose lives have been clean and who that you would not mind your boy patterning after or following their footsteps in future life. If you do then vote for W. A. Kemp for Treasurer, J. Monroe Parrish, and R. Lee Ousley for Commissioners, J. C. Pattillo and Howard R. Oden for members of the County Board of Education. These men are not aligned with any faction and have never been extremists in politics. They were not selected for the sole purpose of putting any man out of office and if elected they will have in view more than one particular thing to do, neither are they pledged in advance as to what man will teach school or run the school affairs of the county. The two men selected for Commissioners are not promising you impossible things to get your vote but they do pledge you that if elected they will not put a wagon and vehicle tax upon you and will endeavor to have the money that is paid in for road tax spent in heat where collected and not paid to someone who has been a political worker for some one family. The man selected for Treasurer, Mr. W. A. Kemp pledges you that if elected he will maintain an office in the Town of Clanton where you can find him during all business hours and will scrutinize the expenditures of the people's money and see to it that the people are informed where their money goes and for what purpose it is spent and to what parties paid. He further pledges that the funds of the county will be deposited in the banks of Chilton county and all of the banks given a share of same.

The men on the Independent-Progressive Ticket are not politicians and they did not seek the office themselves for the small amount of pay that the office gives nor were they nominated to pay off any political debts, and they were not selected by any one man or party (as has been charged) but were selected by a large number of Democrats and Republicans who desired to offer to the people a ticket containing a full number of some of the best citizens of the county and who also were desirous of having a ticket composed of such men so that they might go to the polls and vote themselves and each man was asked to make the race by over one thousand citizens of the county whose names were placed upon the petition asking them to run. There are many things that I would like to say to the voters of the County but time and space prevents and knowing that your intelligence is such that you can recognize the merits of this ticket and that it means the breaking away from political prejudice in our public officials. It would suffice me to only urge you to do your full duty by going to the polls next Tuesday and vote for the interest of Chilton county. On that day you have the right to say something in your government of 1925 and it will be six years before you will have, as to some of this ticket, the right to express your choice again and four years with the others so you see this opportunity does not come very often and I am insisting that you exercise your right of suffrage for the future progress of Chilton county.

Yours for the best interest of Chilton county,

V. J. GRAGG,
Campaign Mgr.
(Political adv. authorized by V. J. Gragg, Clanton, Ala.)

HOWARD RODEN

Dear Sir:

Since it will be impossible for me to see many of the voters before election day I feel like it is my duty to write you just what my attitude is toward our schools.

I believe we should do everything possible for our boys and girls, long educational lives because the demand for trained minds and workmen are growing greater all the time. Unless we push forward in our school work we will cause a lot of boys and girls to miss opportunities that rightly belong to them, and on the other hand no doubt, would bring into our midst educated people who would be undeniable characters for the various positions of high trust.

I believe in consolidated schools where the people are ready for them and have a desire to consolidate. However, where people are not ready and do not want to consolidate, should have the right to do as they see best.

In fact I believe everything pertaining to public matters should be done open and above board giving the public the privilege of a say so as to their needs and surroundings. Should I be elected as a member of the board of education I would earnestly request the co-operation of the entire citizenship of this county in order that I might render the best of service.

Let me say further, there is no party lines drawn on this Independent-Progressive ticket in this county. My success depends on that class of citizenship who are willing to lay aside party prejudice for the time being and vote for the man. However, if you feel absolutely satisfied that the other men would be able to render better service than myself then you should vote for them. I am asking you for your support because good citizens from both parties are responsible for me being on the ticket.

If you desire further correspondence on public school questions not mentioned in this letter I shall be glad to give you my views.

Before I close I must say that I believe our rural schools should have more recognition and everything possible for the board to do I promise you will not be overlooked by me.

Thanking you for every consideration I am,

Yours very truly,
HOWARD R. ODEN
(Political adv. by H. R. Oden.)

J. CATO PATTILLO

Dear Sir:

As you, no doubt, know already, candidates for various offices of Chilton county to be filled at the general election on the 4th day of November, have announced as independent of all political parties. The candidates are, W. A. Kemp for county Treasurer, R. L. Ousley and J. M. Parrish for Commissioners, Howard R. Oden and J. C. Pattillo for members of the Board of Education.

I, as one of those, am taking this method of appealing to you for support, not only for myself but for the entire ticket. We are making this appeal as citizens who desire to serve all the people of the county and not as the servants of any political party, secret society or ring; answerable to no man nor set of men but to the entire citizenship of the county for our official acts. If elected we pledge ourselves to have due regard for the rights of every section in it and to give a fair and impartial hearing on all controversial matters with which the office has to deal and to dispose of the same in such manner as to give fair and impartial justice to all.

We are conducting this campaign with as little expense as possible, believing that the use of money in campaigns nearly always places the elected candidate under obligations to the source from which the money was derived and, therefore, making it impossible for him to serve all of the people fairly and impartially, hence we have adopted the method of conducting the campaign that requires the least expenditure of money.

If you have confidence in our honesty and integrity and approve of the method we have adopted to place our names before you as candidates, we shall very much appreciate your vote on election day.

Yours for the best interests of our county.

J. CATO PATTILLO.

R. LEE OUSLEY

Pletcher, Ala., Oct. 28, 1924.

Dear Sir:

As you may possibly know I am a candidate for Commissioner from the third district and am running on a Non-Partisan ticket.

As it will be a matter of impossibility for me to go and visit or even to see all the voters of the county, I have decided to write a few of our most prominent ones.

I consider that I am well fitted for the duties of Commissioner from this district. I have had considerable experience in road and bridge building and several of my sons have been doing grading and such work for years for Jackson Lumber Company. I am against this extra special tax levied on trucks. I am deeply interested in school affairs and believe in working toward the interest of the biggest majority.

I know the people in this district, know the district well and its requirements and this certainly means a great deal.

I believe that I can make a capable and efficient Commissioner in this district. As to my other qualifications, I would be glad for you to write to any of my friends, neighbors, or acquaintances anywhere or to any of the Post Masters or business men in Stanton, Plantersville or Pletcher; all three places which I live near.

I would certainly appreciate your vote and also your support and if elected will do all in my power possible to make you the best Commissioner you have had. Thanking you for whatever you can do for me, I am,

Yours truly,

R. L. OUSLEY.

J. MONROE PARRISH

Dear Friend:

I am in the race for County Commissioner. Am running on an absolutely non-political ticket, in the interest of local harmony among our citizens.

I feel that I am competent to give this office efficient service and, if elected, I pledge myself to give to all of its duties the very best service and at no time will the question of politics influence my action.

I will greatly appreciate your support.

Yours truly,

J. MONROE PARRISH

W. A. KEMP

Dear Friend:

I am a candidate for office of Treasurer of Chilton county. I am in no sense a politician and have never been, but, at the solicitation of many friends of both parties, I consented to make the race.

My time is taken up in such a way that it will be impossible for me to see a very large number of voters before the election, next Tuesday, and I am writing you to earnestly solicit your support.

I have lived here in the county all my life, and have tried to live in a way that would build a reputation worthy of the peoples confidence.

I ask your support, with the promise that if elected, I will be found at my post of duty, ready and anxious at all times to serve every citizen of the county to the very best of my ability, regardless of the party affiliations, and that all work connected with the office will be done promptly and efficiently.

If you can give me your support and your help, I assure you it will be greatly appreciated.

Yours very truly,

W. A. KEMP

S. M. EDWARDS WRITES

Thorsby, Ala. Oct. 28, 1924.

Editor Chilton County News.

Clanton, Ala.

Dear Sir:

As the election is now at hand I would like to say a few words to the voters who are thinking for themselves instead of allowing some slick tongue politician to dictate to him how he or she should vote in 1925 that he may reap a boundless pie for his own pocket and a few of his close followers who also like the pie counters. Now the thing to do is to urge the question before the voters and vote accordingly. I believe in the office seeking the man, and not the man the office. We have a ticket in Chilton County like this for you to accept or reject. What are you going to do about it? I have known the most of these men all my life and I don't believe you could comb Chilton county with a fine tooth comb and get a better set of men for officers. They did not seek the office. They are not politicians, but plain common everyday men, who was called upon by a large number of Chilton's best citizens to make the race for the various offices. And they only answered that call as a good citizen should do when he is called upon to serve his people. This is what I have longed to see in Chilton county and by the way the Union-Banner as bad as she is to find some fault to every thing that doesn't line up with her political faith has come out and told you that these men are all good men and of the highest type of citizenship and when the Union-Banner puts a stamp like this on an independent candidate you may bet your bottom dollar he is the stuff rocks. Now if you want these good men to serve you as your officers help us to elect them on November 4th and let freedom ring out once more. You have been asked the question by the big Republican boss of Chilton. How long will the people hoover under the Democratic banner of Alabama and be misled. I say Amen to that. And I ask the question how long? How long? Will the people of Chilton county hoover under the Republican banner and be misled just to satisfy some hungry politician. Both parties are guilty of ring rule, there is no difference, one skins up and the other skins down and let us give both parties a rest and elect good common everyday men of the wool hat type to tend to our business for us. This will bring a change where political parties will continue in the same old ruts. I say hooray for the Independent ticket. From constable to president.

Yours for a better government of the people and by the people.

S. M. EDWARDS.

HOW THE JUDGE WAS SAVED

By LEWIS NEBEL

THE library of Judge Bloodgood suggested its wealth in silent, almost somber, tones. There was nothing ostentatious about it. The built-in cases on either side of the grate were stocked with uniformly arranged volumes; on one side books of statistics and law; on the other the literary achievements of the ages, selected with the infinite discretion of a logician and thinker. The paneled walls harmonized tastefully with the walnut furniture and the leather upholstery, even bleeding with soft, unforged rugs.

All this austere richness was symbolic of the judge's nature. Sitting at the massive Jacobean table, which was heaped with law books, he seemed a part of the chamber. Large and leathery of visage, broad-shouldered; stern of mien, square-jawed.

Presently, after looking over a dozen volumes, he laid a broad finger on the one before him and proceeded to make brief notes on a memorandum pad. So engrossed in his task was he that he did not notice a man who stood in the doorway.

The stranger was a lean, rangy fellow whose nondescript clothes fitted crazily over his bony frame. There was an odd pallor in his hawklike face that fitted in with his sunken, bleary eyes and loose-lipped, crooked mouth. For a moment he stood there, then came forward, leveling a revolver, to which was attached a silencer, at the judge.

"Evenin', Jedge," he announced casually. Judge Bloodgood lifted his eyes in mild alarm, then, settling back in his chair slowly, stroked his chin reflectively.

"Seems to me that I've seen you before," he remarked finally. "Sure you has?" At mirthless chuckle cocked in the fellow's throat. "Think hard, Jedge."

The judge's eyes narrowed, and he studied the misshapen physiognomy more intently. Finally his mouth screwed down at the corners.

"I've seen you, but where and when I cannot say."

"Member Baumberg robbery on Park row seven years ago?"

"Baumberg—yes. Baumberg—yes, now I place you! You're Kline. I sent you up for ten years. You were with the gang that looted Baumberg's clothing store and killed the watchman. Right?"

Kline tilted his emaciated face pugnaciously.

"Yeah, Kline—dat's me. Jest 'cuz I wuz around de stick-up yuh gives me ten years—me, wif me moist offense. Judge Bloodgood's jaw shot forward. His rejoinder came through clenched teeth and vibrated through the chamber.

"Yes, I gave you ten years—the limit. I wish I could have given you twenty. You were one of the crowd, a lookout. You pleaded 'not guilty.' You were yellow, and you're yellow now. Shoot, d-n you, but you'll pay for it! You'll get the chair!"

"Shut yer trap! I'll get de chair, hey? No, not me, bud. Yet let one out a year ago an' I kep' clean o' Noo York till t'night."

He sat down opposite the judge. He was a nervous wreck of a man. His breathing was uneven, a flush of crimson was on his pallid face, his eyes were feverish. Resting his elbows on the table, he supported his revolver across a book in a direct line with the judge's heart. He took a cigar from the humidor and threw one to the judge.

"I'm a sport, Jedge. I'm gonna smoke yer last smoke wif yuh. Light fer up!"

The judge took the cigar, bit off the end of it, and, evidently in search of a match, shifted several volumes. Kline, keenly alert, thought he saw the judge reach toward the telephone, which was almost buried in a mass of books.

"Keep yer mitts away from de phone! Keep 'em where I kin see 'em!"

The judge, locating the matches, calmly lit one and applied it to his cigar.

"My Mantles usually last about half an hour," he remarked. "Accordingly, I am to die in thirty minutes. The last sentence was spoken loudly, each word enunciated clearly and emphasized vigorously.

"Yes, about dat. Gittin' sweat? Huh, I guess yeh're chicken-hearted, yuh pup. I'm gonna see de likes o' yuh on yer knees, beggin' fo' life. I'm gonna look in yer face, coize yuh r' b-l; and den I'm gonna blow yer brains out."

If these diabolical words, reeking with venomous jest, affected the judge he did not show it. The same stern mien was evident, his hand held the cigar firmly, his smoking was deliberate.

He was famed as a severe arm of the law, exacting all the power his station permitted. He was a fighter, physically as well as mentally; and hard fighters die hard. One night cell him a worthy apostle of Zen.

Kline habbied on. He chewed his cigar until the end was frayed, and spat the parodies that came off at the judge.

Twenty minutes passed. The cigars were burning low. The judge's lips compressed a trifle and his teeth gritted. Not many a man can remain stoic in the face of death. How much more so when a half-crazed man dilates on it and describes in detail the terrible sensation of having a hot piece of lead splinter your skull! There was not a chance in the world for him to surprise the fiend! Better die with jaw set and nerves taut!

Five minutes to live! The judge's chin rested on his chest, and the same severe countenance that had so often looked from the court bench now looked from the rim of death.

Kline discarded his cigar. Again that raucous cackle sounded in his throat. The curled lips against stained teeth—all bespoken of the lust within him. His body became tense. He half rose, leaning forward. The judge watched him, his great chest rising and falling slowly, his lips tight, his eyes steady.

There was a footfall—a sharp, staccato command:

"Drop it, Kline!"

Kline spun as if on a pivot, with a hissing intake of breath. His gun drooped. In that fraction of a second a man strode from the doorway and held a gun in Kline's face. The latter cringed, overtaken by surprise. His mouth hanging loosely, a stupid expression on his staring eyes.

The stranger took his gun.

"Wh—where de h—l did you come from?" exclaimed Kline.

"Where, from the precinct, and that's where you're going."

Judge Bloodgood had risen.

"Yes, Blake, the boys will be delighted to see him. I was just beginning to fear that I had not raised it far enough or that the operator had neglected me."

Kline stared from one to the other in amazement.

"It . . . de operator?" he cried.

"Yes—it and the operator. Do you remember when I moved these books in search of a match. Well, I shifted one under the telephone receiver, opening the wire. . . ."

Asserts Cave Men Had Knowledge of Writing

Old Stone age men begin to learn how to write fifty or a hundred thousand years ago? Prof. William Faulkner of Berlin, Germany, student of the ways of the ancient cave dwellers, thinks it possible.

As support for his theory he points out the steady change in early Stone age art, from the realistic to the conventional. The cave paintings of the earliest peoples, he shows, were much better pictures, looked at purely as art, than were the later ones. There was a steady tendency through the early ages to formalize art, until at last the figures became simply conventional symbols and were no longer pictures at all.

Toward the close of the old Stone age they painted mysterious signs on pebbles, which have been found in the upper strata. They may have been merely playthings; but Professor Faulkner points out that the present-day Australian aborigines have similar painted stones and sticks. The figures on these ancient pebbles are strikingly like the picture writings of the Chiricahua, Babylonians, Egyptians and Mayans.

Some Indians Not Scalpers

The custom of scalping was not found universally among the Indians of North America. It was not found on the northwest coast, nor in New England or along the Atlantic coast to a great extent. The Atlantic coast by the German savant Friederich Go to show that in the earliest times it was confined to the limited area in eastern North America occupied by the peoples of the Iroquoian and Muskogean stocks; that is, the five nations, the Huron-Wyandot, the Cherokee, Creek Choctaw, Chickasaw and Seminole tribes, says the Detroit News. The spread westward of the custom was largely due to encouragement by the colonial and even later governments.

While scalping may not have been known to the New England tribes, there is strong evidence that the Narragansetts and perhaps others were at one time head hunters.

"Sent to Country"

Coventry is a city in the midlands of England where at one time women who spoke to soldiers were ostracized because of the unpopularity of the troops. Hence, to send to Coventry was to banish from society or social intercourse. The practice may have originated from the fact that incompetent officers were sent to the town by the parliamentary army during the English civil war, as Coventry was a stronghold of the parliamentary party. The origin of the phrase has been variously attributed, as to the number of royalists in Coventry jail during the commonwealth, and, also, to the restriction of trading privileges once imposed on Coventry.—Literary Digest.

Material Things

The love of self is the love, not only of honor, glory, fame and distinction, but also of meriting and seeking after high posts and employment and thus of bearing rule over others. No man of sound reason can condemn riches or wealth because in the belly politic they are like blood in the animal body. Everyone is bound to provide himself with the necessities of life—food, raiment, a house to dwell in also for his family for the time present and the time to come.—Emanuel Swedenborg.

Lesson for November 2

THE PRODIGAL SON—WORLD'S TEMPERANCE SUNDAY

LESSON TEXT—Luke 15:11-24.
GOLDEN TEXT—I will arise and go to my father.—Luke 15:18.
PRIMARY TOPIC—The Story of a Father's Love.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Parable of the Prodigal Son.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Prodigal's Wanderings and Return.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Prodigals: Prevention and Rescue.

The center of interest in this parable is not the prodigal nor his brother, but the "certain man who had two sons." In this parable in a most picturesque and dramatic manner the history of man is portrayed, from his fall to his reconciliation with God. The whole orbit of revelation is swept as it pertains to a sinning race and a pardoning God. He who falls to see the heart of our Father God will miss the purpose of the parable.

I. The Son's Insubordination (v. 12).

There is every indication that this was a happy home. But a devil entered it and stirred up discontent in the heart of the younger son. His desire for freedom moved him to willfully close to leave home—throw off the constraints of his father's rule. Sin is the desire to be free from the restraints of rightful authority and for selfish indulgence. At the request of the son, the father, "divided unto them his living."

II. The Son's Departure (v. 13).

Having made the final decision he went post-haste to the enjoyment of his cherished vision, so he got his goods in portable shape. Having thrown off the restraints of his father's rule he eagerly withdrew from his father's presence. This is always the way sin works. Adam and Eve after they had sinned hid themselves. The son could not now stand the presence of his father, so he hastened away.

III. The Son's Degeneration (vv. 13, 14).

He had a good time while his money lasted, but the end came quickly. From plenty in his father's house to destitution in the far country was a short journey.

IV. The Son's Degradation (vv. 15, 16).

He had no friends now to help him when his money was all gone, so he was driven to hire out to a citizen to feed swine. It was quite a change from a son in his father's house to feeding hogs in the far country. So it is; those who will not serve God are made slaves to the devil to do his bidding (Rom. 6:16). In his shame and disgrace he could not even get the necessary food. The coarse food of the hogs was denied him.

V. The Son's Restoration (vv. 17-24).

1. He Came to Himself (v. 17). When he reflected a bit he was made conscious that though he had wronged his father and ruined himself, yet he was a son of his father. In the days of his sinning he was bested himself. The sinner continues in his sin because he is insane. If we could but get sinners to think seriously of their condition it would be more easy to get them to turn from their sins.

2. His Resolution (v. 18). His reflection ripened into resolution. The picture of his home where even the hired servants had a superabundance, moved him to make a decision to leave the far country and go home.

3. His Confession (vv. 18, 19). He acknowledged that his sin was against heaven and his father—that he had forfeited his right to be called a son and begged to be given a pence as a hired servant. The sinner not only should make a resolution, he should confess his sin.

4. His Action (v. 20). Action was needed. Resolution will not avail unless accompanied with action. When the confession is genuine, action will follow.

5. His Reception by His Father (vv. 20-24). The father had not forgotten his son. During these years he longed for his return. He must often have looked for him, for he saw him when he was a great way off. So anxious was he for him that he ran to meet him and fell upon his neck and kissed him. So glad was the father that he even did not hear his confession though he had ordered the tokens of honor to be placed upon him, receiving him back into a son's position. Then the feast was made, expressive of the joy of his heart. God is love. Jesus came to reveal God. This parable makes bare God's heart.

Relieved of Catarrh Due to La Grippe

Thanks To PE-RU-NA

Mrs. Laura Berberick, over 70 years of age, 135 Willow Ave., Hahoken, N. J., writes: "A severe attack of La Grippe left me with a hoarseness and sime in the head and throat. I had chronic catarrh. It grew worse. I could not lie down or sleep at night. I was always bothered by the sime, pain in the back and a terrible headache every morning."

Finally I bought a bottle of Pe-ru-na which was of great benefit. It gave me blood and strength. I have no pains in head or back nor noises in the head. The sime has gone and I can sleep. My weight has increased. I am cheerful and happy, thanks to Pe-ru-na, which I shall always keep in the house and recommend to my friends."

For every form of catarrh, Pe-ru-na meets the need. Coughs, Colds, Nasal Catarrh, Indigestion, Bowel disorders are all forms of catarrh.

Buy it any where in tablet or liquid form.

Youth and deb are the world's greatest stimulants.

Most of the fools in this world have not the money to part with.

"CASCARETS" IF BILIOUS, CONSTIPATED—10c A BOX

If Dizzy, Headachy or Stomach Sour, Clean the Bowels.

To clean your bowels without cramping or overacting, take "Cascarets." Stomach headache, dizziness, biliousness, indigestion, sour upset stomach, and all such distress gone by morning. Nearest active and cathartic on earth for grown-ups and children. 10c a box—all drug stores.

How quickly that rash disappeared!

THOUSANDS of users have wondered at the quickness of the action of Resinol Ointment and Soap. The answer is that it is not a surface treatment, but one that reaches the depths of the pores and attacks the source of the disorder, starting the healing right. The first touch relieves the itching, burning and soreness and a few days' persistent use rarely fails to clear away the trouble. When the skin is once restored to its normal condition, the daily use of Resinol Soap is generally sufficient to keep it healthy. Ideal for the complexion—unsurpassed for the bath and shampoo. Ask your druggist what he knows about the Resinol products.

RESINOL

Is Your Blood Starved?

ARE you unknowingly handicapping yourself in this life race? Is it blood starvation—lack of energy-building elements—that is hindering you toward failure . . . unsuccess? Examination shows that 80 out of 100 men and women are Anemic . . . and don't know that this condition is responsible for their loss of energy . . . ambition. Press your thumb nail as illustrated above. Unless the blood comes rushing back Anemia is indicated. Gude's Pepto-Mangan is the tried way to reconstitute the blood. For thirty-two years physicians have prescribed it. Its rich iron and manganese content have restored health to thousands. Your druggist has Gude's Pepto-Mangan in either liquid or tablet form.

ISABELLA COMMUNITY FAIR

The Isabella Community farmers gave one of the most interesting programs at their Community Fair Friday, October 24th, that has ever been held in the county. The Fair was given under the auspices of the Vocational Agricultural Department of the Isabella Agricultural Junior High School.

These farmers were thoroughly up on their job for when one entered the Agricultural building and saw all those exhibits it was amazing for no one ever thought there could be that many good exhibits gotten together in the entire county of Chilton but yet every exhibit including cotton corn sugar cane, potatoes, pumpkins, watermelons, pumpkins, in fact all crops that one could think of nearly was there on exhibit and too, there was the ladies department with many kinds of fancy work and canned goods, and all of these were the products of the Isabella Community.

One room of the Agricultural building was reserved for the farmers of the community for their farm produce while their wives were using the walls for their fancy work and several tables were filled with jellies and canned fruits. The shop room was filled with fine chickens which the boys had raised in their poultry projects. In the main class room the boys had their cotton, corn, cane and potatoes that was produced in their projects under the supervision of Dr. Caldwell. These boys were very enthusiastic and in many instances their exhibits were better than the older farmers.

The day was filled with something interesting besides the exhibits of the community. The program was opened in the morning by Mr. Howard L. Foshee, County Supt. of Education, who presided over the morning exercises. Dr. Caldwell gave a brief statement of the purpose of the days program. Dr. S. J. Ezell, pastor of the first Baptist church of Clanton, made a very interesting talk. Mr. J. S. Lambert of the State Department of Education also made a good talk. After these two talks came the barbequed dinner and such a dinner as was served—barbequed meats, cakes, pies, hot coffee and cold drinks. Then the judging began which was done by Mr. Stivers and Mr. Lambert.

The afternoon program was opened by a talk by Mr. J. L. Johnson of Clanton, who presided over the afternoon exercises followed by Mr. E. D. Stivers, Assistant State Supervisor of Agriculture, who made a very interesting talk. After this a sale of a pen of Dorset Jersey pigs was made, the prizes were read out and awarded and supper served.

The evening exercises were presided over by Mr. E. H. Reed, of the School, and Rev. J. W. Mitchell made an instructive talk to the people.

Dr. H. W. Caldwell deserves much credit for the program that day while the Isabella assistant teachers deserve credit for their cooperation in helping put over the days program.

Many other communities of this county should follow the lead of the Isabella Community and devote one day each fall to a community meeting and fair, as no better means can be had for stimulating community pride and cooperation. Such a day also is beneficial in helping to bring the parents in closer touch with the school.

WORK PLENTIFUL

It looks like every carpenter, painter and brick mason in Clanton is kept busy these days.

Considerable new work is in progress and a vast amount of repairing and adding to dwellings is going forward.

Every day adds more and more to the beauty of the town and speaks in unmistakable language, of the progress and prosperity of its citizens.

HALLOWEEN NIGHT

Already the ghosts are beginning to oil up their bones and have their shrouds laundered in readiness for their annual demonstration next Friday night.

Some of the old fashioned folk are afraid, experiencing cold chills down their spine as the shades of night fall but the modern boy and girl are in high spirits hoping that they may meet and conquer the ghastliest goblin of the bunch.

In the past, it seems to us, that most of the ghosts that walked at Halloween were of rather predatory habits, and were not always careful to leave things alone as they found them, consequently, their visits were not always a pleasant memory.

Of course, in these modern days of culture and refinement, we suppose, that even the ghostly visitants will be so up-to-date, that they will refrain from all of their past habits of vandalism, and put on a demonstration that will be highly "educational" to us old guys.

Be that as it may, next Friday night belongs strictly to them, and you better hide everything you have that ain't red hot or nailed down, if you expect to find it in its usual place Saturday morning.

NOTICE

There will be a public speaking at Bates Hall (Thorsby Institute) Saturday 7:30 p. m. November 1st. Mr. Irby, Noted orator and state campaign speaker, will deliver an address in interest of the La Follette Wheeler party. His topics will be "where, the tax payers money goes?" And whether our Government will be governed by wall street or by the people.

Mr. Irby served ten years as representative in the state of Carolina and has done a considerable amount of work in behalf of the farmers and laborers. Every one is cordially invited to come out and hear what Mr. Irby has to say regardless of your political views.

If there ever could be any speeding road, it would be when you hit an asphalt road.

Every few days, in the courts of the state, you can learn about what happens on these lonely joy rides.

The foolish egotism of the rising generation plunges a great many of them in to jail and later in to hell.

Remember the game law and be wise. Don't even load your gun until November the first.

It has recently been demonstrated that it costs $15 a head to kill squirrels before November 1.

The person who is only loyal to his party when he can suck a tit and die tate all policies adopted by the party is a heavy liability.

The North wants to get relieved of the negro. All right. Send him back South and we will take care of him like we always have.

It looks like the office of Governor in Alabama is the cemetery where politicians are buried. Their resurrection is very rare.

According to the way David Lawrence writes, the South is the only part of the country that will go democratic this year.

We run an ad in the News to sell a cut down Ford. In two days we had 16 applicants for it. We can't figure out why one of those depraved looking things would sell at all.

There are about seven gubernatorial stars rising above the political horizon in Alabama this time. Six of them are bound to set in gloom for only one can shine permanently.

We have no bloated millionaires in Clanton, but no town on earth can beat this one in raising money in a good cause right now, and then never hearing one word said about it.

Some people grow up so absolutely unlovable that we can hardly see how it would be possible to always obey the command to "love your neighbor."

We are told that only the closed car is admissible in the joy riding fraternity since cold weather came. Closed cars and gasoline heaters make midnight parkings a happy dream.

Silent Cal seems to have an eye for the cash. When he was vice president he charged the Budget, Com. Legion $250 and expenses to run over and make them a speech.

There are no better people living anywhere than in Chilton county. Let's quit our foolish political rowing and let the outside world learn the truth.

The public treasury was never intended to be a place where a few "ward heelers" and political bootlickers could draw salaries without service. It was not established as a pay office for political favorites.

The people have the same right and the same reason for demanding honesty, faithfulness and efficiency in their employees as the large corporations do. No one can hold any private job long if he don't prove up his loyalty by his service.

Davis and Al Smith claim New York. So do Coolidge and Dawes. So do La Follette and Wheeler. No matter who gets New York we hope it will be on the losing side. This country should learn to do without New York politically.

Wages used to be one dollar per day and less. Meat sold at 6 cents and flour at 65 cents per sack. Sugar was 5 cents and meal 40 cents per bushel. Jobs were scarce and hard to get. Still, people lived and wore good clothes and were much more contented and happy than now.

Otto Miller, Rucker Sims, Raymond Roberts and Joseph Hester enjoyed Saturday and Sunday with home people here. These four young men have embarked on an educational career and are now students in Alabama's great college at Auburn.

CAN PROHIBITION LAW BE ENFORCED?

Question will be Debated at Clanton Baptist Church Friday night at 7:30 O'clock.

Can the prohibition law be enforced? Advocates of prohibition say it can be and is being enforced. Wet declare it cannot be enforced. This question is clearly discussed in the dramatic debate on the subject which

JOHN W. LANGLEY
John W. Langley and Paul P. Kelsner are putting on in a number of cities in Alabama.

This is called a dramatic debate and it really is dramatic. Mr. Langley as the good citizen boils over with wrath in discussing with Mr. Kelsner, as county attorney, the failure of that official to close up certain places known to be violating the law.

Mr. Kelsner, as county attorney, points out that the real trouble is not with the officials, but with the citizens, and then, after discussing the issue back and forth, rather heatedly, they both find that both are right and both are wrong, and end up with each accepting his responsibility and an agreement to see that the law is enforced.

During the debate, which lasts 48 minutes, there are many facts and statistics brought out in an interesting way, such a lot of them, indeed, that the debate is worth attending just for these. But it's entertaining, too, with a bit of humor now and then, and is the equal of the best Chautauqua attraction.

These debates are free to all and both men and women are invited. The debate will be conducted in the Baptist church at Clanton, Friday evening, October 31, at 7:30. Rev. S. J. Ezell, pastor of the church, is in charge of local arrangements, with the co-operation of Rev. C. C. Wilkerson, pastor of the Methodist church.

NOTICE OF PARDON.

DR. GARDNER WRITES

Below we give place, with pleasure, to the following letter written by Dr. David M. Gardner, of Ensley, the eminent minister who did the preaching at the recent Baptist revival.

Dr. Gardner is a wonderful preacher, and won the friendship of this entire community during his ten day sojourn with us. In the pulpit he is eloquent and sincere on the streets he is affable and the ready friend of high and low. To know him is to admire and love him. Our very best wishes will always follow him and his.

I THANK YOU

Never in my life have I enjoyed a short stay in a fair little city more than the ten days spent in Clanton. I greatly appreciate the hospitality of the members of the Clanton Baptist church and of the citizenship of Clanton.

The offering, was all and more than I expected. The church was liberal in entertainment and remuneration.

K. K. K. OFFERING

Members of the K. K. K. of Clanton quietly presented me with six new ten dollar bills as a token of their appreciation of the good the meeting did in the community. I would be an ingrate not to appreciate such kindness and to fail to express such appreciation.

May the Blessings of Heaven rest and abide upon you all.

Praterfully,

DAVID M. GARDNER,

HIGHWAY BUILDING.

Last Friday, by the courtesy of Contractor Cox, we had the opportunity of seeing the work of highway building from the inside, and we want to say now that our former conception of what it took to really construct a real good road has undergone some wonderful changes.

Went from here to Calera on the new highway that is now under construction and saw the vast amount of work that has already been done in preparing a road bed, 50 feet in width, to receive the real 18 foot finished road. In this part of the work we saw numbers of great cuts "driven straight through the hills and also long "fills" across the valleys and ravines that cost thousands of dollars and a prodigious amount of labor. Then when this grade was completed to specifications, this 50 foot road was dressed down to a perfect surface and rolled with great steam rollers until it is almost as smooth as a floor. We passed over several miles of this unfinished road and the auto riding was perfect.

Then we came to where the concrete is being poured on this surfaced road. Here was another place where money was being poured out like water. The great mixer and the other necessary machinery and trucks in operation there represent an investment of at least $50,000. This vast business was moving like clock work, requiring over 150 men in the operation.

Next we came to the Shelby county project where the surface is being finished in asphalt. Here was where we received another big jolt. Besides the steam rollers required in putting out the asphalt, and the large number of trucks used in transporting it, at Calera they have an immense steam plant, representing at least $50,000 where they mix up this preparation, boiling hot and where a government man stays and tests out, with a gauge for the purpose, every truck load that starts for the road. They have another of these mixing plants at Pelham, and another complete crew up there that is also putting down this finishing surface.

More than $100,000 is represented in the machinery, motive power, pipe lines etc. on these two small projects of the B & M highway.

When you go over and take a look at the real situation you will not wonder any more why the department lets out these contracts at such apparently high prices. Your surprise will rather be that they can get this vast amount of most expensive work done even at the price they do.

C. J. Davis of Montgomery, was here Sunday. He will be remembered as the one who used to run the Clanton Press in the gone by days.

"After Them The Deluge"

How to meet the ever-increasing cost of operating our Government is a problem which confronts the American people today. Taxes "pay the piper"—from the smallest hamlet to the Nation as a whole—public expenses and salaries come from revenues derived from taxation.

When you hear a campaign orator advocating "Government Ownership" of the great transportation lines—stop and think what such a condition would bring about. Where will the Government get the million dollars a day that it is now receiving in taxes from the railroads? (Total taxes paid by railroads in United States approximates $85 million dollars a year.)

To bring the matter closer home, where will the various city, county, state, and National authorities get the Eighty Million Dollars a year that is now being paid in taxes by the railroads? (Total taxes paid by railroads in United States approximates $85 million dollars a year.)

There is but one answer—these taxes must be placed as an added burden on the farmer, the business man, the merchant, the professional man and all other American citizens.

Do you, people of the South, who are now receiving under private management unsurpassed railway service, believe that the questionable benefits of Government Ownership would justify you in assuming an additional burden of not less than $80,000,000 per year for the rest of your day?

Blue Ribbon Pressing Shop

Has installed a New Steam Pressing outfit. It is an expensive and modern machine. We are better prepared now to do Dry Cleaning and Pressing than ever before.

We dry clean suits without leaving the odor of gas in the garment.

In order to give the people of the town and county a chance to see and to benefit by having their clothes pressed at a very low price, we will press by the month for $1.75. Press Suits for 40c Dry Cleaning Suits, 65c. We positively do not leave any odor from the gas in the garments.

We call for and deliver in any part of town.

All mail orders gotten out the same day if possible. For the first days I am going to press 1 suit free where a man, or woman or boy brings me two suits at one time.

Personals

Mr. Andrew Bailey, of Rockford, was here Sunday.

Mr. J. Bice, of Thorsby, was a visitor to Clanton Friday.

Mr. J. A. Noah, of Leeds, was here Monday looking after tax matters in Chilton.

Mr. Harold Marlar is back from an extended trip through the far west and northwest.

Mr. W. A. Barnett, of Jemison, was in Clanton last Saturday looking after business matters.

Eudah Curlee spent Saturday and Sunday here with friends and relatives. He is now teaching in the Accredited High School in Jemison.

Cecil Armstrong, of Birmingham, was here Sunday. Cecil is an old Chilton boy who rendered his country service on the other side of the Atlantic during the World War.

Mr. W. B. McCain, one of the foremost business men and capitalists of Coosa County, was here Saturday looking after his large business interests in this county.

Mr. A. H. Steele, father of our Dr. Steele, was over to visit his son and family a few days this week. He is just convalescing from quite a serious attack of malarial fever.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Merchant and their son, Jim, spent Sunday as the guests of his son, Donald Merchant who married one of Clanton's nice young ladies not many months ago. Miss Annie Kemp.

Former Deputy Sheriff Ed Smith, of Maplesville, is about through mending his crop and is by no means mended up, but looks as handsome as did many years ago.

Rev. T. J. Deacon, route 3, filled his regular appointment last Sunday at the Clanton church on the line between Moore and Chilton counties. Rev. Deacon is one of the ministers who will be grounded in the faith and you can always count on him being for right.

Mr. E. H. Lowe has just returned from the Old Harp and Harmony singing in Jefferson county. He is authority for the statement that while some people think the old time music is a thing of the past that eternity will not blot it out. Also he seems to think that the prettiest widows on earth attend these singings.

Mr. Ed Smithman, of Maplesville, was here Monday. He stated that many people over the county had taken an erroneous idea in regard to being the Ed Smithman who was seriously hurt in beat 15 not many days ago. He is very much on his feet while the other Ed Smithman is in the Central Alabama Hospital undergoing treatment.

Mr. J. H. Guldade, of Verbena, passed through Clanton the early part of the week en route to Birmingham. Guldade is one of the best business men in Chilton county. He has lately made himself felt in Chilton in his firm stand for the right on public questions and we venture the opinion he will be heard from again as the time passes on.

Miss Mary Kennedy, of Wetumpka, was here Sunday visiting her parents, and Mrs. W. H. Kennedy. Miss Kennedy is a former graduate of the Georgia Institute of Technology and is now engaged in stenographic work. During her school career, both junior grade and high school, Miss Kennedy made an enviable record.

Prayer meeting meets each Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Hotel. Come and bring some with you.

MRS. LULA DUDLEY.

GOING TO EXTREMES

A great deal of complaint is going up all over the country now in regard to the class of pictures being put on at the movies.

A great many towns and cities, like Birmingham for instance, have taken steps to curb this most reprehensible habit, and have passed a law requiring all pictures exhibited in their limits, to be censored by a clean and competent censor before they can be put on the screen.

This is a most wise measure and should be adopted by all towns, Clanton not excepted.

One result of this restrictive legislation is, that the pictures so immoral and indecent that the censors will not permit their exhibition, are rushed forward at once in to unprotected towns and blazoned on the screens before a lot of children, girls and boys to blacken their minds and fill their hearts full of corrupt ideas of life that are degrading in every sense of the word.

Nude and half clothed female forms are depicted. All manner of vulgar and voluptuous situations are shown. Gun men and robbers are made heroes of, and every conceivable form of vulgarity, lewdness, and wickedness, is displayed before an audience of young, impressionable minds that absorb it all like a sponge and begin building castles for themselves along the vicious lines shown on the screen.

Many of these show places are so brazen that one often sees pictures posted at the front so inexpressibly vulgar and suggestive that chaste womanhood is shocked by the sight.

The Chilton County News is making no fight on any individual, but we are condemning these obscene exhibitions, no matter who puts them on. They debauch our young folks. They are an insult to a decent community and a direct reflection on the supposed morals of any people where they are shown.

Pictures carrying moral chaste and educational ideas are a good thing for a community, but the other kind should be rigidly censored everywhere and driven out of business.

8,500 ALABAMIANS TO SHARE $200,000 IN STOCK DIVIDENDS

Alabama Power Co. Issues 18th Quarterly Dividend Checks on Oct. 1—Increase of $15,000 Over July Dividend.

Approximately 8,500 Alabamians in all sections of the State will share in a dividend of over $200,000 on October 1 when the checks covering the eighteenth quarterly dividend on Alabama Power Company preferred stock will be distributed, according to Thomas W. Martin, president of Alabama Power Company.

Mr. Martin stated that this dividend will exceed the one of July 1 by $15,000, owing to a large increase of stockholders during the past three months. He pointed out that Alabama Power Company preferred is now possibly the most widely owned security in the State and expressed gratification at the confidence of Alabamians in his Company as manifested by their constantly increasing investments in its securities.

Customer ownership has become one of the most important features of electric light and power management during the past few years. It originated comparatively recently in California where it proved so successful that it spread throughout the country. The Alabama Power Company entered the customer ownership field in June, 1930, when it created an investment department under the management of Thomas Bragg, which has had full charge of the sale of preferred stock. The immediate and continued success of this department is considered one of the marvels of the public utility world and the Alabama Power Company is said to lead all utilities in the country in amount of stock sold in proportion to the population served.

A REASONABLE CONCLUSION

There is a certain residence in town that is undergoing some thorough and extensive renovations, and repairs now, at the order of, and under the direction of, a very popular and prominent young man.

Considering all of the circumstances, we believe we can almost hear the jingle of wedding bells as the carpenters, masons and painters rush forward with this job.

A PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR

WHEREAS, The Legislature of Alabama, at a session held in 1923, has ordered an election by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which is herein set forth, to be held at the general election in November, 1934; and

WHEREAS, Notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment is required by law to be given by proclamation of the Governor; NOW THEREFORE, I, William W. Brandon, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that at the general election in November, 1934, an election will be held for the vote of the qualified electors of the State of Alabama, in the manner, form and places required by law, upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, viz:

"Town Creek School District No. 59, Lauderdale County, School District No. 23 and Moulton School District No. 28 in Lawrence County, Alabama, shall each have the right and power by vote of a majority of the qualified electors of such district at an election held for that purpose to levy and collect for the purpose of acquiring, constructing or repairing of school buildings in such districts or paying for school buildings already built, a tax of not over five mills in any one year in addition to all other taxes now authorized by law. The election in such district to determine whether or not such tax shall be levied shall be called, held and conducted as now provided by law for calling, holding and conducting of elections to determine whether or not a three-mill district school tax shall be levied and collected."

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the state to be affixed at the Capitol, in the City of Montgomery, on this, the 8th day of August, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-four.

"The municipalities of Thorsby, Piedmont and Greenville, and Roanoke and Greensboro and Ocala, Florida and Opa, Evergreen and Payette, and Clayton and Chlo in the State of Alabama, shall have the power and right to levy and collect a tax of one-half of one per centum in any one year on property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation for the tax year ending on the 30th day of September next succeeding the levy; provided, that for the purpose of paying bonds or indebtedness issued and outstanding at the time of the adoption of this amendment and the interest thereon, and for the purpose of paying bonds or indebtedness which may be issued or incurred after the adoption of this amendment and the interest thereon, an additional tax of one-half of one per centum may be levied and collected by said corporations; provided further, that a majority of the qualified electors of any of said municipal corporations voting at an election called for that purpose may vote a special tax not to exceed one-half of one per centum in any one year for any special purpose or purposes, which tax shall be used only for the purpose or purposes for which same is levied and collected; provided, however, that no such tax shall be levied by any of said municipal corporations shall not exceed one and one-half (1 1/2) per centum in any one year. Alabama City shall have the power and right to levy and collect a tax of three-quarters of one per centum in any one year on property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation. Provided, further, that the adoption of this amendment shall in no wise affect, limit, modify, abridge or impair the power, authority or right of either of said municipal corporations to levy and collect the special school tax for school and school purposes vested in and conferred upon said City of Selma by the amendment to the Constitution of Alabama adopted thereto at the general election held in November, 1916, and which was submitted under law Number 315, General Laws 1915, page 337, each election held under the provisions hereof shall be ordered, held, canvassed and may be contested in the same manner as is or may be provided by the law applicable to the municipal corporations for elections to authorize the issuance of municipal bonds. The vote used at such election shall contain the words:

"For _____ excess rate of taxation for the year (or years) _____" and "Against _____ excess rate of taxation for the year (or years) _____". The rate of taxation proposed in excess of the rate of one (1) per centum to be shown in the blank space provided therefor and the year or years in which the proposed rate is to apply, shall be shown in the blank space provided therefor, and in the event different excess rates are proposed for different years the words mentioned shall be repeated as often as may be necessary to show separately the different rates proposed to be applied to the respective years. And the voter shall record his choice, whether for or against the excess rate or rates shown by placing a cross mark before or after the words expressing his choice. Nothing herein contained shall in any wise change or affect the rights of any holder of bonds or municipal corporations heretofore issued. Elections to authorize the levy of such special tax may be held as often as ordered by the governing body of the municipality but when a proposition is submitted to the electors to levy a special tax for a special purpose, and such proposition is defeated no second election for the same shall be held in one year thereafter."

HEFLIN'S WORK IN CAMPAIGN GIVEN VERY HIGH PRAISE

High tribute to the campaign work of Senator Heflin was paid today by Senator Swanson, of Virginia, chairman of the speakers' bureau of the democratic national committee. In a statement Senator Swanson said:

"Senator J. Thomas Heflin has just returned from a most wonderful campaign trip, commencing in Tennessee, Kentucky, Missouri, Maryland, and going as far west as Cheyenne, Wyoming. He has spoken on an average of twice a day, and made a most remarkable impression wherever he has gone.

"There have been insistent demands that he be returned to places where he has spoken. As soon as he returned here he commenced speaking in Maryland and will leave to-morrow to fill engagements in Kentucky and Tennessee.

"Senator Heflin is one of the most effective speakers in the campaign and the party owes him a great debt of gratitude for the splendid work he has done for the party and its nominees."

STATE CONFEDERATE REUNION

Judge J. W. E. Gullledge, one of those grand old heroes who fought for the South, will be the guest of honor at the reunion, to be held hearty and full of pep yet. On last Tuesday morning he boarded a south bound train enroute to the State Confederate Reunion, Mobile.

He made the trip all right and returned home Saturday morning, fresh and able to make a dozen more trips like that.

He reports one of the most delightful trips of his life and is kind and strenuous in his praise of Mobile and its splendid citizens. They did everything possible for the comfort and pleasure of the "old boys" and everything was free as the air to any of the veterans who came along.

The judge is especially enthusiastic over the service at the famous Battle House cafe, where he took his meals. He says the pretty girls who served at that place were so kind and thoughtful for the veterans that they made a mash on the whole lunch.

Another most pleasant feature of the entertainment was a trip on the bay in one of those large excursion steamers. It was a most delightful experience to all of these old gentlemen whose memories go back to Mobile in other days when sail boats and blue uniforms were more in evidence than palatial steamers.

He met some former Chiltonians down there, among them, the former Miss Sallie Mullins and daughter, Mrs. Armstrong, daughter of Carpenter Jackson and Miss Mamie Reed. All of these old time Chilton folks seemed to be happy and doing well.

He says the lid is on pretty tight in Mobile, but there was no sign of higher spirit the last night and there only a very little seemed to have leaked out.

The State Reunion will be held in Tuscaloosa next year.

Judge Gullledge says he is going to the National reunion, at Dallas Texas and see if they can equal Mobile in entertainment.

He is over the moon with praise for everything and everyone in Mobile.

James Welch, of Clanton, was chance visitor last Sunday.

Health Much Better After Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Detroit, Michigan.—"Your little book left at my door was my best doctor. I read it, then said to my husband, 'Please go and get me some Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I want to take it.' The first month I took three bottles of Vegetable Compound and one of Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine, and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sana-tive Wash. If you only knew how much better I feel! Now when my friends say they are sick I tell them to take Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine. I give the little book and your medicines the best of thanks."—Mrs. HAMBRUN, 3785 25th Street, Detroit, Michigan.

In newspapers and booklets we are constantly publishing letters from women, who explain how they were helped by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

These letters should guide you. If you are troubled with pains and nervousness, or any feminine disorder, bear in mind that the Vegetable Compound has helped other women and should help you. For sale by druggists everywhere.

ALABAMA NEWS HAPPENINGS

A Resume of the More Important Events of Interest Condensed. To An Enlarged Form.

The State Department of Archives and History is co-operating with citizens of Leighton, Colbert County, in plans for tableaux to be presented on the occasion of the celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the founding of the town. The date of the celebration has been fixed for November 11. The first railroad west of the Alleghenians was built in Colbert County, according to information from the Department of Archives and History. Like a number of other early railroads, it was a horse-drawn affair. As part of the anniversary celebration citizens of Leighton plan to present an exhibit reproducing the first method of rail locomotion to be used in the county.

The Sloss-Sheffield Steel and Iron Company won an unexpected verdict in Judge Roger Snyder's court, in Birmingham. The company was defendant in a suit filed by W. S. Allen to recover alleged commissions. After hearing the evidence for several hours and after two hours' deliberation, the jury returned a verdict as follows: "We find for the defendant and assess the damages at $100." Under this verdict, Allen, the claimant, would have had to pay the Sloss-Sheffield Company $100, so the case was immediately declared a mistrial by Judge Snyder. Afterward, one of the jurors remarked that the jury had made a "slight mistake."

The Chalybeat District School will run seven months this term instead of five; as heretofore, because of co-operation of nine of the patrons. A common plot of ground was donated at the first of the term and proceeds of the common labor of the men will go to lengthen the school term. An acre of cotton each has also been donated by the nine, who are R. L. Clark and J. L. Anderson, trustees; B. J. Mahela, J. W. Cole, L. S. Thrasher, Ray Morris, Hubbard Morris, T. R. Smith and Henry Bobo.

Hearing of the petition of citizens of Greenville, Ala., seeking to require the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company to have its through, fast passenger trains take-on and let-off passengers at Greenville, has been postponed from October 23, to October 31, according to announcement by the Alabama Public Service Commission. The hearing will take place in Greenville. A total of $99,335.13 has been spent for education in Bessemer in the past three years, according to a statement made by Dr. L. L. Vann.

The Tennessee Valley Laboratory is soon to start an experiment which is calculated to speed up the service of the bureau by some 12 to 14 hours. It is announced by Dr. A. J. Perollo, director. Mr. Perollo states that permission has been given by Dr. L. C. Havens, State Director, to put into operation at one or more points, substations of the Alabama-Declar Laboratory.

Mrs. Carol Long, prominent club woman, has been appointed by Peter Brannon, of Montgomery, chairman to arrange for a celebration in Selma, in honor of the one hundredth anniversary of the coming of LaFayette to Alabama. Mrs. Long is already planning for the celebration, which will be held in Selma from the 1st to the 15th of April.

The Baldwin County Kiwanians are continuing the campaign for $30,000 for the Daphne State Normal School. Concerts are being given throughout the county by local artists and other entertainments are being held to raise money. The county must raise $20,000 for the school to get $30,000 appropriated by the State.

Major General Mitchell B. Houston, of Montgomery, was re-elected State Commander and Tuscaloosa was chosen for the next reunion by the Alabama Division in reunion at Mobile. Captain Paul Sanguinetti, of Montgomery, was renamed State Adjutant.

At a meeting of the poultry raisers of Walker County the following officers were elected: E. B. Black, Jasper, president; W. B. Christopher, Cordova, general supervisor; and V. H. Tubbs, treasurer.

The new jail at Centre, for Cherokee County, will soon be completed. This building is of brick and reinforced concrete, and is said to be modern to the last detail.

It is reported that 125 members of the Illinois Manufacturers Association will visit Meadco Shoals November 19.

A party of prominent health officials spent two days in Alabama last week inspecting the public health work of the State. The party comprised Professor Emil Brumpt, Professor of Parasitology of the University of Paris; Professor Thovald Madsen, president of a committee of the League of Nations and director of the State Serum Institute at Copenhagen, Denmark; Dr. George Vincent, president of the board of trustees of the Rockefeller Foundation, and Colonel F. F. Russell, of the International Health Board.

James Mallory, of Anniston, who graduated from Howard College last year, and two of his classmates, James Jarrell, of Lineville, and Erskine M. Braswell, of Demopolis, are en route to New York in a worn "Tin Lizzie." From the metropolis they expect to cross the Atlantic for a tour of England, France, Belgium and other countries.

Agnes Jewel Hardenman, nine, was suffocated to death, while playing in a pile of cotton on the front porch of her home at Gadsden. The child had burrowed deep in the cotton, which caved in. Her mother, returning from the cotton fields, found the girl buried head foremost in the cotton, her life smothered out.

A murder charge has been placed against Riley Cheatum, negro, following the drowning of four negroes in the Tennessee River. Cheatum and another negro, George King, had an altercation in a small boat in which they and six other negroes were riding. The boat overturned and four of the negroes drowned.

Permitting residents of Haleyville to amend their petition asking that the Northern Alabama Railway Company be required to provide them adequate freight and passenger depot facilities, the Public Service Commission set November 3 for taking further testimony in the case. The hearing will be held in Montgomery.

R. W. Barker, graduate of the Mississippi A. and M. College, has arrived in Gadsden to take charge of the dairy being built by Hugh Agricola. The plant is to be one of the finest in the South. The equipment will cost in the neighborhood of forty-five thousand dollars. All machinery will be electrically driven.

An active campaign for beautification of highways through planting of trees, shrubs and flowers is being carried on by the Alabama Federation of Women's Clubs. It is recalled that California's beautiful highways were made so largely through the efforts of the women of the State, and it is hoped to accomplish a similar result in Alabama.

John F. Williams, of Anniston, has been appointed tax assessor of Calhoun County by the Governor, to fill the vacancy caused by former Tax Assessor C. W. Whiteside's failure to make bond in the required time, after a bonding company had filed a petition in court asking to be released.

A score or more farmers and several well known farm experts were guests of the Morgan Kiwanis Club at its regular weekly meeting. Problems of the farm were discussed by several speakers and the co-operation of the club in the farm development was considered.

Thomas D. Garner, secretary of the University Alumni Society, has completed preparations for the entertainment of alumni that will assemble at the University on Home Coming Day, Nov. 8.

A second crop of grapes on vines at the farm of J. A. Forman, Morgan County legislator, has made its appearance. The Fall was assigned as the cause for the unusual growth.

The syndical committee as a whole has rejected Talladega's proposition for converting the school building on the Highlands into a hospital as was submitted to a sub-committee which visited Talladega.

Famous Forts in U. S. History

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

(By 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

Christopher Greene Here Won Fame

"The post with which you are entrusted is of utmost importance to America. The whole defense of the Delaware depends upon it; and consequently all the enemy's hopes of keeping Philadelphia and finally succeeding in the present campaign." So wrote George Washington to Col. Christopher Greene, a brave officer who had fought under Arnold and Montgomery at Quebec and who was now in this critical year of 1777 given command of Fort Mercer at Red Bank on the New Jersey shore of the Delaware River. Fort Mifflin and Fort Mercer, named for Gen. Hugh Mercer, were two threats against Philadelphia. Lord Howe had occupied that city and Greene was given 400 Rhode Island Continentals to hold the post.

Greene immediately began putting the fort into condition, a work which he was greatly aided by Capt. Manduit Duplessis, a young French engineer who had enlisted in the patriot cause. Before the repairs were completed, however, a force of 1,200 Hessian grenadiers, led by the famous Count Donop, appeared and demanded its surrender. Greene scornfully replied that he would defend his post to the last and refused to be frightened when Donop declared that no quarter would be given if he was forced to take Fort Mercer by storm.

So the Hessians, covered by a heavy artillery fire, advanced in two columns to attack the outworks of the fort. After pouring in a galling fire, Greene's Rhode Islanders retired to the main works where they concealed themselves to give the attackers the idea that the post was poorly garrisoned. When the enemy poured through a breach which they had made in the north embankment, they gave a shout of triumph as though the victory was already won.

Just at that moment a concealed battery was unmasked and accompanied by a heavy musketry fire it poured out a blast of death upon the Hessians. The attackers reeled back. On the south side of the fort Count Donop, leading his men in person, went down mortally wounded. His second in command was also stricken, and although the next in command tried hard to lead his men on, the stubborn resistance of the Rhode Islanders and their destructive fire had broken the spirit of the Hessians who retreated precipitately.

In this brief battle the enemy lost more than 400 men. The American loss was only eight killed and twenty-nine wounded! This brilliant defense brought a thrill of hope to the country in one of the darkest days of the Revolution and congress recognized the achievement of Colonel Greene by passing him a vote of thanks and presenting him a sword as a testimonial of distinguished merit.

The Green Mountain Boys and "Old Ti"

Although an accident of geography placed Ticonderoga upon the soil of New York, Vermont, through the deeds of her "Green Mountain Boys" has an equal claim with her neighbor upon its stirring history. There, John Stark, a colonial captain fighting with the British against the French, showed the military qualities which later made him the hero of Bennington. There, too, Robert Rogers from the New Hampshire Grants (the land which later became Vermont) had many a hairbreadth escape in the savage warfare which he, and his daring Rangers carried on against the French and their red allies.

But it was at the outbreak of the Revolution that Vermont came in with her strongest claim to Ticonderoga as a part of her history. There at the dawn of May 10, 1775, Ethan Allen and his "Green Mountain Boys" won their deathless fame when they took possession of the old French fort "in the name of Jehovah and the Continental Congress!" But if Ticonderoga was the scene of a Vermont triumph, it must also be recorded that it came very near being the scene of a great disgrace for the fort that the traitorous negotiations between the British and some of her leaders, dissatisfied because of unwarranted honors, were carried on and they, and through them, Vermont, narrowly escaped the shame which sullied the fame of Conway and Charles Lee, and engulfed Benedict Arnold.

The complete history of Ticonderoga would fill volumes. It begins away back in 1699 with Samuel Champlain, who fought the Ironclad, a narrow cape in Lake Champlain, called "Champlain's" or "Ticonderoga" between two lakes, and for the next 150 years this spot was the scene of battles. In 1755 the French began building a fort on this promontory, and named it Fort Vaudreuil, in honor of the governor of Canada. It was later called Fort Carillon, but it is best known as Fort Ticonderoga, or "Old Ti."

After the Revolution Ticonderoga fell into decay, but through the patriotic efforts of the Peil family, which, in 1813, obtained title to the land upon which the fort stood, it has been partly restored and today it is visited by thousands as one of our most interesting historic shrines.

When You Catch Cold Rub on Musterole

Musterole is easy to apply and it gets in its good work right away. Often it prevents a cold from turning into "flu" or pneumonia. Just apply Musterole with the fingers. It does all the good work of grandmothers' mustard plaster without the blister.

Musterole is a clean, white ointment, made of oil of mustard and other home simples. It is recommended by many doctors and nurses. Try Musterole for sore throat, cold on the chest, rheumatism, lumbago, pleurisy, stiff neck, bronchitis, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pains and aches of the back and joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frost-bite—colds of all sorts.

To Mothers: Musterole is now made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole. 35c and 65c jars and tubes; hospital size, $3.00.

CENTER POINT COLORED TRAINING SCHOOL

Not many people have the right conception of what our local colored people are doing in an educational way. Out at Center Point, some 5 miles west of Clanton, they went to work a short while ago to raise funds sufficient to build them a real vocational Training School.

Today they have a large modern and well constructed building out there that is a real credit to the county and are doing a work for their race that should have the hearty aid and endorsement of every citizen in this section.

They not only educate the mind out there in a very thorough manner they are also giving actual courses of training in the different mechanical arts, as well as in farming, housework etc. This is the kind of an education that pays in dollars and cents.

There is one interesting feature about this school that is worth mentioning. They have the first truck in Alabama, or in the United States that is engaged in hauling colored pupils to and from the school. That is a record at least.

On last Sunday they inaugurated a grand educational rally and put on a program that was a credit to them all. In the afternoon a large number of white citizens attended the exercises. Dr. Ezell, pastor of the Baptist church here was present and delivered an excellent and inspiring address on the subject: "True education as a factor in true progress." The Doctor was evidently in the spirit of the occasion and gave them a talk that should bear good fruit in the years to come. I. B. Bryant is the Principal of this wonderful new departure in the colored educational field and has his full soul and energy behind the school. He has eight assistants to do their full best in the great work. They raised $77.00 Sunday in a campaign they have on for adding some needed additional buildings to enable them to broaden out in their domestic training. We wish them every success.

FOOTBALL FOOTBALL

Chilton Hi vs. Bibb Hi. Have Never Scored on Each Other in Several Former Games

All you lovers of football will have an opportunity Friday next to see a game that will put the thrills in motion. The famous hard smashers of the Bibb county High School are coming over determined to fasten the Chilton Hi scalp to their belt that day.

In former years these teams have met several times, but they have always been so evenly matched that they will break up this record this year by sending the opposing eleven home with a bucket full of goose eggs. The game will be called at Polk's Park promptly at 3 o'clock on next Friday October 31. Don't forget it. If you do the Halloween ghosts will sure get you that night.

BAPTIZING SUNDAY NIGHT

At the first Baptist church last Sunday night, Dr. Ezell, the pastor, baptized 24 candidates. It took him only 16 minutes to complete the service. Last year he baptized 50 in 32 minutes, so, you see, even the ordinance by immersion is not a very long drawn out process.

A PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR

WHEREAS, the Legislature of Alabama, at a session held in 1922, has ordered an election by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which is herein set forth, to be held at the general election in November, 1924, and WHEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment, is required by law to be given by proclamation of the Governor:

NOW, THEREFORE, I, William W. Brandon, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that at the general election in November, 1924, an election will be held for the vote of the qualified electors of the State of Alabama, in the manner, form and places required by law upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, viz: "Proposed Amendment No. 290. Mobile County may become indebted and may issue bonds for the construction of impractical or concrete or better than concrete surfaced public roads, and concrete or better than concrete public bridges in said county, and for the construction of bridges, and road-roads for vehicular travel, between the highlands of Mobile and Baldwin Counties, in an amount not to exceed six and one-half per centum of the assessed value of the property situated in Mobile County. To pay said indebtedness and the interest thereon, Mobile County may levy and collect an annual tax on said property not to exceed one-half of one per centum of said value. The indebtedness, the bonds and the tax so authorized hereby shall be in addition to those authorized by the Constitution of Alabama prior to the adoption of this amendment. But no such additional indebtedness shall be created, and no such additional tax shall be levied, until such improvement or construction proposed to be built thereby, its approximate location, estimated cost and time of completion, and the amount of the proposed increase, shall have been determined upon and made public by the Board of Revenue and Road Commissioners of Mobile County, and the proposed increase of indebtedness or issue of bonds or tax therefor shall have been first authorized by a majority vote by ballot of the qualified voters of Mobile County voting upon such proposition."

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the State to be affixed at the Capitol, in the City of Montgomery, on this, the 8th day of August, One Thousand Nine Hundred and Twenty-Four.
(Seal) WM. W. BRANDON,
By the Governor:
S. H. BLAN,
Secretary of State.

A PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR

WHEREAS, the Legislature of Alabama, at a session held in 1922, has ordered an election by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which is herein set forth, to be held at the general election in November, 1924, and WHEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment, is required by law to be given by proclamation of the Governor:

NOW, THEREFORE, I, William W. Brandon, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that at the general election in November, 1924, an election will be held for the vote of the qualified electors of the State of Alabama, and in the manner, form and places required by law, upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, viz: "Article - Section 1. The County of Walker, State of Alabama, shall have power to levy and collect a special county road tax not exceeding fifty cents on each one hundred dollars worth of taxable property in such county in addition to that now authorized or that may hereafter be authorized for public road purposes, provided, that of such tax, the time it is to continue and the purpose thereof shall have been first submitted to the vote of the qualified electors of the county, and voted for by a majority of those voting at such election. Section 2. Twenty-five per centum of all moneys derived from property lying within municipalities and arising from the tax proposed herein, shall be paid to such municipality and shall, by it, be expended for upkeep of its streets. Section 3. The Court of County Commissioners, board of revenue, or other governing body of said county, may, or upon written petition of ten per centum of the qualified voters of Walker County, shall call and submit said election provided for and authorized by section one hereof to the qualified electors of Walker County either at the time of the general election or at a special election called for that purpose; provided, that said election shall be called and held in accordance with the law now or that may be enacted governing county bond elections, and in conformity with the general election laws of the State."

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the State to be affixed at the Capitol, in the City of Montgomery, on this, the 8th day of August, One Thousand Nine Hundred and Twenty-Four.
(Seal) WM. W. BRANDON,
By the Governor:
S. H. BLAN,
Secretary of State.

BEFORE TWINS WERE BORN

Was Very Miserable. Felt Lots Better After Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Wyoena, Wisconsin.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before my twins were born because my sister recommended it to me. I was so I could scarcely go about my daily work I was in such misery. But after I began taking the second bottle I was feeling lots better. I took three bottles and a half before I was confined and finished the bottle while I was in bed. I got up feeling fine and have taken care of the twins alone ever since. I recommend the Vegetable Compound highly and will sing its praises in the future."

—Mrs. Ida GERTZ, Wyoena, Wis. It is remarkable how many cases have been reported similar to this one. Many mothers are left in a weakened and run-down condition after child-birth, and for such mothers the care of the baby is well-nigh impossible. Not only is it hard for the mother, but the child itself will indirectly suffer.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an excellent tonic for the mother both before and after child-birth. It is prepared from medicinal roots and herbs, and does not contain any harmful drugs. It can be taken in safety by nursing mothers.

ALABAMA NEWS HAPPENINGS

A Resume of the More Important Events of Interest Condensed To An Epitomized Form.

Lou L. Loveman was elected president of the Etowah County Tuberculosis Association. Other officers named were: Vice-president, Mrs. Olin S. Sbert; treasurer, Miss Bessie Hilton; secretary, Mrs. John Jackson; chairman of the Fresh Air Camp Executive Committee, J. W. Penn. Reports showed that patients are being maintained at the camp for an average of $30 a month each and that the camp is now $500 in debt. County Health Officer Murphree exhibited two patients to show types of tuberculosis. Fifteen-year-old Geneva Blackman told how her mother had been cared at the camp and how she hopes to be cured. City and county officials spoke and assured a continuance of their support.

Two unknown negroes are charged with robbing William Carden, farmer of Morrisville, as he was returning to his home from Anniston, after having disposed of a bale of cotton. The farmer's throat was slashed with a dull knife, and after $130 in cash had been taken from his pockets the negroes apparently left him for dead. The holdup occurred on a lonely stretch of road some distance from the city. The injured man was found by passersby and medical aid summoned. In a short while he had sufficiently recovered to describe the attack and later joined in the search for his assailants. He says he could identify both negroes.

Several plans for city government are occupying the attention of H. H. Frazier, secretary of the Selma Chamber of Commerce. One is the city manager idea, which plan is used by many progressive towns. Mr. Frazier has received 35 letters from towns governed by this plan which are all in his praise. Mr. Frazier will submit these letters to Mayor Rowell and the City Council at an early date and seek to work out some plan by which the matter may be presented to the people of Selma, if the council favors the plan.

Major General George C. Rickards, chief of the Military Bureau at Washington, has written a letter to Captain W. P. Gwin, of Gadsden, in which he states that the latter's command, the service company of the One Hundred and Sixty-Seventh Regiment, had the best average drill attendance in the Alabama National Guard during 1923-24. The letter congratulates Captain Gwin and his men on the achievement.

Harry Whyel, of Uniontown, Pa., who recently purchased a large lot in the business section of Florence, has asked the Florence Real Estate Board to make a survey of the city to ascertain how large an office building would be required to meet the present and future needs of the city. It is Mr. Whyel's intention, he states, to erect a large and modern office building on his lot which is across from the post office.

At a meeting of the Lauderdale County Board of Education, Professor A. R. Springer was elected Superintendent of Education to fill the vacancy created by the death of E. O. Warren, which occurred a few days ago. His term will expire October 1, 1925. Professor Springer is a native of Lauderdale County, but for several years has been engaged in school work in Tennessee.

Complete data on Birmingham's school system, including names and addresses of teachers and principals, school calendar, school maps, and various committee membership lists, is in the 1924-25 directory, published by the Board of Education and ready for distribution.

The Decatur Cornice and Roofing Company, the second largest industrial concern of the Twin Cities, has started its fabrication plant, following a brief period of inactivity.

The Alabama Fox Hunters' Association is holding its annual meeting at Mobile this week. Prizes totaling $500 will be given the winners in the annual hunt.

T. W. Evans, 46, of Ensley, died suddenly while at work in his store. Death is believed to have been due to a stroke of apoplexy.

A verdict of guilty of murder in the second degree was returned by a jury in the Madison Circuit Court in the case of Charles Byrd, Charles Peyton and Robert Limbaugh, tried jointly for the murder of Erskine Elmore, a farmer from Limestone County. The punishments were fixed as follows: Byrd, 25 years in the penitentiary; Peyton, 15 years and Limbaugh, 10 years. The defense claimed that Elmore and a companion had made themselves obnoxious to girl employees of a soft drink bottling plant and were beaten with no intention of seriously injuring them. Elmore died at the City Hospital of a fractured skull the night after he was injured. The attorneys gave notice of appeal.

Scottsboro is soon to have a new brick business building on the east side of the Public Square. This structure will be the home of The Progressive Age, the local newspaper. The handsome new home of Claude Sprivy, on South Andrews Street, is nearing completion, and J. H. Wheeler is erecting a new home on Willow Street. O. D. Kenner is building a bungalow. Mrs. D. P. Skelton has recently completed an apartment in connection with her home on South Market. R. A. Coffey erected a number of rental houses on Kyle Street and Charlotte Avenue recently.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Ford, who live on Ashville R. F. D. No. 1, were given a surprise party when 66 of their children grandchildren, and great grandchildren drove up and announced that they were going to have a family reunion. The visitors brought baskets along and one of the features of the day was a big dinner spread on the lawn in front of the Ford home.

The Dixie Construction Company engaged in surveying the power line from Coal Valley to Fayette, is now "running the location," and will be camped north of Berry for nearly another month, it is stated. Contracts have been made for the power line to be completed with all the lights installed by the first of July, it is stated by officials of the town.

E. W. Beck, general manager of the West Point Georgia Iron Works, to whom the contract was let for the Selma new $150,000 Y. M. C. A. Building, has reached Selma to begin construction. The work will be put through with all possible speed, Mr. Beck states.

E. T. Terry has resigned as chairman of the Madison County Board of Education, because on November 12, he will assume the chairmanship of the Madison County Board of Commissioners. The vacancy has been filled by the election of W. A. Given, of Gurley.

A petition having for its object the reorganization of the Birmingham and Southeastern Railway Company, now in the hands of receivers, has been filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission, according to notice received by the Alabama Public Service Commission.

A new wing to the Benevolent Hospital at Albany-Decatur, will be erected soon if plans of the Tennessee Valley Shrine Club are executed. The club has named a committee to arrange a financial campaign to supply the money for the new addition.

The negroes stopped the farmer and asked to be given a "lift," he told officers. Soon after they climbed into the wagon one of the negroes seized and held him while the other wielded the knife. The wound is not regarded by physicians as serious.

The Albany-Decatur Grotto Club is preparing for its first ceremonial, to be held in the Twin Cities on December 12, when hundreds of visiting members of Kamran Grotto are expected to attend.

According to the report of W. H. Edwards, official gin reporter, Lee County gained 13,900 bales of cotton of the 1924 crop up to and including October 17, which compares with 10,379 ginned to the same date last year.

The Court of Appeals in a decision on rehearing, affirmed the conviction of U. G. Weidman, Montgomery chiropractor, convicted of practicing without the required license. Weidman was fined $50, the minimum penalty.

The Alabama Water Company will begin laying the new water main at once on Ninth Street, South Albany, and along the Somerville Road. The new main for railroad streets near the Union Depot has been completed.

The work of installing traffic signals on downtown street corners in Mobile, is progressing, forces from the City Police and Fire Alarm Department are working on these improvements.

A Theory That Was Proved

By H. IRVING KING

(Copyright.)

CAROLINE PENDERGAST had a theory and set out to prove it. Her theory was love at first sight. She was a sprightly young lady and was in the habit of falling in love with bewildering versatility. There was young Silas Watson. She was sure she was in love with Silas until she saw him wearing a horrible purple tie. Then there was Raymond Caruthers. Raymond was so perfectly correct in his attire, his manners were so polished, his black eyes so expressive that Caroline, when she was introduced to him, told herself that she had surely contracted a case of love at first sight. But when she knew him better and found out what outrageous grammar he used her love was swept away.

Then came into her ken Thomas Williams, the schoolmaster. He boarded with the Pendergasts. Farmer Pendergast lived near the village and was well to do. But he was a thrifty soul and took occasional boarders. Tom Williams was just out of college and was teaching for a while preparatory to entering the Institute of Technology. He was rather long and gawky and sparing of speech. Caroline looked him over and decided that he would never do at all for a soulmate.

She was a little piqued, however, that Tom paid so little attention to her. He was always polite to her, of course, but there was an aloofness about him which nettled her and she found herself putting forth all the little arts of which she was master to attract the admiration of "pa's boarder." And she succeeded. Tom, in fact, soon found that he was in love with her, but he knew Caroline's reputation for inconsistency in love.

Tom and Caroline, however, as they came to know each other better, became very good friends.

About this time there arrived in the village a young man who seemed to Caroline to be all that she had dreamed of, all that she had been searching for. He was said to be the agent of a big New York firm that intended establishing a summer resort on the shore three miles away. Caroline bore down on the fascinating stranger like a beautiful yacht under full sail and threw out her grapping irons. The young man's name, as he gave it out, was Percival Sommers; which name added just the right touch as a finisher to his perfections.

Soon after Percival's arrival Tom and he met in the village street. Both stopped and stared at each other, saying simultaneously: "You here?"

Percival seemed very much disconcerted at the meeting and said: "You won't give an old college mate away, will you, Tom? I am down here lying perdu for a very bad reason." "Nothing very bad," thought it best to keep out of sight for a while.

"I will not give you away, Ben," replied Tom, "if you believe yourself. But the very first time I see you up to any of your old dodges, or hear of your being, I will denounce you." And he passed on with a scowl on his face.

Ben Ringwood's career at college had been disreputable, and his career after leaving college had been more so. Tom knew all about him. Pretty soon Tom saw that Caroline had become enamored of Ben Ringwood, alias Percival Sommers.

If he told Caroline what he knew about the man she would simply laugh at him and attribute it to jealousy. He resolved to go to Ben and tell him to leave town. "Sure, I'll leave town," said Ben. "I've had all I want of this hole. And, just to show you that I'm still in the ring, I might add that, if I wanted to, I could take along with me that pretty daughter of your landlady old Pendergast." And he handed Tom a letter in which the foolish girl had offered to elope with her Percival making an appointment for that very night in a certain woodland glade. "Be out of this town tomorrow morning," said Tom, and went home.

That night, when Caroline came to the rendezvous, it was not Percival but Tom she found waiting for her. She gave a little scream when she saw him. Tom told her all that he knew about Ben Ringwood and of what had taken place between them that day.

"You are just as horrid as you can be, both of you," sobbed Caroline. "I'll never speak to either of you again," and ran back to the house.

The next morning Ben Ringwood, alias Percival Sommers, was arrested by officers from New York charged with embezzlement. There were other charges—lunacy and a few little things like that. Two days later Caroline, very pale and serious, came to Tom and said: "Tom, I can never thank you enough for saving me from the results of my folly."

"Caroline," said Tom, "do you think you could—er—like me a little?"

She gazed at him silently for a while and then said: "Tom, you are one of the few young men whom I have met that I did not fall in love with at first sight. What I feel for you has been of a steady growth and therefore, I think it must be the real thing."

"And I," he replied, "have loved you since first I saw you."

"Well," said she with a laugh, "so there is such a thing as love at first sight, after all. You have proved my theory, Tom; take me if you will." And then he kissed her.

Loosen Up That Cold With Musterole

Have Musterole handy when a cold starts. It has all of the advantages of grandmother's mustard plaster WITH-OUT the blister. You just apply it with the fingers. First you feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then comes a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief.

Made of pure oil of mustard and other simple ingredients, Musterole is recommended by many nurses and doctors. Try Musterole for bronchitis, sore throat, stiff neck, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, croup, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pains and aches of the back or joints, sore muscles, sprains, bruises, chilblains, frost-bites, colds of the chest. It may prevent pneumonia and "flu."

To Mothers: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

Why America Must Have More Paved Highways

Almost every section of the United States is confronted by a traffic problem.

Month by month this problem is becoming more and more serious.

Hundreds of cars pass a given point every hour on many of our state and county roads. Down-town city streets are jammed with traffic.

Think, too, how narrow many of our roads are, and how comparatively few paved highways there are in proportion to the steadily increasing number of cars.

If the motor vehicle is to continue giving the economic service of which it is capable, we must have more Concrete highways and widen those near large centers of population.

Every citizen should discuss highway needs with his community with his local authorities.

Your highway officials will do their part if given your support.

Why postpone meeting this pressing need?

An early start means early relief.

GONE TO OHIO

Mr. La Fayette Maddox left Sunday morning for about a two weeks stay at a training school of the Chevrolet Motor Company in Ohio.

He has gone to take a special mechanical course in the assembling of Chevrolet cars according to the latest factory information.

He is already a past master as a general all around auto mechanic and when he gets this latest course on the Chevrolet he will be prepared to relieve all of their ailments in short order.

MAPLESVILLE

On last Saturday evening the Maplesville P. T. A. assembled one of the largest crowds that have gathered in our new school building. The occasion was in celebration of Halloween.

The pupils rendered a splendid program, assisted by one of the teachers Miss Maron who gave a delightful reading, "The Cave man," and by Mrs. C. N. Parnell, who in spook's costume, told a ghost story "The Dream Lady," by Annie Collins.

After this, the boxes were sold, bringing the gratifying amount of sixty-five dollars. Active and efficient as auctioneers, were two of our best and efficient visitors, Dr. H. W. Caldwell of the faculty of Isabella High School, and Mr. J. L. Johnson, of Clanton. The latter taught in our midst for six years and a warm place will ever be reserved for him in our heart and home. Dr. Caldwell has charge of the vocational department of the Isabella high school, and his work has become a factor in the progress of that estimable community. We sincerely appreciate the interest that these gentlemen took in our exercise and we thank them for the valuable services that they rendered.

Mr. O. M. Carter with Prof. Matthews of the Chilton County High School of Clanton kindly gave us a demonstration of the radiophone. At first, because of the static condition and owing to the noise in the auditorium, the concert was not plainly audible, but these who remained later were rewarded by hearing the numbers sent out by the distributing station of Sears, Roebuck and Company of Chicago. One of the listeners remarked that this firm had furnished a goodly part of our merchandise and now they would supply our evening entertainment.

Mrs. H. M. Nix donated a beautifully decorated white cake which was raffled off going to the most popular girl. At first, voting was rather listless but later became very spirited when all the votes were cast and the nearly equal contest ended, the cake was awarded to Miss Willie King with Miss Annie Spivey a close second. The cake brought the stupendous amount of $204.67.

Two recitation rooms were fitted up as a mystery room and a crazy room. One of our most attractive features was our fortune teller who did a lucrative business all evening. She delighted and owned by her remarkable predictions.

Delicious sandwiches, hot chocolate and coffee were served, furnishing refreshments to those who could not secure boxes.

The total receipts were $285.00 with expenses negligible and the conclusion of the highly successful entertainment marked the close of one of the most enjoyable evenings in the history of our school.

C. C. H. S. STILL WINNING

On last Friday afternoon the Chilton H. S. Tigers defeated the Bibb county eleven by a one sided score of 45 to 0.

The C. C. H. S. boys have acquired through the efficient training of coach Victor Heard, one of the most perfect forward pass systems of any amateur foot ball team in this vicinity. This was proven last Friday when they so successfully passed the pig skin about, making one touchdown after another, until the score ran up in to the 40's.

This is not the first game that Chilton H. S. has won, neither will it be the last, for they have one of the best teams in the state and their motto is "WIN" and with this slogan, and the determination that exists among them all, they cannot help but pile one victory upon another.

Next week they play the Marion Institute scrubs, one of the best teams of the state. They cordially invite you to come down and witness this classic and see a real foot ball game, played with just as much skill as Alabama, or any other team of professional standing.

SOONER OR LATER THEY GET 'EM

One law enforcement job was pulled off by Sheriff Littlejohn and Law Enforcement Officer Walter Gillispie last Saturday that was of more than the usual interest.

They rounded up and arrested Mr. George Headley and his son Wash, in the actual operation of a 65 gallon copper still up in the northern part of the county.

The older man has been known for a long time by the officers as the "King of the Moonshiners" and many sleepless nights and many vigils have been put up by them in the past in trying to catch him in the act, but he had, heretofore always just left when they got there.

This time they were more fortunate and arrived on the spot just as the succulent juice had begun to flow.

Both father and son snatched up their heavy artillery and made a run for it when they discovered the Sheriff closing in upon them, but Officer Gillispie and Foshee met them as they made the dash and before they knew how it happened they were seeing whole canteenies in the muzzle of two high powered guns that had them covered.

The officers destroyed the still and all of its attending paraphernalia and brought the prisoners with them to the local bastle.

In the moonshining business it may be rather a long lane before it turns, but, sooner or later, there is the jail house and the penitentiary just around the corner.

UNUSUAL AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENTS

Atlanta, Ga.—Mrs. Jane Moore, 38, wife of an instructor at the Georgia Military Academy, was killed here in a combination of automobile accidents said by police to be unequalled in the city's records. Mrs. Moore, seated in her own automobile with her husband, was thrown across the front door of her car by the impact of a roadster which struck her machine. While in this position, her body was struck a second time by another roadster speeding past. Her body, snatched to the fender of the car, flung to the running board, then thrown into a cold ditch several feet away from the scene of the first accident. The record roadster was occupied by a white man and a negro, who later

Do you read the Stock and Bond market reports?

They are a good barometer of business, recording constant fluctuations in business conditions and in the market value of industrial securities.

For many years, public utility corporations have maintained far more consistent earnings than general industries.

There is an essential service, a steady demand which remains unaffected by recurring business depressions.

A REPUBLICAN VICTORY

As all thinking people have known, ever since the New York Convention, the National republican ticket went in with a landslide last Tuesday.

The lamentable spectacle given the public by that convention was enough to cause a feeling of distrust to grow in every voter. Our party never had a chance to win after that. It was hopelessly split then and has gone down in shameless defeat as a result. If it ever gets on its feet again an entire reorganization will be necessary. Whether you believe it or not, just so long as Democracy depends on the New York vote for its success, just so long will it trail in the dust of shameless disaster, because the sentiments that govern that people and the only ideals they have, are the interests of "big business" and the way to boost it and build it up. They are never in favor of any party that is pledged to give the masses a show.

The fundamental principles of the democratic party are based upon the old constitutional rights of the people to govern themselves and nothing like that will ever appeal to the down east money sharks.

Before the democratic party will ever control the destinies of this country, it will be necessary for the South and West to unite their common interests and give a homogenous people the chance of perpetuating in the United States a government of the people.

The great money power of this country is centered at New York and the only party they will ever allow to go over up there is one that they can control absolutely in their own interests.

A reorganization of the democratic party is a necessity now or utter dissolution is at hand.

CHILTON GOES REPUBLICAN

An utter lack of concrete organization, a very complicated ballot to mark and the failure to provide markers at the polling places contributed to the defeat of the Independent ticket in the election Tuesday.

Chilton county still stands alone in her suicidal determination to live separate and apart from all of the material interests that would help her, politically, to move along with the balance of the state towards better times.

We have not been able to get the official returns for the county, but it is safe to say that it went republican with about its usual majority.

The independent ticket did not have proper representation at many of the polling places and lost many votes by not knowing how to properly mark the ticket.

The fight is over now and lets burn politics and go to work. This is Chilton county you know, and anything can happen here at election time.

TO OUR READERS

On our books we have quite a large amount in past due subscriptions.

We have given you the paper for over a year at our own expense.

Is Your Tax Load Heavy Enough?

If Government Ownership of Railroads should ever be realized in this country, two additional tax burdens would inevitably be thrust upon the American people.

- 1. The Government would have to purchase the railroads at their present value of at least twenty billion dollars, because our constitutional guaranty provides against confiscation.
- 2. The taxes the railroads pay—a million dollars a day—would have to be assumed by the individual taxpayers, because government property is exempt from taxation.

Disregarding any assessment to pay off the stupendous debt of twenty billions, interest thereon at 4% would amount to $800,000,000 per year; this added to the $365,000,000 railway taxes would make a total of $1,165,000,000 that would be saddled on to the people for the questionable benefit of owning the railroads.

The American people are now paying the overwhelming sum of seven billion, seven hundred million dollars in annual taxes. If the Government assumed control of the railroads, and the extra taxes required for their rebase and operation were levied, the annual tax bill of this country would run nearly ten billion dollars an amount greater than any free people have ever been called upon to pay in the history of the world: Do YOU favor the increase?

WOMEN NEED SWAMP-ROOT

Thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it. Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

Pain in the back, headache, loss of ambition, nervousness are oftentimes symptoms of kidney trouble.

Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, may be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Get a medium or large size bottle immediately from any drug store.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation, send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing, be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement

Famous Forts in U. S. History

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

(© 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

It Fired the First Gun in the Revolution

Contrary to popular opinion, the opening gun of the Revolution was not fired at Lexington, Mass., on April 19, 1775. That honor really belongs to Portsmouth, N. H., where the first overt act in the war for independence of the colonies occurred on December 14, 1774. Curiously enough this affair was also preceded by a ride by Paul Revere, but since there was no blood shed there and no post chase to immortalize the event in verse, it is now almost forgotten.

On December 13, 1774, Paul Revere, as yet unknown to fame but already acting as messenger in the cause of American liberty, rode posthaste into Portsmouth to warn the local committee of public safety that General Gage was planning to reinforce Fort William and Mury, an ancient fortress of stone in Portsmouth harbor.

Gov. John Wentworth heard of Revere's arrival and sent word to Capt. John Cochran, commander of the little garrison of five soldiers, to be on guard against an attempt by the colonists to seize the munitions in the fort. Accordingly Cochran mounted three four-pounders on the walls of the fort where an attack would most likely come and ordered a sharp watch kept that night.

About four o'clock the next morning a party of 400 citizens, led by John Langdon, later a governor of New Hampshire, and John Sullivan, destined for fame as the conqueror of the Iroquois confederacy during the Revolution, approached the fort in boats.

Cochran immediately opened fire, but took care to shoot over the heads of the men, for he realized what his fate would be if he killed any of them.

Undaunted by the firing, the colonists swarmed into the fort, took Cochran and his men prisoners, but released them after they had carried away 100 barrels of gunpowder (some of which, incidentally, was "returned" to the British from the flaming mouths of patriotic muskets on Bunker Hill a little later) and other supplies. Although Governor Wentworth issued a proclamation calling for the arrest of these "traitors to his majesty," nothing was ever done about it, and in June, 1775, after his efforts to enlist more men to defend the fort had failed, he moved into Fort William and Mary with his family to hold it for King George.

By August the situation had become so threatening that Wentworth was glad to make his escape on a British warship and immediately after his departure the Americans demolished the fortress. Years later another fort was built on this historic spot and it was appropriately named Fort Constitution, a fit successor to the British Fort William and Mary, where the opening gun of the Revolution was fired.

Where Narragansett Fought and Died

It was bitter cold that winter morning in 1675 and the snow lay deep on the ground. But in the Indian fort of Sunko Squaw the hearts of the red men were warm, for in its security they felt little fear of an attack by the white men who had driven King Philip, the Wampanoag leader, out of Massachusetts to seek a refuge among Chief Canonicus's fierce Narragansetts. They did not know that the colonies of Massachusetts Bay, Plymouth and Connecticut were sending Gov. Josiah Winslow of Plymouth with a force of nearly a thousand men against them.

This fort, which stood near what is now South Kingston, R. I., covered several acres of ground and was built on high ground surrounded by a treacherous swamp. It was protected on all sides by heavy palisades driven deep into the ground and its only entrance was over a narrow log bridge. It was probably the finest stronghold ever built by Indians, and in it were 3,000 red men.

Winslow's army arrived late in the afternoon of December 10, and despite the fact that the colonists were weary from their long march through the snow, an attack was launched immediately. Again and again they were driven back as they tried to gain an entrance over the log bridge. Six of their captains and a large number of soldiers were killed. Then Capt. Benjamin Church, the most famous New England Indian fighter, assailed the rear of the fort where it was least protected, and although he was shot three times he succeeded in leading his men over the walls.

Inside the stronghold the battle raged more fiercely than ever, for the Indians put up a stubborn defense from within their wigwags, made bullet proof by the great stores of food piled in them. Finally Church gave the order to fire the wigwags, and as the lodges burst into flames the Indians were forced out into the open. But it was a costly victory for the whites, for their loss was 80 killed and 150 wounded.

Nearly 1,000 of the Indians were killed or died of cold and hunger soon afterward. The power of the Narragansetts was broken. King Philip escaped, but the capture of Sunko Squaw was the beginning of the end.

Lesson for November 9

THE FEEDING OF THE FIVE THOUSAND

LESSON TEXT—John 6:1-15.
GOLDEN TEXT—I am the bread of life.—John 6:35.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Feeds Hungry People.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Feeds Five Thousand.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Christ Meeting Human Needs.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How Jesus Saves.

In the previous chapter, Jesus showed Himself to be the source of life. He here proves Himself to be the sustainer of life.

1. Jesus' Compassion for the Multitude (vv. 1-5, cf. Matt. 14:14). The sight of the crowd always incited the Lord's sympathy. He knew that they were as shepherdless sheep (Mark 3:24). They were going forth with no one to care for them. Besides, they were ignorant, so much so that they had no appreciation of Him. Added to this, was their awful physical hunger. This condition roused the Savior's pity. This is true of the multitude today. The crowd surges about us daily as shepherdless sheep. There is no one to care for them. Then, too, they are ignorant. Sin has so thoroughly blinded them that they are not conscious of their lost condition. Down deep in their hearts is a hunger for truth and God. The millions of earth are hungering for Christ, though ignorant of their real needs.

II. The Lord's Conference With the Disciples Touching the People's Need (5-9).

This was not done for His benefit, for He knew what He would do (v. 6). He is equal to any occasion. His object in this conference may be summed up as follows:

1. To teach them their sense of obligation to the multitude. Men are slow to recognize their obligation to the great shepherdless multitude. We need to be taught the wonderful truth that God has made man His partner in the salvation of the world. We are workers together with God (II Cor. 5:1). It is a most solemn obligation to co-operate with Him in saving the millions who are groping in darkness.

2. To teach them their true helplessness in the face of such great needs. The Jews and leaders were as nothing in the presence of five thousand men besides women and children. Well might Andrew exclaim, "What are these among so many?" We may plant and water, but the increase comes entirely from God.

3. To teach them that their sufficiency is from the Lord. The mission worker needs to know that Christ is the only source of supply. Without Him we can do nothing (John 15:1-8). We can no more carry on the work ourselves than the branch can bear fruit without the vine. The branch supplies the life and strength for the production of fruit. Philip's artificiality is of no use in the face of such need. The Lord Jesus has all power.

III. The Lord's Method of Accomplishing His Work (vv. 10-13).

We observe here the orderliness of Christ's work. He pauses to give thanks for their scanty supply, teaching us that we should always bring our abilities and gifts to God, that He might bless them to His use.

1. The Lord's part was to bless and break the bread; yes, even to create the needed supply. This part the disciples could not perform. The Lord must begin the work. The same kind of bread was provided for all, rich and poor, young and old, women and children.

2. The disciples' part was to distribute that which He had blessed and consecrated. This is true of the missionary today. His part is to take from the hands of the Lord that which He has blessed and consecrated, and distribute it among the starving multitudes. We are not responsible for the supply; but we are responsible for its distribution to all those who are hungering and perishing for the bread of life.

3. The people's part was to sit down and eat. They had no part in the provision, neither its distribution; but only to take from the hands of the disciples and eat. This is an illustration of the part obedience plays in our salvation. "When all had eaten to the full, much was left," illustrating the superabundance of Christ's salvation.

IV. The Effect (v. 14):

The people recognized Him at once as the Prophet who should come. They believed Him for His works' sake.

Muffins!

Ready to serve on a moment's notice

2 cups self-rising flour
1 cup sweet milk
1 egg
2 tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons melted butter

Beat egg, add milk and melted butter and sugar, then add self-rising flour. Beat thoroughly, pour into greased muffin tins and bake in a moderately hot oven. This recipe makes about 20 muffins.

SELF-RISING flour was especially intended for all housewives who want to save time in cooking. The more you use it the more often you'll find out that it helps out wonderfully every time you prepare a meal.

Take muffins. How many times have you wished for a big heaping plateful just to surprise the folks? You'll never taste lighter, better muffins than the kind you make with self-rising flour. And it's safe to say that you'll never realize how wholesome and delicious they can be unless they are self-rising flour muffins.

There's no mystery about self-rising flour or about the dozens of healthful bakings it gives with so little effort. It's just a good grade of plain soft wheat flour with the right amount of pure phosphate baking powder added to save time. As in plain flour you can buy the grade you want—the price you pay determines the grade.

Discards, waffles, quick breads, pies and cakes, and any of the other good things you bake with it, are always dainty and tasty.

Look for the Blue Shield on the bag—it's guaranteed flour.

PERSONAL

It has come to my ears that certain people, who rant a good deal about the purity of their democratic faith, are seeing fit to make certain remarks in regard to whether or not I have proven myself loyal to the party.

I am ready and anxious at all times and under all circumstances, to make a comparison of records, not only with any of that bunch, but with any man living.

If you can find any period in my career where I have sought office, or any other public or private emoluments, at the hands of the republican party, or any of its representatives, I am perfectly willing to plead guilty. Can all of these super-loud demagogues truthfully say the same?

I have never sought office, nor do I ever expect to, but if I change my mind you can rest assured that I will depend only on democratic endorsement for the job.

I have been a democrat all of my life, and, unlike some people, I am a democrat on principles and because I believe the fundamental principles of that party are right, and for the best interests of the people. On these great principles I expect to remain, but when the leaders of the party forsake all of its principles and under take to prostitute it to their own selfish ends, to serve any one class instead of all the people, right there is where they have forsaken the great Jeffersonian party and developed a bastard organization that is democratic in name only.

The party last used to be a powerful implement of coercion, but that day has passed and we are glad of it. The party now must stand up for its distinctive principles of government, or it will find all of its real supporters looking for something democratic, instead of a party emblem that stands for nothing but the selfish satisfying of a few personal whims.

I am a Jeffersonian democrat in whom there is no guile, but I am most emphatically not a mud-slinger nor a political poisoner. I am a full blooded American citizen who believes absolutely in the Constitution of the United States and especially the Bill of Rights that guarantees to every man the freedom of thought, speech, action and religious and political independence, and for these principles you will always find me contending, not in the hope of providing myself, or any other person, a political tit to suck, but because these are the things that freedom means, and these are the things that our great American fathers fought for and won, and left for us as our rightful heritage.

I am also happy to say that I do not believe in the momentary absurdity of undertaking to keep the citizens of a county whose interests are obliged to be identical, constantly wrought up, and at enmity with each other on account of a national political party that, when all honest intelligent people know that such issues can not possibly mean a thing in the local management of the affairs of a county.

The people of Chilton county, I know that, so far as our county is concerned, at least those who are kept up for only one purpose, and that is, for the purpose of a few certain people.

To this system, I am absolutely to any several years of observation in this county, this policy has cost the good people of Chilton county many thousands of dollars in cash and so much trouble and unhappiness that words could not estimate the amount. To this system I have absolutely and irrevocably opposed. It is neither democratic nor sensible.

This is the kind of a democrat I have always been. But I thank God that He created me with a mind and heart big enough and broad enough to always grant to the other fellow his absolute rights, while I claim my own, and I am not less of him personally for his creed.

I have no up-to-date, and right where I have always stood. You all have the same right.

UNFORTUNATE SITUATION

Over in South Clanton, the route of the new state highway, as indicated by the survey, is going to work some hardships on several citizens who have their homes over there.

When the present highway was constructed several years ago, some twenty or more homes and several business homes sprang up along its course.

A number of these are splendid good homes and are so constructed that it would be next to impossible to turn them around, or to build to them in a way to put a front on the back side.

The route now supposed to have been adopted runs in the rear of this row of houses, passing through the back yards and gardens of several.

Besides that, the store houses and other buildings that are now on the west side of the present highway, will be left entirely cut off from the new road.

Several of these citizens are interesting themselves in trying to induce the builders of the new road to make the slight change in route necessary to carry the new road along on the same roadbed as the old one, thus leaving their property undisturbed and damaged.

A delegation from the highway commission came up to view the situation last week, but we do not know what they decided or whether they made any decision. One thing we hope and that is that this matter can be satisfactorily settled without, in any way delaying the work.

At the very best we expect the spring flowers will be blooming again before dirt is broken on this job.

RESIDENCE BURNS

Last Tuesday about 10 A. M., the alarm of fire was turned in and the nice bungalow home of Mr. George Marcus was found to be enveloped in flames.

The department responded as quickly as possible and a large crowd of citizens assembled and did all they could but the fire had gained too much headway and this pretty little home was speedily reduced to ashes.

Some of the furniture was saved, among which was the piano; but the flames spread so rapidly that a great deal of the household goods were consumed.

The blaze is thought to have started from the fire in the living room, but this is so very dry and considerable breeze was blowing and conflagration spread so rapidly that those who first discovered it could not tell very much about where it started.

We learn that Mr. Marcus had his home partly covered by insurance, so it will not be a total loss. Though in losing his household goods he was heavily hit.

He has a flourishing market business here and also has many friends who sympathize with him in this catastrophic.

WHO'S NEXT

Marion Institute, as an institution of learning has a most excellent reputation and deserves it.

They do nothing by halves, and when we heard that their foot ball eleven was coming over to try it out with the local Tigers at Chilton Hills, we knew the real thing was on the program, and that unless the Tigers could deliver a game high up in class "A" playing, that their wonderful string of victories was going to be broken and their colors trailed in the dust.

So last Friday afternoon the hard fought battle was on hand. The Marion huskies came on the field, looking like gladiators. They were truly a hand-some bunch of boys and had big odds in weight over the Tigers.

In a few moments battle was on and for the first three quarters, the Tigers seemed to be doomed to defeat on account of this advantage in averdupoise against them.

By this time, however, the Tigers had sized them up and got on to all their tricks. They went in to the last quarter with Marion 7 to the good while nothing was the portion of the locals. Here is where high class and artistic skill demonstrated its superiority to brute force.

The Tigers opened their sack of fancy playing and when the whistle blew ending the game the score read: Marion 7; Tigers 12.

If you want to really interest Coach Hagar and his hungry Tigers you will have to send after the Ga. Techs, or Alabama and Auburn or something like that.

Ewart Corley.

BURIED AT COOSA RIVER

Last Monday Mr. B. F. Todd, father of Mrs. M. B. Arant, of our city, died at the home of his father in Montgomery and was buried Tuesday at Coosa River church near his home where he had resided for many years. Mr. Todd was well along in years, being over his three score and ten, and had been in failing health for several months; still, his death was rather sudden, as he seemed to be doing fairly well up until a day or so before death called him.

He was quite well known here as he had visited his daughter, Mrs. Arant, several times and made many friends by his pleasant and genial disposition.

FARM FOR SALE

I will offer and sell to the highest bidder, on Saturday, Nov. 22, my 20 acre farm, located on the new B. & N. highway half mile north of Thorsby. Plenty of water, good timber, fine truck and strawberry land. The best little farm in Chilton county.

Sale to take place on the farm at 11 o'clock a. m. Nov. 22. Come and buy at your own price. S. M. Adams, Clanton, Alabama.

SUNDAY SCHOOL ORGANIZED

We met last Sunday at our church, Macedonia, and organized a Sunday school. The school will meet every Sunday at 3 p. m. and every body are most cordially invited to come out and take part.

When this church recently reorganized and took over the work here again, they put it on the Deacons to get them a preacher, so we have arranged with Rev. M. J. Parrish to preach for us the first Saturday: December and Rev. M. Lockhart of the Sunday following. We expect to have regular preaching here on the first Sunday and Saturday hereafter and we invite every one to come out and take part.

Come out to these services announced here and then be a regular attendant at Sunday school and you will always know what is going on and services will always be announced for the future.

Come. If we don't do you any good we sure won't do you any harm.

V. O. SMITH

THE COUNTY ELECTION

Did you know that election tickets were becoming so complicated that about 75 per cent of the people who vote do not really vote for what they wanted.

In our county election tickets, we have heard quite a number of people kicking because they had since found out that they fixed their ticket in a way that caused their vote to be counted exactly the reverse of what they wanted.

It was, indeed, an easy ticket to get fooled in, and as only a few of the boxes had markers for both sides, it was no trouble to direct the vote in the desired direction.

Each candidate under the law, was entitled to a representative at each box to look after his interests, but we learn that the independent candidates failed to take advantage of this fact, so their side was not represented and no one was present to give the necessary instructions to voters.

This most important omission did more than anything else to defeat that ticket.

CARD OF THANKS

To the voters of Chilton county: I desire to express to you through the columns of the News my sincere thanks for your support in the recent election. Owing to the fact that we had but a few days to work, and a complicated ticket on top of that I feel like the results should be gratifying to all.

I want to say again that I appreciate every effort put forth in my behalf. Now let us go to looking to the future for a better day.

Yours very truly,

H. R. ODEN

NOTICE OF PARDON

Notice is hereby given that application will be made to the Circuit Court of the County of Chilton for the permanent pardon and restoration to full civil and political rights of John Davis who was convicted at the August Term, of Circuit Court of Chilton county, Alabama, August 30th, 1924.

JOHN DAVIS.

CIRCUIT COURT

Court has been in session here last week and this and Judge Smoot has had things running in high.

Much business has been dispatched and a very large crowd has been constantly in attendance.

We learn that the grand jury adjourned last night after an extremely busy session. Court will probably adjourn either tonight or tomorrow.

IN SESSION AT OZARK

The annual Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church South, is in session this week at Ozark.

There are 216 ministers and 28 lay delegates present and Bishop Warren A. Candler of Atlanta is presiding.

Dr. Wilkerson, pastor of the Clanton church is in attendance. We hope they will see fit to return him to this charge.

GONE TO ANNISTON

Mrs. E. E. Upchurch and her sister, Miss Dela Latham are spending a few days in Anniston, attending the State Baptist Convention and visiting their son and nephew, Sam Upchurch, who is making this term at the Military School there.

Miss Rosa Thornton wishes to announce that she is conducting a private school for small children at her home in the old Thornton Hotel. Can take several more pupils.

NOTICE

The Parent-Teachers Association will meet at the Grammar School Thursday afternoon at 2:30 instead of Friday.

SOON TO LEAVE US

Rev. C. D. Messer and family will move shortly to Petrey, Alabama to be nearer the field of his ministerial labors for next year.

We are glad to add, however, that he is not making this as a permanent move, but will retain his real home in Chilton and will be back to see us all now and then. We shall certainly miss his genial presence and hate to see him go.

ALABAMA NEWS HAPPENINGS

A Resume of the More Important Events of Interest Condensed To An Epitomized Form.

An airplane, making flights for hire, is not a common carrier, Judge W. I. Grubb, in Federal District Court at Anniston ruled, following hearing of evidence in the case of John W. Brown, an executor of the estate of Hugh D. Brown, vs. the Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Company. Brown sought to recover double indemnity from the company for a $7,500 policy held by Hugh Brown, who was accidentally killed when an airplane fell at Camp Walton, Fla., in August, 1923. A clause in the policy called for double indemnity in case the insured person lost his life in an accident while on a common carrier.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has on its own motion initiated a general investigation into interstate fertilizer rates in southern territory, according to notification received by the Alabama Public Service Commission. Alabama interstate fertilizer rates will be involved in the investigation, the carriers of this State having filed a petition with the Interstate Commerce Commission against the interstate rates prescribed by the Alabama commission.

At a meeting of the directors of the Gadsden Chamber of Commerce it was decided to send a committee before the council at its next meeting and urge that body to make some preparations to provide the city's share of the cost of the four hundred thousand dollar traffic bridge across Coosa river at Gadsden. It is said the city will have to hold an election to authorize bonds, probably to the amount of $35,000. The county will provide its fund from the sale of interest bearing warrants, it is said.

The act of the 1919 legislature which undertook to allow the Sheriff of Dallas County the sum of $600 per year for expenses of automobiles used by him in discharging his duty was held to be invalid by the Supreme Court. The act was passed as a general act providing that the compensation referred to should be paid to sheriffs of counties having a population not less than 58,410 or more than 58,501. The Supreme Court held that the act "in its conception and in its calculated operation was local in character."

Mayor R. A. Burns of Alabama City will abdicate his office Saturday, November 22, in favor of Boy Scouts who will run the city government for one day. An election will be held November 15 to determine who is to be mayor, aldermen, chief of police and city clerk. The Masons will support Tom Cantrell, the Woodmen, Jack Isbell, the Knights of Pythias, Robert Burns, the L. O. O. F., Louf Adkins and the Red Men, Acton Machan.

Large amounts of freight are having to be refused by the Warrior river barge line due to lack of equipment to handle the shipments, and there are no prospects of an immediate improvement in this situation, according to a letter received at the traffic office of the Mobile Chamber of Commerce from R. A. Brown, of Birmingham, Ala., member of the advisory board of the Inland Waterways corporation.

Plans for the annual Mardi Gras celebration in February at Mobile is going forward at once as a result of the action taken by the executive committee of the retail department of the chamber of commerce. The committee gave its approval to the idea of the Mobile Carnival Association, and it was stated by the association will start plans at once for the Mardi Gras event.

Inspections were made during the month of October by the bureau of inspection of the State Board of Health in 37 communities in 15 counties of the State. A total of 421 inspections, exclusive of dairies and milk plants, was made. Three restaurants, one bottling plant and one soda fountain were closed until sanitary conditions had been improved.

Vester S. Garrett, a young attorney of the class of '21 of the University of Alabama, has accepted a position as legal advisor of the Veteran's Bureau, offices to be located in Birmingham.

A fight for better rates on rock asphalt from the Muscle Shoals district to other points is being made before the Alabama Public Service Commission.

Plans are under way for the erection of a 25,000-foot daily capacity saw mill in Jasper.

For eighteen years the Alabama River has not reached so low a stage at Selma as it did recently, says Charles Brislin, weather observer. One foot and one inch below zero in the record made lately, says Mr. Brislin. The lower river stage caught the "United States" river boat "Alabama" in Selma where she was taking on coal and cement destined for Mobile. Because of the low water mark much cotton which otherwise would be shipped by river has been sent to Mobile by rail. The water got so low that children waded across it. It has been many years if ever that this happened before.

A verdict was awarded to C. O. Bowers in Tuscaloosa Circuit Court against Officers Foster, Clements, Murray, R. Pate and L. C. Sims and the Union Indemnity Company. The officers fired into an auto in which Bowers was riding. It was charged. The shooting occurred last September at Forrest Lake when the officers, mistook the back firing of the engine for revolver shots and fired at the auto to stop what they thought to be a car transporting liquor.

The hog growers of the Brundidge territory met at Brundidge and reorganized their association for the coming year. The following officers were elected: J. E. Johnson, E. A. Jones and C. M. Bryan, executive committee; J. E. Johnson, manager; M. C. Bryan, weigher; Grady Caldwell, grader; R. L. King, county agent, was present and assisted in the meeting.

The Town of Valley Head was held by the Supreme Court in a decision to have been properly incorporated in the case of Nevil Cooper vs. the town of Valley Head. Existence of the town of Valley Head as a municipal corporation was brought in issue in the case, the court holding that it does exist as a municipality.

F. W. Gist, agricultural statistician for Alabama, was one of three members of the crop reporting board of the United States Department of Agriculture to give final approval to the cotton production report which was released in Washington, November 7. The report was the estimate for November 1.

The Alabama Public Service Commission has under advisement a petition of the Alabama Power Company for authority to extend the availability of its service classification "D," a joint electric cooking and lighting rate, so as to make it available to hotels, restaurants, barber shops and other establishments.

The long drouth is causing many cattle raisers to sacrifice their cattle at unheard of prices because pastures have burned up and creeks have gone dry. Many cattle growers have found themselves unable to care for their cattle and are sacrificing them rather than have them die of thirst or starvation.

The rate on fresh fruits from Mobile and New Orleans to Meridian, Jackson and other points in Mississippi, which was raised by the railroad for the cancellation of the less than carload rate has been restored to the original figure.

Higher prices than were paid last year for Thanksgiving turkeys is the forecast for this year by J. Pope, specialist in agricultural economics for the extension service at Auburn, after receiving information as to the turkey situation.

A posse led by Sheriff S. D. Kilgore came upon some wildcatters in the Pumpkin Center neighborhood of Walker County that were employing a novel method in distilling wildcat liquor. The men had 500 pounds of ice, which had been ordered from Jasper to be used in keeping the still warm cool.

The State Insurance Department is showing a big growth in receipts over last year, according to figures furnished by Superintendent Frank N. Julian. Receipts for 1924 to date have amounted to $717,831.21, while receipts of all of last year amounted to $617,700.36.

The three warehouses in Union Springs have received 7,151 bales of cotton thus far this season. The total ginnings of Bullock County last year up to November 1 were 6,798 bales. The indicated crop of this county for 1924 is approximately 10,000 bales.

The long drouth has affected the operation of saw mills in Pickens County to such an extent that it has been found necessary to haul water for the boilers. Some mills have arrangements to close down until arrangements could be made for a supply.

Ben Crumpton, Federal prohibition enforcement officer, was found not guilty of the charge of murder in connection with the shooting of Jess Coffee in Cleburne County last year by a jury in Federal District Court at Anniston.

The acreage of soy beans grown in Alabama increased 40 per cent, according to a bulletin issued by the Department of Agriculture.

Great flocks of wild geese have been flying over Alabama during the past few days. All of them are flying high and none have stopped according to hunters. The flocks are said to be unusually large.

Henry B. Chase, head of the Chase Nursery Company, and former mayor of Huntsville, and Mrs. Chase have gone on a trip around the world.

A brick addition is being made to the Presbyterian Church of Sheffield to provide for a Sunday School room library room and study.

PETER'S CONFESSION

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 16:13-24. GOLDEN TEXT—Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God.—Matt. 16:16. PRIMARY TOPIC—Peter Speaks Out for Jesus. JUNIOR TOPIC—Peter, Takes His Stand. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Duties and Glory of Confessing Christ. ADVANCED PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Does It Matter What One Believes Concerning Christ?

This confession in some sense marks the turning point in Christ's ministry. Hereafter it is more restricted to His disciples. Two reasons why this should be sufficient are (vv. 1-12): (1) The Pharisees and Sadducees show their attitude toward Him in their demand for a sign. His answer is that none shall be given save that of His death and resurrection, as symbolized in the experiences of the prophet Jonah. (2) The disciples show their inability to understand the spiritual nature of His teaching. When He warned them of the leaven of the Pharisees and Sadducees they understood Him to refer to bread, when He meant their doctrine. It was at this crisis when Christ turned from the nation which had rejected Him that Peter made this great confession. It was made in the borders of Caesarea-Philippi, practically Gentile territory.

1. Occasion Of (vv. 13-16). Two questions of Christ provoked this confession.

1. The question as to the opinion of people concerning Him. They recognized Him as a teacher or a prophet of more than human authority and power. Today, as then, there is a diversity of opinion among the people as to Jesus Christ. Some think He is only a man; others that He is a great teacher, but nothing more. Had He been content with this He would not have been molested in Jerusalem, for the Jews willingly acknowledged Him as more than a human teacher. It was His persistent claim to be the God-man, the Son of God, that sent Him to the cross.

2. The second question involved the personal opinion of the disciples concerning Him. To be able to tell what others think of Jesus is not enough; there must be definite, correct and personal belief on Him.

II. The New Body, the Church, Announced (vv. 17-20).

Peter had made a noble confession of Christ, so now Christ confesses Him. If we confess Christ He will confess us (Matt. 10:32, 33). Christ declared His intention of bringing into existence a new body to the members of which He will give eternal life, and to whose hands He will entrust the keys of the Kingdom. Peter was to have a distinguished place in this body. The keys entrusted to Him were used on the day of Pentecost, and again in the case of Cornelius. Association in this new body cannot be broken by death, for the gates of hades shall not prevail against it. This body, the church, is of a heavenly origin, a heavenly calling and a heavenly inheritance.

III. The Cross the Way to the Throne (vv. 21-33).

This was, no doubt, startling to the disciples. They did not realize that redemption was to be accomplished through the passion of the cross. So unwelcome was this announcement that Peter cried, "This shall not be unto thee." Peter later saw through this darkness to the glory on the hill-top beyond. A new hope then filled his breast (1 Pet. 1:3, 4). Victory through death is yet the stumbling block of many. Many are stumbling over the doctrine of salvation and redemption through the suffering of the cross.

IV. The Cost of Discipleship (vv. 24-27).

To follow Christ means suffering. To follow Him is to turn one's back upon the world. Life can only be saved by losing it. If we are going to be Christians we must share Christ's suffering. We cannot go to heaven on downy beds of ease.

1. There must be denial of self (v. 24). There is a wide difference between self-denial and denial of self. Self-denial is practiced everywhere by all people, but only the disciples of Christ or Christian people deny self. Christ takes the place of self.

2. "Take up his cross." This cross is the suffering and shame which lie in the path of loyalty to God. To our duty will mean suffering (II Tim. 3:12).

3. Follow Christ. This means to have the mind of Christ, to do like Christ. All such shall be rewarded when Christ comes in glory.

What to Hate

I will tell you what to hate. Hate hypocrisy; hate cant; hate indolence; oppression, injustice; hate Pharisaism; hate them as Christ hated them—with a deep, living, God-like hatred.—F. W. Robertson.

With Every Day

Every day, as it rises out of eternity keeps putting a case of us this question afresh—What will you do before this day has sunk into eternity and nothingness again?—F. W. Robertson.

NOTICE

Sunday Schools Unity Chilton Association

At the recent meetings of our respective Associations they passed a resolution asking the Sunday schools to continue the support of Rev. Toy Williams as our Sunday school missionary in Canton China. The Associations also asked the moderators of the two Associations to apportion the salary to the schools, and to appoint a treasurer of the fund. We have made the following appointments and appointed Mr. Grady Harris, Clanton as Treasurer.

Pastors and Superintendents will please take notice and bring the matter to the attention of their schools. Clip this notice.

MADDOX ATTENDS CHEV. ROLET TRAINING SCHOOL

Mr. W. L. Maddox, chief mechanic and ship foreman for POLK BROS. local Chevrolet dealers, has just returned from Chevrolet factory at Norwood Ohio where he has been taking special course in servicing Chevrolet cars and trucks.

At this school the mechanics in training were required to take down and reassemble cars under the instructions of a Chevrolet factory expert. They were also taught the quickest and best way to correct any trouble the owners might have with Chevrolet cars.

If you are having any trouble with your Chevrolet, take it to Polk Bros. and let Mr. Maddox fix it.

GRAND LARCENCY

A colored boy named Calvin, who is probably known by every person in town, and who has a reputation for sticky fingers and who has done time before, is in jail again with a charge of grand larcency booked against him.

He confesses to having stolen a very fine wrist watch and some other articles from Miss Madalyn Orr, at the Exchange Hotel.

Miss Orr values the watch very highly, as it was a present to her by an aunt and cost about $75.

It is probable that the grand jury this week may indict Calvin and Judge Smith may have a hard time to get him out of jail.

Some of the recent city arrests for speeding furnish food for thought. One young fellow who was warned by the cop two or three times, finally tried to run over the officer who held him up. After his arrest he spent a day or so crying around the office trying to get off. He spurned his only chance.

On October 16, 1924, the Death Angel visited the home of Mrs. Bud Littlejohn and bore in the Realm of glory the sweet spirit of her mother Mrs. Eliza Foster age 76.

She had been sick for some time, and all that could be done for her by her friends and children was done to soothe her every pain. But God had called for her and after all the love and care she received she died them all and answered that call from her Savior to come to her lasting rest and peace. Never a murmur passed from her lips. Her one prayer was Lord come and take me home. I am only waiting for you to say come. Children don't you weep for me, for my suffering will all be over. Just live as I have, then you can come to me over on that other shore. I'll be there. So dear children think of heaven being so much sweeter. Be sure your own dear mother is there waiting for you and may not be one of you fail to lead the life she commanded you to, so there will not be one anisus on that great glad day. It seems that giving mother up and seeing her laid in the cold and silent grave, is a burden hard to bear but the Blessed Lord who had greater burdens than we to bear "can ease your heart by putting your trust in Him. Your home I know seems empty and so lonesome without the footsteps of mother, and her sweet voice, but the heavenly Choir has one more sweet voice to swell the anthems of praise. Can't you imagine how the Angels shouted for joy when they saw her with them, and what a happy meeting with her and your Father and Brother, who must have been the first to greet her there. It will not be but a few short years until you will each be called to cross death's river, then you can meet her there and what a happy meeting, for there will be no more thoughts of sad partings.

She leaves to mourn her loss, five boys one daughter, 37 grandchildren, five great grand children. Besides a host of friends and relatives.

She was laid to rest in the Liberty cemetery, Rev. Hughes officiating.

BIG SHOW IN CLANTON ON FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 14

Trained wild animals will be one of the big features of the Harris Bros. famous combined shows which exhibit in Clanton, Friday, Nov. 14.

Forming within an immense steel arena will be a group of black maned African lions, newly imported to America from the Carl Hagenbeck European Zoological Garden. In fact the zoo carried with the big shows this season will contain one of the largest collections of wild animals ever exhibited in this section of the State.

A magnificent pageant introducing intrepid arena performances, famous athletes, men and women champions of Continental Europe and great America will inaugurate the performers of the Harris Bros Shows. The big show is now in its 28th annual transcontinental tour, during which all sections of the United States and Canada will be visited. The talk of the times at home and abroad lauded by the press; recognized by the Government and industrial captions for the marvelous system by which the stupendous tented city is transported from town to town. It is a wonder that without solicitation the schools are often dismissed that the children may enjoy the most wonderful of all days-circus day.

A special train of double-length railroad cars transports the Harris Bros. Shows. The great organization represents an investment of nearly $400,000.00. Three military bands of 20 choirs, 30 musical aerialists; during equestrians and 30 sensational acrobats. The Jordan family; the Jackson Sextette, the eight Micados, Japanese gymnasts; the Avolyn Sister and scores of other famous performers will be on hand that day.

Remember the day and date is fixed; there can be no chances. Believe no false announcements to the contrary. A brief of free exhibition will be given on the show grounds at 12:30 p. m. Two performances will be given, the doors opening at 1 and 7 p. m. The big show beginning at 2 and 8 p. m. Nowhere else can so much be seen at so little cost; so bring the kiddies to see a performance that is clean, instructive and inspiring.

Life is relatively short but most of us live long enough to find out that it is not what it is cracked up to be.

The name of loyalty is expected to direct the course of some quarters, but it won't. The day of the shrewd man is at hand.

"Be sure you are right and then go ahead" and the probability is that many of your friends will soon cease to recognize you.

When you hear a fellow say: "Oh, yes, Jones is all right but—" you have listened to the most cowardly kind of scandal monger there is.

Hereditry has a good deal to do with the physical make up of a man, but preacher's sons are said to be the meanest boys that live.

After the crash and rattle of the summer season has rolled by, the still small voice of Charles Evans was heard to admit that he had no power to how tie your franchise.

Every mule you see these days look like he was absolutely disgusted with life. The fliwer has beat him to it in being mean and devilish on the road.

Winter time may deprive us of the pleasure of enjoying the beauties of the turned down stockings, but it will have to hustle if it needs in hiding all of the lovely cold heads.

The verdict of a petty jury, the mind of a statesman, the stability of public opinion are three things that nothing short of the Divine mind can forestall.

Justice says that a no foolishness is the only way to get over an announcement. It is just out of luck, for the mill keeps on grinding just the same.

The Dies anti-linching bill will be a good thing to see. Coolidge congress takes a big step. He is already pledged to the country. How will the country like that?

We have heard that an article in a club was being read in Clanton. We failed to hear what the Klan had done to any of them. "The wicked flee when no man pursueth."

You can not legislate good moral into a crook, neither can you make the average auto speeder see the danger of his ways, but, sooner or later, the law will dispose of one and the undertaker of the other.

Remember when you are sneaking about on foot these days, you have no right to expect to see a Black Cat. It is a shame to see a steam or motor car running in sight for it is a sign that you are not very nautile on your pears.

WANT AN EXTRA SESSION

Last Monday was "Good Road Day" at the state fair in Montgomery.

A very large number of interested citizens were present and much discussion indulged in by the leaders.

It seems to have developed that the twenty-five million dollar bond issue for road building has about been causted and several projects under construction are unfinished and will have to be abandoned in that condition unless an additional bond issue is voted to complete them.

Among these projects is the B. & M. Highway, the most important road in the state, which is now only cleverly begun.

By unanimous vote the meeting requested Gov. Brandon to call an extra session of the legislature, at as early a day as possible to take the necessary steps to call a bond election to furnish money to finish up work now under way and do other road building in the state.

They want an issue of $75,000,000 this time. It was also proposed that an additional tax of five cents per gallon be levied on gasoline to raise funds for the same purpose.

It is now up to the Governor to call this extra session, if he sees fit, as this is the first step that will have to be taken in preparing to allow the people to pass on this matter at the polls.

A FUTURE DEMOCRATIC PARTY

The returns from the recent election show that every thing, except the South, went republican.

President Coolidge will have an ample majority in both houses of Congress to put through any kind of legislation he may desire. For the next four years the republican party will be entirely responsible for all of the legislation that is enacted and for all of the political intrigues and policies that occur. They are absolutely on trial this time, with no possible chance to unload any unfortunate and unpopular legislation off on any one else.

The democratic party went down in a disgraceful defeat, that clearly discloses the fact that the grand old organization, in its present state of collapse, unless promptly and properly operated on and reorganized is destined for an early grave.

No one can wonder at this miserable debacle. Go back to the New York convention in your mind and see if you can be surprised at the result.

There has never been a period in our recollection when the democrats had such an opportunity to win as was theirs this time. The republican party was badly divided, three ways. Besides, that wonderful oil steal was part and parcel of the present administration and was enough in itself to defeat any party before the people. They had no big leaders and their party organization was utterly to pieces. In fact, they were already beaten without a fight if the democratic party had gone in to the race with clean hands and stood upon the principles of the party, but instead a politician or two sold the party to the New York interests and pulled off a convention there that would have been a disgrace in darkest Africa. The sordid ambition of a few men took our great party up and murdered it publicly in the very face of the people. We never had a chance after that convention and the real democrats of the country recognized that fact from the very first.

The country at large now is without a democratic party. When it revives again the Solid South will be the nucleus around which the organization will form. It will be utterly out of the question to rehabilitate the party along the following of the New York or "down east" representation. As we have contended for several years, for the democratic party to live and win it will be absolutely necessary to cut completely aloof from the New York money bags and build up an organization in the west and north-west.

These two sections and the South have interests more in common, and are a much more homogenous people than the New York or "down east" sections. Natural surroundings, the mode of making a living and general climatic conditions in the north and south make these sections directly antagonistic to each other on the question of all legislation that affects business. As we have before said the only hope of future democratic success nationally in this country, lies in the political amalgamation of the South, west and the middle west. These sections are largely agricultural and their interests are the same, consequently they will, of very necessity have to unite if they ever expect to influence national legislation in a way that will give them an equal show in the prosecution of their business interests.

New York has never possessed any real political convictions. They belong to neither party on principles. They endeavor to engineer the national elections in a manner that will give them the balance of power, and usually succeed in doing so, and then they deliver the goods to the party that promises most along the lines that mean prosperity to them. It is always a matter of dollars and cents with them.

This National Advertising Is Being Done For Your Benefit

Inducing the right sort of people to move to the L. & N.-served South; pointing out attractions of the South-land to desirable citizens, rather than to those seeking the bonanza of quick profits and temporary residence—this has been the work of the L. & N. Railroad ever since it became one of the great trunk lines of the Nation.

Advertisements of the type shown here are running continuously in the great farm magazines which circulate in the North, Northwest and East. They point out to the intelligent class of farmers the greater opportunities which prevail in the South, where weather, labor, and living conditions excel those of colder and more densely-populated sections.

These advertisements supplement the work of the Industrial and Immigration Department of the L. & N., and the results of this combined effort are apparent in every section of the South.

HOUSEWORK NOT DRUDGERY For Women In Good Health

Read How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Changed Conditions For These Housewives

Back Don't Bother Me Now

Lincoln, Nebraska. — "My back would bother me so and when I had to do any heavy lifting it made me sick to my stomach with the pains in my back. I have my housework to do and four babies to take care of so when I heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I took it and I feel better. My back don't bother me and I can eat more and work. I do all my housework and washing for six in the family. I will tell other women to take the Vegetable Compound and you may publish my letter." — Mrs. CHARLES F. DOLZAL, 1201 Garber Ave., Lincoln, Nebraska.

Felt Better At Once

Volga City, Iowa. — "I will tell you what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. I was all run down and could hardly be on my feet. I was so cold I could not keep warm. I had numb feelings and then heat flashes would pass over my body. I had severe pains in my sides and was very nervous. I saw your advertisement in the newspapers so I thought I would try your medicine. My husband got me a bottle of the Vegetable Compound and I began to feel better as soon as I started taking it. I have taken it off and on for three years now. I keep house and do all my work for my husband and two little boys and make my garden. I feel fine and I tell others what the medicine has done for me. I think it is the best medicine in the world for women." — Mrs. THOMAS GRINDLE, Volga City, Iowa.

Can Do Any Kind of Work

Fouke, Arkansas. — "I had the 'flu' and after that I had a pain in my side and was not able to do my work I was so weak. I found an advertisement in a paper and it told what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound would do, and I took it. Now I can do any kind of work I want to. I think every family ought to keep it in the house all the time and I intend to do so." — Mrs. DONA PHILLIPS, R. R. No. 2, Fouke, Arkansas.

Over 100,000 women have so far replied to our question, "Have you received benefit from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?" 98 per cent of these replies are "Yes."

This shows that 98 out of every 100 women who take this medicine for the ailments for which it is recommended are benefited by it.

This goes to prove that a medicine specialized for certain definite ailments — not a cure-all — can and does good work. For sale by druggists everywhere.

Toothache in the Movies

An aching tooth in action is the last thing we should expect to find in the movies. "The Ivory Cross," an English society for the protection of teeth, have had a film produced which shows a throbbing nerve. — Scientific American.

"Old Crusty" Again

"Why is it," queried the fair widow, "that they always say a man 'pines' for a woman?"

"I suppose," growled the fussy bachelor, "it's because pine is about the softest wood there is."

WINS FULL SWAY IN BOTH HOUSES

Newly Elected Republican President Is Sure to Have Control.

The decisive manner in which the voters of the country rallied to the wishes of President Coolidge and his party in the recent election, by providing a substantial working majority in both houses, marks the event as one of general satisfaction to those directly concerned.

Several important items mark the election of President Coolidge as most remarkable in such events. Among them may be enumerated the generous support that was given in the election to the senate and house of members of the President's party—a substantial majority in both branches; what might have proved a thorn in the side of the President and his fellow-workers—the LaFollette faction—has been dispelled; the election was not thrown into congress as had been feared; approval of President Coolidge's course by approximately 150,000 votes.

Deeply grateful for "the faith and confidence" expressed by the people at the polls, President Coolidge in a statement of appreciation dedicated himself anew to "the service of all my country and all of my countrymen." He wrote:

"It does not seem possible to me to make an adequate expression concerning the presidency of the United States. No other honor equals this, no other responsibility approaches this. When it is conferred by an overwhelming choice of the people and vote of the electoral college, these are made all the greater.

"I can only express my simple thanks to all those who have contributed to this result and plainly acknowledge that it has been brought to pass through the work of a Divine Providence, of which I am but one instrument.

"Such powers as I have I dedicate to the service of all my countrymen. In the performance of the duties of my office I could not ask for anything more than the sympathetic consideration which my fellow Americans have always bestowed upon me.

"I have no appeal except to the common sense of all the people. I have made no pledge except to serve them. I have no object except to promote their welfare."

The lineup of the next congress presents a situation that will further stress the support President Coolidge will have during the next four years. With Senator LaFollette so badly weakened that he will be of no danger to the interests of the party in control; with the defeat of Senator Marcus Johnson of Minnesota, representing the Farmer-Labor party. In fact, the senate situation is better from a Republican standpoint than any of the administration leaders had hoped for.

Causes of the Landslide

Causes for a landslide in a presidential election always are discussed, after the smoke of the battle has cleared. The platforms adopted at the national conventions of the three parties are well known. The fact that LaFollette carried only his own state—Wisconsin, and that Davis could control only the so-called Solid South, and not all of that, showed the strength of President Coolidge. It is contended that the principal causes, aside from the preference of the majority of the voters for the present administration may be ascribed to the disintegration of the labor element and the discontent of the farmers.

It is obvious that the voters of the country did not follow either Davis or LaFollette in their attempt to score the alleged corrupt acts of members of the late Republican administration against Coolidge personally; that the LaFollette charge that private monopoly had the country by the throat is a belief held by radicals only; that LaFollette and to some extent the Democratic candidates weakened their case before the voters by their repeated charges and challenges and that Coolidge's personal policy of silence in the face of these attacks was a source of strength rather than weakness to him.

The number necessary to a choice is 266

Worried About "Silent" Vote

There appeared throughout the campaign to be an apathetic condition among voters; the "silent" vote was worried about. Yet a record vote was cast. President Harding's plurality of 7,000,000 in 1920 over James M. Cox was thought to be almost an impossible figure, yet Harding had no third-party opposition, with the exception of Eugene V. Debs' 1,000,000 total vote. LaFollette polled four times the Socialist vote of that year, his 4,000,000 total approximates the Roosevelt Bull Moose third party strength in 1912.

Pennsylvania appears to be the banner state for Coolidge with a plurality of about 1,000,000, and the President carried New York state by 900,000; Illinois by 900,000; California, regarded as likely to go to LaFollette, by 400,000; Indiana, claimed by the Democrats, by 300,000, and by a like figure he triumphed in Iowa.

President Is Congratulated

John W. Hawks, the defeated presidential candidate on the Democratic ticket, telegraphed President Coolidge as follows:

"Permit me to congratulate you on your sweeping victory and to express the hope that your administration may by its success insure to the welfare of the country."

President Coolidge sent this reply:

"Please accept my thanks for your message and my appreciation of the patriotic sentiments you express."

Senator Robert M. LaFollette, in his first public statement, commenting upon the election, said:

"The loss of this one battle in the age-long struggle is but an incident. So far as I am personally concerned I am enlisted for life in the struggle."

"The progressives will not be dismayed by this result. We have just begun to fight. There can be no compromise on the fundamental issues for which we stand."

Two Women Governors

For the first time in the history of the country at this election two women were elected as governors—Mrs. Nellie T. Ross, on the Democratic ticket, as governor of Wyoming. She is the widow of the late Governor Ross. Under the laws she will assume office as soon as she qualifies.

Mrs. Miriam Ferguson, also on the Democratic ticket, was elected governor of Texas. Her husband was formerly governor of the state.

There will be one woman in congress, Mrs. Mary T. Norton, a Democrat, from the Twelfth New Jersey district.

Several women were victorious candidates for election to state legislatures and other state offices, displaying in a most important fact, that women are in politics to stay.

In Chicago, for the first time in history, a colored man was elected to the municipal bench.

Is Your Work Hard?

Is your work wearing you out? Are you tortured with throbbing backache—feel tired, weak and worn out? Then look to your kidneys. Many occupations tend to weaken the kidneys. Constant backache, headache, dizziness and rheumatic pains result. One suffers annoying kidney irregularities; feels nervous, irritable and worn out. Don't wait! Use Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys. Workers everywhere I recommend Doan's. They should help you, too. Ask your Neighbor!

An Alabama Case

C. Barnett, 117 Conch St., Greenville, Ala., says: "My kidneys were in an unhealthy condition; the kidneys were highly colored and swollen in passage. I had such pains in my back and legs that I couldn't sleep due to the heavy, tired, aching my back. My back was sore and lame. I used two boxes of Doan's Pills and they cured me."

The Diary of a Turkey

Turkey gobbler, pride of the barnyard, is strangely missing. He left behind him, however, his diary, which has been translated into English for the benefit of our readers. A page of the original diary, as it appeared when found, is shown.

Sunday—
Gobbler, gobbler, what a fine day it is! I've been walking around in the sun, spreading my beautiful tail, to give the ducks and geese and chickens a treat. But some people don't appreciate what you do for them. I overheard two silly old hens, off in a corner, laughing and cackling to themselves. "Ha, ha, ha," they were saying. "He's strutting round nighty proud now—but let him wait!" What a foolish thing to say—wait for what, I'd like to know?

Monday—
Met Mr. Red Rooster this morning. "Fine day, Mr. Rooster!" I said. "Don't you think I'm a pretty well-dressed bird?" and I turned round and round to show him the sun shining on my feathers. Mr. Rooster sniffed—he actually did. "You'll be well dressed all right—in a few days," he remarked, and walked off, without explaining what he meant. I do think the folks in this barnyard are getting sillier every day.

Tuesday—
Mrs. Pekin Duck is losing her mind. I am sure of it, because she said the strangest thing to me today! I had asked her to observe the fine blues and greens in my tail feathers. "Don't you think I'm handsomely done up?" I asked her. "You'll be done up brown, before long!" she said, tossing her head. I believe the creature's jealous. A mere duck! But I mustn't mind what she says. The poor thing hasn't any tail to speak of.

Wednesday—
Noticed the farmer out getting big yellow pumpkins from the field. "They're going to be made into pumpkin pies," said Mrs. Gray Goose, when I told her about it. "Splendid!" said I. "Maybe they'll give us what's left—I love pumpkin pies." "There won't be any left for you—or maybe I ought to say there won't be any of you left," replied Mrs. Goose. She certainly is a goose. So I don't care what she says.

Thursday—
Old Mrs. Speckled Hen has been telling me dreadful stories, trying to get me scared. "This time of year's unhealthy for turkeys," says she. "All ways has been. Why, years ago the Indians used to go hunting your wild forefathers at this time, and when the Pilgrims came they started doing it, too. I wouldn't be a turkey for anything, this time of year." That's all nonsense. I've heard that story about turkeys being eaten by Indians and Pilgrims. But those days are over. Things like that aren't being done these days!

Friday—
"How sharp the air is this morning!" I said to a little gosling I met. "Yes, it's as sharp as steel," said he, grinning from one end of his beak to the other. I saw he was looking toward the woodpile, where the farmer was sharpening an ax. Then he winked one eye at me. Really, young goslings have no manners at all now-days. Fancy winking at me! And I don't think that remark about the ax had any sense to it, either—

At this point the diary ceases abruptly. Fear has been expressed among Mr. Gobbler's many friends that he met with an accident shortly after the last entry. Anyone getting a clue to his whereabouts during the coming week, dead or alive, is asked to communicate with his wife (widow), Mrs. Turkey Gobbler, Barnyard Square—Jane Corby, in the Atlanta Constitution.

All May Rejoice
Fortunately we have neither famine, pestilence nor war, but plenty, health and peace within our borders, and even the least fortunate has many reasons to join in the general thanksgiving.

But they stopped and looked at Farmer Lawes. What would he say? "Set down! Hey, get a chair, get another chair there, Judd! What's the matter with you all, putting one chair too few for Thanksgiving? Can't ye count on the family?"

(© 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

Their Thanksgiving
By ELLA SAUNDERS

The Thanksgiving dinner was something that none of the members of the Lawes family ever failed to attend. No matter what had happened during the year, everybody turned up at Farmer Lawes' house for Thanksgiving. There quarrels were made up, differences adjusted; it was a sort of family clearing-house.

Here was Farmer Lawes, hale and strong in spite of his seventy years, seated before the turkey. Here was Grandmother Lawes, going on ninety, and with her eyes still undimmed. Here was Mother Lawes, beaming upon her boys and girls.

Here was Molly, the pride of the family, the successful one, with a hundred thousand in investments and a fine house on Sidmouth street, and two motorcars, with his wife and three kids—all beaming and bright and happy.

Here was Molly, the hospital nurse, who had come in from town. Not very successful, but doing well and a self-supporting woman, and so glad to be home for Thanksgiving.

Here was Judd, the failure, who lost one position after another, and was now going to be given a fresh start in his brother's office, and to redeem the past. He was glad to be home for Thanksgiving.

Here was Tom, who was in the law-office, Tom the bright one of the family, who was going to be President some day—watch him smile as he looks at the turkey, exuding gravity.

Here was Peppita, the actress. Not very successful, Peppita, and often in need of funds, and perhaps old Farmer Lawes had spent many bitter hours thinking of her. But—but this was Thanksgiving.

And here was Rodd, who was doing so well in high school, the only bird that had not yet flown from the nest.

How happy they all were! No, not quite happy, because, on the Thanksgiving before there had been another chair, and Dorothy.

Well, nobody had spoken of Dorothy since that scandal. She was dead to all of them. Even Thanksgiving could not atone for that black, bitter humiliation and disgrace.

Nobody had spoken of her, but everybody was thinking of her. "The girl made a fool of herself," Will was thinking. "Well, she made her head and she'll have to lie on it. She's dead to us forever. My wife shall never recognize her."

It Was Sort of Family Clearing-House.

And Molly, the hospital nurse: "Dorothy was simply a fool to become infatuated with a married man and run off with him. It's a shame that can never be wiped out. If she were to come here now, begging for bread, I'd turn my back on her."

Judd, the failure: "Well, I guess there's more than one failure in this family. Each must look out for himself. I haven't any time to waste on sympathy for others."

Tom, in the lawyer's office: "Ah, well, the world is hard and censorious in its judgments! A man has got to get on, and the only way to get on is to have no incubuses in the way of failures about one. Judd? Yes, sir, I believe in giving every dog his chance. Judd may make good yet. Dorothy? Nothing doing. No, sir, no sister of mine."

And Peppita: "Poor old Dorothy! What an ass she made of herself!" Farmer Lawes—well, he was thinking of the little girl he used to dandle on his knee. That was how he saw Dorothy. But he said that his doors were closed to her forever, and he was a man of his word.

Mother Lawes—but who knows what is in a mother's heart? And Grandmother Lawes, so near eternity—well, perhaps she had the tenderest and shrewdest judgment of them all, only she seldom spoke now, perhaps hardly remembered.

"Well, boys and girls, this bird looks good to me!"

The door was opening. They looked up. They stared aghast. Nobody moved—their eyeballs moved, moved with a simultaneous rush.

"Dorothy!"

"Good girl, to come for Thanksgiving!"

"My, how pleased we are to see you!"

But they stopped and looked at Farmer Lawes. What would he say? "Set down! Hey, get a chair, get another chair there, Judd! What's the matter with you all, putting one chair too few for Thanksgiving? Can't ye count on the family?"

Famous Forts in U. S. History
By ELMO SCOTT WATSON
(© 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

He Cut the Cross From the British Flag

In 1833 the colonists of Massachusetts bay were in a state of great perturbation. The master of a British ship which had sailed into Boston harbor had demanded to know why no flag was flying over the little palisaded fort on Castle Island to render him a salute and be saluted in turn. That was an embarrassing question, for a short time before one Richard Davenport, acting upon the orders of stern old John Endicott, had cut the cross out of the British flag because to that dour Puritan leader it symbolized the ancient Catholic religion of the mother country. That was one reason why no flag flew over Castle Island, and it took considerable explaining to avoid unpleasant results.

Thus early in Massachusetts history, Castle Island, this little scrap of land less than a dozen acres in extent, became an important spot. The next incident in its history came in 1859, when the hatred of the colonists for their governor, Sir Edmund Andros, resulted in a revolt and one of the first places they seized, because of its strategic importance, was the little fort on Castle Island.

In 1705 Colonel Rorer, a famous English engineer, was employed to repair the fort, whose palisades had fallen into and disrepair. He demolished all of the old works and erected new ones of timbers and earth, and this new fortification, the most formidable that had yet graced Castle Island, was named Castle William, or Fort William, in honor of the ruling British king.

During the French wars, Fort William was one of the most important defenses along the Atlantic coast, and at the close of these wars it had a total of 129 guns mounted on its walls. It was strongly garrisoned by the British at the outbreak of the Revolution as an aid in holding the rebellious colonists in subjection, but when Lord Howe evacuated Boston in 1776 the British flag was lowered over Fort William, never to be raised there again.

In 1798 Massachusetts ceded Fort William to the federal government. The next year when President John Adams visited Boston he suggested that Fort Independence would be a more appropriate name for this defender of American liberties, and his suggestion was adopted. In 1833 Fort Independence was enlarged into the present pentagonal, bastioned fortification, and for the first time in nearly 200 years Boston had a defender worthy of the name of "fort."

Where Our Flag First Faced an Enemy

On the morning of August 3, 1777, an army of 1,700 British, Tories and Indians led by Gen. Barry St. Leger, appeared before a little palisaded structure known as Fort Schuyler, which stood on the present site of Rome, N. Y., and which was garrisoned by a small force of Americans commanded by Col. Peter Gansevoort and Col. Marcius Willet. As the enemy drew near, they saw flying above the fort a strange flag, red and white stripes with 13 stars on a blue field.

Having heard that congress had adopted this form of emblem, the garrison had made its own flag—the white stripes from a soldier's shirt, the red ones from the petticoat of one of the women in the fort and the blue field from an old cloak worn by one of the officers. Thus for the first time in history the Stars and Stripes floated in the face of an enemy, and its appearance was a historic occasion.

If St. Leger proceeded down the Mohawk valley without opposition, his forces with General Burgoyne at Albany and together the two generals would march on New York and end the Revolution by cutting off its "head." New England, from the other colonies. For more than two weeks the British leader laid siege to the fort. Then came the fierce little battle of Oriskany where old "Hontk" Herkimer, who was marching to Fort Schuyler's relief, won his costly victory, aided by a brilliant sortie led by Colonel Willet, with those who were suffering and in need. All who were suffering and in need. All who were suffering and in need. All who were suffering and in need.

Fort Schuyler is also known by its earlier name, Fort Stanwix, in honor of Gen. John Stanwix who built it in 1758. In 1763 it was the scene of Sir William Johnson's famous treaty with the Iroquois by which he gained for the English king the title to much of what is now New York, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Kentucky. A short time later the fort was destroyed, and when it was rebuilt in 1778 it was named Fort Schuyler in honor of Gen. Philip Schuyler, the defender of the New York frontier. Late in the Revolution Fort Schuyler was destroyed by fire and was never rebuilt, but upon this historic spot another important event occurred.

In 1784 what is known as the treaty of Fort Schuyler was signed between the Iroquois and the United States and in it the six nations ceded to the United States forever their claim to the Northwest Territory, the great inland empire which now comprises Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin and Michigan.

Lesson for November 30

THE GOOD SAMARITAN

LESSON TEXT—Luke 10:25-37.

GOLDEN TEXT—Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbor as thyself.—Luke 10:27.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Story of a Good Samaritan.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Parable of the Good Samaritan.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How to Be a Good Neighbor.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Whose Neighbor Am I?

1. How to Inherit Eternal Life (vv. 25-28).

1. The Lawyer's Question (v. 25). "Lawyer" here means one versed in religious law, the Scriptures—not lawyer in our modern sense of that term. It would more nearly correspond to a theological professor. The lawyer's object was to trap Jesus—to induce Him to take such a stand as would weaken His influence as a teacher. He expected Jesus to set forth some new ceremonies which would conflict with or disprove the law.

2. Jesus' Question (v. 26). Though Jesus knew the motive of the lawyer he did not evade his question. He sent him to the law, the field which was familiar to him. He thus was robbed of his own weapon.

3. The Lawyer's Reply (v. 27). He made an intelligent answer declaring that the entire content of the law was embraced in love to God and man. This expresses the whole of human duty.

4. Jesus' Reply (v. 28). This straightforward answer went to the heart of the lawyer. Perfect love to God and man is truly the way of life. No man has yet had or can have such love. His sinful condition precludes its possibility. Man's failure to measure up to this requirement is his condemnation. The lawyer keenly felt this thrust. He was defeated on his own grounds and convicted of guilt.

11. Who Is My Neighbor? (vv. 29-37).

1. The Lawyer's Question (v. 29). This question reveals the insincerity of the lawyer. Christ's answer had reached his conscience, and now he seeks to escape the difficulty by asking a captious question. Lawyer-like he sought to get off by raising a question as to the meaning of words.

2. Jesus' Answer (vv. 30-37). This more than answered the lawyer's question. In the parable of the Good Samaritan He makes clear who is a neighbor, and also what it means to be a neighbor, or what loving a neighbor means. Christ's answer had a double meaning. He not only made clear who is my neighbor, but made it clear that the lawyer was not playing the neighbor. He thus was convicted of not having been a neighbor.

(1) Who is my neighbor? This definite and wounded man left on the highway by the robbers is the man who needs a neighbor. My neighbor, therefore, is the one who needs my help, whether he lives next door or on the other side of the world. Those who have the Spirit of Christ can see their neighbors on every hand.

(2) What being a neighbor means. Our supreme concern should not be "Who is my neighbor?" but "Whose neighbor am I?" To be a neighbor is, (a) to be on the lookout for those in need of our help (v. 33). (b) To have compassion on the needy (v. 33). Christ's compassion was aroused as He came into contact with those who were suffering and in need. All who have His nature will be likewise moved. (c) To give to those in need (v. 34). Many are willing to give money to help the poor and needy, but are unwilling to personally minister to them. Many times the personal touch is more important than the material aid. We should give ourselves as well as our money. (d) To bind up wounds (v. 34). (e) To set the helpless ones on our beasts while we walk (v. 34). This is proof that love is genuine. Christians will deny themselves in order to have something to give to those who have need. This kind of sympathy is greatly needed today. (f) To bring to the inn and take care of the unfortunate (v. 34). Genuine love does not leave its service incomplete. Much Christian service is spasmodic, helps and then leaves a man to take care of himself. (g) To give money (v. 35). It costs a good deal to be a neighbor. Love is the most expensive thing in the world. It cost God His only Son. It cost Christ His life. May we go and do likewise!

Mr. C. W. Mitchell, of Verbena, was in to see us Monday. He says that is a fact that Snallock is quite prevalent in that section, but is mostly confined to the colored folks. It also seems to be of a mild type.

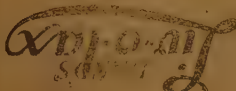

Mr. T. L. Patrick and son, Preston, of Billingsley were here Monday looking after business affairs. Mr. Patrick is a citizen of Autauga county. We regret that the Chilton county line is just this side of his home.

Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Manning, of Birmingham, were Verbena visitors Sunday.

MAIL EARLY

The Santa Early Mail campaign inaugurated by Postmaster General New last year proved to be an unqualified success. It was of great benefit to the people and also enabled post office employees to deliver all the Christmas mail before noon on December 25. The Department again this year asks the cooperation of the public in order that the record made last year may be equalled or not-exceeded.

When you shop and mail early you are helping the clerks in the post office to eat their dinners home and you are greatly benefiting yourselves. You have a greater chance to secure a better selection of gifts from the stores, you have more time to wrap the miscellany and you are sure that they will arrive at their destination in time to be opened Christmas morning. You are also relieving the burdens on the clerks behind the counters in the stores, and you are giving a practical demonstration of the good will that Christmas time signifies. Acting Postmaster General, John H. Bartlett requests that you refrain from using small envelopes in sending your Christmas cards as this very greatly retards the sorting and distribution of the mails. Let all of us pull together this year, do our shopping early and do our mailing early, let's make it genuine old-fashioned Christmas celebration.

It is to meet this very situation that I have decided to make a special effort to make the Christmas season a time of joy and peace for all.

GOLDEN RULE DAY TO AID NEAR EAST

FIVE MILLION DOLLARS NEEDED FOR REFUGEE ORPHANS UNDER AMERICAN CARE

23 INTERNATIONAL OBSERVANCE

State and County Committees Organized to Induce Success of National Wide Campaign

By HENRY M. EDMONDS
State Chairman of the Near East Relief

With the cooperation of civic and religious leaders throughout the United States, the Near East Relief has inaugurated its campaign for the second observance of International Golden Rule Sunday on December 7. The aim is to raise funds to provide for the coming year for 100,000 orphan children under American care in Bible lands. More than five million dollars is the minimum needed.

The National Golden Rule committee was organized several months ago, under the chairmanship of Cleveland H. Dodge, the well known philanthropist. An executive council is under the chairmanship of John H. Foley, formerly Commissioner of Education of New York State and now prominent as a New York editor. State and county committees are being organized throughout the United States.

Each day each year a Golden Rule day is observed as a guide to individual national and international life. It is an American ideal which has been approved and adopted by 23 nations. The day will be observed throughout Europe and in many other countries, such as Japan, Korea, and China.

Christmas, New Year, and Armistice Day have heretofore been celebrated internationally. A fifth has now been added to the list. The movement was started in America by the Near East Relief as a new, striking and intensive method of raising funds for the feeding of the children in American orphanages in Bible lands.

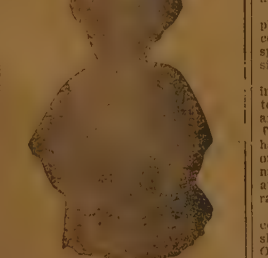

On this day—December 7—Americans are asked to eat a dinner of soup, bread and stew, or of corn grits and condensed milk, or of rice, macaroni and meat.

It is to remember that the war of the Near East Relief has only one saving grace for there is enough to allow more. They are asked to remember that these children are dying 365 days a year and they will not be able to eat and women and children are dying.

Golden Rule is a universal ideal. It is a common denominator of all religions and creeds. It is a common denominator of all races and nations. It is a common denominator of all ages and sexes. It is a common denominator of all classes and conditions.

It is a common denominator of all ages and sexes. It is a common denominator of all classes and conditions. It is a common denominator of all ages and sexes.

It is a common denominator of all ages and sexes. It is a common denominator of all classes and conditions. It is a common denominator of all ages and sexes.

You believe in the Golden Rule, don't you?

Well, whenever you would that others should do unto you, do ye even so unto them.

Here is a chance to practice it by sharing your Sunday dinner with a little orphan girl like this, who is typical of 100,000 others in the orphanages of the Near East Relief.

Send your gift a little less on December 7, and send what you have and as much more as you can give.

Chicago Show Exhibits for Dixie Automobile Show

DIXIE AUTOMOBILE SHOW

DEC. 1 to 6

BIRMINGHAM

Birmingham.—New automobile accessories shown at the Automotive Equipment Show in Chicago last week have been secured for the Dixie Automobile Show, which is to be held at the Municipal Auditorium December 1 to 6. Samuel G. Neuberger, manager of the Interstate Electric Company, one of the local houses which will exhibit at the show, has returned from Chicago with the information that some of the most attractive exhibits seen there will be duplicated here.

The Christmas gift idea will be emphasized in the display of these accessories, and the newest thing in spot lights, electric cigar lighters and similar accessories will be shown.

An air compressor with glass housing instead of steel, so that the interior workings will be visible, is among the Chicago exhibits secured. The Interstate Company will also have and electric testing bench, in order to demonstrate how tests are made for all electrical trouble in an automobile, including starters, generators and charging systems.

Late bumper models and other accessories secured from the Chicago show and also from the recent New Orleans exhibit held by the Interstate Electric Company will be displayed, and there will be a comprehensive exhibit of modern garage equipment.

Entertainment Features
Special entertainment acts are being booked through the leading vaudeville agencies for the Dixie Automobile Show, and Napp's orchestra has been engaged to furnish continuous music.

A miniature model of WTAM, Cleveland's largest broadcasting station, will be one of the features of the radio exhibits to be offered in the Dixie Automobile Show.

In the accessories division of the show, Birmingham dealers who handle radio as well as automobile supplies will have complete and in-

MAKE NO COMPROMISES

Governor Bryan of Nebraska, who was on the Davis ticket for vice president, is out in a statement regarding reorganizing the democratic party that is utterly and irrevocably opposed to any plan of that kind.

His proposition is that we go to work and frame up a general compromise agreement with all of the disgruntled elements of the country. Absorb them bodily by adding all of the fads and issues that each group of insurgents, socialist and soviet have been able to invent to our platform and then go before the people with a crazy patchwork platform like that and ask their support.

Such a policy would be equally as shameful and insane as the monumental farce we attempted to pull off this year.

The real, unadulterated principles of Jeffersonian democracy do not need any kind of bolstering up nor amending to make it appeal to the masses. It is the complete and perfect will of the people as it stands. Any compromise with any party or parties is always a diastrophic thing to democracy because it already covers the whole fabric of pure freedom and stands as one as the only hope of a government of, by and for the people. Go back to fundamentals. Make no concessions to any one. Preach, teach and live the pure gospel of democracy is inculcated into the party by those who died that its principles might exist, prosper and be happy under the benign protection of its ideal system of government.

The fundamental light of this great party has been dimmed by the rule of the teachers, smothered by the selfish greed of professional politicians. All it needs to sweep the world under its protecting mantle, is a fair and square teaching of its real fundamental principles to the masses. It is primarily their own party and the only one that has ever sprung in to existence that even professed to be the friend of all the people.

Whenever the real producers of this country—the farmers, the laboring class and all the people who really produce our wealth, take time from their labors to study their actual conditions and needs under their government, then there will be a spontaneous and natural turning to the democratic faith, because it is the very essence of what freedom to all means, and provides for the actual people, not for a certain number of predatory interests.

What the democratic party needs is to absolutely eliminate the thirst for self, to ignore the call of any and all special interests, and to get right back down on the fundamental principles upon which it was founded and let the masses see and know what impartial government means.

The South, the West, the North West and the Middle West is where the real wealth producers of our country live and they are the people who should unite their political energies into a solid phalanx under the common banner of democratic self government, and dictate such policies as will recognize the masses and not the classes.

This is the logical field in which to plant the democratic standard and these are the people who needs must save this country from foreign domination if it is saved. The north and east are already gone. They have become a foreign colony, so far as the deals of American freedom are concerned. The agricultural and laboring people must combine, or the rest of the country will go the same way.

There is no place for a democracy to exist in New York, nor any where else on the "down east" coastal country. The foreigner has that section sewed up, and even now, that same foreign element, with its money power, is making the laws under which we all have to exist.

ALABAMA NEWS HAPPENINGS

A Resume of the More Important Events of Interest Condensed To An Extremized Form.

Coming as an unexpected bombshell in the testimony being presented in the sensational murder trial at Anniston of Bud Thompson and his son, Irvin Thompson, charged with the death of Lawrence Curd, young Ragland business man, the 18-year-old youth took the stand and absolved his father of all blame in connection with the fatal shot and admitted shooting Curd, as the man was alleged to have been reaching for a gun with which to shoot the elder Thompson.

Dr. S. W. Welch, State health officer, has been notified that the Jackson County Court of County Commissioners has voted unanimously to establish a county health unit with an all-time county health officer effective January 1. An appropriation of $5,000 has been made by the county for the purpose. Jackson County will be the twenty-fifth county in the State to organize with an all-time county health officer.

The Farley W. Moody post of the American Legion at Tuscaloosa recommended to the executive committee that the likeness of General Gorgas, chief of ordinance of the Confederate Army for four years, be placed on the Stone Mountain memorial at a recent meeting. The matter will now be taken up by the committee for consideration.

The State Department of Archives and History at Montgomery has acquired under the will of Mrs. J. S. Johnson, of Talladega, paintings comprising copies of old world masters, the value of which is estimated at several thousand dollars. The paintings will be placed in the capitol, to await the erection of a memorial building, which it is hoped will be built later.

State law enforcement officer, Kyle Young, believes he and officers Gilbert and Gore broke all records, in the size and contents of distilling outfit captured, when they raided and destroyed three mammoth stills nine miles south of Glendon, in Russell County last week. Two of the stills were of 2,500 gallon capacity each, and the other was of 1,800 gallon capacity.

W. E. Meyers, former Mobile court bailiff, convicted last March in the Circuit Court of attempting to bribe a juror in the first trial of the murder case of Thomas W. Cleveland, and sentenced to a term of not less than four years or more than five, must begin his term within fifteen days. Notice that the Supreme Court had affirmed the decision of the lower court has been received in Mobile.

Riley Cheatham, negro, accused of having caused the death of George McCain, another negro, in a fight in a boat in the Tennessee River, near Finley's Island, when the boat turned over and several negro occupants were drowned, was found guilty of second degree murder in Circuit Court at Decatur and given 25 years in the penitentiary.

Speaking at the National Educational Week program of the Auburn Lions Club, Dr. Spright Dowell, president of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, declared that despite Alabama's high rank in potential natural resources she stands almost at the bottom of the list of States in the support of public education, and in the percentage of illiteracy.

Silas Blankenship, 16, has been sentenced to life imprisonment by Judge James E. Horton, of Morgan County Circuit Court. Blankenship pleaded guilty before Judge Horton at Decatur to the murder of Robert Tosh, 50, October 28, at a blacksmith shop, said to have been owned and operated by Tosh.

Head of a dog sent in by Dr. J. H. Hastie, of Stockton, was examined at the State laboratory and showed the animal was rabid. Three persons were reported to have been bitten.

Lieutenant Tarkington in charge of the Tuscaloosa Salvation Army has left for New York. While there he will attend an important conference in regard to the work of the Salvation Army.

Sale of a lot of 50-foot frontage at Anniston for $20,000, or an average of $400 a front foot, was the outstanding transaction of an auction held there by the Anniston Land Company.

"Illiteracy Day" was observed at the State Normal School at Troy, November 18, at the assembly exercises.

Senator Hefflin Leads Ticket

United States Senator J. Thomas Hefflin ran several thousand votes ahead of the rest of the Democratic ticket at the general election November 4, according to official figures from the office of the Secretary of State. Senator Hefflin received 123,363 votes, while Frank S. Lathrop, his Republican opponent, received 38,881.

For Associate Justice of the Supreme Court, Judge A. D. Sayre received 118,558 votes and Judge Virgil Bouldin 118,749, while the Republican candidates for the Supreme Court, Judge Philip P. B. Alexander and John B. Isbell, received 38,019 and 39,710, respectively. For Judge of the Court of Appeals, Judge Henry B. Foster received 118,582 votes, and his Republican opponent, J. I. Abercrombie, 38,578. I. T. Quinn received a vote of 118,973 for Commissioner of Game and Fisheries, and J. B. Slater, Republican, 38,526. A. G. Patterson, re-elected president of the Alabama Public Service Commission, received 118,319 votes, and J. I. McKinney, Republican candidate, 38,507 votes.

The congressional races, where in all contested races the Democrats were victorious over Republican opponents, showed the following results: First district, John McDuffie, 9,932; Frank J. Thompson, 1,604; Third district, Henry B. Stegall, 10,425; Carlos E. Roberts, 1,457; Fourth district, Lamar Jeffers, 9,945; J. O. Middleton, 3,208; Fifth district, W. D. Bowling, 10,744; J. C. Walker, 2,530; Seventh district, M. C. Allgood, 15,864; B. S. Cooley, 11,987; Eighth district, Ed Almon, 13,353; G. M. Huckabee, 3,040; Tenth district, W. B. Bankhead, 11,394; W. A. McMurray, 7,706. The other three Democratic congressmen had no opposition, J. Lister Hill, Second district, receiving 15,066 votes; W. B. Oliver, Sixth district, 6,872 and George Huddleston, Ninth, 18,958.

Merging Their Interests

By GRIMBALL AVERY

"ALL aboard," shouted the conductor as the "Florida Limited" stood ready to leave New York.

"Hey, there, hold that train a second," yelled an excited but handsome man as he came trudging along the platform with six small children.

John Chapman had just finished landing the six small children, when the conductor called out: "Hurry up there, we've got to pull out. Here, porter, give him a lift with his excess baggage."

By the time the train had reached Philadelphia Chapman was actually dozing off to sleep. His nap, however, was soon interrupted, when a jolly prosperous looking business man greeted him with a healthy and vigorous slap on the shoulder.

"Why, hello, Chapman! What are you doing here? It's been years and years since I saw you last. What are all these children?"

Fifteen years before Chapman had roomed with Henry Smyser. He had joined the same fraternity at Ringer college, had played football with him, and had wooed the same girl.

"What's wrong with you, Chapman?" asked Smyser.

"I lost my wife about two years ago, but before I start, let me ask you a serious question. Are you married and have you any encumbrances?"

"No, I didn't marry that college widow we were both so daft about; she's still trisking around roping in the freshmen. There isn't any progeny to perpetuate my glorious name. But I want to hear how the world has been mistreating you."

As Chapman began to reply his twins started bawling. With a look of despair he opened a large suitcase, a drug store and a great deal more like a nursery, brought out a big, free-for-all milk bottle and after having abated the children's clamor, the father gave a long sigh, then with tears in his eyes began again: "Smyser, I don't know how to begin to tell you all I've been through since my wife died and left me all these six children on my hands."

Smyser meditated for several moments. Here was a chance to get revenge for the time Chapman had played on him the night of the graduation dance. Never had he forgotten the time Chapman had poured tobacco sauce into his dancing pumps.

"Why don't you get a good nurse?" he ventured casually.

"Oh, tell me something new! Haven't I had hundreds of nurses already and they always leave me in the lurch?"

"That being the case," interrupted Smyser in a tone of profound wisdom, "then I have a better idea. What you need is a good wife—one that is highly domestic."

"That's not very encouraging, for no woman in her senses will have me."

"Old man," began Smyser gravely. "You are too quick to throw up the sponge. Right now I know a charming young widow at Palm Beach, and I'm sure you two would harmonize. I'd go in for her myself, but she adores tall men, and will not look at short men like myself. We'll have to side-track the idea till you've landed her. I'll keep them for you in some near-by town. Is it a go?"

Chapman was "game."

When they reached the famous resort Smyser played his part as a matchmaker admirably. Seldom in the varied history of knot-tying had a couple been so irrespectably drawn together. They decided to get married and leave at once for her native home in Georgia.

Smyser had consented to go on ahead and gather up Chapman's children, who had been interned at Jacksonville during the diplomatic negotiations, and take them with him to Atlanta, so that the bride would not hear of their existence till she reached her home town.

Two days later Chapman and his pretty bride were on their way to Georgia.

On alighting at Atlanta they had taken but a few steps when Smyser walked up with all of the waiting brood.

"Oh, papa, is this our lovely new mamma you said was so beautiful?" called out Chapman's eldest.

Mrs. Chapman simply beamed and looked surprised, then ran to meet an excited old black mammy, who came hobbling toward her with six other children swarming around her.

"Howdy, Miss Jenny! I see you children ter see yo'; I done brung all yo' chil'luns to show 'em to their new daddy."

Before the grinning nurse could say more, the children were hugging their mother. Then spying their newly acquired father, one of the oldest said: "Is this our papa? He is mighty handsome, just as you wrote."

To his intense delight, his bride leaned down and kissed each one of his little darlings. Never had they seemed so entirely angelic as now. She exclaimed cheerily: "Oh, how I shall love them because they are yours. We've both had such a surprise! They won't be one bit more trouble, for mammy will take perfect care of them as she does of mine, and we'll go right on and finish our wedding tour, won't we, John, dear?"

No one even thought of poor discomfited Smyser. He crawled off to a far corner, and as he watched the happy couple getting in the pullman he muttered to himself: "Well, if that wasn't a regular boomerang, I'll know myself if I ever try again to get even with John Chapman!"

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best—Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says, "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments, corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by parcel post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores.—Advertisement.

CHILTON COUNTY NEWS

VOLUME 4.

CLANTON, ALABAMA, NOVEMBER 20, 1924.

REPORTS DIFFER

So far as we know personally the county road question is one that we can not pass on, for it is a very rare thing when we get out of the office long enough to see any thing except the paved sidewalks in town, but we hear many reports from those who travel the roads and these reports are always more or less conflicting.

Some people will tell you that the county roads are fine and in good condition and that getting over them with their cars is a pleasure. Then, perhaps, the next man you interview will go almost in to hard fists trying to tell you how perfectly awful they are. So that is that.

One point, however, that all parties agree about is, that the R. & M. highway, from here to below Marbury, is so absolutely deplorable that in language, void of intentional probability, can give you even a faint conception of how terrible this road is.

If the authorities are waiting for the new highway to replace this one, and on that account are not keeping it in better fix, they certainly began to wait too soon, for even with good luck, if we ever get that highway at all, it will be at least three years before it can be opened to travel, and in the meantime, traffic will still be moving, and cars will be going to pieces right on over the present road.

On the other hand, it looks now like the letting of this, or any other road contract, will depend on whether or not the Governor calls the legislative body together and then whether or not they will call a bond election, and then whether or not the people will vote $750,000 more road bonds, and in our opinion, that last proposition is a very doubtful one.

So, if this section of road is half as bad as it is represented, then we believe the county authorities should order it closed with out delay. It is worse than foolish to wait for the new one.

FATAL ACCIDENT

A most sad accident occurred at the saw mill of Mr. W. A. Reynolds, in the northern part of the county, Tuesday afternoon.

A Mr. Bud Headley, who was a lumberman, was in the woods loading his day. A tree that had been cut and lodged and had been there for some time. He was loading under this tree when a sudden puff of wind came and dislodged the tree and it fell, striking his head and shoulder and killing him instantly.

Some log cutters who saw the sad fatality, called to him to look out. He glanced up but must have mistook the way the tree was falling, for in his effort to escape he got directly under it and was crushed to death as related.

The remains passed through town yesterday morning and were buried near his old home. He leaves a wife and several small children. It is said to have been about 35 years of age.

NOTICE

To All Rural Patrons of Clanton Post Office

Clanton, Ala., Nov. 20, 1924.
To the Farmers' Union, on Rural Routes, from Clanton, Ala.

The act of Congress, approved March 3, 1919, directs that there be a census of agriculture for the year 1924. This purpose has been fulfilled by a supply of blank schedules and has been directed to have the rural letter carriers from Clanton, Ala., place one copy of this schedule in the mail box of each farmer or in some way see that it is delivered to the farmer, on or before November 15, 1924.

Within a few days there will be placed in each box on each mail route from Clanton, Ala., a blank form sent out by the Bureau of the Census. Patrons receiving the blank form will please read carefully that each one may be prepared to give the information desired when an enumerator calls at the home to take the census. The blank must not be mailed or returned to the carrier. The persons receiving the forms may prepare them and have them ready when the enumerator calls, if they will.

I am giving this notice that if farmers may be prepared when an enumerator calls, and I hope each farmer receiving a blank to be filled out and given to an enumerator will give his cooperation in this matter.

Very truly,
W. M. BEAN, P. M.

GOING TO BUILD

Mr. R. Q. Wade tells us that he is planning to build a new building, intended for erecting two new buildings, which, in one corner of the town, now occupied by Mr. Hugh Jones and his wife.

This will complete that block on the north side of Second avenue and will be a splendid addition to the downtown area.

These two buildings, made of modern apartment house on the upper floor, which, in one corner of the town, now occupied by Mr. Hugh Jones and his wife.

The days come and go but Clanton grows right on, and we are sure, in summer.

IT IS TIME FOR THE DEMOCRACY TO STUDY WHY IT DOES NOT HAVE GREATER STRENGTH

There are many witty and sometimes acidulous W. C. Batchelor, of The Dathan Eagle, had a paragraph in his very readable column of observations in the issue of November 11:

"Each defeat stirs the democrats on to still greater ones."

If, in the course of nearly sixty years the Democracy has been able only once to get a popular majority—which Tilden had—and to elect only two individuals, Cleveland and Wilson, president, albeit each was re-elected, the latter by the skin of his teeth. Had it not been for the Solid South, which formed the backbone and the dependable strength to coalesce around after each defeat, the Party would probably have passed out of existence—and every man who thinks honestly will admit it was not wholly the principle of Jefferson which held the South solid, but the negro question.

The Republicans have elected Grant, Hayes, Garfield, Harrison, McKinley, Roosevelt, Taft, Harding and Coolidge since 1868—serving 43 of the 59 years. The Democrats have elected Cleveland for two terms and Wilson for two terms, 16 years out of the 59.

If a business man selling goods made no better headway than the Democratic Party has made selling its principles to the nation, he would undertake rather a minute analysis of the underlying trouble.

Whether the Party leaders will undertake such a study is problematical. It is rather a custom to heap abuse upon anyone who calls attention to the facts or questions time-honored ideas. The cold fact remains that the Party has not been able to convince the majority of voters in the United States that it is the party to be entrusted with the affairs of government, except for sixteen years out of fifty-nine.

Where is the defect? What is the trouble? Why do the voters prefer the Republican Party? Isn't it time to begin to ascertain the cause of these disappointing handicaps the reason that induces millions of American voters to reject the Democratic Party?

All those who vote the Republican ticket cannot have been bought; all of them are certainly not venal; all of them assuredly are not under the domination of "the interests" nor are they taking orders from predatory wealth.

Is not the difficulty more that Democracy has itself departed from the Jeffersonian fundamentals, and listened to the voice of bloated and selfish groups? The decay began when Democracy made common cause with Populism, at which time Bryan gained ascendancy. Since that time it has appeared that the conventions were concerned with fundamental principle, than with gaining the allegiance of the other or the other bloc or group, and catering to them.

Has been framed with expediency, and not as the first consideration. Too much attention has been paid to visionaries, experimenters and schemers or some way, business has come to be afraid of the Democratic Party and the voters who are dependent upon business for their livelihood, continue to smother the Democratic national tickets under growing avalanches of votes. Is it not time to be honest with ourselves and take stock?—Birmingham News.

A sign of THANKSGIVINGS
The other day we saw Mr. R. in preparing to ship several crates of antiquated roosters and we realized at once that Thanksgiving day is almost at hand.

It is a good idea to have a turkey gobbler, a small pair will glitter with gold and silver, while his resolute will be the prattle of human gormands, who in his honest asunder by main strength will devour the hostess what a turkey gobbler she had served.

A new sign to a community of good people to quiet your conscience, but what about the streets, who do not know how to unravel the red tape and who would probably starve to death if they had to live on a sign.

WISE TO STUDY THE QUESTION

A good roads organization is going to work to educate the people on the subject of good road building.

This is a wise step, for none of us know any too much about that subject.

Large bond issues and five cent gasoline tax sounds sorter frightful to the average man, but this question is like a great many others. It really has two sides to it, and maybe it will be well for us all to look in to it from several different angles.

It is claimed that when the new paved highway is completed from here to Birmingham that you can save two thirds of your gas in driving there and return, in comparison with what you now. You will save an equal percent on the wear and tear of your car and your time will be cut about in half.

Of course, this same saving would apply to any road of like nature you might travel any where. On this basis, it is very easy to see where all auto drivers will save money enough in their daily routine to much more than take care of their part of the increased taxation, that will guarantee to good roads.

A road need not be paved to make of it a great money saver. From what we know of the kind of roads we have always been used to, it is a matter to see how much can be saved even on a graded and graveled road.

It will doubtless be a year at least before any other taxing or bonding proposition is put before the people, and, in the meantime, we feel like it is the duty of every good citizen to study the question and make up his mind carefully as to what he individually believes will be for the best interests of his state in the future.

W. O. W. THANKSGIVING SUPPER

On the afternoon of Thanksgiving day, the W. O. W. will give a public supper at the Lodge Hall in Thorsby at 5 o'clock sharp.

Everyone are most cordially invited to come out and bring a good fat basket. You do not have to belong to the Order to be welcome. Come and let's have a good time together.

GO TO IT

Night Captain Curlee has been mixing it pretty liberally with traffic law violators here lately.

The down town skating nuisance has about disappeared and several auto maniacs have had business with the Mayor that required a cash deposit.

HARVESTING ABOUT COMPLETE

Due to the courtesy of Mr. H. B. Koper, who is government inspector for the county tick eradication, we had the pleasure of a most delightful trip up in the northwestern part of the county last Saturday.

From what we could see and learn, harvesting of the crops of 1924 are about completed in that section. Some few potato patches were still to be dug and a very few cane patches were still standing, but a very large majority of this work has already been finished.

The sugar cane, potato, bean, peanut and pea crop is said to have been seriously cut off by the dry fall, but the yield of cotton was so much better than was commonly looked for that no one is seriously hurt.

One disastrous thing we noticed was, that great areas of wood and pasture land had been allowed to burn off and in some places these burned land fires were still prevailing. This is a thing that should be rigidly attended to, for a fire in the timbered lands in a dry season like we have been experiencing, kills so much young timber that the future loss is terrible. Besides, a burnt over pasture now is utterly ruined as a winter grazing place for stock.

There is a heavy penalty for letting brush get out at this season and some law enforcement along that line would do good.

FIDDLERS CONTEST

At Maplesville High School, on Thanksgiving night, Nov. 27, come and hear the fiddlers from Bibb, Chilton, Autauga and Dallas counties.

CRIMINAL COURT LAST WEEK

Judge Smoot and his jury last week were out for strict business and they made a wonderful record, not only in the amount of work they disposed of, but also in the character of the work done.

Something like 100 cases were tried. A few were continued, but the majority went through the mill and were disposed of.

Many convictions resulted and in every case, Judge Smoot recognized the majesty of the law in passing sentence and no culprit failed to realize the fact that he had been in a court after the Judge got through with him.

Some of the cases of more than cursory interest to the public are cited below.

Steve Dutton, Mfg. liquor and having a still. Sentence, one year and a day to 13 months.

Harley Smith, same offense and sentence.

Robt. Harris, second degree murder. Sentence, one year and a day. D. Igo, Forfeit of bond and costs $75.00.

Oscar Giles, V. P. L. Jury and verdict of guilty with fine of $250, sentenced by court, for fine to county 90 days. For cost to county 83 days. State 6 months at hard labor. Appealed. Bond 1000.

Gus Wallace, Mfg. liquor and having a still. Sentence 18 months to 2 years. Appealed. Bond $1000.

Frank Thomas, Grand larceny, sentence 2 to 3 years.

George Haddley, Mfg. liquor and having a still, sentence from 2 to 3 years.

Marshall Headley, same offense. Sentence 1 year and 1 day, to 13 months.

Roy Clayton, carnal knowledge, Verdict guilty, sentence 5 years.

Calvin McNeal, Grand larceny, guilty. Sentence 2 to 3 years.

T. S. Peavey, V. P. L. 20 day fine and 137 days cost to county. Sentence 3 months appealed.

Millard Ratliff, Mfg. liquor and having a still, 18 months to 2 years. Appeal. Bond $1000.

This is only a few of the better known cases. Some 17 of the offenders have already taken up their quarters in prison.

Judge Smoot is the most loudly praised man now in Chilton that we have heard of lately. His court is indeed a place of business.

A LEMON DELUGE

Last Friday there was a circus come to town.

The people must have been famishing for the sight of the saw du and a sight of a clown, for they poured out in throngs, with their babies and all, to see this old stunt pulled off again.

From what we can learn the rampant fakers and the price of admission that grew larger and larger as you went in, were the only things attached to this outfit that even reminded one of a circus.

There is only one feature connected with this particular circus that we could conscientiously endorse and that was the fact, that they did not punish you very long after the shearing. They allowed you to escape in a very few moments after they got what you had. This was very fortunate for that performance would produce death from pure boredom if it had lasted long.

The good folks of Clanton and vicinity are hard to convince if that circus experience don't last them the balance of their natural lives.

GOWAN ADDITION STILL BUILDING

In addition to several other new residences just going up, Mr. C. F. Jones is now having his bungalow erected down there as an investment.

Mr. J. C. Jones is just completing two lovely homes on South Second avenue down there which were already under lease before completion.

Besides these, three or four others are going up in that beautiful annex to the city and that is rapidly shaping itself in to one of the real beauty spots of Clanton.

SOME MORE MOVING

The Farmers Co-operative Association have moved their place of business one door south from its former place, into the building recently vacated by Mr. Hugh Jones.

Dr. J. P. Hayes has moved his office back into the place vacated by the Farmers, where it was formerly located before he moved to "Dicks' Place."

The increasing business down at the Drug Store crowded him out there. You can all find him now back at his old home when you want him.

STRAY NOTICE

Strayed from my home about November 1, one Brindle male calf, Weigh about 20 or 25 pounds to the pound. Notify, J. L. Dupree, Clanton, Route 2.

Governor Brandon will not call the legislature until September. By that time we will probably find that we do not need an extra session.

You don't have to agree with what we say in this column if you don't want to. This is our say. You can have yours if you care to.

It looks like the records of the recent court would cause law breakers to sit up and take notice. Look at that pitiful bunch that boarded the train for prison last Saturday evening. Did it not make your heart ache.

The Connecting Link

YESTERDAYS:

We rode in wagons.
Plowed with oxen—
Harvested with the cradle—
Threshed with the flail—
Read by candle light—

TODAYS:

We ride in automobiles and airplanes—
Uplift the fields with tractors—
Harvest and thresh with the same operation—

Read and acquire knowledge by electric light and radio.
Education has Developed our Yesterdays into Todays.

If there are schools and communities which are still in their Yesterdays educationally because of lack of facilities, such as TRAINED TEACHERS, modern building, adequate equipment, improper safeguards and concern for Health, Moral, Thrift, Safety and Citizenship, then these conditions exist because of lack of local initiative and sentiment.

Such handicaps is unfair to the child, unnatural to the ambitions of parenthood and un-American in its very existence.
In the gratitude of your prosperity, let your inquiring mind determine the Educational opportunity of your community and pledge your influence and support to officials that your schools may be placed in the very Today of Todays and ready to meet the demands of the Tomorrows.

PERHAPS A SPECIAL SESSION

Governor Brandon has seen fit to couple with his suggestion of a possible special session a contingency that throws upon the people a certain responsibility in connection therewith. Governor Brandon explicitly says that the submission to a special session of measures providing additional appropriations for highways and schools depends upon the discovery by highway and school leaders of sources of additional revenue for such purposes. It is valuable to the governor, no doubt, for him to receive recommendations and suggestions, but he alone is governor and he is the man who was elected on a platform of tax reduction and more liberal provision for schools. To be sure, many thoughtful people did not believe in the possibility of decreasing taxes in the face of the growing responsibilities of a state which already has about the lowest tax rate in the United States. But the people did confidently expect the governor to redeem his pledge with respect to education.

What the people would appreciate as much as anything else would be a complete report of the financial condition and the expenditures since the beginning of the Brandon administration. The people would like this report made on the regular revenues separately from the special road and port funds. Previous reports lumping these special funds in with the regular expenditures have been confusing as well as incomplete. The people would like an accounting which would analyze the increase in regular revenues and would give in detail the respect and directions in which the expenditures have increased. The revenues are very much greater now than in the preceding administration. Why, the people would like to know is the apparent financial status so much worse? How could the preceding administration pay off so much old indebtedness and put us on a cash basis, and still show a working balance, when the present administration finds itself in difficulties as respects regular expenses?

The people would like to know how much the state has lost, if anything, through the scrapping of the former tax machinery and the abolishment of the board of economy and control. In other words, the purchasing department? Such questions are not to be misunderstood as partaking of the nature of heckling. On the contrary, they are things the people have a valid right to know. The governor says that there is need of more money for certain important purposes. The people do not deny the importance of these purposes, nor that additional funds are needed. They do not deny, neither do they affirm, because they do not know. But they do know that they have a right to ask and to receive a full accounting of the stewardship to date, before there is action looking to the increase of state revenues. This accounting could easily be made without delay and would be a firm basis for the construction of public opinion in this important matter—the public business. —Age-Herald.

CARD OF THANKS

To the voters of Clanton County.
I desire to express my many thanks for your support in the recent election as I had such a short time in which to work I do not feel that I had a fair chance, again thanking you for your support I remain
Yours truly

IT IS TO BE LET

Assurances are still being given to that the new issue of road bond will have nothing to do with the completion of the State Highway through our county.

This project has already been passed and is taken care of by the present money on hand. It is gratifying to learn this, if they will let the project start and start to work everything will be forgiven.

What we all want to see is actual work begun. We do not know what is holding up the work but they assure us it is not a lack of funds.

Mr. Hugh Foshee was a visitor to the Capital City last Sunday.

FOOT BALL FRIDAY

Chilton Hi plays the famous University Hi from Birmingham Friday November 21.

This is one of the fastest and best teams in the state and will certainly be a good game. They have Mike Craven, who has not been stopped this year. Lets see what he will do when he hits Chilton's line.

It is urged of every foot ball fan to go down next Friday and see this game, as it will cost a good deal to get this team to come down here and if they do not have the support of all fans, they will not be able to pay the bill.

GLAD TO HEAR IT

Dr. Wilkerson has been sent back to Clanton, by the Conference for another year.

To many of us this is an especially pleasant piece of news for we have learned to know and love him as a fearless and faithful preacher, a most delightful friend and a valuable citizen.

BACK AGAIN

After two or three years of absence from Clanton, Mr. Phillips, of Tuscaloosa, is back again for the fall and winter trade in our town with a large stock of clothing, shoes and furnishings.

You will find him this time located in the store recently vacated by Mr. Joe Littlejohn, over on west second avenue.

ON THE ROAD

Dr. Ezell, pastor of the Baptist church, is out this week in a campaign covering the churches of the Unity Association.

They are working up a more systematic method of cooperation among the churches and introducing some uniform plans of work for the new year.

BACK FROM FLORIDA

Mr. G. W. Willis, and family, Route 1, Clanton, have just returned from an auto trip to Florida.

They had a most delightful trip in their Ford and had no car trouble at all, not even a puncture.

He says the roads, after he got out of Clanton are fine. The dry spell also extends all the way about like it is here.

They visited Panama City on their trip and were much pleased with the outlook there.

Justice sometimes travels slow, but it is one of the surest things of life.

Auto Chassis of Gold Planned As Feature of Dixie Auto Show

To Furnish Music For The Auto Show

SIGNOR WILLIAM NAPPI
Nappi and his famous jazz orchestra have been engaged to furnish the music for the Dixie Automobile Show, which will be held at the new Birmingham Auditorium the first week in December. Signor Nappi last year was featured on the leading vaudeville circuit, in association with the "Circus Parade" and the "Famous Congress Hotel, Chicago. His orchestra will furnish continuous music during the Automobile Show, and there will be a variety of other amusements.

Birmingham—Co-operation of automobile manufacturers with local dealers will make the Dixie Automobile show, Birmingham, December 1 to 6, an event that will vie in interest with the big shows at New York and Chicago. It is announced by G. P. Caldwell, managing director of the exposition to be held here the first week in December at the Auditorium, that Birmingham exhibitors have been promised a number of interesting features.

The cut-out chassis displaying the inner workings of motor cars, and perhaps a gold-plated chassis displayed at the big national shows, will be secured for Birmingham's event. If the efforts of dealers here are successful in addition there will be special "paint jobs" showing the progress made in decorative improvement, and other instructive features.

Continuous music will be furnished during the show by Nappi's jazz orchestra.

chostra, and Manager Caldwell is negotiating for other entertainment features.

Radio fans, as well as present and prospective automobile owners, will find the show of special interest, inasmuch as there will be a number of radio exhibits displaying up-to-the-minute improvements in wireless accessories.

Fifty Types of Autos

All space has been contracted for in the motor car division of the show, in which more than 50 types of automobiles will be displayed, and Manager Caldwell is busy now accepting reservations for the accessories section, in which there will be over thirty booths.

Birmingham will have a clear field in the South this year with her first interstate automobile show. It is said for the reason that there will be no Southeastern Show at Atlanta. Reports from Alabama towns, as well as from other States, indicate that there will be many out-of-town motorists in Birmingham for the occasion. It will also be an opportunity for visitors to do some early Christmas shopping in Birmingham, and merchants are planning to offer special shopping week attractions.

Alabama's 154,000 automobile owners and her hundreds of thousands of prospective automobile owners will assure the success of the Dixie Automobile Show, but it is proposed to make it something bigger than a State event according to T. B. McCarty, president of the Birmingham Motor Trade Association, which is sponsoring the exposition.

Alabama Leads All States

"The figures recently published showing that Alabama leads all States of the Union in increase of automobile ownership during the past 12 months indicate that this State should be second to none as far as interest in automobiles is concerned," said Mr. McCarty. "We are confident that the Dixie Automobile Show is going to be as big and as successful as some of the best that Atlanta has had—and some of the 'Southeastern' shows held there have been good ones."

"We have every reason to believe that the Motor Event of Dixie will be entirely successful, from the standpoint of attendance, excellence of exhibits and every other angle."

Mr. McCarty is chairman of the Motor Trade Association Committee, co-operating with G. P. Caldwell, secretary-manager, in arrangements for the show. His associates on the committee are H. E. Blissett, P. H. McCortrick, C. W. Drannen, Ted Brownell, A. R. Pryor, W. S. Edwards and Douglass Kirkpatrick.

This is primarily the day of the Good morals, brains and character don't count any more.

Thursday November 27- today one week- is Thanksgiving day. Get the old rooster ready.

By the time the moonshiner is served there wont be "long sweetening" enough left to eat with one biscuit.

Prespective candidates for governor are getting as thick now as an average blackberry crop.

Strat something new. Airplanes are a back number and radios are getting common as pig tracks.

It looks like there might be danger of making the "water of life" a luxury instead of a free dispensation of grace

Wonder where the weather man expects to go when he dies. He must have a license for lying.

Prepare yourself now for a total eclipse of the sun on January 24. If it don't report on time its just another mistake of the weather man.

In a free country every sane person is entitled to have his own opinion. This does not apply to America, of course.

We used to refer to a good time as being a "regular hog killing time." Now it costs you about 50 cents per pound to participate in one.

We are paying war time prices again for rations. Meatless and wheat less days will come again now without government order

The great war started up this perctual "drive" idea. Now it looks like it will take another war to break it up.

"Drives are becoming so very numerous these days that it looks like there are more "drivers" than there are people to be driven.

Put up a dirty tent and rattle a tin pan. And you can gather all the spare change in this prosperous land.

Prosperity to the favored few is indeed rampant now, but many a hungry laboring man will rise up and call Coolidge and his crowd cursed.

A person will be more miserably condemned now for standing up for the right than for almost anything else we know of Several of the Coolidge cabinet have decided to quit him. Wonder if he has given it out that he intended to have a house cleaning.

A preacher who can thank God for the social conditions that prevail among the young people in this day in time, must have been a strange thing, ly blind during the world war.

In another column we print an editorial from the Birmingham News that is well worth reading. They see the future of the democratic party like we do.

Don't back bite a person until you have all the facts. If he is a big man he might beat you up and if he is a little fellow he might catch you in a lie.

Wonder if the old diet of "roots and branch water" has advanced out of reach in price also. Guess it has, though, as most all the branches have dried up.

Montgomery is commercializing their charity again this year. About two years ago they had a statement out down there, from one of those interested, that only 25 cents in the dollar got to the poor. It took 75 cents to run the machine.

A radio is no respecter of persons. It will sing just as sweet and talk just as big in the hovel of the negro laborer as in the palace of the millionaire. It must be a really democratic instrument.

The Russian and Argentine wheat crops were reported about 30 days ago as being the largest ever harvested. Now flour has gone up $3.00 per barrel and they say the world is short on wheat.

IT WON'T WORK

There is one constantly recurring phenomenon in the affairs of men that has been demonstrated so often that it looks like its evil lessons would have been learned long ago and discarded by all sane people

That is that no movement or enterprise can ever thrive, or even survive long, unless it works together harmoniously for the common end desired.

Way back when we were a mere boy the old Farmers Grange swept the section where we lived to almost a man. And it was, and would be today, an organization of much merit and one that had incorporated in its plan a system that would have been a benefit to all honest mankind.

It flourished like a green bay tree for a season, then from the inside it began to rot. Sharp and selfish tricksters schemed into control. Politicians began to play it up. Before the rank and file knew what had happened, it was robbed by its trusted servants, dragged by ambitious seekers after office, rendered assunder and bankrupted by its "higher ups" and then buried in the grave where so many of our fond hopes and dreams are interred.

Next came that great and meritorious organization known as the "Farmers Alliance." This was something a little similar to the Grange, but its founders tried very hard to eliminate the evils that swallowed up their first farmers organization.

It swept the country down there. We built a big Alliance cotton warehouse in our town, and opened up the largest general mercantile business that had ever been in that entire section of country. We had to employ people to conduct these places of business and, what appeared to be, the most efficient men in our county organization were put in charge. For a short time everything was pretty good. I was in that county, and gave them a full page every week as their own organ for the Alliance, which was controlled and edited by the county president.

Of course, every thing in that section, Southwest Georgia, was democratic, and the candidate put out at the conventions by that party was elected. Our president decided to run for the legislature and canvassed the county, fore and aft, but he was really not a competent man for the place so the convention failed to nominate him.

He then undertook to run as an "Alliance" candidate any how. That split the order wide open and when he began to make his canvass mainly among the negroes, who could vote then, that completed the job and our Alliance ceased to mean anything.

The man at the head of the Mercantile business saw the handwriting on the wall and proceeded to go bankrupt with a stock of over $100,000 on hand. In the shuffle, he came out a pretty wealthy man and the Alliance went broke. The large cotton warehouse also became involved in the break up and the last I knew of the town, a good many years after all of these happenings took place, the man who operated the warehouse for the Alliance, owned it and was not only still operating it, but had also opened up a bank in the same building.

In our time we have been connected with several fraternal and civic organizations that went to pieces on these same rocks of personal selfishness and political manipulations. In fact, we have never known one that was able to travel long along these lines.

If you can not invest or organize any kind of a mutual co-operative society and keep it out of such pitfalls as these, you just as well let it alone. It must be justly and fairly administered for the common and mutual good of all its members or it is doomed to be a failure.

GOOD BUSINESS

Last Friday the ladies of the Methodist church put on a tag day for the benefit of their new church, now in process of construction.

From the large number of people we saw bearing their fable, business must have been good for them. Friday was big show day here and it looked like all of this section were in town to see the show and these ladies had a wide field in which to work.

This is a splendid cause and every one who possibly can, should help these good folks in getting their beautiful church building completed.

"The wicked flourish as a green bay tree." That explains the prosperity of a good many people to us.

Give The Railroads A Chance To Good Luck

Of the large number of legislative measures which will be introduced at the next session of the American people than those of more importance to the American people than those affecting the railroads.

This act, commonly known as the Esch-Cammis Bill, became a law on February 28, 1920, and the railroads had barely begun to adjust themselves to the new conditions.

There are many bills pending in Congress designed to repeal or modify important parts of this act, notably Section 15 (a).

In this much-discussed section of the law Congress prescribes what the courts had already decided, that where the Government had taken for the railroads the power to make rates, the Government must itself make the rates, and produce a fair return upon the value of the property used for transportation purposes. Anything short of this would be confiscation, and hence unconstitutional. Under this arrangement the Commission fixes the value of the property, and what is a fair return (at present 5% per cent has been designated) and fixes the rates themselves.

So far under this law, the railroads have earned as much as the rate of return fixed by the Commission. They are desirous, however, of doing the thing the old law permitted them to do, and are fighting to get it back.

Give The Act A Chance To Demonstrate Its Utility.

WEAK, RUN DOWN AFTER SICKNESS

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made Mrs. Dube Well and Strong

E. Hartford, Conn.—"After a severe sickness I was so weak that I could not do my housework, so my mother told me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The first bottle helped me so much that I took six more bottles and felt fine. I have just given birth to a nice baby girl and am feeling strong and well. So different from the way I felt before. I am taking the Vegetable Compound right along while nursing. The baby seems to be in good health, and my friends say they are big chaps for the better in me."—Mrs. EUGENE DUBE, 69 Woodbridge Street, East Hartford, Connecticut.

The Vegetable Compound is a splendid medicine to bring back health and strength. Many mothers have found this true, as did Mrs. Dube. Ask some of your neighbors and friends, for there are women everywhere who know by experience the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Famous Forts in U. S. History

Monument to Shame of Benedict Arnold

New London was defended by two forts on the Thames river. Fort Trumbull on the west side and Fort Griswold on the east. Arnold had an army of about 1,200 men, composed of a few British soldiers, but mostly Tories and Hessians. Sending Colonel Eyer with a part of this force to take Fort Griswold, Arnold led the remainder against Fort Trumbull on September 8, 1781. The militia, 157 in number and commanded by Col. William Ledyard, immediately evacuated Fort Trumbull and crossed over to Griswold. Although poorly armed, many of them having nothing but spears for weapons, they were steeled to a desperate resistance, by the knowledge that some of the Tories in Arnold's army were old neighbors of theirs.

So determined was their resistance that they repeatedly hurled back the assaults which Eyer launched on three sides of the fort. The British commander was mortally wounded, as was Major Montgomery, who took his place. Finally Major Bromfield, the next in command, succeeded in carrying the walls at the point of the bayonet. By this time the fighting was virtually over. Colonel Ledyard ordered his men to lay down their arms, but the Tories and Hessians, infuriated by the stubborn resistance of the Americans and the loss of their leaders, began a slaughter of their conquered foes. To the credit of the British officers it must be said that they tried in vain to stop the massacre.

Of the 157 brave defenders of Fort Griswold, 71 were killed, 60 badly wounded and only 28 succeeded in escaping from the place of slaughter unharmed. The British loss was 48 killed and 143 wounded. Ledyard's sacrifice was in vain, for Arnold continued his march to New London and reduced it and its shipping to ashes. But Sir Henry Clinton's expedition failed in its main purpose for Washington, grieved though he was at Connecticut's plight, kept on to Yorktown and the victory.

Where "Star-Spangled Banner" Was Born

It is doubtful if ever America had known a darker dawn than the morning of September 11, 1814. Washington had been captured and burned by the British; our small navy had been driven to port by superior numbers; our army in Maryland had been defeated, and on that morning a British fleet sailed into the Patuxent river, headed for Baltimore, which the enemy hoped to capture.

The only obstruction to this scheme was a little fort three miles below Baltimore at Whetstone point on the Patuxent. Fort Mifflin was its name. A small fortification had been built there in 1775 and a more pretentious structure erected on the site in 1794. The only defensive force it could muster was a body of untrained troops, who would be called upon to defend their post against British veterans fresh from the continental wars—Wellington's Invincibles and Nelson's marines, winners at Trafalgar and the Nile. So the outlook was gloomy enough, for if Fort Mifflin fell, Baltimore fell, and the whole country lay at the mercy of the invaders.

Early on the morning of September 12 the battle began with an attempt by the British soldiers to storm the earthworks which had been hastily thrown up to aid in the defense of Baltimore. That attack was repulsed by a storm of shot, shrapnel, and musketry from the American guns, which killed or wounded more than 600 British.

Business Must Come First

Cecilia Patterson was a young lady possessed not only of good looks and a will of her own, but of "lands and fine houses and cash in the bank." Both of her parents were dead, and Cecilia had inherited from them her good looks, her strong will, and her money.

Jack Edgcomb was a year or two older than Cecilia when his father died, and had been so busy enjoying himself all his life that, as he said, he "had not had time to get married." He had hunted big game in Africa, sailed and traveled. The death of his father now forced Jack, for the first time in his life, to make an effort to comprehend that complicated and somewhat mysterious science called business, for the investments and financial interests of the elder Edgcomb had been many, various and extended.

Among his father's papers Jack found a bundle of documents relating to the "Rio Verde Copper Mines," with a memorandum, "See Steinltz & Co." Unable to make head or tail out of the papers, Jack looked up Steinltz & Co. in the directory and went to the address given.

The outer office was a large room where, beyond a little railing-off space, were several clerks, most of them well along in years.

"Please take my card to Mr. Steinltz," said Jack, and an angular typist, rising without a word, took the card and disappeared.

Presently she returned and motioned Jack toward the inner office. He entered and, to his surprise, saw that the room was tenanted only by a remarkably pretty young woman of between 25 and 30 who said: "Sit down, wait, Mr. Edgcomb."

"—as wished to see Mr. Steinltz, if I might," replied Jack.

"Oh, that's all right," laughed the young lady. "There isn't any Steinltz. I am Steinltz & Co. People are often surprised. You see there was a Steinltz when father first went into business; but he died long before I was born and father kept the old firm name. And when father died, and I took over the business, I kept it also. Had to. Imagine trying to carry on business under the name of Cecilia Patterson!"

"Are you Cecilia Patterson?" cried Jack. "I have often heard of you."

"Of course you have," replied Cecilia. "and I of you; and have wanted to hear at first hand an account of your elephant shooting. But business first."

"What a wonderful woman," thought Jack as he left the office. And Cecilia thought, "What a delightful young man—but how utterly and densely stupid."

Jack had to see Cecilia many times after that "on business," and he was invited to call at her house, too, where they dropped business and talked of other things. In short, they became very intimate and Jack proposed.

"Oh, Jack," she said, "I am sure I shall never marry anyone but you. But think, dear, you are so stupid in business matters. Your fortune and mine, combined, would take a lot of looking after. Can't you, won't you, try and get a grasp of business affairs? I tell you what I'll do. If, at the end of a year, you can prove to me that you have mastered the principles of business, I will marry you."

Cecilia was it saying now, but between her sofa she managed to say, "About the Rio Verde?"

"Do as you please with it," returned Jack. "I'll send you a power of attorney."

For a year Cecilia did not see Jack. Some said he was still in the city; some that he was hunting in the Rockies. A Cecilia devoted herself to the Rio Verde. At first everything went well. And then things began to happen. The bears got hold of the stock and clawed the life out of it; the bulls tested it upon their horns, only to throw it back again to the bears. For a while it would rank among the most decidedly inactive stock, and then suddenly begin strange and unaccountable gyrations. Cecilia was in great distress; she was losing her own money and Jack's too. All her financial acumen seemed to be of no avail. Then, when things were at the very worst and a crash seemed impending, Rio Verde began to steady itself.

The stock went up and up in a calm, healthful climb. Rio Verde became standard and unsassailable. And the year of Jack's probation was over. He came into the office of Steinltz & Co., looking hearty and brown as a berry. "Hello, Cecilia," said he. "The year's up. Just back from six months on the yacht in Europe. How are you, and how's the Rio Verde?"

"Oh, Jack, I'm glad to see you," cried Cecilia. "Rio Verde came near ruining us both."

"I suppose Chiev & Co. made you the most trouble, didn't they?" asked Jack.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL Sunday School Lesson

Lesson for November 23

THE TRANSFIGURATION

LESSON TEXT—Luke 9:25-28. GOLDEN TEXT—This is my beloved Son; hear Him—Luke 9:35.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Shows His Glory. JUNIOR TOPIC—Beholding Christ's Glory. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Glory of Jesus Christ. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Transfiguration a Preparation for the Cross.

While it is true that in this lesson the disciples are witnesses of Christ's glory, the full truth is that the manifestation of Christ is glory was to give to the disciples a foretaste of the glory of the Messiah, a foretaste of the glory of the kingdom of God.

Jesus took with Him Peter, James and John and went into the mountain to pray. He chief aim in retirement was to get the disciples apart and into a state of receptivity so that He might show them the method of the kingdom. Before going to the mountain He declared that there were some standing in His presence who would not taste of death till they should see the Son of Man coming in His kingdom (Luke 9:27; Matt. 16:28). That their deepening spirits might be revived and their confidence restored, He is transfigured before them. Two men from the upper world are sent to converse with Him about his approaching death in Jerusalem (v. 31)—the very thing about which the disciples refused to talk. Then, too, God's own voice was heard in words of approval of Christ's course, directing them to hear the Master. Surely they cannot doubt His ability now to carry into execution His kingdom plans. The purpose, then, of the transfiguration is to give the disciples a foretaste of the coming kingdom, to enable them to see the kingdom in embryo. That this is true is not only shown by the context and circumstances, but by the inspired interpretation of one who was with Him and knew all that transpired (II Peter 1:16-19 R. V.). Note the outstanding features of the kingdom as displayed in the transfiguration:

I. Jesus Christ the Glorified King on Mt. Zion (v. 29).

The glorified King on this mount was intended to symbolize the Messianic kingdom when Christ returns to the Mount of Olives in Jerusalem (Zech. 14:4-7). This is still in the future, and will be literally fulfilled.

II. The Glorified Saints with Christ (vv. 30-31).

(1) Moses, who was once denied an entrance into Palestine, appears now in glory, representing the redeemed of the Lord who shall pass through death into the kingdom. Many thousands of the redeemed have fallen asleep and at the coming of the Lord shall be awakened to pass into the kingdom.

(2) Elijah, now glorified, represents the redeemed who shall pass into the kingdom through translation. Many shall be living upon the earth when the Lord shall come, and shall without dying be changed, and thus pass into the kingdom (I Cor. 15:50-53; I Thess. 4:14-18).

(3) They talk of the very thing which the disciples refused to believe, namely, the death of Christ.

III. Israel, in the Flesh, in Connection with the Kingdom. Represented by Peter, James and John (v. 28).

Israel shall be called from their hiding place among all nations of the earth and shall be gathered to Jesus Christ the King, as the central people in the kingdom (Ezek. 37:21-27).

(1) Peter proposes to build three tabernacles (v. 33). The Feast of Tabernacles looked forward to the glorious reign of Christ. Peter caught a glimpse of the significance of the transfiguration. His proposition showed that he thought of the Feast of Tabernacles, and therefore of the millennium.

(2) The divine voice (v. 35). At this time God Himself uttered His words, assuring them that this One in glory was His Son Jesus Christ.

IV. The Multitude at the Foot of the Mountain (v. 37-38).

This is representative of the nations which shall be brought into the kingdom which shall be established over Israel. See Isaiah 11:10-12. The people here were grievously oppressed by the devil. About the time of Christ's first coming he did his best to harass men. Just before Christ's coming again he will be especially active, for he knows that his time is short.

Road Building Far Behind the Automobile

Millions now recognize the automobile as a necessity. It is no longer a luxury for the few. Sixty per cent of its use is for business.

Because of this the modern paved highway has become an economic necessity.

Yet although the mileage of Concrete Roads and Streets has been steadily increasing, our highway system today lags far behind the automobile. The great majority of our highways are out of date as the single-track, narrow gauge railway of fifty years ago.

Such a condition not only seriously handicaps the progress of the automobile as a comfortable, profitable means of transportation, but also holds back commercial, industrial and agricultural advancement in practically every section of the country. It is costing taxpayers millions of dollars annually.

Highway building should be continued and enlarged upon.

Your highway authorities are ready to carry on their share of this great public work. But they must have your support. Tell them you are ready to invest in more and wider Concrete Highways now.

AN INEXPENSIVE CHARITY

Has it ever occurred to you that you could do a wonderful amount of gracious and deserved good in the world without costing you a penny?

Almost every one has more or less work that they have done for them which they put out to the first person they can think of who will do it.

Suppose when you go to let this work out, you cast around, in your mind and see if you don't know some real competent person, who is in real need of the money you are going to pay for this work.

Almost every time you can locate such a one without much effort. Then give them the job, and you will have rendered them a great service and not be out a penny.

You can buy the service you want this way and many a time you will drive the wolf from the door of some good dependable man or woman.

Many of our ladies have made good this way without having a penny in service. When you go to have a lot of sewing done, think over the list and give it out to some hard working needy seamstress who is wo-

NOTICE OF MEETING

There will be preaching at the Church of Christ, Clanton, Ala., on Sunday December 7th, at 11:00 a.m. and 7:00 p.m. The pastor, Rev. J. L. Holmes of Montgomery, Ala., will preach. The public is invited to attend these services.

HIGHWAY THROUGH CLANTON TO BE BUILT ON SEPARATELY

By a resolution of the State Highway Commission, the portion of the State Highway No. 10, through Clanton will not be handled together with the bids for Section 10, as advertised last week, but will be advertised separately as section 10. This change in the plans was made known Tuesday of this week.

BOX SUPPER

There will be a box supper at White City schoolhouse, Saturday night, Dec. 6. Come and enjoy the music and good eats.

PRINCIPAL

Yesterday we learned that Mr. Joe Ben Downs had purchased the entire outfit and business of the Powell Club and the Sanford Bar.

Downs will assume control next week and continue both businesses as at present. He is a young man who is well known and liked here and will, no doubt, carry a strong patronage in both. He invites his friends to call and try him out. He will also conduct a general watch and gun repair shop on there.

EDWARDS-PATTERSON WEDDING

On last Sunday at the home of Rev. A. C. Wells in Clanton Mr. Albert Edwards was joined in marriage to Miss Lera Patterson, Uncle Dock performed the ceremony. Mr. Edwards is the son of Charley Edwards of near Billingsley, and his bride is the daughter of Mr. Daniel Patterson of West Clanton.

TO OUR READERS

Our type setting machine is broken and we could set no type nor get out much paper this week, as our neighbor was crowded with work and could not arrange to set much for us.

The broken part of the machine will have to come from the factory and we do not know how soon it will get to us, so if you fail to get your paper next week you may know the reason.

Besides, we have about $850.00 owing us for subscriptions not due. This money has already been earned by us, and in piling up this amount of debts owing us, we have run ourselves too close to the bone to feel able to tote the load further.

We can live on "roots and branch water" ourselves, but rents have to be paid in cash and so do light and fuel bills. It takes some money to operate even a democratic paper in Chilton county. We have done our best to elevate the political tone of the county and we are not ashamed of our record.

The paper has not been what we wanted to make it for some time, but a lack of cash and co-operation is the reason.

We have made many friends in Chilton county and we certainly appreciate them. We have also made some enemies and are glad of that too. There are some people whose good opinion and endorsement is a very questionable asset.

MARCUS-KITRELL

At the home of Dr. S. J. Ezell, pastor of the Baptist church, at 11 a. m. on Thanksgiving day, Mr. Clay Marcus and Miss Pauline Kittrell were happily wedded. Dr. Ezell officiating.

After the ceremony the happy couple repaired to the home of the bride, where a most delicious wedding dinner was served.

Both of these young people are very popular with the social set of Clanton and have scores of devoted friends who follow them with every good wish for happiness, prosperity and a long life.

MRS. MOLLIE GOLDEN DIES

The many friends and the relatives of Mrs. Mollie Golden, who lived about four miles north of town, are saddened by the death of this good woman, which occurred at the home of her daughter in Bessemer last Sunday morning. She was 62 years of age.

The remains were brought and buried at Lomax last Monday.

AUTO ACCIDENT

Last evening, as Mr. W. H. Sartor was returning from a trip to the country in his Buick car, the little daughter of Mr. J. A. Hester, Julia Roth, was playing in the street and by some ill fortune, not the car and before Mr. Sartor could avoid it, she was struck and the car passed over her.

At a late hour last night she was resting well and great pains were taken to get her out of the hospital. We learned that Dr. Ezell, a leading physician but we failed to catch him on the phone and get his diagnosis.

The many friends of both families will rejoice if they can learn today that all danger is passed and no serious results are to be feared.

MRS. SUSAN B. THACKER DEAD

This most estimable lady died in Birmingham last Thursday and was buried in the City Cemetery here on the following day.

She was the wife of the late member of the City Council, and was a member of the church for 72 years.

She was for many years a citizen of our town and was well known and loved by all of the citizens here. She was always a most devoted and earnest Christian, ever ready and anxious to do her utmost for the cause of Christ and the upbuilding of her church, was noted for her efforts in the interest of all who suffered or needed aid.

The remains were brought to their last resting place by a throng of sorrowing friends. Dr. Ezell officiated at the service in most solemn and affecting eulogy of the dear good old lady.

MRS. CHARLES LITTLETON DEAD

Mrs. Charles Littleton, who was formerly a descendant of the New Salem community, but who was living in Bessemer, died there last Friday.

The remains were brought back and buried at the New Salem cemetery, Rev. S. M. Adams, officiating.

HIGHWAY FINALLY SETTLED

Last Tuesday quite a large number of Clanton business men went to Montgomery to appear before the State Highway Commission in regard to locating the route the Federal highway shall follow in passing through the town.

This delegation was combined of two factions. One faction wanted the highway to pass through Clanton on sixth street. The other side were contending for its passage through on seventh street.

Both factions guaranteed the richness of way, free of cost to the state.

The sixth street route required the removal of the splendid home of Banker Page, passed in front of two churches and on by the court house.

Banker Page bitterly opposed this route, even though they paid him a large price for his home. Some of the church people opposed it on account of the danger to Sunday school children and the noise of passing traffic.

Both sides put up good arguments, but as both crews of engineers favored the Seventh street route, the favor of the three Commissioners turned that way too, so upon a vote they unanimously decided in favor of seventh street, and so that matter is now finally settled.

The balance of the Chilton county project is to be let out on Jan. 7, 1925, so early next year, work should begin in earnest, and seventh street in Clanton, will be let as a part of that project.

Two or three new brick business houses are already on the bills now along the highway and they are to be built early next year and be ready for the highway when it gets here.

The matter is all settled now and we can sleep satisfied.

AT RAMER, ALA. NOW

The many friends of Mr. John Henley here will be interested to learn that he has moved from Natfel, to Ramer, Alabama and is now living there.

He has put up a saw mill in Montgomery and has a large contract to cut lumber for several automobile factories.

He was up here this week and gave us what he calls a persimmon that has his best. It looks like a 'simmon, smells like a 'simmon and tastes like a 'simmon but it is fully as large as a medium sized apple. Says he has a tree full at his new home.

WELLS-LITTLLE WEDDING

On last Sunday morning occurred the marriage of Mr. Tom Wells of South Clanton to Miss Bertie Little. Tom Wells is the son of Mr. Lee Wells who lives in the south edge of town, and the bride is the daughter of Mr. W. J. Little of near Clanton. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. H. Wilson.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our friends for their kindness and help extended us in the burial of our mother, Mrs. Susan B. Thacker. We shall never forget your kindness.

HER CHILDREN.

OLD TIME PARTY

There will be a regular Old Time Party at the home of Mrs. N. S. Johnson tomorrow (Friday) night. It will be an interesting and enjoyable occasion and everybody is cordially invited to attend.

JOEL FULMER ARRESTED FOR VIOLATING PROHIBITION LAW

On last Saturday night, Sheriff J. L. McPherson raided the home of Joel Fulmer in the Govan Addition of Clanton, and found there a five-gallon jug containing about one-half gallon of whiskey. Fulmer was arrested and placed in jail under a bond of $500, to be paid on Monday morning, when his bond was made and he was released.

EVENTFUL DAYS AT METHODIST PARSONAGE

Friday, 28th inst., was an eventful day at the Methodist parsonage. Earl Gore, one of our young men conveyed to the parsonage two ladies who, when leaving the car, filled their arms with various and sundry things to eat; just such as the preacher and his wife likes most, and deposited them on the dining table with the explanation: "This is for you, which is an expression of the love and friendship of the members of your church and your friends in Clanton." Then in their characteristic way, Messdames Gore and Kleker welcomed us back and express a joy in having us another year for their pastor.

Others came or sent throughout the afternoon at intervals and brought their packages that failed to get in the first lot. Finally when dark had come, like Nicodemus coming to Christ, several others came and they too like the wise men of the East brought their gifts and added to the occasion by sitting around the fire-side with us and enjoying a social evening like our fathers in the days of yore did.

These are the things that hearten the ministry and makes the preacher and family feel that there is no other place in life like theirs.

May God bless each one of you and may there not be a stain untarned this coming year that will add to God's glory.

UNCLE JUNIUS DEAD

Old Uncle Junius Winfield, the oldest negro in Chilton County, died at his little cabin home on First Street near the cemetery last Saturday night. Uncle Junius had been sick for two or three days before the end came.

No one knows the exact age of Uncle Junius, but old gossips say that he was over a hundred, and judging from his appearance, this estimate is very conservative.

This old darky, who had been missed in Clanton since he was as well as the black and white people he had lived in the streets of Clanton, and his body in the cemetery. Uncle Junius was buried in the Clanton cemetery on Sunday morning.

Uncle Junius, as a liberated slave, came to Chilton County shortly after the Civil War. When Clanton was being settled, he acquired a small lot in Clanton on which he built him a cabin. He has lived there ever since. His trusty old friend, who had been with him for many years, died of old age.

COMMON SENSE AT GRADE

"Not least among the problems encountered in the effort to reduce automobile accidents is that of the railroad grade crossing. In its annual toll of approximately 2,000 lives and some 6,000 non-fatal casualties, the Insurance Field.

Common sense would counsel that a man stop and look before crossing a railroad track. As automobile drivers will not do this voluntarily, why not make it unlawful to cross a track without coming to a dead stop. This would certainly be a humanitarian piece of legislation and would be no expense to the taxpayers. As a matter of fact it would be a money maker for public treasuries due to fines collected for failure to obey the law. Most of all, the lives of many persons would be saved who would otherwise cross the track.

AN ILLUSTRATION

Never in our experience have we known of a more perfect illustration of the value of organization than has existed in Chilton county ever since we became a citizen here.

According to a political census of the county, the two political parties are about evenly divided in numbers, either has the advantage it is claimed by those who compiled the census that the democrats have a little the majority. It is also said to be a fact that they pay largely over half of the taxes and control about 90 per cent of the business of the county, still, when they go out to the polls they drag along behind like the tail of the whole situation. They do the habitually and have kept it up for so long that the most of them seem to feel like it would be a desertion of the rights of the other party for them to really win an election.

On the other hand, our republican neighbors are on the job 365 days in every year. They are always awake to the importance of keeping up their party organization. They never forget to look after all of the details. Their people are reminded and urged to pay their poll tax each year. They look after their women folks and see to it that they also stay on the eligible voting list. They never go in to a state of hibernation. They are awake to the situation at all times. They keep up a constant organization continually and are always prepared to go in to every election. By this perfect system of an unsleeping policy, that functions at all times, that stands by its adherents in trouble and remembers them when they are in "leaves or fish" to be dispensed, that never forgets its obligations to each other, it has woven a strength in Chilton county that no hibernical or experimental system of the democratic party will ever be able to break.

The Chilton democrats get lost about thirty days before an election and put up a little spasmodic fight, and when they begin to canvass they find that a large per cent of their strength has been allowed to lapse by not paying their poll tax.

Next they find little groups of self-adherents who care nothing for victory unless they can dictate the terms and appropriate the spoils. There is no cohesion nor unity of purpose with them and, it is almost always a fact that they suffer as much from internal bleeding as they do from the blows of the enemy.

You can not expect to ever "come out of the crack" until your democracy becomes a real living, moving, breathing part of your daily life. If you are too indolent or too indifferently to the cause to meet the opposition with a united, trained, compact organization that lives every day in the year and Sunday too, then you may always know why it is you can't win at the polls.

SHARE HOLDERS MEETING

The annual meeting of the shareholders of the First National Bank of Clanton will be held in the directors' room of the bank at 8:00 p. m. on Tuesday, January 14, 1925 for the purpose of electing directors for the ensuing year and the transaction of such other business as may legally come before them.

TO MARRY TONIGHT

The First Baptist Church Elaborately Decorated

At 8 o'clock sharp tonight at the First Baptist church, will be solemnized one of the most beautiful wedding ceremonies that has occurred in Clanton for a long time.

The contracting parties, Col. Omar Reynolds and Miss Willie Higgins, are both connected with prominent families here whose names and whose interests have been identified with Clanton for many years.

Col. Reynolds, the happy and fortunate groom is the youngest son of Judge and Mrs. L. H. Reynolds. He is a brilliant young man, just cleverly entering the arena of life's battle, is a graduate from the University proper and also its splendid law department and has already written his name high up on the list among the rising young barristers of the state. He is popular and has many friends in this section.

Miss Higgins, the lovely and accomplished bride, is indeed a gem among the large galaxy of beautiful girls here. She is just budding in to young womanhood and gives promise of being all that is lovely and lovable as a life companion. She is the daughter of Mrs. D. C. Alfred, who was formerly Mrs. Higgins, and they are also long time residents here whose names are known and identified closely with the history of our little city.

The many prominent friends of this bridal pair have left nothing undone in decorating the large and beautiful auditorium of the church for this nuptial event. It looks like every hot house and conservatory in Clanton had contributed largely to this wonderful array. The entire scene is a fairy like bower of transcendence beauty, and the arrangement of each fern and flower display an artistic taste and conception that actually beggars description. The hymenal altar on this occasion is certainly wreathed with a beauty that reminds one of a story of fairyland.

Dr. S. J. Ewell and Dr. Wilkerson will both officiate in the beautiful and solemn service that will surely bind these two fond hearts together.

BILL ABOLISHING COUNTY COURT HELD TO BE VALID

Some time ago a case was filed in the Supreme Court to declare unconstitutional the act of the last legislature abolishing the county court of Chilton county.

Tuesday of this week the Supreme Court handed down a decision holding the act to be legal in all respects, so our county court stands abolished and is not open for further technical interference with law enforcement.

The clerk of the court is also legally authorized to issue warrants for wrong doers, and it can not be urged further that law enforcement is handicapped, in the slightest degree, by any difficulty attributed to the abolishment of the county court.

As the question has now been definitely disposed of, let's all accept the situation and go forward with an eye single to the fact that warrants can be issued and justice can be meted out just as promptly and efficiently as would be the case if a county court still existed.

THE MODERN WAY

In the past the natural habitat of the moonshine still was some dense thicket by the side of a little branch or creek, where a natural water supply could be used for condensation purposes on the worm. Thick and almost inaccessible swamps were the places where the officers concentrated their efforts in locating these illicit booze mills.

According to Tom Littlejohn, our worthy sheriff, whose term of office has already made of him an expert in that line, this old style system of locating has about gone out of fashion. The trail of a little stream of water was too easy to follow, so the ingenious moonshiner has about deserted these sequestered haunts and has adopted rather the pinnacle of some high hill, in the open country, where he digs in and buries his plant in the ground. The necessary water to operate with is then carried up by hand.

This is a real unique arrangement and has probably been quite successful, but, according to Sheriff Littlejohn, the enforcement officers have fallen to the game and do their searching for stills accordingly.

Law enforcement is becoming more efficient every day and the making of whiskey is increasingly risky, but it looks like some people would make it if the penalty was death and detection a certainty.

CHILTON COUNTY WINS

In the "get out the vote" campaign conducted by the ladies of Alabama in the recent election, Chilton county was the winner, having got out 84 per cent of the total vote.

Mrs. McDavid was county chairman of the movement in our county and it is owing to her efficient and persistent work that this county lead the list and was the winner. She expresses special thanks to the Civic Club for their splendid work and to a host of other ladies who assisted her in putting over the undertaking.

A beautiful Loving Cup was offered as a prize to the winning county and this beautiful souvenir of service was presented to Mrs. McDavid, at a luncheon of the State Board of the League of Women voters, in Birmingham, on Nov. 29. This lovely token of appreciation can be seen in the show window of the Upchurch Drug store.

Mrs. McDavid and the other good ladies of our county, are to be congratulated on this victory.

Baldwin county was second in the race and also received a silver loving cup from the Board.

No county that did not have a county chairman was eligible in the contest.

NOTICE!

All farmers interested in Strawberry culture please meet at the Court House next Saturday at 10 a. m.

MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER

Mrs. P. D. Wilson entertained Friday afternoon at a miscellaneous shower in honor of Miss Willie Higgins, bride elect.

Mrs. Wilbur Hayes greeted the guests and presented them to the receiving line composed of Mrs. L. H. Reynolds, Mrs. P. D. Wilson, Miss Willie Higgins, Mrs. D. C. Alfred and Miss Josephine Pattillo. The guests were then ushered by Mrs. Harvey Chandler into the library where Mrs. Hance Alfred had charge of the bride's register.

Miss Exa Jones and Miss Mary Sims presided at the Punch bowl.

Mrs. L. C. Ross sang "Love Nest" accompanied by Mrs. Percy Pitts while Little Mary Wallace and Jane Pitts, dressed as fairies, led the bride down Matrimony road to Happy Town and seated her under a beautiful holly tree which contained a large bird's nest. A cage of birds were turned loose and "Go Feather Your Nest" was sung while the two little fairies presented the gifts to the bride. The home was decorated in red and green. The dining room was especially beautiful, the columns being entwined with smilax, and the lights showered with Mistletoe and moss.

The hostess assisted by Mrs. Arthur Johnson, Mrs. Guy Roberts, Mrs. Grady Broadhead, Mrs. J. E. Cowan and Mrs. Benton Penter served chocolate and cake to seventy-five guests.

THE REASON WHY

It is rank evidence of an ossified old fogeyism to intimate that social conditions are not much more moral, chaste and decent than formerly and we guess that is all right.

Statistics mean nothing and what you see with your own eyes is only an illusion. The explanation must lie in the fact that we all have got so good, modest and demure that there is no line of demarkation to accentuate the difference between decency and indecency, so we make the mistake of believing a condition that does not exist. What?

PAGEANT AT BAPTIST CHURCH

As was announced from the pulpit last Sunday night there will be put on at the regular 7 o'clock hour of service, a Pageant and a special musical program appropriate to the season at the Baptist church Sunday.

We also hear that Mrs. Grady Broadhead, the general manager of the Juvenile department of the Sunday school, has arranged for a Christmas tree for her department, next Wednesday evening.

STILL GROWING

The building of new homes in Clanton is one form of advancement that shares no indication of a let up.

In every quarter of the residential sections new buildings constantly spring up, still a house for rent is a hard thing to find.

SHOWER FOR MRS. MARCUS

The Young Peoples' class of the Methodist Sunday School gave a shower for Mrs. Clay Marcus, one of their members, at the home of Mrs. McDavid on Monday afternoon, at 3:30 o'clock.

The Christmas idea was effectively carried out in the decorations used. Little Clive Raines Elmore, dressed as Santa Claus, brought the gifts in to the bride in a sack she carried on her back.

Other gifts were contained in stockings hung by the mantle. The bride received many attractive and useful things.

The guests invited were the friends of Mrs. Marcus among the younger set and the leaders of the Methodist Sunday school.

KU KLUX KLAN SERVICE

It has been announced that there will be a Ku Klux Klan service at the Methodist church next Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

The public are invited to attend.

ORPHANAGE DONATION

Last Tuesday the Baptist church here put on a drive to secure supplies for the children at the Baptist orphanage. This movement was planned to cover all of the churches in this association that day.

It is hardly necessary to add that they were wonderfully successful in receiving various and liberal donations here, for Clanton always goes down in its pockets to help a good cause.

Money, clothing and groceries were most liberally contributed for those little orphan children who are dependent on the world for what they have.

AT THE M. E. CHURCH SUNDAY NIGHT

There will be a Christmas Pageant put on at the Methodist church next Sunday night, in lieu of the regular service at 7 o'clock.

This will be a beautiful and appropriate service fitted to the season and will carry with it a splendid musical program. Every one is invited.

On Wednesday night following at this church, there will be a Christmas tree for the Juvenile department of the Sunday school. Go out and see the little fellows have a good time.

A REAL LUXURY

Mr. C. B. Cox, who is more auto travelling than any body we know, has equipped himself with the very latest word in luxury and comfort for his winter trips.

He has an elegant Buick closed car that is upholstered with an eye single to comfort. It is also equipped with electric lights and a hot water radiator service that enables him to heat up the interior, in the very coldest day, to any desired temperature.

A trip in that car, to a fellow like us, is so delightful that we can close our eyes and almost imagine that Rockefeller is a bum piker compared to us.

XMAS. TREE

We are going to give a short program and a Christmas tree at Mulberry Tuesday night, Dec. 23rd, beginning at 5:00 o'clock hanging the presents on the tree, and the program will begin at 7:30. Be sure and have your presents there before 7:30 if you want them on the tree.

Come and surprise your friends by bringing a present and having it hung on the tree for them.

There will be a committee at the door to receive your presents and hang them on the tree.

Wishing every one a happy Christmas.

CONGRESSMAN JEFFERS BACK FROM OFFICIAL TRIP

Studies Government Hospital Washington, D. C., Dec. 15, 1924. Congressman Lamar Jeffers, representative of the Fourth Alabama District, a member of the Committee on World War Veterans Legislation, has just returned to Washington from an extended official trip through the West and Northwest.

To Mr. Jeffers was assigned the task of making a study of the various facilities and institutions in the West now being utilized by the government for the hospitalization of sick and disabled ex-service people. Because of the constant shifting of people to and from the West it is said that that section of the country presents many problems more or less peculiar to itself.

On this trip just completed, Congressman Jeffers visited certain of the Veterans Bureau hospitals, contract hospitals, old soldiers' homes, state hospitals and Regular Army hospitals in South Dakota, Wyoming, Montana, Washington, Oregon, California, and Colorado.

The committee on World War Veterans Legislation will have the benefit of Congressman Jeffers' personal observations whenever it may have under consideration any legislation bearing upon the many problems, old and new, constantly coming up covering the hospitalization of Veterans.

"For example, here is one thing for serious consideration and appropriate action at proper time," said Congressman Jeffers today, "we have war veterans hospitalized now in several different kinds of institutions under separate and different kinds of managements. I feel that, as soon as it is possible and practical, for such a large task to be worked out thoroughly and efficiently, our veterans who are in hospitals should all be cared for under one responsible management instead of under different agencies and divided responsibilities as is the case at present."

The Congressman reports a very interesting trip and says that while he enjoyed the mountain scenery in the Northwest, the palms and flowers of California, and the sunshine of Arizona, he is more than ever convinced that no other section of the country offers so much, as an all around good place in which to live as does the great state of Alabama.

Santa Claus is like all of the other folks these days. He is too old-fashioned to be popular.

President Coolidge don't say much but when he talks his party had just as well sit up and take notice.

Eggs at ten cents apiece are almost a luxury even to a country editor.

Loosen up your purse strings and make us a Christmas present of that dollar you owe us.

When you sow the wind you reap the whirlwind. When you squander your youth you reap a despair old age.

The wild Indian did not have a thing on the average society girl in the use of war paint and finger nail dye.

The fight over Muscle Shoals has been raging in the Senate for over a week. Every senator up there wants to be its pa.

The way Sheriff Littlejohn is carrying on, he's going to make egg nog as scarce here for Christmas as hen teeth.

The fellow who always knows so much about the business of every one else hardly ever finds time to get acquainted with his own.

Some fellows are smearing a little yellow paint on their shirt fronts these days to create the impression that they are financially able to eat eggs now.

An editor has to lie at times. If he was to tell all the truth he knew, he would be an angel in one of the other worlds before the press completed the issue.

Many a thief and robber is going free today because a police force jumped at a conclusion of guilt and then went to work to convict an innocent party as a vindication of their skill.

The flapperite has become stale and ceases to interest or amuse people any more. Wonder what will be the next step in disgrace that peculiar class will take to attract notice.

A movement is on foot now to modernize the Bible and put the old plan of salvation on a more up-to-date basis. The movement is quite popular too, but the devil is having to broaden his portals and enlarge his fire department.

The negro question is becoming an acute issue in some of the northern states. The mixed schools are beginning to cause serious trouble. You can't amalgamate the two races. What God put asunder you better let alone.

They say Japan is getting ready to give us a licking and take over the Philippine Islands. They are welcome to the Islands for our part, but that other job has never been attended to yet and bigger and better people than Japan have tried it on.

We collected a dollar the other day and are bloated with wealth now for another 30 days. We are actually going to let the children spend 15 cents of it for Christmas money even if we get hungry before we make another vice like that.

THAT BOND ISSUE

In the Montgomery Advertiser of last Saturday, Atticus Mullins tells us that unless a new road bond issue is promptly voted, that all highway and road building will come to an end in 1926, and that after that time the counties will not receive any more of the gasoline tax money as all of it will have to go into the settlement of interest and principle of the bonds that have already been issued and expended on the roads.

This seems to be rather an unexpected statement of the case and, if correct, puts a new light on the arguments being put forth in behalf of the new issue asked for.

We are specifically told that the $75,000,000 now being agitated before the public is to be all taken care of and paid by this same fund, plus the auto license tax, which is already applied for the payment of bonds.

It will require all of this fund to retire the $25,000,000 already authorized. We can hardly understand how this source of revenue can care for $5,000,000.

Such statements as that will need a good deal of "explaining" before the average reader will be able to harmonize this apparent paradox put out by people who, we suppose favor the new bond issue.

So far as we are concerned we feel like that all investments that are wisely and economically put in to good roads are to be encouraged. Our state needs good roads and is years and years behind some of our neighbors in that respect but we also deem any kind of road investment calculated to make these investments safe and gasoline license and tax without being too burdensome, will not only be a good thing but don't add any more to the present property tax burden.

LISTEN TO OUR STORY

We have $709 in round numbers owing to us for service already rendered and three months past due now.

We have more than that amount that should be paid in advance, the greater part of which is three months past due, if paid in advance as the Postal laws direct.

This is not "bull" but a true financial statement. Do you wonder that we can not put out a real metropolitan paper on a backing like that?

Do you want to be a party in driving this paper out of the county?

Under the law you owe for any publication that you continue to accept from the mails and you would have no possible defense in a suit for collection.

We shall be forced to make out our accounts the first of the year and turn them over for collection, unless we hear from you.

This is not intended to offend any one but is a business proposition as followed by every business concern that exists.

Personals

Mr. Lee Pata, a thorough going prosperous farmer in beat 9, was here Monday.

Prof. W. M. DeVaughn, one of the leading music teachers of the county, is in town Monday.

Rev. T. J. Deason, route 3, was associating with his many Clanton friends last Monday.

Rev. W. S. Cox, one of the veteran ministers who lives in beat 15, spent Monday in Clanton.

Olga Culp, route 3, was in Clanton Monday looking after business matters.

Our good friend and highly esteemed citizen, Mr. J. W. Sisk, route 3, was in town Monday doing some shopping.

Mr. H. S. Shaw one of the leading lumber manufacturing citizens in this county, made a business trip to Birmingham last Monday.

Remember the singing next Sunday will be held at Liberty Hill church about four miles from Clanton on the Opelika and Clanton highway.

The Yule Tide spirit is beginning to creep out rapidly in our little city. Let us remember the poor. Christ said, "The poor ye always have with you."

Mr. and Mrs. Silas Oden, of Lawley route 1, were in Clanton Monday. Mr. Oden is a prosperous, progressive and honest farmer in the Shultz community.

Mr. Howard Oden, of beat 3, was here last Monday. Mr. Oden is a young man. He takes an active part in all things pertaining to the betterment of his community and county.

Dr. E. H. Wilson spent Sunday in Birmingham with his family. Dr. Wilson has only been in Clanton but a few months. However, he has already built up quite a lucrative dental practice.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Oden, of the Shultz community, were shopping in Clanton Monday. Mr. Oden is a splendid farmer and if you want to enjoy "Good Eats" and real old South hospitality, spend a few days in his hospitable home.

The new Methodist church presents quite an attractive appearance on the outside. When finished it will be the best equipped house of worship in Central Alabama and one of the best for Sunday School purposes in the state of Alabama.

Mr. W. H. Veazey of beat 3, was in Clanton last Saturday. It is always a genuine pleasure to meet Mr. Veazey. We would like to have about 2000 more voters whose citizenship would measure up to the standard of this high grade of citizenship.

Senator S. M. Adams made a brief business trip to Montgomery last Monday. The Senator is moving up in years but very active and young in spirit and always "on the job" when it is necessary for any service to aid in building up his community, county or state.

Rev. F. A. Gibson, of the Patuxent community, Chilton county, was in Clanton Monday. Rev. Gibson is a Methodist Protestant minister in whom there is no guile. While he is not highly educated, he is an able minister and one of the very best informed men in Chilton county.

Mr. L. A. Callaway, of Havana, Florida, spent several days the latter part of last week and the first part of this with his legion of friends in Clanton and Chilton county. Mr. Callaway until recently was a member of the Chilton county Board of Education resigning after moving to the "Land of Flowers." He made hosts of friends while serving on this board owing to his absolute honesty and broadminded dealings in behalf of the cause of Education regardless of the political complexion of any community or individual asking favor at the hands of the Chilton county Board of Education.

WORK OF ORGANIZED BANKING TO PROMOTE BETTER FARMING

By D. H. OTIS

Agricultural Director American Bankers Association.

The Agricultural Commission of the American Bankers Association has adopted and encourages the following general projects in its national program:

D. H. Otis

1. Boys and girls club work.
2. Diversified farming.
3. Increased appropriations for agricultural research.

With the state bankers' associations, the agricultural colleges and hosts of farmers' organizations uniting in all parts of the country, the Commission has held conferences in forty-seven states. The different individual projects approved number 195. Plans are now under way for follow-up work in making these programs effective.

These banker-farmer conferences have resulted not only in definite programs, but they have been the means of greatly increasing interest on the part of bankers. At the beginning there were a number of states that had no agricultural committees. Others were inactive. We now have agricultural committees for each state with the exception of two, and these have promised to appoint committees soon.

Banker Influence

The attitude of the bankers is not that of attempting to tell the farmers how to farm, but rather to help in bringing about conditions that will help the farmer to help himself. The farmer who produces the agricultural products is attempting to improve the quality of farm products, and the banker who furnishes the capital is endeavoring to put their heads together and perform team work. A representative of one of the colleges of agriculture recently made the statement that the bankers could do more than the colleges for the advancement of agriculture. The banker is in position to influence the farmer patrons. A county agent comes in contact with only 15 to 20 per cent of the farmers of his county, while the bankers come in contact with at least 75 per cent.

In some localities farmers seem to be prejudiced against bankers, due largely to misunderstanding. There is no better way for relieving this strained relationship than by getting the banker and farmer pulling together for their mutual interests and for the community.

If agriculture is to develop it is necessary to maintain on the soil men and women who will put as much intelligence into their business as is put into other lines of business. It is hard to change the attitude of mind of an old farmer. The great hope is in developing boys and girls into men and women who will be interested in improving the conditions on our farms. Out of forty-seven programs adopted

WHY THE MODERNISTS WILL NOT WIN

Radical modernism which denies God in creation and revelation will not get any where.

The reason is that the common sense of the average man quite naturally and intuitively turns to God as the only rational explanation of what he sees of the universe before his open eyes.

His knowledge is inspired. He gets from every day appearance and he trusts it absolutely. He knows nothing either of scientific or theological deductions and he comes back to the fact that he is certified inwardly that his mind is not leading him as to the reality of a Supreme being who is in control of the affairs of nature which he sees about him.

Paul Janet, of the University of Paris, some years ago wrote a book of some 700 pages which he called "Final Causes." His purpose was to show "design" in nature and that "mind" was behind the design. He succeeded admirably, but after all, he proves only what 999 out of 1000 men already believe to be a fact.

Just as the same argument proves that the God which he knows exists, if he is to hold man responsible for his deeds, must in some way reveal his will to man. If this has been done at all it is through the sacred scriptures, the teaching of Jesus and the Holy Spirit who is present with us.

No, the Modernists will not succeed in anything except in stirring up a few of the literati and causing a few temerous souls to scamper around the ark with their little forked sticks in order to prop it up. But it is not going to fall any way, and the common sense of the average man is its best defense.

The gospel needs to be preached and when faithfully done it certifies and attests its own truth. One man asked another if he could give him a satisfactory proof of Christianity in two words. "Yes," was the reply. "TRY IT."—Alabama Baptist.

HOW IS THIS ONE?

A person came in our office this week and wished to discontinue his paper. He said he never had subscribed for it and did not know why it had been coming to his address.

We turned to the book and found that his name was on the book and had been for a little over three years. He had paid for one year and had been allowing the paper to go on his regularly for over two years without a kick.

The postal law presumes that you owe for a paper as long as you take it out of the office. If you do not want it your duty is to refuse it, for the debt is a valid and collectable one as long as you take it out.

We mailed this person off with thanks.

WHAT IS THE MODERN WAY?

As we see no signs and hear talk along the streets of the old fashioned Christmas, we have passed into the modern era. What kind of a Christmas has taken its place? The Christmas back number too.

A RAINY CHRISTMAS

On this day we do not know what the weather will be. The weather man is not sure. It may be a Christmas day with a lot of rain. It may be a Christmas day with a lot of snow. It may be a Christmas day with a lot of sun. It may be a Christmas day with a lot of wind. It may be a Christmas day with a lot of everything.

which the crakers are already being popped on the streets, a real dry time would almost certainly assure us of having more or less rain, so if it is rain, and damp don't grumble, but thank the Lord for helping you to take care of your home while the crakers are full of dangerous fire.

AN UNFORTUNATE ESCAPE

CHRISTMAS PAGEANT

As announced in our columns last week, the marriage of Col. Omar Reynolds and Miss Willie Higgins was most beautifully celebrated at the Baptist church last Sunday night properly at 8 o'clock.

As told in our paper last week, the decorations in the church were so lavish and so perfectly beautiful and arranged with such consummate artistic skill that language fails us in attempting to write up anything like an adequate description.

That the scene was far more beautiful than our imagination could paint.

The spacious auditorium was packed with interested spectators, while the large balcony was also filled to its very limits.

The musical program was simply exquisite and every selection was beautifully appropriate. Mrs. Willie Higgins and Col. Percy Pitts rendered solo each that were a delightful experience to the appreciative audience. Every feature of the program was a perfect success in its most minute interpretation.

Dr. Wilkerson pronounced the solemn ceremony that united this handsome couple in the sacred bonds of wedlock and Dr. Ezell invoked the blessings of God on their heads. It is doubtful if as beautiful a wedding scene has ever been witnessed in Clanton before. To our mind this event established a new record in the civil life of our little city. One thing that seemed particularly remarkable was the very difficult matter of this afternoon, at 4 o'clock, a number of Klansmen marched in to the church and occupied seats reserved for them at the front.

The choir for which that church is famous in place and music that was appropriate for the occasion.

The able pastor, in making for the service fair and impartial the brief summary he made of the Klan and its objects who were affiliated with the Klan. We imagine that the hooded brethren were satisfied with his manly statements and we know no member of the congregation could feel like he has done anything else than point out the inherent truths recognized by the Klansmen.

The honored and loved and beloved of the woman's orphanage was and his ability as an advocate for rightness is so well recognized that any comment on us would be superfluous. Suffice it to say that we are sure the Klansmen present, as every member of the congregation interested from start to finish and endorsed everything he said.

Owing to the extremely cold and inclement weather the hooded turn large as was hoped

SOME CHARCOAL ARTISTS

On last Friday night, at the High School auditorium, some of the young men belonging to that popular institution, put on the boards a most interesting and Negro Minister's entire collection and execution. Several of the festive entertainers, some of whom real histrionic talent and were proud in the performance.

The music was jazzed up to the nth degree and was a veritable storm from start to finish, while the jokes and gags were new and spicy.

A large crowd greeted the charcoal artists and all seemed satisfied as though they felt like they had received the best of the money.

Some of the boys demonstrated what they could do as singers of the "light fantastic toe" and a buck dance was a striking feature of the show. All in all, the entertainment was a success and does credit to its promoters and the skill of its actors.

CHRISTMAS BUSINESS GOOD

A Great quantity of toys, fruit, fireworks and other holiday merchandise was brought to Clanton this season, and the merchants have not been disappointed.

The dealers tell us the holiday trade has been all they could hope for this time around, perhaps the best holiday business that Clanton has ever

Robinson, of Vebena, was here last Saturday looking after matters. He holds quite a position with the R. R.

Today is that day of days, when liberty of action is rather to be excused than condemned, and when human charity is supposed to throw its mantle over almost every dereliction from the narrow path of duty that lies ahead of us all.

If the average good citizen talks with a lisp and wabbles on his legs, we just smile complacently and don't count that time. If some morose and sedate party comes down the street with a grin on his face and a joke and handshake for everyone he meets, we charitably ascribe his display of interest in his fellowman to the spirit of the day and not to the spirits that were brewed in some hidden den or sequestered cave where the eagle eye of the law enforcement man had failed to wander.

If some fire laden missel bats you side of the head or burns a big hole in the tail of your only coat, you should not be angry, but just laugh uproariously and tell 'em to do it again because it's Christmas. In fact, there is no room for anything on this great day except sentiments of gurgling love and a free spirit of forgiveness and fellowship for all of the short comings of everybody.

Make over the same old wishes and tell over the same old unmeaning stories you have told ever since you first began to prattle at mother's knee. Let joy be unconfined and try to be as happy as you can and make the other fellow the same if it don't cost too much or require some undue effort on your part.

Really and truly this should be a day of real soul gladness to every living human being. This is the greatest anniversary that human beings will ever be able to observe. There is nothing equal to it even in heaven above, for we are celebrating the gift of a most merciful God to a world absolutely lost and utterly helpless, had it not been for this transcendently gracious gift of a Savior who stepped in between a doomed world and the eternal damnation it merited, and made it possible for redemption to be ours; we would indeed be hopeless creatures.

In the very broadest sense we wish for you every one a happy and merry Christmas.

SLOW WORK

Since winter has taken over the situation and rain and freezes are the order of the day, work on the highway is practically at a stand still.

It is a pretty safe calculation, that for the next three months at least, very little progress can be made on account of the weather.

Summer and fall are about the only seasons of the average year when highway building can be carried on with any degree of success.

Miss Flossie Wilson, who has just finished a business course, is at home for the holidays.

At the home of the bride last Sunday forenoon, at 10 o'clock, Mr. Fleming Higgins and Miss Manie Smith were united in marriage. Dr. S. J. Ezell performing the ceremony.

Both of these happy young people are well known and have many friends in Clanton, having both been reared here.

The happy groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Higgins who live on north eighth street. They are long time citizens of Clanton, the father being among the wealthiest men of the town and a large owner of city property here as well as an extensive landed proprietor in the rural districts.

Flem is a bright and hustling young business man and has already made for himself a most enviable reputation as a lumber dealer.

The lovely and winsome bride is the daughter of Mrs. P. C. Smith, whose husband died here some years ago, and who is a lady who is known and loved by a host of the best people in this section. The daughter is one of the fairest and sweetest flowers that bloomed in the social life here, and is destined to make for her mate a home nest that will be a home indeed.

To this happy and handsome couple the Chilton County News extends its very best wishes for happiness, prosperity and long life.

NO MORE BEGINNERS AT CLANTON GRAMMAR SCHOOL

I understand that several people are planning to start their children to school who have become six years of age since Oct. 1. The law provides that a child's age on Oct. 1 shall count as his age during that scholastic year. You can see from that there would be no law to permit a child to enter school who was not six years of age on Oct. 1. If the school were not so badly crowded, there would be no objections to allowing a class of beginners to enter on January 1, as has been customary. We regret very much that we are not able to accommodate these children, but as we can't take all, we are forced to carry out the law.

W. E. MARTIN, Prin.

GONE TO SEE THE OLD FOLKS

Dr. Ezell, with his little family, left last Sunday afternoon to spend Christmas with his parents in South Carolina. He went to Montgomery in his Sedan and there caught the New York limited for the balance of his trip. He will be absent next Sunday and there will be no services at the Baptist church.

Miss Evie Jones, one of the leading young teachers in this county is at home for a few days, taking advantage of the holiday to enjoy the time with her large circle of friends. She holds a position in the Collins Chapel school.

Last week the parole under which one Manuel Dubose, who was under sentence for violating the prohibition laws, was revoked by the Governor and it became necessary for the sheriff to rearrest him and deliver him over to the proper authorities where he could begin serving out his sentence.

Deputy Culp and Night Marshall Curlee left with him for the Vredefort saw mill in southwest Alabama, where he was to put up his time. They went to Selma by auto and there Deputy Culp turned the prisoner over to Marshall Curlee, who was to escort Dubose the balance of the way by rail.

Everything worked well until they were almost at their destination, when the prisoner made an excuse that enabled him to evade Mr. Curlee for a few moments when he swung from the train and made his escape.

So far as we have heard he is still at large, but it is believed by some that he will report to the prison in person in the near future and proceed to put up his time.

This is the statement as given us by sheriff Littlejohn and Marshall Curlee.

IS THANKFUL

Prof. J. L. Johnson requests us to extend to the Young Men's Class, of the Baptist Sunday School, of which he is teacher, his most sincere thanks for a beautiful automatic Parker pencil presented him as a Christmas present by his class. It was a most appropriate gift and is, indeed, a beautiful one.

WOMAN AT THE HEAD

Mrs. Faulkner, the lady who has been serving as an assistant to Attorney General Davis for some time, has now been elected as chairman of the State Board of Pardons.

She is said to be very efficient and thorough in all of her work and will, no doubt, make an able head for that Board.

WILL GET IT YET

While the bill increasing the pay of rural route men fell down this time, it is not believed that it is finally dead.

Congress realizes now that these men are not receiving a fair deal, in comparison with other branches of the service and the general impression is that they will yet get a readjustment that will mean to them an advance allowed for expenses incurred.

Burton Mullins is at home with his parents. Mr. and Mrs. C. Reeds Mullins and large number of friends and admirers this week and next. Burton is taking the military training at Marion, Alabama, in addition to the regular college training. He looks well and already shows marks of the high degree of culture which this training gives any young man who takes it. He is preparing to enter the Naval Academy at Annapolis when he completes his course at Marion. We predict he will be able to "Sink a Mercimac" some time in the future.

A Beautiful Allegorical Representation of the Saviors Birth

Last Sunday night at 7 o'clock, at the Methodist church, a realistic allegory featuring the birth of our Savior, the angelic band that aroused the lowly shepherds, their tour to the manger, the arrival and worship of the "wise men of the east," and other incidents from Holy Writ pointing to this most stupendous achievement of God for the saving of a lost world.

The interior of the large auditorium was beautifully and significantly decorated in accord with the plot of this most sacred exhibition.

The splendid choir that dispenses music regularly at the Methodist church, had arranged a special program for this occasion and, to their credit be it said, their selection were sublimely appropriate and most beautifully rendered.

Although the weather was exceedingly cold and inclement, quite a large audience assembled to witness this sacred Pageant, and every one present was touched by this scene and made to realize more fully the transcendent mercy and goodness of God in offering his only Son up, in this humble walk of life, as the one fitting sacrifice that could satisfy justice and give to fallen man a chance, through His suffering, to regain a heavenly home he had squandered by disobedience.

We offer our sincere congratulations to these good people in the success of this pageant of love.

THOUGHT EVERYBODY KNEW

Some of the big city papers have been having a lot to say about the water rising in the creeks and branches about over the country and no rain having fallen.

They even seemed kinder wrought up over it as, if it was some dire supernatural phenomenon that foreboded something unusual in nature.

That is a thing that has always happened. As the sun recedes and its rays get less fierce as the winter season approaches, the earth cools off gradually and the water in the earth rises towards the surface and is not evaporated by the heat and the little springs begin to flow again. Also, the sap in the trees, and other vegetation goes down in to the earth and also adds its mite to the dampness rising from below and so, you see, these natural causes will conspire to put water in the streams again without rain.

Thought everybody knew that. City people have lots to learn.

Miss Julia Stone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Stone of Union Springs, was the guest of her cousin, Miss Tommie Parrish, in South Clanton last Saturday and Sunday. Miss Stone is a student of Alabama College at Mon teville.

Judge E. S. Lyman, of the Eighteenth Judicial Circuit, was here last Saturday on official business. The Judge is a man of very unassuming ways, but an able, scholarly and highly efficient presiding judge.

Mr. Joe Hester is home from Auburn for the holidays.

Miss Sallie Johnson, who has been off at school, is home for the holiday.

Our prediction is that the vote in every national election for quite a while will be a surprise to both parties. The people are learning fast now.

Independence is going to mean more than party lines as the years go by. You can fool some of the people all the time. You can fool all the people some of the time, but you cant fool all the people all the time."

We saw a couple of live and jolly hell weevils in a load of wood the other day. They looked like they had fattened up on the cold weather. It was an unfortunate visit to town for them for they both got killed.

Just about the time we begin to faith aerial navigation w e read of a few more plane accidents just like all the others and then w wonder again what kind of saw dust is in the brain pan of any fellow who will be an aviator.

Mr. Atticus Muthos, of the Advertiser tried to show us Monday that we had failed to understand his high way propaganda. We read his explanation carefully, but we fail to see where he has said anything yet.

SEEING THE LIGHT

It is a noticeable fact, that since the shell shock received by the democratic party in the last election, some of the more sane and brainy of the bunch have seen the error of their ways and are beginning to react to wards a sanity that is hopeful.

They are coming out with a full confession and freely admitting the mistakes that led to the party's undoing. Several of the more prominent ones freely say that, as a party, we had utterly forsaken our creed and wandered far from the fundamental principles, that make of the democratic party the real home of the rank and file of our citizenry.

This is as it should be, for an abortive and mis-shapen democracy like the conglomerate mess that went in to the last election under that banner is forever dead and doomed.

The real creed of the old democratic party is full brother to our national constitution and the banner under which all people who believe in a government of, by and for the people are destined to travel. It is the party dedicated to human rights and liberties and the one party that fundamentally is so framed that under its system of government the rich and poor alike have a voice and a personal interest in that government. It stands for all that is fair and just to the governed and, is pledged to an impartial dispensation of the affairs of government in every sense and under all conditions.

When ever we all get ready to return whole heartedly to the fold. When we make up our mind to stand up for principles instead of being led by political tricksters, then you will see this grand old party loom up in majesty and sweep all before it.

Too many laws and too stringent regulations are just as detrimental to the public welfare as too few. The greatest problem which confronts the American railroads to-day is not one of transporting freight and passengers, or of its dealings with the public or its employees.

The real transportation problem is the never-ceasing activity on the part of politicians and lawmakers in suggesting changes in present laws and substitutes for those railroad regulatory measures which are working satisfactorily. In addition to suggested changes, new laws affecting the railroads are being proposed in many states, in the National Congress.

Why not give the railroads a legislative holiday? Why not close the book on lawmaking until there is a well-demonstrated need for new or different regulatory measures; and permit the carriers to operate efficiently and satisfactorily; continuing to afford to the people of the United States the best transportation facilities on the face of the globe, and at the lowest cost to the people?

Just at this time, it is interesting to know that the actual Governmental expenditures on account of railroad regulation during the year of 1923, totaled $5,293,444.00.

ROAD BOND ISSUE

Dagr Editor:

The one important problem before the people of Alabama today is the need of providing ways and means to continue the road building program for the people of Alabama.

The $25,000,000.00 Bond Issue will be all allotted in the year of 1925 and 1926. Then the building of roads would have to cease for the want of ways and means. Many of our good friends, when the $25,000,000.00 Bond Issue was being submitted to the people, were skeptical that the money would be a charge and an obligation on the real and personal property. The automobile license pays the interest of this issue and creates a sink to fund to retire the bonds and there has been $1,400,000.00 of this issue already retired, which is the first evidence that this will not be a charge on the personal or real property of the people of Alabama.

There are 160,000 automobiles and trucks in Alabama and due to the roads and bridges over which they travel, they pay $48,000,000.00 a year more than they should. How do I show this gigantic sum of money? The answer is—the consumption of gas and lubricating oil is 40% more than it should be. There are three repair bills due to the road conditions. With better roads, we could save two of these repair bills. The deterioration of the tire and tube is 40% more than it should be and the wear and tear and the life of the car and truck and those four items make an average of $300.00 per annum per car. You multiply that by 160,000 cars and it makes the sum of $48,000,000.00. This is a larger tax that these 160,000 tax and license payers pay than it takes to run the combined State government, County and city government, including the income tax to the federal government.

My idea is that a $750,000,000 Bond issue should be financed by a gasoline tax. The gasoline tax is the easiest way to collect. There can be no escape like the automobile license or other personal property and the man that uses the roads ought to pay for them and he cannot travel any further than the amount of gas he buys. Besides, we have 40,000 or 50,000 automobiles and trucks come from other states and use our roads and they pay nothing to the wear and tear of the roads and they cannot travel over our roads any further than the amount of gas they buy. Thereby you get revenue from that source.

We must approach this problem with vision and courage. The horse-drawn vehicles was a local proposition calling out statute labor and local taxation to build local roads. The coming of the automobile and the auto-truck has changed these conditions. It is no longer a neighborhood road problem.

The roads are used from every county in the State and from every state in the Union and many from Canada. Good roads have created business for
